ROSWELL PEEL SEES YALE DEFEAT HARVARD

(Special to The Bulletin)

NOANK, June 23—Out of the west came a six foot giant and his first visit to the village to see his cousin, Leo Harris, and his name is Roswell Peel, and it happens to be in the week of the Yale and Harvard boat race. So Young Harris has a power boat named Seven Come Eleven, that is 30-foot long. He wanted to give the giant from the golden west a real treat as long as he is up with the east people, so he got the boat all ready on Thursday. Friday morning came and with a party about ten, and Cousin Peel on board, flying a Harvard flag, the whistle blew, and the good ship Seven Come Eleven was bound for the Thames river. Getting over there around 10 o'clock by luck, they got a good place near the finish line for the afternoon race. The morning races were rowed upstream and the boats looked wonderful, a sight the western lad will never forget in his life.

Around noon the news came that Harvard took both morning races and the party gave a real wild west dance. There happened to be a big yacht near with music on board that gave the young ladies a chance to shake their dogs and have a dance. The crowd had a big laugh on that one. Time was going away good, plenty of fun and dances and more bottles dead as a door nail came floating by the good ship Seven Come Eleven, that was worst than the Jamestown flood. The westerner says there must be a 1,000 boats in the harbor. Steward Eddie Ellis rang the bell, meaning put on the feed bag for supper, and what a lay out. P. J. Shandor's fine sirloin steak were so tender they could be cut without a knife and Irish potatoes for a side dish. There was strawberry shortcake with coffee as the sun was going down.

The observation trains were going up each side of the Thames. It was about time the big race was ready to start. The water was so still that you could shave with it, no wind blowing and everybody was ready for a good close battle between those two great rivals for the last 79 years, with 68 of them pulled on this river. Boats were flying their colors when Stretch Moran hauled out his new watch, and it read 7.30 o'clock, almost time for the big race. In about ten minutes the airplanes were coming down the course. Then the crowd knew the crews were hard at it, so breaking out a pair of glasses, Capt. Harris says, "I think Yale is ahead." Steward Ellis says, "Don't break that sad news to us and we with a Harvard flag." It was not long when the crews could be seen with the good right eye and Yale was rowing as easy with Harvard trying to catch up. It seems if the men in the red shell were towing a lobster pot for the stroke was not there and Yale was taking it so easy. The blue oarsmen went over the line, a winner by about eight lengths. The fellow from the west could not make out what Harvard was chasing Yale for and could not catch them. The crowd had to laugh. Then Walter Willis told him what the race was for. Then Young Peel could see it all. When the bridge opened the Seven Come Eleven got in line and was out early bound for the fishing village. The party was sad not to see Harvard win but they took it with a smile, better luck next year.

MARKET CLOSED WITH THE INDEX OF 90 STOCKS AT A NEW LOW FOR THE YEAR

NEW YORK, June 24.—(AP)—Unsettled by the weakness of wheat and the investment rails, speculative sentiment turned decidedly bearish in the last half hour of today's stock market and prices broke throughout the entire list. Yesterday's advances were more than eliminated and the weighted index of 90 stocks went to a new low for the year based on closing quotations. Net losses ranged from 2 to 8 points in the so-called pivotal shares.

July wheat tumbled nearly 4 cents a bushel, selling just above 88 cents, another low for the past 16 years. Other grains were off to about the same extent and all closed at the bottom. Cotton was also heavy, although late covering held the net losses to 9 to 27 points.

Liquidation of the rails, many of which went to the lowest levels in several years, went forward persistently in the afternoon after publication of figures showing that net operating income of first 12 carriers to report for May, had declined 27.9 per cent from the same month a year ago. This decline was less than the decreases in either March or April, but it lent capital to the bears, who extended their activities to the utilities and rails. U. S. Steel and Bethlehem Steel quickly equaled their year's lows, established last week, and American Can came within half a point of duplicating its previous minimum. Final prices were virtually at the bottom.

There was a bit of a surprise in the weekly operating ratio of U. S. Steel. Standing at a fraction above 71 per cent compared with 72 per cent in the preceding week, the rate represented a smaller reduction than had been anticipated, especially since schedules have been cut. The favorable showing was accounted for in part by the extent of business for immediate delivery.

Independent producers were reported to be working at around 61 per cent of rated capacity against 64 per cent a week ago, while the average for the entire industry was estimated at 66 per cent, or about 2 per cent lower. At this time two years ago this average was 73 per cent.

Credit rates moved toward still more favorable levels. Short term time money was reduced 1-4 per cent to the lowest rates in years. Leading dealers cut bankers' acceptances another eighth and call money went to 2 per cent for the first time in three months.

The weekly condition statement of the reporting Federal Reserve member banks suggested that recent liquidation in the stock market had not come primarily from the out-of-town banks which had been reported to be reducing their security loans. This item rose $51,000,000 in the week ended June 18, during which period brokers' loans declined $211,000,000. One of the most significant items in the statement, however, was the gain of $111,000,000 in commercial borrowings, a rather striking upturn in view of recent tendencies in the other direction.

The late break in stocks carried U. S. Steel from 157 1-2 to 152 1-2 for a 4-point net loss. American Can fell from 113 to 110, losing 5 3-4 on the day. American Telephone was off 5 1-4 net, General Electric 3 3-8, Atchison 3 1-4, Baltimore & Ohio 4 7-8, New York Central 6 3-8, Westinghouse 5 1-8, Eastman Kodak 9 1-2, and J. I. Case 18 1-2; the day's new lows totaled 79.

Most of the leading foreign exchanges were steady, although the Spanish peseta made a large decline.

CHICAGO GRAIN MARKET

CHICAGO, June 24.—(AP)—Reported northward spread of the 1930 wheat harvest into Nebraska gave a fresh jolt to the wheat market today, knocking prices down 4c a bushel. Predictions were current that a big movement of Nebraska wheat would soon develop, and fears were expressed that with no adequate outlet a material increase of the United States visible supply in the near future would result in elevator and railway congestion. Closing quotations were at the day's lowest level, and were also under any records since 1914.

Wheat finished unsteady, 3 3-8c a bushel below yesterday's close. Corn showed 1al 3-8c net decline with oats 1-8a1-2c down, and provisions unchanged to a rise of 12c.

Provisions advanced notwithstanding downturns both in the value of hogs and of grain as well.

BOND MARKET

United States governments provided the most encouraging feature, rising several 32nds of a point under moderate accumulation. Government bonds are the first to reflect easier money rates, as they did today when call money dropped to 2 per cent. Time money was pared 1-8 of one per cent on short maturities, and rates on bankers' acceptances were cut. In addition, the New York Clearing House member banks cut the rate on 30-day deposits to 1 1-2 per cent, which was viewed as a potential influence on the diversion of funds to the bond market.

A few legal railroad bonds showed improvement but an easier tone ruled the group. In contrast with the improvement shown by some issues, St. Paul 5s of '75, Erie 5s of '67, and Seaboard issues touched new lows for the year. Missouri Pacific 4s gained nearly a point, and New York Central 5s and Pennsylvania gold 5s gained slightly.

After holding fairly steady during the earl ytrading, convertibles experienced a sharp reaction in the afternoon, and the close showed Alleghany 5s of '50, St. Paul 5s, International Telephone 4 1-2s, and Rock Island 4 1-2s at new lows for the year. Atchison 4s lost 2 7-8, the largest drop in the group, and Baltimore & Ohio 4 1-2s, and Chicago Northwestern 4 3-4s ended the day at the year's low level. Moving against the trend was the American Telephone 4 1-2s which gained 1 1-2 points.

Sugar bonds sold at new low levels for the year. Manati 7 1-2s dropped 10 points to 37, making a loss of 23 points in two days. Vertientes 7s lost 1 to establish a new 1930 low.

Moderate activity was displayed by foreign issues, with the usual leaders holding steady. German issues were easier. German 7s touched a new year's low and then rallied slightly. Some sharp drops occurred among less active issues. Nuremberg 6s lost 4 1-2; Peru 2nd 6s, 3; Warsaw 7s, 5 3-4, and Holland American Line 6s, 2. British 5 1-2s and Belgium 6s gained 1-4 of a point.

NEW YORK, June 24.—(AP)—Steel ingot production of the United States Steel corporation is a fraction above 71 per cent compared with about 72 per cent in the preceding week, a reduction much smaller than Wall street has been predicting. Production of independents is down slightly less than 3 per cent with the current rate slightly above 61 per cent, against 64 per cent in the previous week. For the entire industry the average is about 66 per cent, compared with slightly under 68 per cent a week ago.

The New York Cotton exchange service reports that present indications are that the domestic stock of all kinds of cotton in this country at the end of the season July 31, will be between 4,400,000 and 4,500,000 bales. Exports of cotton from this country probably will be around 6,750,000 bales, the report says, against 8,038,000 bales last season and 7,529,000 two seasons ago. Domestic cotton consumption probably will be around 6,250,000 bales, compared with 7,034,000 last season.

RULES FOR YOUNG WRITERS

3—Use pen and ink, not pencil.

3—Short and pointed articles will be given preference. Do not use over 250 words.

4—Original stories or letters only will be used.

POETRY FOR THE WIDEAWAKES

Poster-Makers

If I could make a poster,
As you children do,
That would tell a story
Straight and true.

I would never bother
With weak words and things;
I would take to crayons
And to wings.

For I have seen gay posters
That will do more good
For dumb friends than poems
Ever could.

If I could make a poster
That would please the eyes
I'd strive to picture kindness and (maybe)
Take a prize!

—Alfaretta Lansing.

The Maid in Church
(As seen by two friends)
The Admirer

She bends her knee in pious prayer,
Wrapt in a mantle of sweet calm,
(A Phidias would rave about
The silken texture of her arm)
For rich and poor alike, she prays.
She's not prone to exception;
(What Raphael could fix in paint
The joy of her perfection?)
(That fur she wears, I must confess, Add somewhat to her loveliness.)

The Humanitarian

Ah yes! her lips move fast in prayer,
Her piety is good to see,
(That hand-bag lying on her lap
Once grinned in crocodillan glee.)
In one so young it is not oft
We find such true devotion.
(The clasp upon that same hand-bag is turtle—I've a notion.)
What flaws could mar this nature fine?
Her goodness is quite plain.
(The beasts that yielder her that coat.
Died slowly, in great pain.

—Marguerite Warren Burrill.

Give Me Back My Horse

Horse-hoofs stir me all within
As they step the roadway high;
Wistful thoughts of what has been—
Touch that tells of time gone-by.

Horse was king of traffic then,
Step was turned to nature's song;
Reign of restful move. Age when
Life was life and love was strong.

Rumbling age that horse dethrones,
Boasts of life of gas-speed ring,
Fits not me. I love live tones,
Breath of beast, and feet that sing;

Rhythm of soil instead of stone,
Lilt of home and pasture land;
Things we love and call by name—
Music farm-folk understand:

Flesh and blood that know my stroke,
Neighing thanks in loving tone:
Senseless cars, I'd give them all
For gray horse that was my own.

UNCLE JED'S TALK TO THE WIDEAWAKES

The wombat, called badger in Tasmania, though he is not much like the English badger, except in his digging habits, lives largely on the roots and bushes and other things which he digs out. He mostly digs out his home, too, and as he is a stout, thick-set fellow, he needs a large burrow.

In shape the wombat is not unlike a pig, but he is covered in grayish hair, very thick and strong. His legs are short, but sturdy and furnished with very strong claws.

Wombats are among the most intelligent of the marsupials, and stand a better chance of surviving than most, since, apart from their intelligence, their flesh is little used for food and their skin is not very valuable.

It is true that in the early days of prospecting on the west coast of Tasmania, the prospectors who went into the bush lived largely on "badgers," but that was because there was very little else to live on in that country.

Badgers sometimes choose curious places to live in. Thus at Cape Berner, on the east coast of Tasmania, they live down the cliffs. These cliffs are not quite perpendicular towards the top, though they are not very far off it. The badgers live in holes under the rocks and climb up over the top to feed.

Wombats are numerous in some of the rough country in Victoria, and the farmers complain that while they do not do much harm in themselves, they fig under the wire-netting fences and so let the rabbits in—the rabbits being in such great numbers that when they once get inside the fenced-in enclosures, they soon eat all the grass and other green feed; not only that, but they burrow there, and soon begin to breed and increase their numbers, thereby becoming a pest to the farmers.

STORIES WRITTEN BY WIDE-AWAKES

The Midnight Alarm

Dear Uncle Jed: An experience occurred to me the other night which I thought you and your Wide Awakes would like to hear. The title of the story is The Midnight Alarm.

Waking suddenly one night, I heard a noise at my bedroom door. Bright ribbons of terror flashed before my eyes. My blood almost froze in my veins. Terror gripped at my heart.

I kept asking myself, "Who can it be?" I didn't know whether to shout out in a hoarse, man-like voice, "Who is there?" or to lie as still as a mouse.

After deciding that it would be best to ask who this intruder might be, I boldly ventured to say in a rough, guttural voice, "Who are you?" A moment of silence and then—! In an exciting, stimulating tone my sister screamed, "Open that door!"

She came in, pale, flashes of horror in her eyes.

She sighed and murmured, "You know what?" and in an instant she was weeping bitterly over some misfortune which yet I didn't understand.

After a few minutes she was up again trying to tell me.

She held out a white sheet of paper. It read as follows: "Beware, tonight at twelve," and it was about 11:15 then.

All we could do was to cry as if our hearts would break, when suddenly in came Anne and Tom, exclaiming, "We couldn't keep it up any longer, you have taken it too seriously."

She snatched the paper from my trembling fingers and pointed to some very bold printing.

It read, "April Fool."

Two Kittens

Dear Uncle Jed: I am writing to tell you about my two kittens. Their first home was in the woodshed. The mother was a black and white cat, while one little kitten was all black and was named Ink Pot. What color do you suppose the other one was? Why, yellow, of course, just like the first spring flower. I named him Dandie. At first they stayed in the basket all the time. But soon they learned to climb out of the basket and walk around, yet they were glad to get back in the basket as they were still weak. They grew strong and soon were able to fun all over the woodshed. What fun it was to watch them. They chased their own tails and sometimes bit their mother's and made her say mew, mew. My brother nick-named Dandie, Butterball.

The Story of Wheat

Dear Uncle Jed and All the Wide Awakes: I am going to write about wheat, something we are all interested in; not from choice, but from need. Think how bad off we would be without bread, a form of wheat. First, we will go out west or any state in which wheat is found. In the spring the wheat is planted by a large machine called a seeder.

We have winter and spring wheat, each being planted at the time that their name implies.

It is a wonderful sight to see the acres and acres of rolling land, with golden stalks of wheat tossing at every puff of wind. It grows rapidly. In the fall it is cut by reapers which bind it into bundles. These are taken to the thresher which separates wheat kernels and straw. The wheat is bagged and put on its way to the great wheat mills.

Among the chief cities for the milling of wheat are St. Paul and Minneapolis, Minnesota. It is ground and put in sanitary paper bags. It is sent either to a grocer or some large bakeries. Here it is made into bread. It is wrapped in waxed paper and sent in trucks to various groceries. We buy it and never think of labor, milling, baking and traveling of the wheat ingredients of our loaf of bread. Think of the miles our wheat has traveled before we get it as bread, buns, biscuits, cake and many other pastries.

I hope you have learned something of wheat in my letter.

Waylaid

Dear Uncle Jed: It was late when I went out and in my hands I clutched an essay, which, if in time for the printing of a newspaper, would entitle me to a $500 prize. When about 50 rods from the office someone from behind me threw a sack over my head and then I knew no more.

When I returned to my senses, I was alone in a strange room, my hands and feet were bound, and my mouth gagged. I tried to rise, but, alas, I was bound to the chair.

In a short time I heard voices which drew nearer and nearer until they entered the room in which I was. I pretended to be unconscious.

One voice said, "Oh, she is still senseless, let's get her to the boat."

Another voice answered in the affirmative, and I was lifted and carried out of doors.

The place to wherever they were taking me was covered swiftly; by the noise of the waves beating against rocks, I knew I was being taken on board a vessel.

"Lock 'er in the stateroom," said another. This was agreed upon and I was locked in a statercom. Outside I heard many voices, one asked:

"When do we sail?" "Almost immediately," came an answer. "Where do we go?" asked the first voice. "Central Africa," came the answer.

This answer frightened me, for if I were to go there, I knew it was likely that I would never again see my friends nor home.

"Haul up the anchor," said a voice. When, all of a sudden, there was a hurrying of feet and a command, "Search the boat," was given.

There was a clinging of keys, and the door was opened I was free.

The next day I learned that my rival had paid these men to take me away for a day so that she might have time to get her article in before me.

Late the next day I was handed a check! Someone had found my essay and had handed it in before my rival.

Memorial Day

Dear Uncle Jed: I have written to the Wide Awake circle and enjoy writing again. The name of my story today is "Memorial Day."

As May 30th was Memorial day we did not have school, but had to meet at Ransom school at 2 o'clock, (D. S. T.). Then we marched to Grange hall. Many poems were recited and a few songs were sung. John A. Markham gave a short talk about Memorial day. Then we marched to the honor roll. One of the Gold Star Mothers placed a wreath on the monument and gave a talk on why we should celebrate Memorial day.

Next we marched to the Civil war monument where the statue of Bissell Pokéepsie stands. Another wreath was placed on this monument. We sang, "The Star Spangled Banner," and that ended the parade After the parade many people attended the baseball game.

What Kindness Did

Uncle Jed: There was once a burglar. He had a little girl. One day she fell sick. He called for a doctor He cured the little girl, but would take no pay. The burglar was very grateful.

One day the doctor called on his sweetheart. He stayed there a long time. One night when everyone was asleep a burglar broke into the house. The doctor's sweetheart heard the noise and went out to the room where the burglar was. It was the burglar whose girl the doctor had cured.

The doctor came and was going to telephone for the police, but his sweetheart prevented him.

When the doctor returned to his home a few weeks later a man was waiting for him. It was the burglar. He took a jimmy, a revolver and a skeleton key from his pocket and gave them to the doctor. He said he was going to be an honest man.

He became rich and honest. That is what kindness did.

A Deserted Farmhouse

Uuncle Jed: Standing by a lonely country road, a mile or more from the nearest village, stands an old deserted farmhouse.

It is a low, two-storied house, originally, white, but now gray and weatherbeaten, and slowly crumbling to ruin. The signs of its deserted-ness are readily seen. The grass has grown up high, almost hiding the path, only a few of the windows have panes of glass in them, the roof is full of holes, the broken blinds swing back and forth with the gentle breeze.

On the sides are elm trees which seem to guide the house. The stone wall has fallen down.

In back are acres and acres of land which seem to ask to be tilled. Under the shade of the old apple tree is a well covered with vines.

The best time to see this deserted farmhouse is in June when the flowers are in bloom.

Catching Fireflies

Dear Uncle Jed: I have written to you once before and won a book. It was about a month or two ago, but I haven't had time to write to thank you for it. So I am thanking you for it now. I like it, it is very interesting.

Last Sunday we went for a ride. We went to a friend's house. When we reached there, it was dark, so we played hide and seek. We didn't play long, because the girls couldn't tell my brothers, as they look so much alike and were dressed alike. They look like twins, but they are not.

Later we went catching fireflies or lightning bugs as we call them. We went out into the field and started chasing them. We heard the boys hollering, they got some, but we girls couldn't catch one. At last we got tired and said, "Let's go," but we looked and there weren't any boys around. We saw them at the other end of the field. We said, "Let's go and scare them." We went up there and said to the boys, "Look! what's that white thing there?" They looked and we started running and said, "Come on, hurry up!" They followed us, but walked. We ran faster and ducked behind a shed. When they came by we jumped out and yelled. They started rubbing the fireflies on us. We were yelling and running. We thought that our clothes would get on fire. One of the boys tried to put some on me and chased me. He tripped me. I fell, ripped my stockings and hurt my knee.

Two Plowshares

Uncle Jed: Once upon a time a blacksmith made two ployshares from the same piece of iron.

A farmer bought them and put one in his plow, and the other he stored away until he should need it.

Several months later, needing the second one, he took it and carried it to the field. But it was all covered with rust.

"What," said the one which had been in use and was as bright as a mirror, "We were both alike once! How is it that you who have been resting are so rusty?"

"It is laziness," said the farmer, "that has made this one rusty and ugly; you who have been working have grown in brightness and beauty."

Presented May Basket

Uncle Jed: Oh! what a surprise I had on May 30. Many of my friends gave me an adorable May basket. It was 7 o'clock and I was playing outside when my mother called me. I went into the house promptly. There on the table lay the finest basket money could buy. Twelve of my friends were around the table. When I first came I couldn't say a word, I was so pleased.

The rain had just fallen and my brother thought it was a good time to go fishing. We took our boats and fishing supplies and started off. One after another we caught fish until it was dark. Suddenly we heard something scramble by us so we dropped our poles and everything and ran home. The next day people were talking of a stray horse. Later, when we went there, we saw fresh imprints of a horse. We laughed at our foolishness and took up the fish and started home again with seven fish only

GRINDS TEETH? MAYBE IT'S WORMS

If your child grinds teeth—beware of worms. They are much more common than most mothers think.

Look also for the following symptoms: picking the nose, crossness, crying in sleep, offensive breath, loss of appetite or weight, nausea or general restlessness. Any one of these signs may be your warning that worms are present.

Wise mothers take no chances with these dangerous and disgusting childhood pests. Even if worms are only suspected they give the child

POETRY

Resolution And Independence

"Look not on the strawberry when 'tis red, red, red."
Thus, heartlessly, my doctor to me said;
said, said.
And, all the Winter, I obeyed
His dictum, and drank orangeade,
Or nibbled toast and marmalade.
And never felt the slightest bit of dread, dread, dread.

My gustatory outlook now is black,
black, black,
I struggle to be calm, but, oh, alack,
'lack, 'lack.
Since cruel Winter ceased to hover
O'er my menu, peace is over;
No longer do I live in clover;
The season of the sweet strawberry's back, back, back!

Contrary to my most determined wish,
wish, wish,
They're all about me, heaped in every dish, dish, dish.
The toothsome berry haunts me,
Its juicy s

LEGAL NOTICES

State of Connecticut, County of New London, ss. June 6, 1930.

Upon the complaint of the said Savings Bank of New London claiming for the reasons therein set forth (1) a decree that John Kimball, one of the defendants, does not exist but was a fictitious name, (2) that the deed referred to in paragraph 2 of the second count of the complaint conveyed no title inasmuch as there was no real grantee thereof, (3) that certain parties are the owners of the fee of certain mortgaged premises situated in East Lyme, Connecticut, and that they and Frederick W. Fratus, Administrator of the Estate of Adeline R. H. Butts are in possession of the same and (4) the foreclosure and possession of said premises, now pending before this Court, having been returned thereto on the first Tuesday of June, 1930;

It appearing to and being found by this Court that John Kimball said to be of the City, County and State of New York, one of the said defendants, if such a person exists, is gone to parts unknown, and now the plaintiff asks for an order of notice in the premises.

Therefore ordered, that notice of the pendency of said complaint be given by publishing this order in The Norwich Bulletin, a newspaper printed in Norwich, Connecticut, once on or before the 25th day of June, 1930.

By order of Court,
WILLIAM H. SHIELDS, Jr.
Assistant Clerk of the Superior Court for New London County.

AT A COURT OF PROBATE HELD at Norwich, within and for the District of Norwich, on the 23rd day of June, A. D. 1930.
Present, NELSON J. AYLING, Judge.
Estate of John Troland, late of Norwich, in said District, deceased.
The Executor exhibited his administration account with said estate to the Court for allowance; it is thereforeOrdered, That the 26th day of June, A. D. 1930, at 2 o'clock in the afternoon, at the Probate Court Room in the City of Norwich, in said District, be and the same is, appointed for hearing the same, and the said executor is directed to give notice thereof by publishing this order once in some newspaper having a circulation in said District, at least three days prior to the date of said hearing, and make return to the Court.
NELSON J. AYLING, Judge.
The above and foregoing is a true copy of record.
Attest, HELEN M. DRESCHER, Clerk.

AT A COURT OF PROBATE HELD at Norwich, within and for the District of Norwich, on the 23rd day of June, A. D. 1930.
Present, NELSON J. AYLING, Judge.
Estate of Mary A. McNamara, late of Norwich, in said District, deceased.
Ordered, That the Executor give the creditors of said deceased to bring in their claims against said estate within six months from this date, by posting a notice to that effect, together with a copy of this order on the sign-post nearest to the place where said deceased last dwelt, and in the same town, and by publishing the same once in a newspaper having a circulation in said district, and make return to this Court.
NELSON J. AYLING, Judge.
The above and foregoing is a true copy of record.
Attest, HELEN M. DRESCHER, Clerk.

NOTICE
All creditors of said deceased are hereby notified to present their claims against said estate to the undersigned at Norwich, Conn., R. D. No. 6, within the time limited in the above and foregoing order.
SAMUEL E. HOLDRIDGE,
Executor

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Broadway Theatre

John Gilbert, "the screen's great lover," comes into his own with Metro's masterful production of Tolstoi's most famous and powerful novel of passion "Redemption" which opens at the cool Broadway today. The irresistible John is cast as a Russian nobleman of the time of the Czars, who, happily married to a lovely girl of his own station in life, is yet torn between his great love for her and the constant urge of his gypsy ancestry to be "on the road," a disciple of free love. Fond of gaming and vodka, the repressed life of the court to which he is attached by virtue of his noble blood, calls on him, and he leaves his trusting wife to join a nearby camp of gypsies who are about to start a long pilgrimage.

RENEE ADOREE and JOHN GILBERT in "REDEMPTION"

Easy love comes his way, and he is soon a victim of the princess of the tribe. To avert the disgrace which discovery of his illicit love will bring to his young wife, he fakes a suicide, which is accepted by the world as fact, and disappears from his native haunts and is seen no more until a chance discovery uncovers his sordid life.

His support includes lovely Eleanor Boardman, Conrad Nagel, and Renee Adoree, who was with Gilbert in the "Big Parade." Magnificent scenery, including vast Russian estates, a mad sleigh race across the frozen steppes, the exotic gypsy camp with its weird dances and ceremonials, and an orthodox Russian wedding in all its splendor form a splendid background for the tense compelling action of the drama. The surrounding featurettes are abrim with comedy in contrast to the sterner stuff of the feature and complete a perfectly balanced program. They include "Honest Crooks," a howling Pathe comedy, that old favorite in cartoon form "I'm Forever Blowing Bubbles," a clever novelty act "The Ballet Class," and selected Vitaphone varieties, with the latest Fox movietone news.

Palace Theatre

Ruth Chatterton, supported by Basil Rathbone and a large cast of stars, is the lead in "The Lady of Scandal," which opens today at the Palace theatre with "Two Weeks Off," starring Dorothy Mackaill and Jack Mulhall. This is one of the finest double-feature bills in the history of the Palace and it will be shown at the theatre through Friday.

The plot reveals amusing situations when a music-hall actress consents to marry the son of an English peer, much to the consternation of both families.

One of the best scenes in the production is the theatre scene where Miss Chatterton appears with a dancing chorus of "Piccadilly Johnnies" in a song and dance number. She sings a new number, "Say It with a Smile," written especially for her by Jack King and Eloise Janis.

For the stay-at-homes and for those who are planning a vacation, as well, "Two Weeks Off" is just the picture to see. It is the story of Dorothy Mackaill and the girl who works in the department store with her, Gertrude Astor. They go to the seashore, arriving there after many laughable mishaps. Meanwhile, Jack Mulhall, a rising young plumber from the big city, has arrived with his kit of tools, to fix the kitchen sink. Reaching there he learns of the fine opportunities to spend a vacation there, so he lays aside his kit and decides to be a big shot and spend a couple of weeks there himself.

He is mistaken for a movie star, this young pipe-fixer, and despite anything he can say or do, people persist in idolizing him. Well, ask yourself, what you or anybody else would have done under the same circumstances. Then come and see what our gallant Jack, assisted by Dorothy and Gertrude, does. It's great stuff.

NEW LONDON YOUTHS CHARGED WITH STEALING TENDER OF YACHT

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, June 24.—Joseph Sammataro, 18, of 121 Shaw street and Joseph Vocalino, 18, of 53 Prest street, were presented in the police court this morning charged with stealing a boat in the harbor last Wednesday night. Their cases were continued until next Saturday and both furnished sureties of their bonds of $500.

The young men are accused of the theft of the tender of the yacht "Sally Ann," owned in Fall River, Mass., and which was in port for the Yale-Harvard races. The tender was moored at the Hotel Griswold pier and when the owner returned and discovered the boat missing he made complaint to the police. Yesterday afternoon the boat was found on the shore of Shaw's cove, with the outboard motor and oars missing. They were found, however, in the cellar of the home of Sammataro and he implicated Vocalino. Sammataro has declared that the owner of the boat, Spencer Burden, left both youths in charge of the boat and when he did not return the boat was towed to the shore near the Atlantic Coast Fishers where it was hauled high on the shore. Thursday night Sammataro went to where the boat was abandoned the night before and rowed it to the cove where he stripped it.

Charles Stroniewski, a laborer of 651 Main street, was charged with breach of the peace upon complaint of his wife. The case was continued until Sept. 27 and Stroniewski was placed in the custody of the probation officer, Richard W. Mansfield. Mrs Stroniewski pleaded for her husband, declaring that she needed his support, not only for herself, but for their four children. Stroniewski returned home last night after having attended a wedding party and was ugly and abusive. He attacked and beat his wife, it is said. Mrs. Stroniewski telephoned to police headquarters asking for assistance and Automobile Patrol Officer Elwood Bailey was dispatched to the house. Before the officer arrived there, Mrs. Stroniewski retreated and she was hurrying through Main street, followed by her husband, when Officer Bailey arrived on the scene. Mrs. Stroniewski was bleeding from the mouth from the blows she received.

Bruno and Edmund Nocery, 19 Post Hill place, Thomas Rudd, State street, and John Berade, New York, the latter a guest of the Nocery brothers, were charged with breach of the peace. Edmund Nocery and Rudd were each fined $26 and costs. Bruno Nocery was fined $10 and costs and the charge against Beradi was nolled. The four youths were arrested last night as a result of a fight precipitated by Edmund Nocery and Rudd which was aided and abetted by Bruno Nocery. According to the story of the trouble the youths were in an automobile driven by Bruno Nocery on Bank street last night and when Nocery's car drove from the curb, no signal was given, with the result that a near-collision with a machine in which were Clyde Smith, son of Mr. and Mrs. C. R. Smith, 12 Fowler court and Grant McLaren, 18, of Groton, the latter being at the wheel. Smith and McLaren remonstrated with Nocery and the remonstrance was met with vile and insulting remarks. McLaren continued to drive through Bank street, to Howard, to Pequot avenue, to Grenada terrace, to Montauk avenue to Folwer court, followed by Nocery's car. All the way to the Smith youth's home, the occupants of Nocery's auto followed and kept up an incessant invitation to fight and at one time Edmund Nocery attempted to board the running board of McLaren's auto. Arriving at the Fowler court house, and when McLaren and Smith alighted, Edmund Nocery attacked McLaren and Rudd beat up Smith. While the fight was in progress, Mrs. Smith notified the police and Automobile Patrol Officer Cornelius Moriarty and Patrolman Frank Philopena, who were dispatched to the battle ground arrested all the fighters, as well as Beradi.

The bearers were Thomas Muscarella, Sebastian Muscarella, Joseph Frisa, Carl Muscarella, Joseph Federicho and Francis Muscarella. Burial was in St. Mary's cemetery.

POLICE HOLD CHESTERFIELD YOUTH ON SERIOUS CHARGE

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, June 24.—Chester Henry, Chesterfield youth, was arrested tonight at the request of the state police, Groton barracks, charged with breach of the peace and threatening with a dangerous weapon. He was locked up at police headquarters and will be given a hearing in a Montville justice court tomorrow. The young man was complained against by his brother, Ray, a Chesterfield farm-worker, who alleged that Chester had threatened to kill him and had fired a bullet of a .38 calibre revolver in an endeavor to carry out the threat.

Chester's story is quite different than that of his brother. The former stated that Monday he became angered when he observed Raymond hit a small goat belonging to Chester with a huge stone, the animal being felled as a result of the blow. When Raymond seized another stone to again attack the goat, Chester yelled to him from the house to desist in his inhuman treatment of the animal. Raymond did not heed the command and Chester seized a shot gun and fired into the air. With the discharge of the gun, Raymond fled into the woods. Raymond asked for his brother's arrest, but he could not be found. Tonight, when Raymond, it is said, ordered his mother from the house, Chester was at hand and again remonstrated with his brother. Chester had been informed that the state police had a warrant for his arrest and, with a companion, this evening started for the state police barracks in the meantime, Raymond had communicated with the state police again, saying that his brother was headed towards New London. A request was made of the New London department and Automobile Patrol Officer Clarence Martin and Patrolman Frank Philopena were sent to Broad street to intercept Henry. He was unarmed.

The annual meeting of the Hempstead family association was held yesterday afternoon in the banking rooms of the Mariners Savings bank and the principal business transacted was the election of officers. The officers elected follow: President, Anna Hempstead Branch; vice presidents, Ruth Newcomb and Marian Chappell; treasurer, Henry Holt Smith; secretary, Harriet A. E Prince; assistant secretary, Mrs. Otto Schroeter; genealogist, Elizabeth Mason.

Herman R. Bickleman, 163 Avery court, Groton, was arrested as a suspicious person, suspected of having broken into the store room of the Groton Hardware company Sunday night. After a severe grilling by the Groton police Bickleman broke down and confessed. He was locked up and will be presented in the Groton town court next Monday. Bickleman obtained entrance to the store room by removing the hinges of a cellar window. Although he entered the store, so far as John Crouch, the manager, could discover, no stock was stolen.

COAST GAURD MAKES $75,000 LIQUOR SEIZURE

The power launch Antitostino, owned in New York, a 55-foot craft, was seized off Montauk Point, together with the crew of four men and the cargo of liquor of the estimated value of $75,000, early today. After the prize boat and its cargo of whiskey and crew were brought into port, the boat was started for New York late this afternoon as the capture was made in New York waters. All of the liquor, which is of various brands, was in sacks. The liquor was received by the contact boat from a big rum-runner, which was at sea when the transfer of liquor was made. The crew of a patrol boat was scouting Long Island and Block Island sounds the entire night. About 4 o'clock this morning the crew observed the Antitostino headed for Montauk and put chase, overtaking the contact boat when an attempt was being made to moor the boat. The coast guardsmen put alongside and then boarded the Antitostino and found the liquor.

Commissioner of Motor Vehicles Robbins B. Stoeckel today ordered the suspension of the drivers licenses of Tony Cosatino, 46 Shaw street, who was also denied the right to drive, and James E. Shears. Commissioner Stoeckel also denied the right to drive to Samuel Bompey, 57 Federal street.

A 15-foot flat bottom boat, with the name "Little Louie" on the stern, was stolen from the Thames shipyard last night and has not been recovered.

Elwood Bell, colored, and residing with his mother at 579 Main street, was arrested in New York last night as a runaway, but in reality the youth was in the metropolis on a recreative trip. The police picked the boy up and notified the New London police. This afternoon Mrs. Bell forwarded transportation to New York and the boy returned home tonight. The youth went to New York yesterday afternoon by train and there he was supposed to be the guest of Ransom Davis, a chef, who resides at the Y. M. C. A.

An automobile owned by W. E. Andrews, 15 Beaumont street, Newtonville, Mass., was stolen from the parking space at O'Leary's restaurant, Green street, last night and has not been recovered.

The meat market long conducted on Bank street by George H. Miller, has suspended business. It is Mr. Miller's intention to establish himself in the same business, but in another location.

HOPKINTON, R. I.

The public schools in town closed for a ten weeks' vacation this week. Miss L. Gertrude Stillman retires after 42 years experience teaching in the schools of the town. She has been principal of the Ashaway school for several years. James E. Haley, who has taught in the junior high school the past year, is to be principal of the Hope Valley school, taking the place of Roger C. Searle, who will be principal of a school in Noank.

Miss Lillian Hill, of Chase Hill, Hopkinton, will be one of the teachers in the Hope Valley junior high school next fall.

GREENEVILLE

Francis Gleason and George Sabol of Perth Amboy, N. J., are spending a few days at the home of Mr. Gleason's aunt, Mrs. Emma Portelance of 213 Central avenue.

The Home department of the Third Baptist church met at the home of their leader, Mrs. Elmer Mulkins on Boswell avenue Monday evening for their final meeting for the summer. After the study of the lesson of the last meeting a social time was enjoyed. Refreshments consisting of salads, sandwiches, pickles, cakes, coffee and ice cream were served by the hostess. Owing to it being the birthday of one of the members, Mrs. Conklin, a beautiful birthday cake was presented to her. Mrs. Raven kindly provided transportation for the older members. A very enjoyable afternoon was spent by all.

Edmund Gleason of Plainfield, N. J., is spending a few days as the guest of his aunt and uncle, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Bessinet at their home on North Main street.

FUNERAL

Mrs. John Telford

Funeral services for Mary Page, wife of John Telford, were held from her late residence, 50 Mowry avenue, at 2 o'clock Tuesday afternoon with prayer services at the home offered by Rev. E. J. Norris, pastor of St. Andrew's Episcopal church, followed by services at St. Andrew's Episcopal church at 2:30 o'clock with Rev. Mr. Norris also officiating. At the church a fine musical program was arranged by the church organist, Mrs. Charles Erwin. Burial was in a family lot in the Yantic cemetery where Rev. Mr. Norris conducted the committal service. The bearers were Charles Evans, William Dilworth, James Johnson and William Banfield. Among the large attendance of friends and relatives was a delegation representing the Ladies' Aid society of the church of which Mrs. Telford was an active member. The floral tributes were both numerous and beautiful, speaking a mute testimony of the high esteem the deceased was held by her many friends and acquaintances in this vicinity. Undertaker C. A. Gager was in charge of the funeral arrangements.

At St. Mary's Memorial church Tuesday morning at 7.30 o'clock a month's mind mass of requiem was offered for the repose of the soul of the late Michael Kilcullum with Rev. George J. Donahue as celebrant of the mass.

SANITATION RULES FOR PUBLIC FAIR GROUNDS

Plans are already in progress for the usual agricultural fairs in different parts of Connecticut. These fairs often become "Old Home" days where parents bring their entire family, and visit with their friends while seeing the sights and doing the midway stunts.

Parents who are thus making plans to attend these fairs will be glad to know that attempt will be made to safeguard their health through the rules and regulations of the state sanitary code for fair grounds. Fair officials have co-operated since 1923 in putting these rules into effect.

But parents should be familiar with these rules given below and see that they are enforced, says the state department of health:

Reg. 129. No public fair grounds shall be used except after full and literal compliance with the following regulations;

Water Supply.

(a) Any water supply available for drinking or washing dishes on the fair grounds shall be of safe sanitary quality.

Any water found unsafe for human consumption on such grounds shall be either eliminated or purified by a process approved by the state department of health or shall be kept posted with placards definitely warning persons against its use.

Disposal of Excreta.

Fly-tight privies or water-flushed toilets with a system of sewage disposal approved by the state department of health shall be provided and shall be maintained in a clean and sanitary condition. Separate installations for men and for women shall be provided and they shall be adequate for the accommodation of all persons attending or using the fair grounds. The location of all toilets shall be plainly indicated by signs.

Disposal of Refuse.

Supervision and equipment sufficient to prevent littering of the ground with rubbish, garbage or other refuse shall be provided and maintained. Fly-tight depositories for such material shall be provided and conspicuously located. These depositories and any final places of disposition shall not be permitted to become foul smelling or unsightly or breeding places for flies.

Storage and Service of Food.

All foodstuffs stored or exposed for sale must be protected from flies and dust by suitable covers. The term "foodstuffs" includes both raw and cooked foods, candy and any other food not sold in single service fly-tight containers, except food in the process of cooking.

Single service cups, dishes, spoons, and drinking straws shall be protected from flies and dust. All glasses, cups, spoons or dishes that are subject to repeated use, shall be thoroughly washed after each use by cleansing with hot water and soap, and then rinsing in clean hot water, or other process approved by the State Department of Health.

Drinking Beverages.

All drinking beverages not bottled must be kept in fly-tight containers; from which the liquid may be removed only by faucets.

NORWICH TOWN

The yearly meeting of Dorcas Home Missionary society of the First Methodist Episcopal church, usually held in June, is to be held this year, Thursday afternoon, the 26th, at the home of the treasurer Mrs. George Maning of Yantic.

Miss Elizabeth Avery, recently graduated from Connecticut College for Women, was the leader Sunday evening of the Young People's Christian Endeavor service in the First Congregational chapel. The topic assigned was, "How Jesus Made Leaders of His Disciples," scripture reference was in Mark and Acts.

At the Congregational church, Sunday morning, when Rev. Gurdon F. Bailey preached on "The Man in the Boat," the text referred to was Luke 5:11. And when they had brought their ships to land, they forsook all, and followed Him.

Mr. and Mrs. R. Allen Kinney of Town street were guests at the week end of former Norwich Town residents, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph A. George, of Brision Mr. and Mrs. George at one time lived in the upper apartment of the Kinney house at 12 Town street.

GOODWILL PARTING GIFT OF $1,800 IS MADE TO REV. MYLES P. GALVIN

At the farewell reception accorded Rev. Miles Paul Galvin, former senior assistant priest at St. Patrick's church, now rector of the Immaculate Conception church, New Hartford, in the social rooms of the church Tuesday evening from 8 to 10 o'clock, the well known curate was tendered a check for $1,800 a gift from the over 4,000 parishioners of the church with which he has been associated for almost 17 years. Several hundred persons attended the delightful programme that was arranged in honor of Rev. Fr. Galvin, who goes to his first charge with the best wishes from his friends here for success in his new field of labor.

Seated on the stage with the honored guest were Rt. Rev. Mgr. Michael H. May, rector of St. Patrick's, Rev. Terrence Finnegan of Norwich, Rev. James Dargan, Norwich, Rev. Thomas Lynch, Montville, Rev. Edward Morrison Colchester, and Rev. John J. Reilly, Norwich, who presided as master of ceremonies. Other priests in attendance were Rev. James H. Mulcahy and Rev. Henry B. Murphy, Norwich and Rev. Alfred Driscoll, Bridgeport.

An attractive feature of the reception was the musical programme which included selections by Herb Smith's orchestra and a number of solos by Miss Sadie Driscoll and Horace Corning, who sang in their usual fine voice. Mr. Corning was accompanied at the piano by Mrs. Patrick McMahon and Mrs. Bernard Coyle was accompanist for Miss Driscoll. William Shannon and John Kelly were also heard in a well rendered duet.

In presenting the gift to Rev. Fr. Galvin on behalf of the members of the parish, Patrick F. Coleman of Rev. Daniel Mullen assembly, Fourth Degree, Knights of Columbus, spoke as follows: "If I stood here tonight armed only with a speech, I know I would be a miserable failure. However, I have something more weighty than a speech up my sleeve. It is my proud privilege tonight to welcome back our former curate Father Galvin in the name of the parishioners of St. Patrick's parish. Sad as was his going and keenly though we felt it, still his very going has made this joyful homecoming possible.

"Tonight Father Galvin is our honored guest, tomorrow he will be a former curate. Though the passage of a few hours can bring about great changes in the lives of all of us, still neither the passing of these few hours nor the lapse of any length of time can take from our hearts the love and memory of Father Galvin. Tonight we parishioners of St. Patrick's are gathered here to do honor to one who has served us faithfully for 17 years. We are conscious of the noble effort he has always shown in our behalf, we are conscious of the generous manner he has always served us with and now prompted by a feeling of appreciation and a sense of gratitude we are attempting in our small way to return this thousandth of his gift.

"From the past we cherish affection for Father Galvin, for the future we pray that his years in New Hartford will be happy and not too long. We assure him that he leaves us interested in his success touched by the parting and hopeful that God will bless his work in this new field.

"In the name of the people of St. Patrick's parish who loved you then, Father Galvin, I present to you this little gift. The gift is small but the spirit that it represents has no parallel there. Take it, then, with the affection of our hearts and if a layman may say it of a priest, God bless you and keep you close to Himself."

In accepting the gift, testimony of the high regard in which the former curate was held by the parish members, Rev. Fr. Galvin expressed his sincere gratitude for the gift. He said that he wanted to thank them for the gift and especially for what is behind it, its meaning, the spirit of kindness, love and affection and the spirit of real friendship. Rev. Fr. Galvin said that "you have always shown me your friendship but I didn't realize how strong it was. I hope the spirit shown at this occasion will go on and live." He also spoke of his new parish at New Hartford and concluded with telling of the cordial relations that had existed between himself, Rt. Rev. Mgr. May and Rev. Fr. Reilly who also spoke feelingly of the departure of the former curate.

At the conclusion of the programme an opportunity was provided those present to extend their heartfelt wishes to Rev. Fr. Galvin for continued success at New Hartford.

The arrangements for the affair were in charge of Rev. Fr. Reilly and John P. Corcoran.

LOCATED TWO PRISONERS WHO ESCAPED FROM JAIL

Two of three prisoners who sawed their way to freedom out of the county jail in this city during he early hours of April 7, 1929, are again behind the bars although not in Norwich.

Walter Magruder, at one time a resident of Jewett City, is now in the Hartford jail serving a term of eight months for theft of an automobile. In the Hartford conviction he went by the name of Wladyslaw Magruder and he was identified in the jail there last week by Sheriff George H. Bradford and Deputy Sheriff Oscar H. Main, although he denied his identity. His term has just begun in Hartford.

Another one of the three, Daniel Morgan, a Negro, is now in state prison at Sing Sing, N. Y., serving a term of eight years for robbery. He was under sentence here for a stabbing affray on the West Side when he escaped from jail and Magruder was serving a sentence of 30 days for his part in a family row. Both, it is expected, will be brought here to answer for jail breaking when their other terms have been served.

The third prisoner who escaped was John Magnon of Taftville, who was awaiting trial when he got away. He was charged with a statutory offense involving his minor step-daughter.

SEWER DISPUTE BRINGS SUIT FOR INJUNCTION

On the claim that Mrs. Isabella Dapolito, by herself or her agents, has obstructed a sewer and refuses to allow Mr. and Mrs. Pasquale Tombarro of 280 Franklin street access to the sewer to make repairs, suit has been brought in the common pleas court against Mrs. Dapolito for $1,000 damages and an injunction to restrain her from preventing the Tombarros or their workmen from making proper repairs to the sewer and for the purpose thereof entering upon Mrs. Dapolito's land.

The two parties to the suit own adjoining properties connected by a common sewer which flows from the Tombarros to and under the Dapolito land. Because of obstruction of the sewer on the Dapolito side of the property line, it is claimed that waste and other waters have flowed back onto the Tombarros, flooding the cellar, causing much damage and endangering health, and Mrs. Dapolito has refused access to her property for the purpose of repairing the sewer.

TYLER OLCOTT LEADER IN VARIABLE STAR OBSERVERS

Under the title "The Cult of Blinking Stars," a special writer in a recent Sunday newspaper sketches in an interesting way the development of the Association of Variable Star Observers, of which W. Tyler Olcott of this city is secretary, and quotes David Pickering of East Orange, N. J., vice president of the association, as crediting Mr. Olcott with leading him into the group of variable star gazers.

Mr. Pickering had been using a telescope for some time and finally reached the stage where mere sightseeing in the heavens began to palL. How his next step was achieved he relates as follows:

"In this state of mind I dropped in at the New York public library one day in the summer of 1914, to look through the astronomical journals. I had familiarized myself with the names of the leading astronomers and observatories, but I was awed by their greatness and shrank from writing for their advice. That day in the library I chanced to see a mention of amateurs who had organized as variable star observers. That looked promising. I made inquiry and learned that the moving spirit was William Tyler Olcott, an amateur astronomer of Norwich, Conn. I wrote to Mr. Olcott, told him my plight and asked if he thought I could be of any use as an observer.

"His response was prompt and hospitable. 'You are already a member,' he wrote, and inclosed charts of certain star fields and a list of variables. He also mentioned the name of a New York member of the association, Mr. E. W. Putnam, of the Putnam publishing firm. I called on Mr. Putnam at once. He invited me to lunch, and we sat long into the afternoon talking of the stars. It is the most taste of the astronomical fellowship." taste of the astronomical fellowship."

When David Pickering joined the Variable Star Observers in 1914, they were a loosely organized group of twenty-three persons who had been brought to co-operation by the leadership of Mr. Olcott, acting under the inspiration of the then director of the Harvard college observatory, Professor Edward C. Pickering.

It was not until 1918 that the group formally incorporated, and elected officers. David Pickering was chosen the first president and served four years in that capacity. William Tyler Olcott was elected the first secretary, and has been kept in this key position ever since. Another veteran of the association is J. E. G. Yalden, of Leonia, N. J., principal-emeritus of the Baron de Hirsch trade school in New York.

Mr. Olcott is at present at Tucson, Arizona, where he is pursuing his astronomical studies.

SHARON R. I. REDS AND HAMPTON LEGHORNS WIN

(Special to the Bulletin.)

STORRS, June 24.—A flock of ten Rhode Island Red pullets owned by the Kinsman Brothers of Sharon won the class "A" egg laying contest for May conducted by the 4-H clubs of Connecticut, according to a report issued here by Edward S. Walford, assistant extension poultryman for this state. These hens layed an average of 28.4 eggs per bird last month. In the class "B" contest which includes flocks of from 26 to 75 birds, Sherman Chapel of Hampton won with a flock of 26 White Leghorn pullets which averaged 28.76 eggs per bird. The class "C" contest which includes flocks of more than 75 birds, was won by Erik Person of Hawleyville whose 87 Rhode Island Red pullets layed an average of 27.41 eggs each.

The contest was started November 1, 1929, and at the end of the seven months which it has run, Rhode Bartholomew of Torrington was leading with his class "A" flock of 14 Rhode Island Red pullets which have produced an average of 156.41 eggs per bird during that time Louis Hotchkiss of Waterbury is leading the class "B" contest with 49 Rhode Island Red pullets which have an average of 139.52 eggs per bird to date. Robert Pastorius of Orange leads the class "C" contest with 249 White Leghorns which have produced to date an average of 140.54 eggs each.

Tolland county leads in production for the past seven months. Out of its 41 flocks, 38 reported their production for May and this county now leads the contest with an average of 106.18 eggs per bird. Litchfield county led the contest for the month of May with an average of 21 eggs per bird, and is second in the contest in total production to date with an average of 103.83 eggs per bird for the seven months. The other counties have placed in the following order: Hartford, Windham, New Haven, New London, Litchfield and Middlesex. The average egg production of the 4-H club flocks which reported for May throughout the state is 16.54 per bird for this month, and the average for the seven months which the contest has run is 97.94 eggs per bird.

McNamara, which was admitted to probate Tuesday after a brief hearing in the probate court, a half interest in the property at No. 244 Hickory street is left to a son, George W. McNamara, who is also bequeathed the money in the bank, and the insurance policies. He is to pay all expenses. The sum of $25 each is left to Mrs. Veronica Mills of this city; Mrs. Mary Peacock of this city, Mrs. Catherine Guyon of this city and Mrs. Lillian Kenyon of Westerly.

Samuel E. Holdridge of Ledyard is executor of the will and the appraisers are Richard Hourigan and Daniel Driscoll.

PLANS ARE MADE FOR MEMBERSHIP MEETING

When the membership meeting of the Norwich chamber of commerce is held at the Norwich Inn next Monday evening, State Attorney Arthur M. Brown will act as toastmaster and Joseph C. Worth and F. Russell Smith ill be the song leaders. Secretary John Richardson is to be the speaker. Reservations have been made by the chamber for 125 persons. It will be the first affair that the chamber has held at the inn.

CHARGED WITH FRAUD AGAINST HIS LANDLADY

Charles Latham, 44, of this city, was arrested Tuesday by State Police Officer Whitmarsh of the Groton barracks on a charge of fraud and will be presented in the city court this (Wednesday) morning. The accused is alleged to have defrauded Mrs. Mary A. Griffin of No. 242 Main street of $45 for room and board.

Surprise Miscellaneous Shower

A surprise miscellaneous shower for Miss Louise Quarto was given Monday evening at her home on Orchard street in honor of her approaching marriage to Frank DeBartolo. During the evening, dancing and games were enjoyed, one of the games being "The Judge and the Plaintiff." A delicious supper was served by Misses Fannie Quarto, Anna Ferry and Marie and Nicolette Denicolo. There were about 50 friends present. Miss Louise Quarto received many beautiful gifts.

The county picnic of the W. C. T. U. will be held at the home of Miss Nellie Starr in Uncasville next month.

SOUTHERN CROSS WILL TAKE OFF FOR NEW YORK THIS A. M.

Landed Yesterday Morning At Harbor Grace, N. F., Completing the Second Westward Flight Over the Atlantic Ocean—The Plane Had a Bitter Battle With Fog Along the Grand Banks and the Newfoundland Coast—Landed 32 Hours After Taking Off From Port Marnock, Irish Free State—Unless Plans Miscarry the Southern Cross Will Hop Off At Daybreak For Roosevelt, N. Y.—Flight Will Be Continued to San Francisco.

HARBOR GRACE, N. F., June 25.—(AP)—Out of the fog enshrouded eastern skies the veteran airplane, Southern Cross swooped down to the Harbor Grace landing field today in completion of the second successful westward crossing of the perilous Atlantic ocean in the history of aviation.

Only overnight will the Southern Cross and its crew of four rest here. Tomorrow at daybreak Captain Charles Kingsford-Smith and his men will take her on to New York, the original goal of the flight which started in Ireland, unless present plans miscarry.

Veteran of five years' flying the Southern Cross then will carry on unerringly to San Francisco for Captain Smith flew her from there on his record breaking flight across the Pacific to Australia and thus would complete a round the world flight in her.

It was 6 a. m., EST., that the Southern Cross dropped on to the field here with barely enough petrol to wet her tanks, after a bitter battle with fog along the Grand Banks and along the coast of Newfoundland.

As it rolled to a stop, 32 hours after soaring away from Port Marnock, Irish Free State, the quartet that had piloted it on its long flight climbed out. They were Captain Charles Kingsford-Smith, the pilot, and Evert Van Dyk, co-pilot, J. Patrick Saul, navigator, and John W. Stannage, radio operator.

They were tired but in good condition and within a few minutes Captain Kingsford-Smith announced his intention of taking off within 24 hours for New York. From there, he said, he would continue to San Francisco and thereby complete a globe circling flight that began two years ago when he set out across the Pacific.

To fog and compass trouble may be attributed the failure to surpass the distance record of the Bremen, the German plane which first successfully negotiated the westward flight only to meet disaster on Greenley Island in St. Lawrence bay.

These conditions and the poor visibility caused by the fog reduced the fuel supply on the plane to a point that the fliers were forced to land here.

For hours the plane fought its way through the fog guided by radio stations in its quest for a safe landing place. Slowly it circled the airport here for what to the fliers seemed hours before it landed.

Aviators In Good Condition

Although fatigued by their many hours of flying and the mental strain provided by the final few hours, the aviators were in good condition. They were happy in the thought that they at least had conquered the Atlantic but did not hide their disappointment at their failure to reach their goal, New York.

Plans were immediately formulated for resuming the flight. Authorization for taking aboard 400 gallons of petrol and 12 gallons of oil was asked from the company sponsoring the flight and plans laid for the takeoff tomorrow. With a start at daybreak it is hoped to reach New York tomorrow night. There the plane will be refueled and then continue on to San Francisco for the last lap in a "round the world" flight.

The first thing sought was warm food and then beds. The men were up, however, in time to complete the plans for refueling and to discuss the takeoff in the morning. Kingsford-Smith said that the plane would be landed at Roosevelt field.

Story Of The Flight

The story of the flight as told by the airmen was a story of danger. A few hours after leaving Dublin the Southern Cross encountered bad weather and the visibility became poor. For 20 out of 24 hours the men flew blindly in their quest for the eastern shores of North America. Their distance finding apparatus did not prove satisfactory.

They turned to their compass for guidance and when this deserted them, to the messages from ships and radio stations. It was only by the aid of the ever watchful radio operators on the ships and at the stations that the navigators were able to establish their position.

For hours this condition continued, the fliers said, yet satisfactory progress was made. But the elements were against them and 500 miles off the Newfoundland coast the plane entered a fog bank that destroyed all sense of direction. Sticking doggedly to the trail straight ahead they finally sighted land and made for it. They knew it must be Newfoundland and started a search for Harbor Grace.

The exact time the fliers found the coast was set at 4:42 a. m., EST., by Captain David W. Bone, master of the S. S. Transylvania, who said that his ship had been in communication with the Southern Cross and at that time received a message saying: "Hooray, see land at last."

Flares were burned at the field here during the early hours but it was the beam wireless at Belle Isle and the radio messages from Cape Race that finally guided the fliers here. Slowly the plane circled the field and then slid easily down through the vanishing mist to land safely.

Had A Terrible Night

"All we want is a good smoke," was the greeting the fliers gave the airport officials and the small group of people gathered to meet them. Van Dyk's salutation was: "We had a terrible night and I'm deaf all over." The men said the trip was not a bit monotonous, adding smilingly that there had been plenty to think about.

As soon as it was learned that the Cape Race radio station was talking with the plane the officials here invited the aviators to land here. The invitation was declined at first but later accepted. It was after making this decision that the Southern Cross went into the last fog bank and those gathered at the field could hear the plane roaring overhead but completely hidden from sight. When it landed there were only four gallons of fuel left in her tanks.

That the Southern Cross was experiencing difficulties during the latter part of its flight was assumed by those supplying her with information. At 2:26 a. m., EST., the Cape Race station said they had determined that the plane had been circling the southeastern tip of Newfoundland for hours. It was then that the station took up the work of directing the plane to the field here.

Waited For Chance To Land

All of the crew said that the steady drone of the motors had temporarily impaired their hearing. They were too tired to go into the intimate details of their trip but Kingsford-Smith said: "Only for the wonderful wireless radio we would never have been able to land here. We had a rotten night. We flew over this territory almost all night waiting for a chance to land. We were in the air more than 32 hours and experienced very foggy weather and trouble with the compass. These caused delay. We will leave for New York at daybreak tomorrow after refueling. We were hoping to reach New York without a stop but shortage of gas prevented this. We will fly to San Francisco after reaching New York thereby completing an around the world flight."

NEW YORK WILL WELCOME SOUTHERN CROSS CREW FRIDAY

NEW YORK, June 25.—(AP)—The mayor's committee on receptions announced today that Captain Charles Kingsford-Smith, conqueror of the east-west Atlantic airplane route, and his party, would be received at the city hall Friday. Mayor James J. Walker will welcome the aviators.

FORMIDABLE OPPOSITION TO PROPOSED STEEL MERGER

YOUNGSTOWN, June 25.—(AP)—Charges of intentional fraud and dereliction of duty were made today as a formidable array of attorneys fired the opening guns for and against the billion dollar merger of Bethlehem Steel corporation with the Youngstown Sheet and Tube company.

The battle ground is common pleas court of Mahoning county, renovated for the occasion. The object of the offensive is a permanent injunction to prevent the merger. The indicated length of the battle is three weeks or more.

Principals on the battle lines are Myron C. Wick, and the Continental Shares corporation as stockholders of the Youngstown company, opposed to merging, and the Youngstown company, its directors and the Bethlehem corporation as defendants. The reputed chief figure against the merger, Cyrus S. Eaton, Cleveland millionaire, does not appear on record in the case. There are two suits, one known as a derivative suit, which is brought on behalf of all the Youngstown stockholders.

Luther P. Day of Cleveland, generalissimo of the legal talent fighting the merger, opened the drive with a barrage of accusations and challenges that lasted for more than two hours.

CONGRESSMAN PORTER IS SINKING RAPIDLY

PITTSBURGH, June 25.—(AP)—Congressman Stephen C. Porter, ill at the Allegheny General hospital here, was reported as sinking rapidly tonight and relatives were summoned to his bedside. He is suffering from cirrhosis of the liver.

The congressman, who has represented his district here since 1919, was stricken two months ago while on shipboard returning from London. He entered a hospital in Washington, but was removed to Pittsburgh June 11.

He has been chairman of the house foreign affairs committee for years, and has taken an active part in opposing traffic in narcotics.

THREE EARTHQUAKES WERE RECORDED AT GEORGETOWN

WASHINGTON, June 25.—(AP)—Three earthquakes were recorded today on the seismograph at Georgetown university.

Two were recorded early this morning while the third began at 4:30 p. m., reached its maximum at 4:53, and continued until after 8 o'clock.

It was estimated to have been 3,800 miles from Washington but the distance was not determined. It was of moderate intensity.

The distance of the first one recorded at 5:27 a. m., could not be ascertained, but the second at 7:06 a. m., was about 1,650 miles from Washington, with the direction undetermined.

JERUSALEM, June 25.—(AP)—A memorandum tracing the historical connection of the Jewish people with the wailing wall, a source of contention between the Jews and Moslems in Palestine, from the destruction of the Temple of Solomon, of which it is a vestige, to the present day, was submitted today to the international wailing wall commission at its first public sitting. The commission is here to investigate the Moslem and Jewish claims to the wall.

GEN. EDWARDS CONDEMNS VETERANS RELIEF BILL

BOSTON, June 25.— (AP) — Major General Clarence R. "Daddy" Edwards, World war commander of the 26th (Yankee) division, tonight in an address before the Massachusetts chapter of the Legion of Valor, urged the support of President Hoover in his opposition to the pending veteran's bill.

The Massachusetts chapter voted unanimously to send a resolve of support to President Hoover in his opposition and urge a substitute bill along the lines of the wishes expressed by the American Legion and the director of the veterans bureau.

General Edwards called the bill a "political avalanche" in his address and denounced it as "the most disastrous thing that has happened to the veterans."

IOWA IS TO HAVE FARM LABOR ELECTION SLATE

COUNCIL BLUFFS, Ia., June 25.—(AP)—Farm and labor leaders of Iowa today issued a call to Iowa electors to meet here on July 4 to draft a farm-labor slate for the fall election.

Roy N. Harrop of Council Bluffs, president of the Farmer-Labor Union of America, stated that, in all probability, Milo Reno, president of the Iowa Farmers' union, will be nominated for the United States senate.

Senator Henrik Shipstead of Minnesota will attend the mass meeting and assist in formulating plans for an active campaign, Harrop said.

ACTION ON APPROPRIATION BILL BLOCKED IN SENATE

WASHINGTON, June 25.— (AP) — Consideration of the second deficiency appropriation bill carrying funds for starting the Boulder Canyon dam and various other emergency appropriations, was blocked in the senate today by Senator Couzens, republican, Michigan, who demanded prior consideration of the house measure regulating motor bus transportation.

CHOATE SCHOOL YACHT WON INTERSCHOLASTIC REGATTA

GREENWICH, June 25.— (AP) — Choate school's yacht led the way in the preliminary races today of the first annual interscholastic regatta, sponsored by the Indian Yacht club over a six-mile course off here.

In two races in the first division Choate won the first and came in third in the second. Tabor came home first in the second brush and fifth in the first, to take second place in points.

GOV. SHAFER LEADING IN NORTH DAKOTA PRIMARY

FARGO, N. D., June 25.—(AP)—A. C. Townley, founder of the Non-partisan league, who is attempting to stage a "come-back" in state politics, tonight was running third in the race for the republican congressional nomination from the third district. Early returns gave Gov. George F. Shafer, seeking renomination on the republican ticket, a three-to-one lead.

REVOLUTION STARTED BY BOLIVIAN TROOPS

LAPAZ, Bolivia, June 25.—(AP)—An official communique issued tonight by the council of ministers said that a regiment of troops in the town of Oruro attempted to start a revolution this morning. The communique said the attempt failed and that the soldiers now were confined to quarters.

SENATE PASSED BINGHAM FORT GRISWOLD BILL

WASHINGTON, June 25.—(AP)—The senate today passed and sent to the house the Bingham bill to authorize conveyance to Connecticut by the government of the Fort Griswold tract on the east shore of New London harbor. The land would be used for a public park and historic memorial.

ADMIRAL BYRD TO MAKE FLIGHT TO COLOMBIA

NEW YORK, June 25.—(AP)— When Rear Admiral Byrd visited President-elect Enrique Olaya of Colombia today, he informally announced his intention of making a flight to Colombia.

Informed that Dr. Olaya would sail from New York July 2, he said:

"I'll be flying down there to see you soon."

OBITUARY

William Barnes.

NEW YORK, June 25—(AP)—William Barnes, former Republican leader of the state, died at his home in Armonk today after a week's illness of pneumonia. He was 64 years old.

Barnes was born in Albany and educated at the Albany Academy and Harvard University. He became publisher of the Albany Evening Journal. He was United States surveyor of customs at Albany from 1899 to 1911. He was a member of the Republican state committee from 1892 to 1914 and chairman from 1911 to 1914. From 1912 to 1916 he was a member of the Republican national committee.

Dr. Kuno Francke

Sec'y Mellon Opposes The McFadden Bill

Gives House Committee His Views On the German Reparation Bonds.

WASHINGTON, June 25.—(AP)—Unqualified opposition to the McFadden resolution to prohibit purchase of German reparation bonds by American banks was expressed today by Secretary Mellon on the ground that it was unnecessary and that government interference with private capital would not be "sound policy."

Appearing before the house banking committee, the treasury head described the measure as "meaningless" because federal reserve banks have no authority to purchase such bonds, national banks are limited to the purchase of "marketable" securities under regulations prescribed by the comptroller of the currency, and state banks are governed by state law.

Mellon said "good, sound foreign bonds are beneficial to the country, because the "world is getting closer every day and international loans are essential to international trade."

The German reparation bonds are to be issued by the international bank of settlements under the Young plan, and Chairman McFadden of the committee has contended repeatedly that the bond issue is illegal and that neither the government nor private capital should be involved in the reparation problems.

Under questioning by McFadden and other committee members, the secretary said his department had made no study of the legality of the bonds, since it had not been called upon to pass on that question. He asserted the government or the federal reserve board had not participated in any way in the formation of the international bank.

In support of his position against the resolution Mellon said "the government does not undertake to manage the banks and the wisdom of placing upon them the responsibility for their investments, with proper safeguards cannot be questioned.

"There is, in my opinion, no more reason for congress to say that a national bank should not purchase a reparation bond than to say that it should not purchase a specific railroad or industrial bond," he added, "to do so would place our government directly in the banks' management. It is unsound and unnecessary."

THREE STATE DEPUTIES WERE KILLED AT CHIHUAHUA, MEX.

EL PASO, Tex., June 25.—(AP)—El Continental, Spanish language newspaper here, says three state deputies were killed and others injured today during an attack made by followers of Manuel M. Prieto, candidate for the governorship of Chihuahua state, on the government palace at Chihuahua City.

Gabiel Minenenez, chief of state police, also was killed, the newspaper said, continuing:

"The fighting started when Prieto's followers attempted to take control of the palace. Those killed are: Deputy Carlos Enriquez, Deputy Manuel Jesus Estrada, and Deputy Ramon Valles.

"Governor Almada, together with the candidate for governor, Andres Ortiz, flew early this morning from Chihuahua City to Juarez. A statement made by Governor Almada to El Continental says he made the airplane trip to avoid complications and get in touch with the federal government in Mexico City."

JUAREZ MADE STATE CAPITAL OF CHIHUAHUA

EL PASO, Tex., June 25.—(AP)—Governor Francisco Almada late today declared Juarez the state capital of Chihuahua and established the capitol in the city hall, taking over part of Mayor Gustavo Flores' office.

CHICAGO YOUTH HELD AS "MANAIC MURDER" SUSPECT

NEW YORK, June 25—(AP)—A Chicago youth with a cryptic code in his pocket was picked up today as a suspect in the police search for the mad killer of Queens.

The newest suspect said he was Clarence James Pratt, 21, of Chicago, and disclaimed knowledge of the slayings of two men during the last two weeks. The two victims of the mad killer were shot down as they sat in their cars with women friends.

Pratt was arrested as a vagrant by a policeman who saw him in Riverside park, along the park run freight trains of the New York Central, on one of which he said he hoped to ride home.

When Pratt was searched a code was found containing the legno "3x," the signature used by the maniac in letters to newspapers boasting of his deeds.

HELD ON CHARGE OF ATTEMPT TO BLACKMAIL

PATCHOGUE, N. Y., June 25—(AP)—Karl Wise, 19, married, and out of work, was held without bail today for the grand jury, charged with having tried to blackmail Edward Jose, proprietor of a Sayville laundry, of $5,000 by means of a rambling, clumsily written demand accompanied by code numbers and a diagram, the inspiration for which, the district attorney said, he got from the "maniac murder" of Queens.

Wise was arrested shortly before midnight last night by detectives of the district attorney's staff. As he picked up an envelope placed under a tree in Overton Grove by Jose, in accordance with his instructions, District Attorney Alexander G. Blue said Wise told him he had been prompted to write the letter to Jose after reading about the "maniac murderer."

CHINESE REBELS CAPTURE CAPITAL OF SHANTUNG

SHANGHAI, June 25.—(AP)—Northern rebels crossed the Yellow river today and captured Tsinanfu, capital of Shantung, but in other sectors of China's war fronts the nationalist government claimed victories.

Whether the capture of Tsinanfu was attended by severe fighting was uncertain. It was widely reported, however, that hospital facilities in several towns were crowded with 50,000 to 100,000 wounded nationalists. It seemed established the rebel army had won a decisive victory and the nationalists were retreating southward.

Would Investigate Stock Flutuations

Resolution Introduced In the House Yesterday By Representative Dickenson.

WASHINGTON, June 25.—(AP)—An investigation by a special house committee of the fluctuations in the prices of securities in Wall street was asked today in a resolution introduced by Representative Dickinson, republican, Iowa.

The Iowan, who recently won the republican nomination for senator, proposed that the committee be directed to determine whether stock manipulation is practiced by short selling or block sales for the purpose of benefitting a limited number of investors but against the interest of the general public.

The committee also would be directed to ascertain to what extent the New York Stock exchanges have been utilized by manipulators for the purpose of influencing legislation or exercising an unfavorable influence on legislation pending in congress.

In a statement, Dickinson said the resolution would permit the committee to review the controversy between the New York financiers and the Federal Reserve board in their effort to prevent "the extensive speculation that has proven so disastrous to so many investors."

MORROW AND DAWES TO RETURN TO THEIR POSTS

WASHINGTON, June 25.— (AP) — Preparing to return to their diplomatic posts, Ambassadors Morrow and Dawes today conferred with President Hoover and Secretary Stimson about the London treaty and found time for a few remarks about such varied topics as the new Lindbergh baby and the Chicago exposition.

In addition, they took time out from more weighty matters to send messages to Captain Kingsford-Smith of the Southern Cross congratulating him and his crew upon their daring trans-Atlantic flight.

Morrow, ambassador to Mexico and grandfather of the celebrated Lindbergh baby, declined to enlighten newspaper men about its name. His only comment was:

"You will have to ask the immediate parents about that."

Dawes, the outspoken ambassador to England, quoted Morrow as saying that Lindbergh was greatly concerned last night about weather conditions for the flight of the Southern Cross. Lindbergh, the first to span the Atlantic by air, was said to have telephoned frequently to obtain news of the flight.

PLANE STRUCK PLATEAU IN BLINDING SNOW STORM

CEDAR CITY, Utah, June 25.—(AP)—Mute evidence of the attempt of Maurice Graham, Los Angeles-Salt Lake air mail pilot, to fight his way to safety when he crashed on a plateau in a blinding snowstorm southeast of here on the night of Jan. 10 last, was found today by a party which reached his wrecked plane.

A brief search of the vicinity, however, revealed no trace of Graham who, it is believed certain, perished in the storm while seeking to make his way to shelter on foot. An organized wider search will be started tomorrow. The plane, located yesterday by two sheep herders, rests at a spot 25 miles from here on the west side of Crystal gulch.

Indications were that the pilot was not seriously injured in the smashup of his plane, but a handkerchief found in the cockpit bearing faint bloodstains gave evidence that he had suffered some cuts.

1,000TH ANNIVERSARY OF ICELANDIC PARLIAMENT

REYKJAVIK, Iceland, June 25.—(AP)—King Christian of Denmark, who also is king of the Icelanders, arrived here today to participate in the 1,000th anniversary of the Icelandic parliament, the oldest legislative body in the world.

The king was greeted with the thunder of guns and by cheers from the populace. Thousands of visitors, many of them from the United States, joined in the greeting to his majesty.

Crown Prince Gustavus Adolphus of Sweden disembarked immediately after King Christian, from a Swedish cruiser, and after him came the Norwegian minister of defense, from a Norwegian cruiser. The Norwegian crown prince, who had hoped to come was unable to leave Oslo because of the delicate condition of the health of the crown princess.

About 5,000 tents have been erected in the midst of Thingvellir, a great plain of historic interest.

CONTESTING OWNERSHIP OF HARTFORD CHURCH

HARTFORD, June 25.—(AP)—Testimony defining as a forgery the signature of Archbishop Alexander Nemolovsky, on a deed conferring upon him the property of the local Russian Orthodox church at 424 Broad street, was introduced late this afternoon in the case involving ownership of the Hartford church property, being heard here, in city court by Judge Herbert A. Ross.

The declaration by Rev. Stephen Burdimkoff of Meriden, assistant secretary to Archbishop Alexander, that the signature was not that of his superior, brought the first sensational turn to the case which since Monday has dragged through hours of technical discussion of canonical law.

BYRD CONTINUES HIS ROUND OF RECEPTIONS

NEW YORK, June 25.—(AP)—Rear Admiral Richard E. Byrd today continued the round of receptions that have been held in his honor several times a day since his return from the South Pole flight last Thursday and which will continue until July 12.

Today's program included a luncheon of the American arbitration association and a dinner of the Aeronautical chamber of commerce.

Before he retires to private life, to write a book and devise means for paying off the expedition's deficit, Admiral Byrd will attend several more receptions here and will also visit Boston, Philadelphia, Chicago and St. Louis.

HOUSE WILL SUSTAIN VETO OF VETERANS' RELIEF BILL

The House Is Prepared to Receive the Presidential Veto of the Johnson Bill Today—A Substitute Bill Will Be Presented After the Veto Has Been Sustained—The New Measure Is Designed to Meet the Objections Raised By President Hoover to the Johnson Bill—Quick Action On the Resolution Is Expected.

WASHINGTON, June 25. — (AP) — Congress today prepared itself to receive tomorrow from President Hoover a veto of the Johnson veterans relief bill and promptly to enact substitute legislation to benefit World war service men.

With the completion of congressional action on the Johnson measure, the house cleared the way for quick action on the veto and for the new bill designed to meet the objections raised by the chief executive to the one lying on his desk.

The house will act first on the veto, the bill having originated in that branch. More than a sufficient number of the 264 republicans — 154 — pledged themselves at a closed conference last night to sustain the veto. It requires a two-thirds majority of those voting to override a veto.

Immediately after the vote is taken to sustain the veto, Speaker Longworth plans to submit the Johnson substitute bill for action under suspension of rules. Debate will be limited to twenty minutes for opponents and proponents, and no amendments may be offered. Republica leaders are confident it will be passed.

As soon as the measure is sent to the senate it is to be referred to a committee for consideration.

Quick action is expected and the senate probably will have the measure before it Friday or Saturday. In that branch a move was gaining ground to make the same rates applicable on pensions as were provided in the Spanish war pensions measure which the president vetoed. What effect this would have on the ultimate outcome was problematical.

President Hoover is opposed to the Johnson measure as it was passed by congress on the ground that it was discriminatory, and that its cost would be excessive and would result in an increase in taxes next year because of the condition of the treasury.

It was estimated that it would cost from between $181,000,000 and $400,000,000 annually to administer it to the 75,000 or 100,00 veterans who would come under its provisions.

Speaker Longworth is confident the chief executive will approve the substitute legislation which will call for an additional $50,000,000 in pensions for all World war service men during the first year and which will be gradually increased in three years to about $100,000,000 annually.

It carries no presumptive clause and within the first year will provide pensions ranging from $12 to $40 a month for 200,000 additional service men. There are 245,000 now receiving disability compensation from the government exclusive of widows, orphans and other dependents.

Chairman Johnson of the house veterans committee, who is sponsoring the substitute bill, said that eventually the laws would provide for all the 4,500,000 World war service men and their dependents, which probably will total 12,000,000.

The new measure carries a "battle casualty" clause under which veterans who lost an arm or leg in battle would receive $25 a month in addition to whatever other pension they are given.

This is the first time this feature has been recognized in war pension legislation in this country.

In outlining the program for handling the legislation in the house Speaker Longworth announced from the chair that "the veto is expected to arrive at noon tomorrow."

"A vote," he said, "will be taken upon the veto immediately. At the conclusion of the vote— which will sustain the president's veto — the chairman will immediately recognize the gentleman from South Dakota (Chairman Johnson) and the veterans relief legislation will be passed."

His expression of confidence that the veto would be sustained was applauded by republican members, while members from both sides joined in the applause that greeted his statement that the relief legislation would be passed.

DRAFTING RESERVATIONS TO LONDON NAVAL TREATY

WASHINGTON, June 25—(AP)—Reservations are being drafted to be proposed to the London naval treaty in the forthcoming debate in the senate.

Several reservations are contemplated and will be offered. The opposition to the pact will concentrate its strength on a reservation declaring the treaty provision dividing cruisers into eight inch and six inch gun ships does not constitute a permanent surrender of the previous position by this country that it has the right to build any kind of cruisers adapted to American needs.

The American navy general board at the hearings before the senate committees protested most vigorously against this provision. The navy has contended that the six inch gun cruisers favored by Great Britain are unadaptable to American fleet needs.

The information that reservations are being drawn aggravated the treaty program considerably. While advotaes of the London pact continued confident tonight of its ratification without reservation. Many persons believed the new move of the opposition means a long contest.

Meanwhile, President Hoover and advocates of the pact are standing firm for prompt disposition of it despite the petition of 24 memoers for a postponement of the treaty debate until November 17.

FRANCE TRYING TO REACH SETTLEMENT WITH ITALY

PARIS, June 25—(AP)—Aristide Briand, foreign minister of France, today told the senate foreign relations committee that the French government was doing all it possibly could to arrive at an amicable settlement of all questions now existing or likely to arise between France and Italy.

Widespread reports that France and Italy were conciliating their viewpoints, after a somewhat strained relationship, were received with interest in political circles.

France, it was indicated by government observers, had yielded to the idea that there must be political peace in Europe so that economic problems, daily growing more urgent, might have the full consideration of the best minds of all countries.

Friendliness in the Franco-Italian status was noted and foreign minister Briand's statement to the senate today confirmed the official sincerity of that attitude.

CIVIC RESISTENCE TO CONTINUE IN INDIA

BOMBAY, India, June 25—(AP)—Boycott of the forthcoming round-table conference on India's political status today was urged upon nationalist followers of Mahatima Gandhi by Pundit Malaviya, outstanding congress leader.

In a fiery address before a great meeting in Delhi Malaviya told the civil resistance volunteers to go forward with their program. He commanded them to intensify the ban on foreign goods and to have nothing to do with the round-table conference unless discussion of immediate full dominion status for India was assured in advance.

The nationalist leader said the conference must be held in Delhi, not London.

WATCHMAN FOUND WITH BULLET WOUND IN MOUTH

GREENWICH, June 25.—(AP)—John D. Roberts, a night watchman in the Empire Lumber and Trim company, Portchester, was found on the office floor tonight with a bullet wound through his mouth. It is believed that he shot himself. At a hospital it was said he probably would die.

INTERNATIONAL REACTIONS BROUGHT BEFORE ROTARY

CHICAGO, June 25—(AP)—International reactions to American foreign policies were paraded today in a frank discussion by Sir Henry Worth Thornton, chairman of the Canadian National Railways before several thousand delegates and visitors to the Rotary International's silver jubilee anniversary.

He said the sole bleak spot on the horizon of international peace was modern industry's competition in seeking adequate market outlets for production. This he called the "real menace" to world peace.

Following Sir Henry's address, the nominating committee reported the names of Raymond J. Knoeppel, New York attorney, and of Almon E. Roth, business manager of Stanford University, Palo Alto, Calif., as candidates for the presidency. Ten men were nominated for the five American places on the directorate of Rotary International. Elections will be held tomorrow with the result to be announced Friday.

The international aspects of the convention will be increased tomorrow with the address of Prince Iveseato Tokugawa, resident of the Japanese house of peers and a delegate to the Washington naval conference of 1922. The prince is expected to discuss Japanese attitude on disarmament.

POPE PIUS REMARKABLY ACTIVE FOR A SICK MAN

VATICAN CITY, June 25—(AP)—In the face of widespread reports that Pope Pius was suffering from an old bladder disorder the semi-official daily vatican communique today stressed how active the Pontiff has been the last few days, although it made no denial that he was troubled by the disease.

Neither did it make formal admission that physicians had been consulted and that an operation was possible, as had been reliably reported.

The communique instead cited ceremonies the Pope has attended lately and speeches he has pronounced as proof of his vigor, asserting that "Pius XI not only has changed nothing in his habitual regime of a life extraordinarily intense and full of occuptions" but "in this last period has notably multiplied his activities."

Stressing that the Pope did not feel the least inconvenience from last Sunday's long function of canonization and apparently showed no sign of fatigue, the communique said all there close to the Pontiff at the end of the ceremony and when he returned to his apartments in the Vatican noted that he seemed even more fresh than in the morning, when he descended into St. Peter's.

BIRTH CERTIFICATE OF LINDBERGH BABY FILED

Englewood, N. J., June 25—(AP)—The Lindbergh baby's birth certificate was filed with the department of health today, but the world will have to keep on calling it just the Lindbergh baby for a while.

Lots of other facts were given, but the line headed by the printed words "full name" was left blank pending the outcome of domestic consultations.

The certificate stated the boy was a boy, that it was born at 1:15 on June 22, that the father was Charles Augustus Lindbergh and the mother Anne Morrow Lindbergh and that the home of both parents is in St. Louis.

It recorded that the business of the father is "technical aviator" and that the mother's vocation is "flying." In answer to the question how long Mrs. Lindbergh had been engaged in her present occupation, there was the notation "one year," approximately the time she had been married.

SEVERAL FINED FOR LIQUOR LAW VIOLATIONS

(Special to The Bulletin)

WILLIMANTIC, June 26.—The six continued cases of alleged local liquor law violators were resumed in police court this morning in the presence of a large group of spectators. Deputy Judge Russell A. Andrews was on the bench. Prosecuting Attorney Harry S. Daucher appeared for the state and Attorney Arthur T. Kelley represented all six defendants.

The six accused were arrested after raids had been staged Monday evening, June 16. A seventh case had previously been disposed of.

In the case of Daniel Connell, charged with the sale of 12 bottles of beer for 20 cents each in April, to Frank Smith of Westfield, Mass., a motion by Prosecuting Attorney Daucher for dismissal of the sale charge was granted by the court. Judge Andrews also changed the charge against Connell to one of reputation of selling and fixed July 2 as the date for a hearing on that charge. Smith testified that, with William Lowe, an associate under-cover agent, and one McDermott of this city, said to be an acquaintance of Lowe, he visited the place conducted by Connell. Under examination it was brought out that the beer had not been tested immediately after it was obtained.

In the second case, Philip Tremblay, employed at the New York lunch when it was owned by Frank Lynch, was charged with the sale of a pint of alcohol "splits" to State Officer Charles Hills of the Stafford Springs barracks on March 17. State Policeman Michael J. Murphy, who accompanied Officer Hills, also testified in the case. There was no defense attorney. A fine of $200 and costs was imposed in this case.

Roger Durand, charged with the sale of a pint of liquor to one of the under-cover men, pleaded not guilty. He was fined $200 and costs, however, and through his counsel took an appeal to the next term of the superior court. Durand testified that the two prohibition agents came into the City Lunch on Union street, where he was employed, twice on the evening of April 5. They were intoxicated on the second visit and asked for someone to get liquor for them. One of the agents handed a man named Delude $1.50. Delude went outside and returned with a pint which he turned over to Durand who in turn presented it to the "customer." Clarence Maine of North Windham, Louise Berube and Edmond Dondeau, the proprietor, testified on behalf of the defendant. The case of Patsy Dalimonte, employe of the Italian Garden restaurant owned by Philip Pagano, was continued until July 2, after Judge Andrews had denied a motion by Counsel Kelley that the case be dismissed because the agents had failed to have the sample liquor they had secured tested to show alcoholic content. Agent Lowe testified that he had bought two quarts of Italian wine for $2. He said he was accompanied by a man namer Burke, resident of Hartford.

The failure of Agent Smith to identify Albert Theroux as the man who sold him liquor at the Center Social club on North street, led Prosecutor Daucher to move for dismissal of the case. Judge Andrews denied the motion, however, and set the date of trial for July 2. The visit to the club rooms was made by Smith and McDermott on April 5, the same night that Smith and Lowe got their evidence at the City Lunch.

Another appeal to the superior court was taken in the case of Thomas J. Borelli of Jack o' Lantern Inn, North Windham road, who was fined $200 and costs for keeping liquor with intent to sell. State Policeman Elton T. Nolan of the Danielson barracks and Police Officer William Hurley testified that in a raid at the inn on June 16, they found three cases of beer which proved, upon being tested, to contain an illegal amount of alcohol. A charge of possession was dropped. It was brought out in testimony that a warrant for an actual sale in this case is out against Frank Borelli, brother of Thomas.

The trial of the cases was punctuated with caustic remarks in which the under-cover system of enforcing the law was scored. Attorney Kelley attacking the agent for "tempting" Durand, who is 17 years of age, to provide them with liquor.

Gaudreau, organizer of the club, is in charge of arrangements to pitch the tents and prepare the kitchen, the camp to be financed from the proceeds of winter entertainments given by the choir and under the auspices of some of the parish organizations.

Since the organization of the choir the membership has been about 100, the boys reaching the age of 17 being privileged to take membership in the adult choir of the church.

Director Gaudreau announced today that the annual class outing of the graduates, this year, of the local schools who are members of the boys' choir will be held at Savin Rock, Wednesday, Aug. 6, the graduates numbering six.

Settlements have been made in the appeals of Charles Mason of Mansfield and Fred Loomis of Chestnut Hill (Lebanon), from the amounts allowed by the state highway department for property taken in the building of state roads. Mason appealed to an allowance of $300 made to his land taken two years ago when the Mansfield Four Corners-Warrenville road was built. Loomis was allowed $100 for land taken one year ago in the construction of the Jonathan Trumbull state highway. The appeals were assigned to be heard by State Referee John K. Beach of New Haven, with Attorney Samuel B. Harvey of this city representing the plaintiffs. The settlement brought about increases in both cases but the amounts were not made known.

LITTLE STORIES OF FAST SUCCESSES

(NUMBER FOUR) DOROTHY MACKAILL

Newsstand girl in Hull, England, "glorified-girl" in Ziegfeld's Follies, now the idol of screen-struck fans. All in four brief years.

A fast shot of the quick success of Dorothy Mackaill. Success, because she gave a new thrill. Quick, because of nature-born charm.

That goes, too, for another young star, OLD GOLD. Three years ago, unknown. Today, America's fastest growing cigarette.

OLD GOLD gave a new taste-thrill to jaded palates through tobaccos that nature had made smoother, mellower, free from irritants, kind to the throat. When a girl, or a cigarette, is blessed by nature, a new star rises . . . and fast.

OLD GOLD was first introduced at Atlantic City and other seaside resorts on June 13, 1927. In ninety days it had become one of the 4 best sellers in Atlantic Coast summer hotels.

DANIELSON

N. STONINGTON MAN HELD ON CHARGE OF THEFT

(Special to The Bulletin.)

DANIELSON, June 25.—Louis Cologne of North Stonington was locked up at the state police barracks on North Main street today awaiting presentation in court on a charge alleging theft of quantities of cloth from the mill at Glasgo. A representative of the mill company came here today and identified cloth that has been recovered as coming from the Glasgo mill.

Two others are allegedly implicated with Cologne in the thieving that has been going on for some time, according to an admission by Cologne. They are Charles King, who also is under arrest, and Frank King, who is now doing time in the New London county jail for stealing chickens.

State Officer Royal G. Scranton and State Officer Johnson of the Groton barracks worked up the case and made the arrest during last night. The cloth was recovered at the homes of the accused men.

Cologne declares that the cloth has been taken from time to time. The materials are mostly printed cottons of various colors and designs and also includes some rayon materials and a small amount of white flannel.

The state officers who have been working on the case were continuing their investigation today.

OBITUARY.

E. W. Haywood.

A telegram received here today by Howard Franklin, master of Moriah lodge of Masons, brought news of the death in Glendale, Cal., on Sunday, of E. W. Hawyard, for years engaged in business in Danielson. Mr. Hayward was killed when struck by an automobile. He was in the neighborhood of 70 years of age.

For years Mr. Hayward was engaged in the clothing and tailoring business here, having a store now occupied by the First National stores, and it was during that period that W. J. Craig, for many years in business here on his own account, came to Danielson to enter Mr. Hayward's employ.

Leaving here Mr. Hayward went into the clothing business in New Britain and after a time became a traveling salesman, selling hats. He made a success of this work in such degree that he told friends when he visited here about four years ago that he intended to retire in about a year to make his home in California, where his sons are engaged in the insurance business. His funeral services were held at Glendale today. No details relative to the accident were contained in the message telling of his death. Mr. Hayward was a member of Moriah lodge, A. F. and A. M., of Danielson, and was actively interested in it during his residence here. He left Danielson about 25 years ago, but while engaged as a salesman came here regularly on business and also to make visits with his old friends.

Mr. Hayward's wife before their marriage was Miss Elizabeth Stevens, a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Stevens of Danielson. Their sons are Julian and Payson.

From an official quarter it is pointed out that taking laurel—Connecticut state flower—by persons who do not own the land on which it is growing and without permission of the owner is a misdemeanor. All through this area this beautiful flower is in its full glory right now, and much of it is being taken by persons who find it growing beside dirt highways or a little way into the woods. Much of it is broken down recklessly and ruthlessly and in some localities it is disappearing. Persons doing this are liable to arrest if observed by an officer.

Owners of what heretofore have been largely garden land and pasture on the westerly side of the state highway between Wauregan and Danielson will witness its transformation into lots bordering a fine, new concrete highway by this fall. That means that the land will be considerably more valuable, at least that is the prospect. Those who have watched other such changes in state highway routes and the development that followed them believe this area, especially that part nearest Danielson will speedily build up. It often has been commented in recent years that the area between Danielson and Wauregan has developed more slowly than other similar area in nearby territory.

Charles Fitts, 48, a widower, was being held at the state police barracks here today on a charge of indecent assault and in default of bonds of $6,000. His home is in Hampton. Four little boys supplied the evidence that resulted in the arrest of Fitts. State officers had arranged to present Fitts in a Justice's court in Hampton late today with a view to having him bound over to the superior court.

The continued cases of William Robbins and Earl Robbins, both of East Killingly were heard in the town court this morning before Deputy Judge Charles S. Francis. They were charged, some time since, with having set an outdoor fire without having a permit to do so and with breach of the peace. They were represented by Attorney Harry E. Buck. It developed that they had obtained a verbal permit from Alcott D. Sayles, a fire warden, and later were given a written permit. They were found not guilty on both charges.

Mrs. Ella Stone of Academy street had as guests today Jacob Holdridge, and his daughter, Hazel, of Porterville, Cal., and Mrs. Martha Palmer, Mrs. Samuel Palmer and Mrs. Belle Jerome of New London. Mr. Holdridge is an uncle of Mrs. Stone.

Notwithstanding that jobs are scarce not a few students have managed to obtain employment hereabouts for the vacation season. Some are working on farms and some doing odd jobs about town. Others have found places for the time being helping out with store work, and a few have work as stenographers.

The usual regulations will be made effective here relative to the use of fireworks on the Fourth and prior to that time. The police have no desire to dampen the enthusiasm of those who would celebrate in a noisy way, but they do expect them to confine such celebration to the holiday itself, and that means that it shall not begin before sunrise on July 4.

Announcements have been received here of the engagement of Miss Marion Evelyn Reed, daughter of Mrs. Mary Reed, and Albert Isaac Pardee of Bolton, Mass. Miss Reed, a former resident of Danielson, is employed in a New York bank.

Lieut. Ross V. Urquhart and his family are moving into their newly purchased home, the M. V. Woodworth property, on Hawkins street.

A temperature of 92 degrees was registered here this afternoon, one of the hottest days of the current season.

Brown envelope pocketbook lost, containing New York and Connecticut driving licenses. Return to name and address on license. Reward—adv.

Mrs. P. F. Murray and Miss Julia Murray of Academy street are visiting in Boston for a few days with Leslie Murray.

Miss Beryl Proctor, for three years a teacher in the English department of Killingly High school is en route on the Berengaria for a summer in Europe. Miss Proctor, now a member of the faculty of Hartford High school, will visit in France, Italy, Belgium, Holland, England, Scotland and Ireland. She will return the latter part of August.

It is noted in business circles that Danielson is now getting very good mail service. The trucks run on schedule time regularly, and the service is much more dependable than when the mail was being handled on trains.

Considerable progress is being made in excavating and grading on the state highway job at Wauregan. Practically all of the work for the present is in fields off the present state road.

NO. GROSVENORDALE

HIGH SCHOOL ALUMNI ANNUAL BANQUET SATURDAY

(Special to The Bulletin)

NORTH GROSVENORDALE, June 25.—The Tourtellotte Memorial high school alumni will hold their annual banquet Saturday evening at the Community house. About 100 men from the Union Congregational church, Rockville, had a picnic of the lawn of Piedmont hall, Saturday afternoon, the ladies of the local Aid society served a dinner at five o'clock.

Mrs. Ethan Allen Shaw has opened her summer home on Battle street after having spent the winter with her daughter, Mrs. Walter Eaton in Pennsylvania.

Miss Mildred Gummo, a teacher in a Hartford school, left last week for California where she will be several months.

Mrs. Emily Ellis of West Stafford is with her son and wife, Mr. and Mrs. Clifton M. Ellis, for an indefinite stay.

Miss Helene C. Percival, supervisor of music in towns of Ashford, Bolton, Coventry, Hampton and Mansfield, is home with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. L. Dwight Percival.

Miss E. Louise Patten, who left town five years ago and has since traveled in China, Japan and other countries, is spending the summer at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Charles M. Gager.

Misses Emilie C. Bugbee, of Cobbleskill, N. Y., and Sabel Bugbee, of Stoneleigh, N. H., are with their parents, Mr. and Mrs. R. S. Bugbee.

Miss Elsie Thayer, a teacher in Hartford high school, is home for the summer.

The Somers' schools closed Tuesday for the summer. Monday, the various schools had picnics in various places. Some of the older grades in the Kibbe-Fuller school with Mrs. Hazel Clough and Miss Marcella Garvey, their teachers, spent the day at Crystal lake. Some of the younger pupils held picnics at Shady Lake, Somers, and one was held on the lawn at Mr. and Mrs. S. Dwight Percival's.

Charles W. W. Pease, local rural mail carrier, who underwent an operation for appendicitis May 18th, returned to his duties Monday of this week.

During the month of November, 1929, the public fountains of the town of Sama de Langreo, Spain, were contaminated with typhoid germs, and instead of water the 6,000 citizens drank apple cider. The total consumption of cider for that period was 200,000 liters.

PUTNAM

WITNESSES EXCLUDED FROM COURTROOM IN TRUDEAU CASE

(Special to The Bulletin)

PUTNAM, June 25.—A summary of the events taking place today in the county courthouse at Worcester, where Leon A. Trudeau is on trial, charged with the murder of his wife, showed the defense had scored another point in its favor, when Judge Brown, presiding, ordered all witnesses for both prosecution and defense from the courtroom. They will be admitted singly for the purpose of testifying. This formality was requested by Attorney Fred Cronin, chief of the defense counsel.

The greater part of the morning session was occupied with the presentation of evidence by District Attorney Edward G. Norman. During his talk, Mr. Norman presented in narrative form the chain of events in which the commonwealth hopes to convict Trudeau as the murderer of his wife, whose body was found brutally beaten and strangled on the Putnam-Webster road near the state line on the morning of Feb. 23 A jury was impanelled yesterday and the trial got underway this morning.

A meeting of the committees and officers in charge of the church vacation school, which is to be opened on July 7 at the First Baptist church on Woodstock avenue, was held this afternoon at the Congregational church. Plans for the sessions, which will be open to graded school children, were formulated at the faculty gathering today.

J. Dyer Potter, treasurer of the Cargill Trust company, has been elected to fill the vacancy on the state aid veterans' relief committee of the American Legion post, which was created with the resignation of Rev. James F. English, former pastor of the Congregational church. The Anslem Mayotte post is in charge of the state appropriated funds.

Mrs. Celia F. Messenger, a member of the culinary force at the Arnold Sea Grill on Bundy street, died this morning at the Day Kimball hospital. She was 45 years of age and had been ill but a short time. Mrs. Messenger, the widow of Ernest Messenger, was born in Byfield, Mass. She had been employed at the Sea Grill for a number of months and was well known and held in high esteem by the patrons of the restaurant. The body will be sent to Byfield, near Haverhill, Mass., for burial.

Arthur S. Macdonald, secretary of the chamber of commerce, said today that an investigation has revealed all widely circulated reports concerning the leasing of the French River mill in Mechanicsville, by a lacquer manufacturing concern, to be without foundation. The rumors gained circulation last week and have persisted despite denials of their contents being true, which have been made by persons in authority. When questioned concerning the numerous yarns, Mr. Macdonald said, "I'm sorry, but it's just another rumor."

Miss Allegra Proctor of Manchester, N. H., is spending a few days with friends on Grove street.

President-elect Alexander Gilman presided at the weekly luncheon and meeting of the Putnam Rotary club held at noon today at the Putnam Inn. President S. Nickoloff is in Chicago this week, attending the international convention of the organization, which is being held there. Today being the final meeting under the retiring slate of officers, the reports of Secretary E. Leslie Beebe and Treasurer Warren W. Averrill were submitted for reading. The review of the activities of the club during the past year, as outlined in the reports of each officer, showed it to be functioning in a highly effective manner.

The featured item of today's meeting was the luncheon—a full course dinner of bear meat. It was prepared under the supervision of Rotarian E. Clinton Rogers, landlord of the Putnam Inn, and was provided by Rotarians Arthur E. Smith and Fred A. Marvott. The dinner proved to be delicious. It was tastefully prepared and was something more than the ordinary. Both Mr. Smith and Mr. Marvott returned last week from a fishing trip spent in the Maine woods. The bear was bagged after it had invaded the camp of the Rotarian sportsmen. Its coat is being cured and will soon add color to the den of Mr. Smith.

Visitors at the luncheon were Henry Dubuc and Herbert Pepler of Danielson, J. I. Morris of Sturbridge and John Reardon, Jr., of North Grosvenordale.

Next Wednesday, President-elect Gilman and staff of newly-elected officers of Rotary will be installed in office at fitting ceremonies to be held during the executive session.

The merchants committee of the chamber of commerce has arranged with business men of the city to initiate the weekly half-holiday for the benefit of clerks this summer, beginning on Thursday afternoon, July 10. The day will be observed each week thereafter until the last Thursday of September.

Mr. and Mrs. Albert H. Williams of South Woodstock will observe their 25th wedding anniversary on Saturday, July 28. Friends will be received at their Sprucedale home during the day. Mr. and Mrs. Williams, well-known residents of Woodstock, were married on June 28, 1905, by Rev. C. M. Jones, then pastor of the South Woodstock Congregational church.

Thomas Deberadinis has become air-minded, so much so that he has decided to take up the study of aviation. On Sunday he will leave for New York, there to enter the New York Institution of Aeronautics. He is the son of Mrs. Angelo Deberadinis of Walnut street and was graduated from Putnam high school last June.

JEWETT CITY

OLD TIME BALL TOSSERS MAY CLASH ONCE AGAIN

(Special to The Bulletin.)

JEWETT CITY, June 25—Thursday morning there will be placed in Charlie Carey's window, a fine framed photograph of the one time famous Jewett City baseball team. The picture which was taken in 1904, during the height of their popularity, is owned by Mrs. Joseph Gill.

The proposal that these stars of the diamond of a quarter of a century ago, shall meet with their old time rivals, the Wauregan team July 4th, has caused no little interest in the borough. Those two famous nines easily outclassed anything that was offered in this end of the state. Their prowess was well known and acknowledged. Both here and in Wauregan many of the clashes between hese two premier organizations are well remembered events in the baseball history of the early years of the twentieth century.

Joe Watt, now of Groton, Conn., was the first sacker then, and none since that time have dimmed his laurels much in the position which he played so well. George Robertson, now of Danielson, was the catcher. When in action behind the plate, he did the backstop job with neatness and dispatch. Charlie Connell, now of Norwich, managed the doughty aggregation with such skill that few dissensions arose in this organization of class.

Arthur (Pop) Williams, now of Danielson, covered the second sack, as well as all the territory anywhere in that vicinity. "Pop" stood in with the grandstand also, and there is every indication that even today he could doff his official garb, don the uniform of the field, and do the trick all over again. Henry McLaughlin, pitcher, was a star performer. He is the only one in the line-up that has passed on. He died here several years ago.

Willie L. Heureux, now of Montreal, Canada, was the popular and handsome little mascot. H. G. (Gordie) Willis, still a baseball man and one of the umpires in the Jewett City Twilight league, covered the third sack. "Gordie" nailed any and all drives in his section, with a certainty and skill that stays with him yet. Many will recall how opposing players seldom attempted to steal one on Gordie. Napoleon (Bon Homme) Ritchie, right on the job in this borough, was the short stop. He played short but was "long" on the job when a sizzler came over his way. The base runner often stopped in his tracks knowing it was useless to try and get one by "Bon Homme." William (Bill) Robertson, will answer "present," right here. He played right field with a record of but one error in a whole season, and he nailed every opportunity that came anywhere in his vicinity. Bill is one of the umpires in the Jewett City Twilight league, with an eye like an eagle. His mantle as a ball player has decended upon his son, George, who is a sticker and catcher of class, and has had engagements with several eastern Connecticut leagues. He is now playing with the Accos.

Have your eyes examined by Dr. C. A. Spear, optometrist; hours 7 to 9 Friday evening, Anthony block.—adv.

WEDDING

Ninteau-Bryant.

Miss Estelle Bryant, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Peter Bryant, of Dime street, and Alphonse Ninteau of Jewett City, formerly of Lowell, Mass., were united in marriage, Monday morning at 9 o'clock at St. Mary's church at a nuptial high mass celebrated by Rev. Francis P. Keough.

The bridesmaid was Sylvia Bryant, sister of the bride, and Alfred Moreau a friend of the groom, was best man. The bride was beautifully gowned in a white silk Spanish lace dress, and a tulle veil trimmed with Spanish lace to match the dress and caught with rhinestones, orange blossoms, pears and lilies of the valley. She carried a shower bouquet of white roses and lilies of the valley. The bridesmaid wore a peach colored dress of peau-de-satin with a large horse hair hat and satin slippers to match, and carried an arm bouquet of Ophelia roses. The bride's gift to the groom was a three colored gold watch chain. The groom gave his bride a beautiful crystal necklace. The bridesmaids received crystal necklaces from the bride and the best man received a pen and pencil set from the groom.

After the ceremony a wedding breakfast was served at the home of the bride's parents. Later in the day Mr. and Mrs. Ninteau left on a honeymoon trip to Lowell, Boston, Niagara Falls and other points of interest. Upon their return they will reside on Russell street. The bride's going away dress was of orchid georgette with hat to match and black velvet coat.

The bride was the recipient of numerous, beautiful and useful wedding gifts.

The guests included relatives and friends from Lowell, Sharon and Boston, Mass., Hartford, Taftville and Jewett City.

FLYING THE ATLANTIC WESTWARD

Numerous attempts have been made to fly across the Atlantic westward, but only in two instances have the fliers succeeded. Some have never been heard from and the crossing has long since been recognized as difficult and dangerous.

The Southern Cross, carrying Captain Kingsford-Smith and crew, is the first to effect a landing on this side of the Atlantic in condition fit to take off again, and, in comparison with other flights, it was accomplished under mostly favorable conditions and but for the fog it would have been uneventful.

But for the depletion of its fuel supply and the handicap that was offered by the fog in getting bearings, there are good reasons for believing that the Southern Cross would have been able to continue on to its objective point, New York. It was unfortunate that there could not have been a tryout of the plan to refuel the plane in the air, but it seems entirely probable that this will yet be the means of completing such a trip.

It was inevitable that some aviator would do what has been accomplished in the Southern Cross. The success thus far attained in that machine simply points to the fact that others are not only going to repeat it but actually reach New York, or go beyond.

A significant feature of the statement made by Captain Kingsford-Smith is the credit he gives to the aid which he received through the radio. This made it possible for him not only to indicate his location to all those who were interested in his flight and welfare but it kept him in touch with conditions ahead and was instrumental in accomplishing his safe landing in Newfoundland. More would have been known of the experiences and fate of other westward fliers had they been similarly equipped.

The success of Captain Kingsford-Smith's flight is bound to serve as encouragement to others. Due allowance must be made for the favorable flying conditions he experienced, but careful preparations and skillful navigation, combined with the help given by the wireless, especially in the fog area about Newfoundland, all played their part and stand to the credit of the long-distance flier.

CELEBRATING THE FOURTH

There is no getting away from the fact that safe and sane observance of the Fourth is still gaining support. It has been under test long enough to demonstrate its merits. Opportunities galore have been provided which show that there are less deaths, less injuries, less cripples, as the result of the sane observance of the nation's birthday anniversary. That is a highly desirable accomplishment.

There was no more patriotism displayed in the celebrations which brought distressing results than in the modified and safe celebration. It is a day that will not be forgotten, but it is a day which can be properly observed without involving the destruction of humanity and property. It required a good many years to come to that realization, but the movement for a safe celebration has won widespread approval.

Furthermore, there is no good reason why the day should be celebrated with explosives for a fortnight in advance, and the restrictions placed on the sale of such explosives, both as to the period of time in which the sales can be made and the character of the explosives, are wise ones. Norwich has adopted a wise policy in this respect.

In this connection there is a growing feeling that the time has come for placing a ban on the sale and discharge of fireworks for the Fourth. Certain cities have already made such a ruling. Others are convinced of its wisdom but, because of the lateness of the date at which it was urged, have been unwilling to make it effective this year but will do so in the future. Such bans will go into effect with the fifth of July. This is out of consideration for those who have purchased stocks of fireworks for use or sale in the expectation that there would be no other than the customary restrictions. Because of the short time intervening, it is not considered fair to interfere with arrangements already made, but with the passing of the Fourth there will be nothing to prevent the enforcement of such a ban another year. Full and fair warning to all concerned will be permitted and there will be no excuse for doing other than complying with such regulations. It is evidence of the growing opposition to the promiscuous use of explosives.

THE REPORT ON INDIA

The British have long since felt the effects of unrest in India, with the result that Sir John Simon was directed to conduct an investigation into conditions there, study the situation and make a report upon what he found along with recommendations.

Before that report was made public, India gave evidences that it was not going to be easily satisfied. It put forth strong demands and backed them up with action. Gandhi undertook to have the manifestations peaceful, but he was by no means successful. He had a following which he could control only when present.

With the disclosure of the Simon report, the setting forth of conditions and the recommendations made, there doesn't appear to be a disposition to accept even the advantages suggested. Sir John Simon doesn't urge the British to make a dominion of India, he doesn't accede to the demands of the nationalists, but he does advocate changes. The changes must be regarded in the way of an improvement. It is recognized that the maintenance of peaceful conditions in India calls for the maintenance of a British army. That could not be done under any self-government, since a British army must be under British command.

Pointing out that self-rule is impossible, there is suggested a greater self-government in the provinces, a move toward greater freedom. This doesn't do away with British control but it offers a greater measure of freedom.

The Simon report doesn't meet the demands of the nationalists. It was hardly to be expected that it would, but, with the changes that are recommended, they cannot disregard the fact that it tends in that direction. It may be regarded as slight progress toward the desired goal but movements of that kind do not always go through flying. When the time comes for a conference between the British and the Indian leaders concerning the report, a better understanding of what is proposed may exist and a more favorable attitude displayed, to the extent, at least, of being willing to give it a trial to see how it will work and to mark a step ahead toward the real objective. It remains to be seen whether they will be willing to accept a half a loaf in the hope that the remainder will be secured at some future time.

ILLEGAL SIGNS

Not only has the billboard become the cause for country-wide objection and extensive regulation, but so has the practice of putting up signs indiscriminately wherever a conspicuous place is found. It is a practice that has not only drawn stiff opposition but legislation, which is effective when it is enforced.

An instance of how it operates in Massachusetts is illustrated by the activities of state inspectors on the Boston-Albany highway this week. In the neighborhood of Springfield they have found illegal signs on telegraph poles advertising a local fair. This is in violation of the law and they have been removed. Prosecutions could follow if it were known who were responsible for putting up the signs. The law is definite as to what kind of signs can be put up aside from those which go on lawful billboards, and provides for their destruction whenever found.

It can be recalled how, in other days, highways were lined with signs of all kinds in every conceivable place. It was because of the way in which this practice was overdone and the appearance of the countryside marred that resentment was aroused and prohibitive legislation secured. There are, doubtless, many who in their enthusiasm for local affairs put up many signs which are illegal and do so without understanding that they are conflicting with a law.

When state inspectors, as they have done about Springfield, not only remove such signs but take occasion to call attention to the character of the violations, they give warnings which cannot be overlooked and, doubtless, furnishing information to many who never previously had the matter called to their attention. Through such efforts better respect for such requirements can be expected. Thus, in putting up signs, it is well to learn whether it conflicts with the law.

PORTO RICO'S NEEDS

When Governor Theodore Roosevelt of Porto Rico returned to Washington it was for the purpose of urging financial assistance for that island. He brought home some convincing arguments and set forth the conditions there in a manner to cause no little thought to be centered upon insular possession.

Upon the eve of his return to the island, he made another plea for aid for the children of the island and showed in a comprehensive manner how it would be possible to spend more than $7,000,000 for the betterment of health conditions involving for the most part the coming generations.

It was not solely as the result of his observations that he made these recommendations and set forth seven projects which need assistance, but followed the recommendations set forth in the survey of Dr. Crumbine of the American Child Health association. He was, however, able to bear witness to the situation as the result of his study of island conditions.

There seems to be no question but what there is opportunity for some real service to be rendered in Porto Rico through organized effort. If there are organizations or individuals seeking chances to establish better child health conditions, to prevent hookworm disease, malaria, tuberculosis, and reduce high mortality rates, to better food supplies and provide hospital facilities for the treatment of the sick, it would appear that Porto Rico furnishes the field for extensive operations.

It is always possible for much work of this character to be done in many sections, but the fact that such deplorable conditions exist in our own possessions creates an interest which might not otherwise prevail. Evidently the problem is too large a one for Porto Rico itself.

EDITORIAL NOTES

The man on the corner says: Now is the opportunity to complain because it is too hot.

Is it in spite of or because of prohibition that prisons have unprecedented inmate records?

Oh, I didn't know it was that hot, expresses the feelings of a person who has just consulted the thermometer.

THE FAMILY TREE

"Me—carry that?"

Nancy, looking for all the world like a red sumac leaf in her scarlet slicker, leveled a wet, pink and scathing finger at the umbrella, leaning like a tipsy cabby against the hall table. "Why, Mother Blaire, they would pinch me for blocking traffic, or send me out to the forest preserve, where you can pitch a tent for 50 cents."

"Take it or leave it," said Mother Blaire briefly. "It is a good umbrella. Your grandfather used it."

"Yes, but Gramp was a burly pioneer, used to hauling logs around on prairies, and he had all of Iowa at his disposal when he wanted to put it up. Well-working girls whose umbrellas turn inside out with pay day still half a week away can't be choosy." And, grasping the great, flapping umbrella by its bulky middle, Nancy fared forth into the weather.

The Family Tree—it was Daddy named the umbrella that way back when Nancy was in the first grade and the whole Blaire family had started to school under its sheltering arms.

The pout was gone from Nancy's very red little mouth as memory seven-leagued back, back to the days when all the Blaires lived in the happy yellow house on the prettiest street in a little toy town in Iowa.

There was the shady spot under the lilacs where she and Alice played at housekeeping and "built on" a room by hoisting the Family Tree to make shade enough to go round. Then there was playing "Adventure" on the wide green sea of the back yard with the overturned wash bench as an argosy, the Family Tree as its cabin and Kenny Brookes, draped in a blanket as captain and hero.

Kenny Brookes. A little wistful look crept into Nancy's gay eyes. What dear, delicious years those were when Kenny lived next door, before his new stepmother bore down and took him somewhere important to be educated. Kenny slept at his grandmother's. But the instant breakfast was over he climbed the fence between and landed on the Blaire side shouting, "Nancee, Nancee—come out and pla-a-a-y."

And then Kenny and she going for the milk on rainy evenings just when things had lost their shadows and home seemed terribly far away. Kenny, skulking along under the depths of the Family Tree. "Let's pretend it's a great, great big bird, bigger'n the biggest eagle you ever saw, going to carry us way, way off to—India."

"Oh, no, no, Kenny; let's not tend that. Let's just let it be Mother Goose, nice old Mother Goose, going with us after the milk."

Nancy, grown up, gave a little, happy skip. And at that exact moment a scudding wind thrust a shoulder under the wide wing of the Family Tree. It veered and twisted. Nancy clutched its handle and reached for the sidewalk with scurrying feet. It wasn't there.

A black bulk loomed suddenly in front of her. A long arm reached out and captured her and a voice from somewhere high up said, "You're trying to navigate that with rather a small crew, aren't you?"

"Just—just a cabin boy, I guess," gasped Nancy, breathless. And, hoisting her umbrella, she took a look at the bulk and the voice. He was tall, of course, and good looking.

"You better let me pilot this across the street." And without waiting for sailing orders, he took Nancy in one hand and the Family Tree in the other and stepped off the curb. On the far corner Nancy smiled up at him.

"Thank you, lots. If you are going my way, can't I share the Fam—this umbrella—with you? It's most as big as a street car."

But the man was not listening to or looking at Nancy. He was still holding the Family Tree and staring at its big horn handle, with a quizzical, puzzled, half-remembering look.

"I've seen this umbrella somewhere before—I know," he hesitated.

"It must have been a long time ago," Nancy dimpled. "It's been in our family for generations, and I think my grandfather came by it honestly."

"It was a long time ago—years and years. It was when I was a little kid back in Iowa. I used to go for the milk with Nancy Blaire under a great big umbrella with a handle like this—" Suddenly he was looking at Nancy.

"You aren't—you are Nancy Blaire."

"Kenny!" He caught her arm.

"Let's pretend it's a big bird, bigger'n an eagle," he laughed.

"No, Kenny, lets play its just Mother Goose—"

"Taking us somewhere for tea where we can talk and talk," finished Kenny. And they did.—Exchange.

A Washington Bystander

By KIRKE L. SIMPSON
Associated Press Staff Writer

WASHINGTON, June 25—It is not often that a grudge between senators or members of the house gets right out into the open.

Usual procedure in either body keeps personal animosities out of the picture.

But when Tom Blanton came back from Texas to resume the seat he vacated in his fruitless effort to crash the senate gates, the fur flew for fair.

Representative Clancy, who has managed to keep the first Michigan district in his pocket quite a number of years both as a democrat and as a republican, was the lad after the Texan's scalp. And before he had finished saying his say about Blanton under personal privilege relaxation, he had made a public record of his views in extremely frank terms.

Blanton promised to reply fully later. Anyone who has followed his dozen years or so in the house even casually would expect him to do that. Particularly as Blanton came back to the house pleased by his campaign circulars and speeches to resume his role of volunteer watchdog of the consent calendar. Up to the time his senatorial dreams removed him for a brief period, Blanton had set up a record for "I object," a record he is proud of.

How It Started

That was what started the Blanton-Clancy feud. The Texan in previous sessions bombarded certain measures Clancy was backing in such fashion that the Michigander turned the tables on him when he got a chance. Clancy had no hope of keeping Blanton out of his seat permanently. After the house had seated his opponent, however, Clancy had this to say:

"The gentleman from Texas now knows the power of one objection on the part of a member of the house, a power which he has used so cruelly, so unjustly and so vindictively in the past."

Blanton planned to resume just where he left off. He pointed out that Minority Leader Garner had found it necessary to appoint men to the task, when Blanton was missing, "for example, Mr. Collins of Mississippi," and that the republican management had done the same thing. Which is quite true.

No "Congressmen"

It seems to have made little difference down in Texas that the accepted designation for a member of the house is "a representative in congress," not "congressman." Blanton's credentials certified he had been "elected as congressman for the state of Texas."

It was too trivial a point to bar Blanton from his seat, of course. Clancy raised only to get a crack at the Texan. But the incident prompted Speaker Longworth to say that Texas election certificates had frequently been returned for correction in that particular.

"So far as the chair knows, no man has ever taken the oath as a 'congressman,'" the speaker said.

And a minute later Blanton seemed to do just that.

YOUR HEALTH

Maintaining Your Dental Health

By Harold V. Blayney, D. D. S., Chicago
(From Gorgas Memorial Institute)

Teeth are as much a part of the body as any other of its organs, having a blood supply, a nerve supply to perform. Therefore they must be treated and preserved with as much care; but often they are most woefully neglected.

You can prevent many a toothache and the loss of teeth by thorough personal mouth hygiene and by going to your dentist every six month for examination and cleaning

If one or more of your teeth have been extracted do not resitate to have them replaced by artificial ones. This is necessary to keep the proper contact of the remaining teeth and to secure the normal efficiency from them. If one of the cylinders in your motor car is missing you can still run the car, but you have lost some of the mechanical efficiency. The same is true of your teeth. You can still chew and masticate your food but not with the same degree of efficiency as when all the teeth are in their normal position in the jaws, having normal contact with each other and striking properly on the teeth in the opposing jaw.

The expectant mother should go to her dentist for mouth examination and advice as to her diet about the second or third month of her pregnancy, as it is at this time that the baby's foundation for good, sound healthy and perfect teeth is being formed. In so doing the mother is not only building good baby teeth, but is protecting her own as well. Far too many mothers' mouths are completely ravaged by caries or decay of the teeth during pregnancy or following the birth of the child, which before were in sound, healthy condition.

The baby teeth must be cleaned, examined and filled the same as the permanent ones as the position of the adult teeth is guided by the position and preservation of the baby ones. Do not neglect these baby teeth as they are of utmost importance to the child.

Healthy teeth and a clean mouth are great assets to your general health, so why not aid your body in keeping healthy instead of lowering its resistance to systemic iseases and harboring infection in your mouth? Practically all of the germs that enter the body do so through the mouth. So help nature in her fight against them by brushing your teeth at least twice daily and washing your mouth out afterwards with warm salt water or some non-injurious mouth wash.

Once you establish the habit of having a clean mouth you will never have a dirty one. If only your friends could see your mouth as your dentist does what a scramble there would be for the tooth brush!

How Many Countries Equip Your Home?

How American is the American home?

"American industry supplies a majority of the equipment of the average American home, but, according to commerce reports, in many homes are products that originated in more countries than are represented in the League of Nations," says a bulletin from the Washington, D. C., headquarters of the National Geographic society.

"From the roof which contains tin from Malay, to the cellar where pipes might be covered with Canadian asbestos, foreign articles are utilized by builders and housewives. It is not unusual to find the American home covered with Turkish or Persian rugs, the rooms furnished with mahogany from Nicaragua forests, the tables covered with English tapestry, the mantels adorned with bric-a-brac 'Made in Japan or France). Candles and phonograph records contain Brazilian vegetable wax.

"The ivory piano keys once graced the jaws of a central African elephant and perhaps the leather binding on the library books once clothed New Zealand animals, and the supply of glassware and earthenware was molded in Czechoslovakia.

"A well-stocked pantry is the result of the labor of peoples of many climes," continues the bulletin. "On shelves nuts, there may be Brazilian coffee and Iraq dates, Turkish figs, Ceylon cocoanuts, Spanish olives and olive oil, canned Japanese crab meat, Cuban sugar, nutmegs from the Guianas, rice from Burma or Indo-China, Formosa tea, citron from Palestine, Norwegian sardines, English marmalades, Chinese ginger, Holland pickles, Spanish raisins, Ecuador cocoa, and cashew nuts from Madras, India.

"In the refrigerator may repose such articles as Sicilian lemons, Costa Rican pineapples, Honduran bananas, Italian cherries, Spanish grapes, fresh fish from Canada, canned caviar from Russia, South African lobsters and Argentine meat.

"The bathroom also may have a foreign touch. In the soap rack, perhaps, is a bar containing palm oil from Nigeria and in the tooth brush holder, brushes from Japan. The curtain around the shower may contain Malay or Brazilian rubber, but an international array of supplies is more evident in the medicine cabinet: Italian cream of tartar, Chilean iodine, Brazilian ipecac, German menthol, Javanese or Peruvian quinine, Venezuelan castor oil, and cod liver oil from Iceland or Labrador.

"Milady's dressing table is incomplete without sweet scented perfumes, some of which, perhaps, were imported from France. Chemically analysed, they might be found to contain extracts from rose petals grown in Bulgaria, musk from oxen of Tibet and civet, an extract from Ethiopian civet cats. The handles of the hair brush, mirror, and the comb, may be products of Argentine cassia.

"The family clothes hacks display silk clothing the threads of which, perhaps, were spun by silk worms in Turkey, or Japan. The skins in the karakul coat on the next rack once were worn by karakul lambs on the plains of central Asia. The panama hat was made in Ecuador, while the felt hat contains hair that once scampered across Australian fields around rabbit carcasses. The hides in the shoes on the shoe rack perhaps originated in Chile or Argentina."

A History Of Connecticut Industry

Released by Manufacturers Association of Connecticut

Peck, Stow & Wilcox Company, Southington.

The history of the manufacture of tinsmiths and sheet metal workers' tools and machines in the United States closely parallels the history of The Peck, Stow & Wilcox company.

In 1819 Seth Peck patentee of the first machine for making tinware, began manufacturing and distributing sheet metal working machines all over the country without the aid of a single foot of railway.

In his list of machines sold by him in 1826 appears: Folding machines, grooving machines, large turners, small turners, wiring machines, large burring, small burring and setting down machines.

Until about 1830 practically all work was done by hand on lathes operated by foot treadle. In 1831 Seth Peck purchased certain patents from a Mr. Converse, and taking in Romeo Lowrey, formed Seth Peck & Co. In 1833 Peck Smith & Co. was formed consisting of Orrin Peck, Wyllys Smith and Benjamin F. Seward, which continued until 1848 when the firm was re-organized. In 1855 they began to manufacture monkey wrenches.

About 1833 Romeo Lowrey organized a company at Plantsville, which he called Plant Neal & Co., and brought from Kentucky a man named Newton who designed the first double seamer ever made. This was succeeded by Moore's double seamer, the designer having been the minister at Plantsville and a good mechanic himself.

In 1834 Soloman Stow started making brass gear wheels and other parts for Peck Smith & Co., along with his sons, Orson W. and Enos E. Stow.

In 1849 Dwight Twitchell & Samuel R. Shephard purchased the Plant Neal & Co., business, which was then merged into the S. Stow & Sons.

The Roys & Wilcox company traces its origin back to 1745 when one Elias Beckley, Jr., was making tools at "Beckley Quarter," Berlin, Conn. From this shop and its successor shops, many expert tool makers went out to enrich Connecticut's industrial history. Many present day institutions were founded by men who learned their trade in the Beckley shops. About 1816 the business was under the firm name of E. North & Co. Later the firm name was J. & W. Beckley. About 1845 the Beckleys sold out to Lyman Wilcox.

The Beckleys made the first snips and bench shears ever made by the use of dies. In 1839 the first circle shears were made. In 1840 F. Roys and Co. was formed, a partner being Josiah Wilcox. Later a limited partnership was created under the name of Roys & Wilcox company.

In 1860 three large companies practically constituted the entire industry. Ten years later in 1870 the Peck Smith Manufacturing company of Southington, S. Stow Manufacturing company of Plantsville, and the Roys & Wilcox company of East Berlin joined forces and become known as The Peck, Stow & Wilcox company.

Since that year this company has not only retained leadership in the tinners tool and machinery field, but has established the "Pexto" brand of hand tools for carpenters, machinists, electricians and general use, which brand is synonymous with quality, excellence of workmanship and dependability.

"Pexto" tools and equipment have had a prominent place in the education of machinists in Connecticut and elsewhere since many trade and other schools have their full equipment supplied by this firm.

The present officers are: George S. Case, president; Charles F. Treadway, treasurer; Frank L. Wilcox, vice president; Otto J. Blank, secretary and factory manager; A. G. Potter, comptroller; N. David Thompson, director of sales.

Carl Storek, pastor of the First Evangelical Lutheran church, Franklin street, arrived home Wednesday from attending the convention of the United Lutheran Synod of New York, which was held in Rochester, with 500 pastors and delegates in attendance. The merging of colleges and seminaries was the main item of discussion and a synodical brotherhood with social and insurance features was organized.

Rev. Mr. Storek and family, who accompanied him, made a visit to New York city in connection with the convention.

CHESTERFIELD YOUNG MAN CHARGED WITH SHOOTING

The case against Chester Henry, 20, of Chesterfield, was continued to next Monday when he was presented in the Montville justice's court on Wednesday afternoon on the charge of trying to shoot his brother, Ray, who was the complainant. Ray claimed that he had been driven into the woods by his brother's shooting.

The accused man admitted firing a shot, but said he shot into the air to scare his brother because the brother was throwing stones at a small goat belonging to the shooter.

SCHOOL TEACHERS TO MOTOR TO WEST COAST

Margaret Sullivan of this city, with three New London girls, Claire and Teresa St. Germain and Mary Moriarty, all school teachers, left Wednesday morning for a two months trip by automobile to the west coast and return. Accompanying them as far as Niagara Falls is Miss Helen Donovan of New London. The young women plan to camp out the greater part of the distance. Among the places to be visited are Yellowstone park, the Grand Canyon of Colorado and the petrified forests.

ROTARY VOTES APPRECIATION OF PRES. MURDY'S WORK

At the Rotary club luncheon at the Wauregan hotel Wednesday, which closed the term of Frank R. Murdy as president, James L. LITTLE YANTIC GIRL SUFFERS BRAIN CONCUSSION

Helen Nawrocki, 6, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Peter Nawrocki of Yantic, was seriously injured about 6:15 o'clock Wednesday evening, when she ran into a machine operated by William C. Kendall of the Y. M. C. A., this city, just south of Fishbone's store in Yantic. The child received injuries to her chest and concussion of the brain and late Wednesday evening had not regained consciousness.

The girl, in company with a number of other youngsters, was following an empty hay wagon in charge of Gene Rogers of Yantic, which had just come out of a dirt road onto the main highway to proceed in a southerly direction. Running out from behind the horse-drawn vehicle on her way across the highway the Nawrocki girl ran into the left front fender of the Kendall car, which was traveling toward Bozrah. Mr. Kendall who was said to have been driving at a moderate rate of speed brought his car to a stop within 50 feet.

Mrs. Fishbone, wife of the proprietor of a store, which is located nearby, picked up the child from the pavement, to which she was thrown, and Hermon J. Gibbs of Yantic with his son, Ralph, took her in their machine to the W. W. Backus hospital. At the hospital she was attended by Dr. R. R. Agnew.

According to Coroner Edward G. McKay, who investigated the accident with Constable Lucius Fenton of Norwich Town, he was satisfied that the accident was an unavoidable one, and this was also the opinion of five eye-witnesses.

WEDDINGS

Malloy—Garvey

Miss Helen Marguerite Garvey, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Dennis Garvey of 13 Winchester street, was united in marriage with John Edward Malloy of Providence at 8 o'clock Wednesday morning at St. Patrick's church, Rt. Rev. Msgr. Michael H. May officiating. Miss Deborah Garvey attended her sister as maid of honor and Francis Malloy, brother of the bridegroom, was best man.

A reception was held at the home of the bride's parents and later in the day Mr. and Mrs. Malloy left on a wedding trip through the Adirondacks and Canada. They are to reside at No. 198 Sterling avenue, Providence, upon their return.

Mr. Malloy is a compositor for the Providence Journal Co.

NEW LONDON COUNTY BAR TO HAVE FIRST PRACTICING WOMAN LAWYER

New London county promises to have its first practicing woman attorney, as application for admission to the bar in this county has been made by Mrs. Mary Wooster Sutton of 25 State Hill road, Groton, which is to come up at the meeting of the county bar association on Friday.

Mrs. Sutton, who is a widow, has already been admitted to the bar in New Jersey and Florida, as well as admitted to the United States supreme court.

She graduated at New York university law school in 1911 and the following year received the degree of master of laws. She was admitted as an attorney in New Jersey in 1913 and admitted to practice in that state in 1916. In 1922 she was admitted to the bar in Florida and in 1925 to the United States supreme court.

THERESA TAYLOR IN TROUBLE IN PROVIDENCE

Theresa Taylor, 27, of 202 Narragansett avenue, Riverside, R. I., was held under $4,000 bail Tuesday morning in Providence when she pleaded not guilty to two charges of forgery. Trial was set for July 8.

The woman, according to Inspector William E. McCall of headquarters, presented two checks, one amounting to $325 and the other to $35, for payment in banks in Providence. The name of Charles G. Arvan of Norwich, where the woman formerly lived, was signed to one check and the second check was raised from $25 to $325 after being indorsed by a resident of Providence. Police said the woman was arrested there on Dec. 11 last, in connection with another forgery case.

Theresa Taylor has a Norwich police record which began some time ago because of the wild parties she held with a tobacco store manager when she was caretaker of a Norwich residence while the family was away in the south. She was arrested, and after this case was disposed of, she next was in the hands of the Norwich police for getting $500 from a Norwich savings bank on a check that was no good. Through friends she raised $500 the night she was arrested and had the money in court the next morning to give back to the bank and the case was nolled.

It is understood she has also been in trouble in New London through ordering goods in Providence in the name of a New London woman.

KILLED IN CRASH ON ROAD NEAR HOPE VALLEY

Clarence Proffitt, 30, of Caswell court, Providence, was instantly killed about 3:10 Wednesday morning near Hope Valley, R. I., when the machine in which he was riding ran into the rear end of a truck which had stopped on Tefft hill on the road between Providence and New London. Proffitt was riding in a machine owned by his mother, Mrs. Bertha Proffitt, and driven by Elmer J. Brown, 17, a Negro, of 429 North Main street, Providence.

The truck which the Proffit car struck belonged to the Tourjee Transportation company of Providence and New London and was driven by Clarence Washington, 35, of 127 Shaw street, New London, who had stopped the truck off the right of the road to adjust the canvass coverings. Proffitt suffered a fractured skull, but Brown sustained only slight cuts. He was arrested on a charge of reckless driving resulting in death.

PHARMACISTS OF STATE ELECT THEIR OFFICERS

George L. Rapport of Hartford was elected president of the Connecticut Pharmaceutical association at the wind up meeting of the association's two day conference Wednesday at the Griswold hotel, Eastern Point. Other officers were elected as follows:

Herbert M. Lerou of Norwich, secretary and treasurer of the state pharmacy commission, read his annual report as presented to the governor. Mr. Lerou said that $4,000 had been turned over to the state treasury after all expenses of the commission had been paid and public health and safety safeguarded at no expense to the state.

FUNERALS

Walter Koshko.

Funeral services for Walter Koshko, who was drowned at Lebanon Monday, were held at 10:15 o'clock Wednesday morning at the home of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Koshko of Colchester, followed by services in the Russian-Greek church, Colchester, at 11 o'clock, Rev. Fr. Yoworski officiating. The funeral was attended by many sorrowing friends and relatives and there were many beautiful floral forms.

Burial was in the Russian cemetery, Colchester, and the committal service was read by Rev. Fr. Yoworski. The bearers were Peter Hamnick, John Chemerynski, George Wasniewski, Frank Soupchek, George Kendzior, Peter Gyome, Helen Gyome, Catherine Gyome, Natalie Kosko, Frances Fontanetta, Fannie Wasniewski and Helen Chemerynski. The funeral arrangements were in charge of Undertakers Cummings and Ring.

Miss Louise Scott

The funeral of Miss Louise Scott, a nurse of this city, was held at 6:45 o'clock Wednesday morning from the parlors of Cummings and Ring, Main street, followed by requiem mass in St. Patrick's church at 7 o'clock. The mass was celebrated by Rev. John J. Reilly and the music was in charge of Mrs. Bernard Coyle. The services were largely attended and the floral tributes were beautiful.

Burial was in the family lot in St. Mary's cemetery and the committal service was read by Rt. Rev. Msgr. Michael H. May, rector of St. Patrick's parish. The bearers were Albert Church, M. V. Murphy, George G. Dolan and William Church.

Theodore Ouillette

With many relatives and friends attending the funeral of Theodore Ouillette was held Wednesday morning from the home of his daughter, Mrs. Theodore Lussier Daggett, street, Moosup. At a solemn requiem mass, which followed, Rev. Philip Massicot was celebrant, Rev. John J. Quinn, deacon, and Rev. Henri T. Chagnon, sub-deacon. The Crucifix was rendered as a waiting hymn. Miss Rose Houle assisted in the musical programme.

Burial was in All Hallows cemetery, Moosup, where the committal service was read by Rev. Fr. Massicot. The bearers were William and Edward Bellevance, Fred Champagne, Louise Morency, Midase Gaudreau, and Isadore Mercier. There were many beautiful floral pieces. The funeral arrangements were in charge of Undertakers Dougherty Bros., of Moosup.

WILLIS WILL MAKES MANY NORWICH BEQUESTS

The will of the late Irving J. Willis of this city, who died last week at Stonington, makes bequests to one church and several Norwich organizations. It was filed for probate Wednesday in the Norwich court.

Bequests of $500 each are made to the United Workers of Norwich, to the Sheltering Arms department of the United Workers, to the Salvation Army, to the Newington Home for Crippled Children and to the Norwich council of the Boy Scouts.

There is a $2,000 bequest to the First Baptist church of this city "in memory of my beloved daughter, Mrs Charlotte May Willis Jones."

The income of $3,000 is left for life to William E. Jones, and at his death the money becomes a part of the residue of the estate and is to be divided according to the will.

Mrs. Iona Jewett Jones, $300; Mrs. Ethel Edmond, $500; Mrs. Geraldine Oat Earnett, $300; Miss Cora Freeman, $300; Miss Blanche Freeman, $300; Miss Marie Pierson, $500; Mrs. Annie Stetson, $300; Mrs. Jennie Austin Bates, $500.

"All the rest and residue of my property of whatsoever the same may consist or whatsoever it may be situated, I give, devise and bequeath to John B. Oat, in trust, however, for the following purposes: to pay the income thereof to my great granddaughter, Diana Vivian Jones, until she becomes of the age of 21 years when the principal shall be paid to her. If, however, my great granddaughter, Diana Vivian Jones, dies before reaching the age of 21 years, then in that event, I direct that this trust shall terminate and the principal of said trust fund shall be divided in three equal parts, one of which said parts shall be paid to The Connecticut Children's Aid society, absolutely, and one of which parts shall be paid to the Newington Home for Crippled Children and one of which parts shall be paid to the county of New London to be used for the benefit of the county home of said New London county. While this trust is in existence, I direct that the trustee be allowed to expend more than the income of the trust fund for the education of my said great granddaughter if in the opinion of said trustee, he deems it necessary.

John B. Oat is made executor under the will, which was drawn May 21, 1929, and was witnessed by Attorney Telley E. Babcock, William P. McGarry and Velerie W. Koneckie.

GOLF AND SAIL IN FIRE INSURANCE OUTING

Over 150 agency representatives of the New London County Mutual Fire Insurance company of this city, their wives and families, as well as officers of the company, attended the 23rd annual outing of the company which was held Wednesday at the Norwich Inn. The day was ideal for the outing, which started with an informal golf tournament in the morning on the Norwich Golf club course. Among those playing were Mr. Arnold of Putnam, Mrs. Merriman of Hartford, Mr. and Mrs. Garrett of Thompsonville and Mr. and Mrs. E. J. Ahrens of Suffield.

At 1 o'clock a bountiful turkey dinner was served by the hotel management and music was provided by a special trio. Later, the gathering motored to Ocean Beach for a sail in Long Island sound on the steamer Nelseco II.

In charge of the delightful programme were President E. A. Tracy and Secretary Walter F. Lester of this city.

RESERVE OFFICERS TO CAMP AT FORT WRIGHT

Orders calling for the attendance of 162 New England reserve officers at the coast artillery camp to be held at Fort H. G. Wright on Fishers Island, have been issued at headquarters of the First Coast Artillery district in Boston.

The reserve officers are members of the 543rd, 614th, 615th, 902nd and 906th coast artillery reserve regiments. The camp will be conducted for two weeks and will open on July 6 under command of Colonel C. H. Hilton, commander of the harbor defenses of Long Island sound. Colonel Samuel G. Shartle, regular army instructor of coast artillery reserve units at Portland, Maine, has been designated executive officer of the camp.

The reserve officers who will attend from Connecticut number 27 and include First Lieut. John F. Drake, Groton; Second Lieut. Henry C. Stoddard, 36 School street, Danielson; First Lieut. Arthur J. Wirth, 50 Broad street, Norwich, and Second Lieut. Horace B. Boutelle, Ocean View avenue, Mystic.

Aurin Payson, president of the American Thermos Bottle company, is to be a speaker next Monday evening at the Norwich inn when the membership meeting for the chamber of commerce is held there, with a dinner at 7 o'clock, closing the evening with dancing. President Payson will have something of interest and importance to tell along the lines of business conditions.

According to the officers of the chamber of commerce, formal dress will not be called for at the dinner or the dancing as it is the plan to make the evening an enjoyable informal affair.

ELKS' PROSPERITY CAR VISITS NORWICH LODGE

William B. Hart of Dayton, Ohio, brown as an Indian from nine weeks of driving the Elks-Viking prosperity car on the way to the grand lodge convention in Atlantic City, arrived here promptly on schedule time Wednesday. He came in from Willimantic in the purple and white roadster decorated with a set of antlers, arriving at noon at the city hall where Mayor Rev. Roy Robbins came down the front steps to give him an official greeting to the city, with a handclasp and a few cordial words of welcome. Judge of Probate Nelson J. Ayling, P. E. R., one of the best known of the Norwich lodge of Elks, added his greeting. Exalted Ruler James T. Egan, who rode into the city in the purple and white car performed the introductions.

Then the car was put in position so that a photograph of it and Driver Hart, with Mayor Robbins and a delegation of Elks standing around, could be taken, and then "Bill" Hart was whisked off to the Wauregan hotel where President Frank R. Murdy of the Rotary club had him and the three members of the Elks welcoming committee as guests at the Rotary luncheon.

"Bill" Hart was given the honor of being the speaker of the day, a post which he filled very acceptably, as he gave cordial expression to his appreciation of the beauties of New England and the hospitality of its people. Nowhere on his trip, he said, had he experienced such hospitality as had been shown him during the ten days he had spent in New England and he had completely revised his preconceived ideas of what he might expect in this part of the country.

Mr. Hart went on to speak of the transcontinental tour under the auspices of the Elks' magazine, in which the drivers were carrying the message of President Hoover and urged that all communities give their support for all projects in construction lines as a measure of backing up the president's proposal to help the employment situation.

He was given a rising vote of thanks as he concluded and the meeting came to an end with the singing of the Star Spangled Banner.

Driver "Bill" Hart had been met at Smith's corners on the Willimantic road by the reception committee, comprising Exalted Ruler James T. Egan, Alex Finlayson and Charles F. Whitney, who were accompanied by a delegation of Elks in automobiles driven by Bro. Finlayson, Earl Taggart and Raymond Fontaine, and flying American flags.

After the luncheon with the Rotary club, Mr. Hart was accompanied to the Elks' home by Exalted Ruler Egan and Bro. Finlayson and was later shown around the city and the Norwich State hospital. He was then accompanied to the submarine base by Exalted Ruler Egan, went aboard a submarine, was taken around the base, and returned here in time to leave again at 4:30 for a visit to New London lodge with Exalted Ruler Egan. Due to the necessity of visiting two lodges Wednesday he was not able to stay for the night and give a talk here on his trip.

He has been on the road nine weeks, having started from Leadville, Colo., traveling through the middle west and having covered 6,400 miles. He spoke particularly of New England's fine roads and remarked that he had found some rough going in the west but the worst road he had struck had been in New Jersey. His car, which is a Viking 8 sport roadster, has Michigan registration.

BURGESS BEDTIME STORY

Jerry Muskrat Explains

Mistakes, no matter how you try,
Are difficult to rectify.
—Peter Rabbit.

The night Peter Rabbit was chased away from the Smiling Pool by Mrs. Muskrat, he did not venture back again. Indeed, he was in doubt about going back the next night. He was fearful that Mrs. Muskrat might be hiding somewhere to spring out at him. Certainly she had been in a terrible temper when she chased him away from the Smiling Pool. But somehow Peter couldn't keep away. He was so anxious to see Jerry Muskrat that he had to go over there. He took care, however, to approach the Smiling Pool at a different point altogether.

Peter had been sitting on the bank of the Smiling Pool quite a little while when at last he saw a silvery line moving in the waters where the Black Shadows lay heaviest. He knew it was made by some one swimming. It might be Mr. or Mrs. Quack. It might be Jerry Muskrat.

"I do hope it isn't Mrs. Muskrat," said Peter to himself and kept his eyes fixed on that silvery line that was approaching.

Presently a head appeared coming out of the Black Shadows. "Is that you, Jerry Muskrat?" asked Peter.

The head turned towards where Peter was sitting on the bank. "That is just who it is," replied Jerry Muskrat. "What did you do to upset Mrs. Muskrat so last night?"

"I thumped on the roof of your house, hoping to get you to come out," replied Peter.

Jerry grinned. "So I understand," said he. "It was a mistake on your part, Peter. It was a serious mistake. You see, I am not living there just now."

"You're not!" exclaimed Peter. "Why not?"

"That's a foolish question," replied Jerry. "You ought to know without asking. The family needs all the room there is."

"Then where are you living?" Peter asked.

"Oh, I'm living around," replied Jerry carelessly. "I never have any trouble finding a place to stay."

"I should think you would wish you had that nice house you used to have out in the Smiling Pool," said Peter. "I've always wondered why you gave that up. I should think that that would have been a wonderful place for your babies."

Jerry grinned. "That's what I thought," said he, "but Mrs. Muskrat thought differently. Giving up that old house was Mrs. Muskrat's idea. She said it was too old. She said that a house up in the bank would be much dried and so better for the babies. So there was nothing for it but to have a new house in the bank. If you'll take my advice, Peter, you won't thump on the roof of that house any more."

Peter grinned. It was a foolish sort of grin. "I'll keep away," said he. "I should dislike meeting Mrs. Muskrat on a dark night feeling as she was feeling last night. My, what a temper!"

"Can you blame her?" asked Jerry. "How would you like to have some one thumping on top of your head, especially when you had a family of little babies? I advise you to keep away from Mrs. Muskrat, Peter. A worried mother is apt to act first and think afterward. In fact, I am keeping away from there myself these days."

Men! Banish Those Pimples Right Now

Isn't it a pity to see a fellow with good-looking features—but his whole appearance is ruined by a pimply face?

People shun him—those ugly blemishes are so disgusting to them, girls even hate to dance with him.

How would you like to have a person say to you, "To-morrow morning when you wake up you will notice that your pimples have started to disappear—in three days they'll be gone—in a week you'll have a clear, velvety skin."

This is exactly what Peterson's Ointment offers you and if your skin isn't marvelously cleared your money will be returned.

Thursey Pentecost of Springfield, Tenn., says: "I had used several kinds of Ointment but they did not help. I used Peterson's 3 or 4 times and my face was at last cleared of pimples."

Put your faith in Peterson's Ointment and be free from pimples and blackheads in a week's time—one 35 cent box will prove it—all druggists.

WASHINGTON'S GIANT CREW FAVORITE TO WIN POUGHKEEPSIE REGATTA TODAY

(By Ted Vosburgh.)
Associated Press Sports Writer.

POUGHKEEPSIE, N. Y., June 25—(AP)— On the eve of the 33rd annual battle of oars on the Hudson, the word that was passed along from camp to camp on both banks of the river tonight was a warning to "watch Washington."

The slogan had a familiar ring for over a period of nearly a decade the huskies from Seattle have more than held their own against the combined assaults of rivals from the east, middle west and even their own Pacific slope.

First under Ed Leader, then under Rusty Callow and now under young Al Ubreckson, the tall Redwoods of the northwest have rolled up a record of finishing either first or second every year but the one since 1922, and they have come east this season with a varsity crew that has yet to taste defeat.

Probably never in the long history of this inter-collegiate rowing association regatta, that goes back to 1895, has a crew appeared on the Hudson built on such gargantuan lines as this Washington varsity, amazingly tall, the crew contains one man who is 6 feet 5 inches, another who is 6 feet 4, and none who is less than 6 feet 1 1-2. The average height is 6 feet 3 and the average weight in the pink of physical condition is 179.

This giant eight is boated in a super-shell that is regarded as the finest piece of rowing furniture ever launched. Built of polished Alaska cedar, the craft rides low in the water and takes the wavelets like a bird. The Washington shell is almost white in color instead of the usual mahogany-red and its sides are so paper-thin as to be slightly translucent.

In this boat, dubbed the play "pay streak," six of the same men who rowed second to Columbia last year, reinforced by two giant sophomores, will defend their position of favorite against eight rivals all of whom figure that to beat the Huskies is to win the race.

The Washington oarsmen themselves appear to feel that their principal opposition will come from their old rivals from the Naval Academy, who have a perfectly balanced eight combining rugged power with field smoothness. There is little concern in the Washington camp over California, but the Golden Bears, with a crew that is brawny if none too smooth, believe they can beat the husky eight that trimmed them by a bare fifth of a second when they raced for Pacific Coast supremacy more than two months back.

Columbia, under young Rich Glendon, shares with the Navy, coached by his father, the honor of being the principal eastern standard bearer against the west. Four of last year's champions are still on deck and with them are four members of the strong junior varsity of 1929.

Of the other five contestants, Cornell, Syracuse and Pennsylvania have not won here in a varsity event since the World war and Wisconsin and Massachusetts Tech have yet to finish first. A victory for any of the five would be an upset but the general standard of rowing quality this year is high and there is not a really bad-looking crew on the river. All the advance dope points to a close and hard fought race in the four mile main event.

Washington, unbeaten in junior varsity and freshman classes as well, is among the favorites in all three events and cherishes some hopes of achieving a clean sweep.

Other strong contenders in the junior varsity class are Cornell and the Navy. The freshman race, with its eight entrants, is as wide open as the varsity but the Navy, Washington and Cornell have made propably the best records in earlier competition.

Forecasts tonight were for fair weather and all hands were hoping for smooth water. With a view to preventing a repetition of last year's race when the crews finished in semi-darkness and four out of nine were swamped by rough water, the officials promise to adhere to the starting schedule which calls for the freshman race at 2:30 (E. S. T.) The junior varsity at 3:30 and the varsity an hour later.

Navy craft and miscellaneous boats already are making their way up the river to vantage points below the towering bridges while alumni and other partisan fans are pouring into town by every road and train.

RUSSELL FALTERS IN 8TH AND TIGERS WIN

BOSTON, June 25—(AP)—After holding Detroit scoreless for seven innings here today Jack Russell was blasted for four runs, enough for the Tigers to defeat the Red Sox 4 to 3 in the last game of the series. The victory gave Detroit four games out of six.

Two of the Red Sox runs were unearned. They followed a muff by Johnson in right field for the Tigers. On the other hand three Detroit double plays helped Hogsett register his win. The score:

WHITE SOX HOLD ATHLETICS TO EVEN BREAK IN DOUBLE

PHILADELPHIA, June 25—(AP)— The Chicago White Sox held the world's champion Athletics to an even split in a double header here today taking the second game 7 to 2 after the Athletics had an 8 to 1 romp in the opening contest.

Ted Lyons was walloped hard in the first contest while George Earnshaw was limiting the Sox to seven hits. The Mackmen solved Lyons for 12 hits, Haas, Foxx and Dykes starring in an attack that netted six runs in the second and third innings.

Chicago finished Rube Walberg in four innings of the second game. Hunnefield hit the left-hander's first pitch of the game for a home run. In the fourth inning Chicago clinched the decision with four more runs, three being scored on Moe Berg's double with the bases filled. Al Simmons hit his fifteenth homer of the year off Caraway in the sixth. Garland Braxton relieved Caraway with none out in this inning and pitched no-hit ball the rest of the way. The score:

HOME RUNS FEATURE DOUBLE VICTORY OF YANKS

NEW YORK, June 25—(AP)—Led once more by Babe Ruth, the Yankees swept both games of their third double header of the week with the St. Louis Browns, winning today's games by scores of 5 to 4 and 16 to 4.

Ruth hit two home runs in the second game to bring his total for the season to 26 while Gehrig, Cooke and Dickey got one apiece. Tony Lazzeri started New York off in the first game with a home run, providing a lead that the Browns could not overcome in a duel between Ed Wells and Walter Stewart.

The Yanks clouted merrily through the second contest, nicking the delivery of Blaeholder and Holshauser for 20 hits. They scored two or three runs in every inning after the second. The score:

HARTNETT'S TWO CIRCUIT BLOWS WIN FOR CUBS

CHICAGO, June 25—(AP)—"Gabby" Hartnett swung the biggest club of all today as the Cubs won a free hitting game 13 to 12, from Philadelphia and advanced to within one game of the league leading Brooklyn Robins.

Hartnett hit his fifteenth and sixteenth home runs of the season in succession to bring the Cubs into the lead and then capped his attack with a single in the ninth that brought home the winning run. With his other single he accounted for a grand total of six runs.

Nine pitchers were used, five by the Cubs and four by the Phils. Guy Bush was credited with the victory although he pitched but one-third of an inning. The Phils hammered Osborn, Nelson, Shealy and Blake for 17 hits, one of which was a homer by Davis with two on. Cuyler also hit for the circuit in the big Cub sixth, which netted seven runs.

Brooklyn opens a four game series here tomorrow with first place at stake. The score:

KREMER HOLDS ROBINS AS TEAMMATES GIVE SUPPORT

PITTSBURGH, June 25—(AP)—The Pirates played fine ball behind the equally good pitching of Ray Kremer today and scored their only victory over the Brooklyn Robins in their three game series in the final game. The score was 5 to 1.

Kremer held the league leaders to seven hits while the Pirates made good use of eleven wallops off Dudley and Clark, scoring four runs off Dudley in the first three innings on eight hits. Comorosky's home run over the left field wall in the eighth brought the final tally. The score.

Joe Oliver, New Haven Vs. Tony Ruggerio, Providence at 137 lbs.
Four Round Preliminary.

As will be noticed on the above card it has been necessary to make a substitution in the main bout for the boxing show atop the Majestic roof tonight. Lew Petrone, clever lightweight of Worcester, Mass., is substituting for Alex Touraine of New Haven. The substitution of the Worcester boy is in the interests of the fans and was ordered by State Athletic Commissioner Thomas E. Donohue.

Last Saturday night at Walnut Beach Alex Touraine was knocked out and the commissioner declared him to be in no fit condition to give the local fans a run for their money against the fast Marty Owens of New Bedford. In Petrone the fans will see as clever a boy as there is in the lightweight division in New England. The Worcester lad has been boxing frequently in the Bay State and has given a good account of himself. In fact he has been seeking a bout with Owens for some time but the New Bedford boy has steered clear of him for some reason. This bout gives Petrone the break that he has been looking for and he promises that he will give Owens a busy eight rounds.

The supporting card is one of the best under-cards that has ever been shown in the city. Four fast bouts are scheduled between boys whose reputations are well known to local boxing fans. The Catalano-Dubois bout is sure to be a fast mill as both Catalano and Dubois are clever boxers.

The Oliver-Ruggerio bout looks like a real go with Ruggerio the favorite through his remarkable showing in the amateurs.

Another pretty bout should be the one between Pat James, a local favorite and Spike Marino of New Haven.

Jimmy Quinn, local boy, meets Eddie Forrest of New Bedford in the opener. There is plenty of local interest in this bout. Quinn on Tuesday night won a decisive victory over Marty Martino of Hartford at the Velodrome and seems to have struck his stride.

ACCOS LOSE ONE-SIDED GAME TO THE CAMPERS

(Special to The Bulletin)

JEWETT CITY, June 25.—The Accos lost to the Campers in Wednesday evening's game of the Jewett City Twilight league by the score of 12 to 2. With a start of three scoreless innings, the Campers put over a six-run batting barrage in the fourth frame. Wolkowski, the winning pitcher, allowed but five scattered hits. Gaudette, the losing pitcher, fanned 12 men. Lloyd Jarvis led the hitters with a triple and a home run.

ARMY-NAVY TEAM TO PLAY HARTFORD KACEYS SAT.

The Army and Navy baseball team will play the Hartford K. of C. on Saturday afternoon. The K. of C. is coming here with quite a reputation, having won all the games they have played this season, with the exception of one. They will be under the leadership of Frankie Farrell, former Holy Cross star. The fans will remember Frankie, who played with the Taftville A. A. for several seasons. Those who have seen him in action will have to admit that he is "one sweet ball player."

S. A. C. TEAM SHUTS OUT MARRIED MEN

In the twilight game between the Married Men and the Baltic Social and Athletic club, the Baltic team played a good brand of ball and shut the Married Men out with a score of 8 to 0 in a nine-inning game played on Sayles field in Baltic. The features were three fast double plays by the Married Men and the playing of the old timer, "Butch" Cote, in the box and on first base. For the Baltic team Red Passmore featured with a home run with two on.

The Baltic team will play the fast Shyma club of Taftville in Baltic on Sunday.

BURNING FEET

New Way To End Distress In 20 Minutes THE ENGLISH WAY

If you want to instantly relieve weary, inflamed, burning feet you must first REMOVE THE CAUSE.

And the general cause of most foot troubles is harmful acids and poisons which accumulate in the tens of thousands of foot pores which only the Oxygen in Radox can force out.

Immediately rid your pores of these trouble-makers by soaking your feet for 20 minutes in a wonderfully soothing, cleansing, revitalizing Radox Foothath. You'll be astonished at how marvelously soothed and cooled your feet will be—walk all next day with greatest comfort!

Radox is guaranteed to give anyone flawless feet or money back—and that means painful feet—sweaty feet—corns, bunions and callouses. Get Radox at Lee and Osgood or any drugstore. Read directions.

STOCK PRICES MOVED IRREGULARLY, BUT STAGED RALLY AS MARKET CLOSED

NEW YORK, June 25—(AP)—This was a day of extreme irregularity on the financial markets. Stock prices jumped erratically as bear traders alternately sold short and covered, but the last closed on a late rally that pulled the composite price for 90 issues slightly more than a point higher. Many stocks, however, were off moderately.

The railroad shares again received a thorough shaking and the price index dropped nearly a point to another minimum for the past 3 years. Some thirty shares including some of the best grade investment equities, went to new lows for the year or considerably longer.

Grains steadied after July wheat had broken under 88c. Closing prices on this important commodity were up 1-2 to 3-4 of a cent but corn was unable to recover all of its extreme losses and was off half a cent or less. July cotton advanced on the day, but other futures closed irregularly within a narrow range.

The bond market was noticeably weak. Liquidation was obviously for the purpose of raising cash for stock market operations, both to protect marginal accounts and to make purchases. The liberal offerings, especially of secondary issues, was reflected by a rather sharp drop in the averages.

Further declines were reported in iron and steel prices. Pig iron was reduced 50 cents a ton in Chicago, while Iron's Age's composite for finished steel was shaded to 2.185 cents a pound from 2.214 cents after having held at the latter figure for five weeks.

Selling predominated at the opening of the market, although declines were small. Supporting orders attracted short covering in the general list and before midday active shares were one to three points above the previous close. The bears regained the upper hand soon after noon, however, making a fresh raid on the rails which subsequently embraced members of the steel, merchandising, motor and accessory, utility, copper and chemical groups.

U. S. Steel, which has resumed its old post of market leader, went down to 151 5-8 but efforts to equal the panic low of 150 were unavailing. Other stocks making new minimums for the year included American Can, Allied Chemical, Johns Manville, Kennecott, Sears Roebuck, Montgomery Ward, Texas Gulf Sulphur, North American, Western Union, National Cash Register, J. I. Chase and Goodyear Rubber. Railroad stocks yielded 2 to 5 points and only a few, among them New York Central and Baltimore and Ohio, closed higher. Atchison, off 5 points to a new low, recovered all but a small fraction of its maximum decline.

American Tobacco "B" was strong, reflecting renewed rumors of a split-up, confirmed after the close. The stock closed 6 3-4 points higher. American Telephone, Public Service of New Jersey, Radio, U. S. Steel, Standard Oil of New Jersey, American Can and Westinghouse improved one to 3 points net.

Foreign exchanges were firm, although weakness persisted in the Spanish pesata which went to a new 1930 low.

NEW YORK, June 25—(AP)—A triple holiday in the financial district over July 4th, was assured today by the action of the boards of governors of both the New York stock and curb exchanges in voting to close the exchanges Saturday, July 5. The cotton and rubber exchanges already have voted to observe the day as a holiday and most of the commodity markets are expected to close. Banks, however, will remain open.

Directors of the National Supply company have formally approved an offer to exchange half share of common stock and half share of National Supply preferred for every 3 1-4 shares of Spang Chalfant common. Bonds and preferred stock of Spang Chalfant are not involved in the merger. A special meeting of stockholders has been called for July 17 to increase the capitalization to enable the merger to be completed.

Treasury Balance.

WASHINGTON, June 25—(AP)—Treasury receipts for June 23 were $18,961,155.75; expenditures $24,269,627.17; balance $367,983,370.91.

This season YOU CERTAINLY CAN AFFORD GOODYEARS

THERE never has been a time when the tire-buyer's money could buy as much as right now.

Rubber's cheap—and consequently tire prices are the lowest they've ever been.

People with an eye to values are seizing this chance and making the most of it.

Now is the time to get YOURS

They're buying Goodyear Tires—because right now they can buy them for as little as they used to pay for inferior or unknown tires.

Why are they singling out Goodyear Tires with especial insistence as against all others?

You are not asked to accept these statements without inquiry.

Any Goodyear Dealer will be glad to demonstrate the facts.

As far back as 1916, it became a fact that more people ride on Goodyear Tires than on any other kind.

Every year since that time it has been increasingly true that more people ride on Goodyear Tires than on any other kind.

Today this preference for Goodyears runs into millions: millions more people ride on Goodyear Tires than on any other kind.

More Goodyear Tires than any other kind annually leave motor car factories on new cars—more Goodyear Tires go into service through the great Goodyear dealer organization—more Goodyear Tires are used by transcontinental, urban and interurban buses.

There can be only one conclusion: Goodyear Tires must be better—and at present prices they are a matchless bargain.

Now is the time to get yours.

TRIBUTE OF RESPECT

The Board of Directors of the Wm. W. Backus Hospital Alumnae association adopted the following Tribute of Respect.

Whereas an all Wise Providence has seen fit to remove from this life our esteemed friend Dr. Paul F. Gadle.

Resolved: That the Nurses of Norwich and vicinity have lost one of its strongest supporters, a personal friend to every member of the nursing profession most kind and sympathetic to is all.

Resolved: That in his removal from his life he will not be forgotten by a host of friends, his courtesy, unfailing interest and genial personality will long be remembered.

Resolved; That a copy of this Tribute be sent to the bereaved family and that a copy be spread upon the records of this Alumnae association.

Signed:
KATHLEEN A. DOWD, R. N.
FREDERICA RAAS, R. N.
MRS. WILLIAM PITCHER, R. N.

BOUND OVER ON CHARGE OF ASSAULTING TWO YEAR OLD GIRL

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, June 25.—Roy Buddington, Poquonoc Bridge, was presented in the Groton town court this morning at a special session of that body, charged with assaulting a girl of but 2 years. Probable cause was found and the young man was held in bail of $2,500 for the next term of the superior court in September. Buddington was arrested yesterday afternoon by State Police Officer John Smith on complaint of the parents of the child.

Mitchell Pete, Windsor Locks, formerly of Groton, was charged with assaulting a girl of 16, but the complaint was amended and Pete was presented on a charge of intoxication. He pleaded not guilty, but was adjudged guilty through evidence, and Judge Cornelius C. Costello imposed a fine of $100 and costs, the latter amounting to $10.55. Pete could not pay, so he was remanded to jail. Pete was arrested by state police in Hartford Monday. He had been sought for nearly ten months on the charge of assaulting the girl but, because of insufficient evidence to convict Pete on the more serious charge, the complaint was changed.

Herman Bickleman, Avery court, Groton, was charged with breaking and entering and was fined $15 and costs, the latter being $6.55. He did not have funds to pay, so went to jail. Bickleman was arrested Monday on suspicion of having broken into the Groton Hardware company the night before, for he had been observed loitering about the store recently. Bickleman at first stoutly denied his guilt and finally confessed.

Robert Wells, of New York, and Harry Ellis, New Haven, were charged with train riding. Their cases were nolled and the young men were ordered to depart from the borough. Wells and Ellis were arrested yesterday by special agents of the New Haven railroad.

WEDDINGS

Montgomery—McEwen

Howard W. Montgomery, son of Mr. and Mrs. Edward J. Montgomery, St. Albans, Vt., and Miss Dorothy McEwen, daughter of Mrs. Cornelia B. McEwen, Washington street, were married at 3 o'clock this afternoon at the rectory of the Second Congregational church, the ceremony being performed by Rev. J. Beveridge Lee. Mr. and Mrs. Montgomery started this evening on their wedding tour. Mr. Montgomery is employed by Palmer Brothers.

Kerridge—Brown

Announcement is made of the marriage last Friday of Philip Markham Kerridge, Jr., son of Rev. Philip M. Kerridge, rector of St. James' Episcopal church, to Miss Helen A. Brown, of Little Rock, Ark., the ceremony being performed in the bride's home city. Mr. and Mrs. Kerridge are now en route to New London, where they will be the guests of the bridegroom's father several days. Mr. and Mrs. Kerridge will make their future home in Brooklyn, N. Y., where the groom is employed.

E. Victor Goldsmith, Hotel Mohican, and Merrill S. Dreyfus, son of Mr. and Mrs. Nestor Dreyfus, Channing street, were passengers today on a liner sailing from New York for Europe. They will remain in Europe several weeks, visiting all of the larger countries.

John S. Comen, Saybrook, a chauffeur, and Miss Catherine M. Bauch, New York, were married in New London last night, the ceremony being performed by Justice of the Peace J. James Floyd, at his office.

As a result of a near-collision last night, Morris Whitefish, Norwich salesman, was arrested on a charge of recklesa driving and Mrs. Helen K. Smith, 245 Crystal avenue, was charged with driving without a license, both arrests being made by State Police Officer Eric Swanson. Whitefish pleaded not guilty this morning, but upon the testimony introduced, principally by Swanson and Mrs. Smith, the court found the Norwich man guilty and imposed a fine of $25. Mrs. Smith was given a penalty of $10 and costs. Whitefish cut in ahead of Mrs. Smith's auto and barely escaped hitting the car, as well as another vehicle.

Harry P. Givan, Springfield, Mass., was charged with parking in restricted area at Ocean Beach. He failed to present himself in court and his bond of $2 was declared forfeited.

Mrs. George Elion, 5 Thames street; Max Kononchik, North Bank street; Mrs. Maria Crooker, 82 Bank street; Mrs. Arthur Tyler, 690 Bank street; Mrs. Dixon Hoag and infant son, South Lyme; Mrs. Leon Keeney and infant daughter, Groton; Mrs. Michael Trydeck and infant son, Hartford; Mrs. Wallace Metcalf and infant daughter, Groton; Mrs. Carl Nelson and infant son, 504 Ocean avenue, and Mrs. Louis Rubin and infant daughter, 373 Williams street, patients at Lawrence-Memorial Associated hospital, were discharged today.

An automobile owned by W. E. Andrews, Newtonville, Mass., that was stolen Monday night from the parking space of O'Leary's restaurant, Green street, was found abandoned on Masonic street last night, when the car was stolen it contained several sample cases and when found one of the cases was missing. A window in the auto had also been smashed.

The condition of Miss Dorothy Andrews, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Orville G. Andrews, Gorton street, and employed as assistant to City Treasurer Herbert G. Huntley, who was operated upon at Lawrence-Memorial Associated hospital yesterday, was reported today as being as comfortable as could be expected. It is expected that Miss Andrews will return to her home the latter part of next week.

Charles F. Moeller, about 63 and formerly employed in New London as a candy-maker and who attempted suicide at his home, Waterford, last Sunday by slashing his throat and wrists with a razor, will not succumb to his wounds, for at Lawrence-Memorial Associated hospital it was said this afternoon that Moeller would recover, unless something unforeseen develops in his condition.

FUNERAL

Antone Ferencz

The funeral of Antone Ferencz, former East Lyme farmer, who died at his home, Niantic Hill, several days ago, was held this morning at 9 o'clock at St. Mathias' chapel, Flanders. A mass of requiem was celebrated by Rev. Father Flynn, rector of St. Agnes' chapel, Niantic. The bearers were George Nabockia, George Wrago, George Strelker, Michael Horella, Michael Zarnick and Michael Youas. Burial was in St. Mary's cemetery.

OBITUARY

Michael Carchitti

Michael Carchitti, aged 7 months, son of Joseph Charchitti, No. 41 Front street, died yesterday at the Mitchell ward of Lawrence-Memorial Associated hospital, a victim of spinal meningitis, one of the few cases of this disease to attack children here in many months. Burial was in St. Mary's cemetery this afternoon. The child's mother died several months ago.

Samuel D. Barnes

Samuel D. Barnes, 55, late of 186 Lincoln avenue, died at 5 o'clock this morning at Lawrence-Memorial Associated hospital, where he had been a patient but about a week, although his health had been impaired about seven months. He is survived by his wife; a son, Arland D. Barnes, New Haven, and a daughter, Mrs. Floyd R. Monroe, Norwich. Mr. Barnes, who had been employed about a quarter of a century as night watchman by merchants in the city's business district, succeeding the late J. Clinton Shepard, abandoned active labor last January and the following month he was operated upon. After receiving treatment several weeks, Mr. Barnes went to New Haven General hospital for observation and returned to New London about a week ago and again entered the local hospital. His condition did not improve, but on the contrary, gradually became worse until the end. Mr. Barnes was born in New London Nov. 17, 1874, and always resided here.

The Firemen's restaurant, Bank street, was threatened with damage by fire late yesterday when a pot of grease became ablaze. A still alarm caused Niagara Engine company to respond and the fire was extinguished before any damage of consequence resulted.

A radio message received here states that the coast guard cadet practice squadron arrived yesterday noon at Casablanca, Morocco. The squadron departed from port June 9 on the cutter Champlain.

Laurence H. Wilson, this city, was one of 12 Connecticut students who graduated from Middlebury college, Middlebury, Vt., Monday. He received the degree of bachelor of science.

A truck driven by Roland W. Reed, 24 Summer street, and a Ford sedan, operated by Mrs. Alice M. Maynard Jones, Station 13 1-2 Waterford, collided this afternoon on Pequot avenue, opposite Green's harbor beach. All of the occupants sustained bruises and lacerations, which were treated at the office of a physician. No arrest was made.

Charles H. McCullough, U. S. S. Lamsdale, stationed at the submarine base, was arrested this afternoon by State Police Officer Peter Busch on the Thames river highway bridge, charged with speeding. The driver furnished a surety on his bond of $50 for his presentation in the police court tomorrow.

One member of the New London police department has been commended for his efficient work on race day and the performance of the officer that brought about the citation has been called to the attention of Captain Charles A. Pinney, by G. L. Hodge, St. Albans, Vt., chief of the special agents of the Central Vermont railroad. The officer is Patrolman Frank Philopena, a part of whose beat is Water street and where the Central Vermont railroad observation train received its passengers. Just as the train was pulling out for the races, a gang of youths attempted to board it and they did not have tickets. Special Agent Tolles attempted to prevent the gang from getting on one of the cars and he was attacked. Philopena went to the special agent's assistance and the gang was driven from the car.

Ripley B. Park, 26 Pearl street, Mystic, driver of a public service automobile, was arrested here this afternoon by Sergeant John Courtney, charged with driving while under the influence of liquor. He did not obtain a surety on his bond and was locked up. He will be presented in the police court tomorrow.

Herbert F. Dunn, 17 Owen street, Hartford, was arrested on Ocean avenue this afternoon by Motorcycle Officer George Cockell, charged with speeding.

The state police today requested the New London police to be on the lookout for the driver of an automobile carrying Connecticut markers 25651. It is owned by the Red Wing Auto corporation and it is believed that William Russell will be driving the auto. If the driver is arrested he will be charged with taking the car without permission of the owner.

F. Brien, 1 Park avenue, New York, today requested the police to arrest William Meltzer, who is driving a three-quarter ton truck which carries New York markers. Meltzer purchased the truck on a conditional bill of sale and after making the initial payment, disappeared. Recently, it was determined that Meltzer drove to New London with a shipment of merchandise and it is believed that he is in this city or makes frequent trips to New London.

Louis Reiter, 12 Westfield street, Providence, R. I., where he says he is president of a large company, and his wife, Lena, were arrested at Ocean Beach this evening, charged with violation of the city ordinance which prevents the use of an automobile for bath house purposes. Both were ordered to present themselves in the police court tomorrow. Reiter and his wife were observed to enter the automobile and believing that the car was to be used to disrobe in that the man and woman might attire themselves in bathing costumes, Patrolman George Bruhns, who was off duty, investigated and determined that the couple was disrobing. Patrolman John Sullivan, on duty, was summoned and the officers arrested the couple.

Heartburns Constant Terrors
He Says, "Results Bon-Tone Brought Were More Than I Expected"

MR. CHARLES S. ROTH

Mr. Charles S. Roth is the proprietor of the Mahogany Restaurant, located 805 Main street, East Hartford, Conn., and has been a resident of Hartford for the past 25 years. He is a member of the Odd Fellows, Orientals, the Foresters, and quite a number of other organizations. Let him tell you how several bottles of Bon-Tone brought an amazing improvement in his condition. He says:

"For about two years, I hadn't felt like myself. While I was managing the kitchen in the restaurant, I would get weak spells, and I would have to sit down—until the feeling had passed. Heartburns were a constant terror—and sometimes, after eating, I would get a sort of choking sensation. My bowels were very irregular—causing severe headaches—so that I thought my head would split open After reading so much about Bon-Tone in the papers, I bought some—and the results a few bottles of this tonic brought, were really more than I expected. I feel better than I have in months. My bowels move daily—I haven't had a heartburn or that choking sensation since taking Bon-Tone—and I have almost forgotten what a headache is. I certainly feel O. K. and Bon-Tone did it."

Do you suffer with disorders of the stomach, kidneys, liver and bowels? Then go at once and see the Bon-Tone Man at Smith's Pharmacy, at Norwich, and start this wonderful treatment today.

Also for sale by all leading druggists everywhere.

EIGHT-YEAR-OLD BOY DROWNED IN RIVER

(Special to The Bulletin.)

WESTERLY, June 25.— While his parents, Mr. and Mrs. C. Millard Smith, were attending the graduation of his sister, Wenonah, at the Westerly high school, Stewart, aged eight, went bathing in the Pawcatuck river and was drowned. News of the tragedy was flashed to the Westerly town hall where the graduation exercises were in progress, summoning the Smith family home.

The child had gone bathing with a group of children and was diving off a bank near his home when he jumped too far and was carried down stream by the current. Screams of the children attracted Francis Hunt, who was working in a nearby field, and James Crawford who was at his home. Both rushed to the river and plunged in, fully clothed. Hunt succeeded in grasping the Smith boy but the terror-stricken youngster struggled, causing Hunt to lose his balance and both went under. Hunt lost the boy and the current carried them out of sight.

Patrolman George Seidel of the Pawcatuck police and a score of others went to the rescue but failed to locate the child. Up to a late hour tonight the body had not been recovered.

POETRY

Boys Bathing

They laugh! They leap! They clear
Cool lapping water parts;
One after one, each starts
From his place on the grass and sheer Leaps from the bank, without fear.

Their lithe arms slip like blades,
Their glowing bodies skim
Up from the clear and dim
Caverns of quivering shades,
And the sedges' secret beds.

One stands aglow with the sun,
His white shape gleamingly wet,
Like alabaster set
Against dark grass, and one
Splashes him wild with fun.

And now like statues growing,
Slim and lithe and free,
They race exultingly,
Their proud heads backward throwing—
Happy, untrammeled, unknowing!

The loud lark's sunny voice
Shivers out of the sky;
The lush grass-meadows lie
Lulled in his lovely noise.
O day, that art passing by,
Hold fast in memory
The wonderful vivid poise
Of naked bathing boys!

—F. H. Kendon, in London Mercury.

Accumulated Junk

I climbed up to the attic yesterday
To put some just-discarded stuff away,
And, poking 'round among the rubbish heap,
I woke some musty memories from sleep.
A Game of Bean-Bag! Yes, upon my soul,
That sloping board, with skewgeed square hole;
A Pigs-in-Clover Puzzle—Oh, the hours
I wasted on it, and the nervous powers!
A Rhummy pack. Some discs (reds, blues, and pinks)
That I could recognize as Tiddly-Winks.
A game of Crokinole—with little cues
For those whose fingers were too soft to use
For snapping. And a deck for playing Pit,
Halma, Parchesi. And, mixed up with it
A Pogo Stick, on which we bounced and soared
Long, long ago. And then a Ouija Board.
A Mah Jongg outfit—gee, that cost real money!
Why is it that these things now look so funny?
Why did I come up here today? Why I'm Burying Ping Pong, for the second time!

—Ted Robinson, in Cleveland Plain Dealer.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Palace Theatre.

Have you ever heard Ruth Chatterton sing? Of course you've seen her on the screen and heard her talk, but have you ever heard her voice raised in song? Not many of us have, and that is why the picture, "The Lady of Scandal," which is now playing at the Palace theatre here is such a tremendous treat.

Assisted by Basil Rathbone and a great cast, Miss Chatterton moves through this smart drawing room comedy of English life with all the grace and style in the world. She starts the picture as a musical comedy star, and before she has finished, she has become engaged to the son of an English peer, has broken any number of hearts (including your own perhaps) and tangled the threads of her own fate in a manner most amazing.

And that isn't all the Palace offers at this time. On this program which is to be continued through Friday evening, the management of this popular Warner Brothers' theatre presents a picture filled with the joy and romance of holiday escapades. It is called "Two Weeks Off" and stars our old friends, Jack Mulhall and Dorothy Mackaill (for the last time together, they say).

Come and see Dorothy and her girl friend from the big department store, Gertrude Astor. Watch what a stiff time they have in getting away for their vacation at the beach. Then take a look at Jack, a carefree young plumber who comes down to the beach to fix a sink, but likes the scenery (of all kinds) so well that he decides to take two weeks off himself.

Beginning Saturday, the Palace will present that glorious new masterpiece of the screen, "The Sea Bat," starring Raquel Torres, Charles Bickford and Nils Asther.

Friday night will be your last chance to share in the awards of the votes that will be awarded to the young ladies as the contest closes June 30th. 25,000 votes will be given to the young ladies, this is by far the best chance you ever had to help your favorite win the great popularity contest. This may decide the contest, as many of the girls are very close in the race for the top. Be here and help her win.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Broadway Theatre.

In one of the most exotic and colorful romances of his long screen career, John Gilbert in Tolstoi's "Redemption" playing today and tomorrow at the cool Broadway, shows convincingly that the "talkies" have robbed him of none of that magnetism and allure that have made his name a household word as "the screen's greatest lover." With two beautiful girls, in the story at opposite ends of the social scale, Gilbert plays his usual havoc with the hearts of both, marrying one while he dallies with the other. Himself a nobleman, but of doubtful gypsy ancestry, he yields at odd times to the "call of the read," and seeks solace against the humdrum of society life in the wild bacchanales of the gypsy rendezvous. He is discovered in his isolation by a blackmailer, who brings the tense story to a climax different from anything ever screened, and the love-torn Russian solves the problem in a way that only a Tolstoi could devise. The surrounding featurettes include Buck and Bubbles, that team of colored comics in a Hugh Wiley comedy "Honest Crooks"; a song cartoon reviving that old familiar melody "I'm Forever Blowing Bubbles"; selected vitaphone varieties and the latest Fox movietone newsreel. Preparations are being made to screen Jack Oakie's first starring picture, "The Social Lion," beginning Saturday, in which the irrepressible wisecracker has the able assistance of "Skeets" Gallagher in his side-splitting efforts to crash the gates of society, in Octavus Ray Cohen's laughable story "March Himself," from which "The Social Lion" is adapted.

GREENEVILLE

OBITUARY

Miss Nora E. Collins

The useful life of Miss Nora E. Collins came to a close after an illness of some duration Wednesday morning at 11:30 o'clock. She was a life long resident of the Greeneville section and was a devoted member of St. Mary's Memorial church. She was the daughter of the late Michael and Nora Enright Collins and is survived by one sister, Miss Esther Collins, and two brothers, Michael and Mathew Collins, all residing in this city.

Miss Concetta Serruto

The funeral of Miss Concetta Serruto, who was burned to death Monday, was held from the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Vincenzo Serruto of 27 Ruth street, Wednesday morning at 8:20 o'clock which was followed by a requiem mass at St. Mary's Memorial church, which was celebrated by Rev. George J. Donahue, the pastor. The musical portion of the mass was in charge of Mrs. Michael J. Farrell, the church organist. At the offertory she rendered Pie Jesu and as a waiting hymn sang Our Lady, Della Strada. Chopin's Funeral March was played at the recessional. Burial was in the family plot in St. Joseph's cemetery. The bearers were: Joseph Longo, John Lalima, Frederick Longo, Tony Lalima, Michael Renaldi and Joseph Perone. Among the large attendance at the services were several of her school mates. The floral tributes were both numerous and beautiful. Mourigan Brothers, undertakers, had charge of the funeral arrangements.

The T. D. sewing circle of Greeneville met Monday evening at the home of Miss Sarah Whitty on Gilmore street with a large class present. The first hour was devoted to sewing of fancy articles and lamp shading. A social hour followed with vocal and piano selections being rendered. Refreshments were served by the hostess, which consisted of assorted sandwiches, cakes, cookies, fruit, hot chocolate, wafers and ice cream. The dining room was prettily decorated for the occasion with the color scheme of red and white, the circle's colors being used.

Mrs. Bernard Keenan has returned to her home on Fifth street after spending a few days with her brother, Thomas Quilty, at Hartford.

Word was received Tuesday morning by Mr. and Mrs. Clover Chabonneau of Boswell avenue relating to the condition of Mr. Chabonneau's sister, Mrs. Charles Class, who is seriously ill at her home at Boston. Mrs. Class was formerly a resident of Greeneville, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Michael Chabonneau, former residents of Fifth street.

Mrs. Daniel Shaw and Mr. and Mrs. George Shaw have returned to their homes after attending the funeral of their daughter-in-law and sister-in-law, Mrs. Joseph Shaw in New Jersey.

Mr. and Mrs. Edward Webber and children of New York city are spending a few days with Mrs. Webber's parents, Mr. and Mrs. John Casey on Prospect street.

TAFTVILLE

A surprise party in observance of her birthday was given Saturday evening for Miss Viola Michon at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Ducharme of Merchants avenue. Miss Michon received many beautiful and useful gifts. Games, music and dancing were enjoyed and later in the evening delicious refreshments were served by Mrs. Ducharme, assisted by her sisters, the Misses Marie Louise and Angeline Couturier.

Those who were present included the Misses Valida, Diana and Eva Ducharme, the Misses Angeline and Marie Louise Couturier, the Misses Therese and Cecile Lussier, Miss Jeanette Dupont, the Misses Beatrice and Viola Michon; Philip Lussier, Arthur Trudelle, Lionel Paradis, Romeo and Raoul Ducharme, Marius Reguin, Mr. and Mrs. Francois Michon, Mr. and Mrs. Xavier Ducharme, Mr. and Mrs. Henry Ducharme, Mr. and Mrs. Albert Lachapelle and Mr. and Mrs. Telesphore Dupont. The party disbanded at a late hour, all wishing Miss Michon many happy returns of the day.

Mr. and Mrs. William Leo Bagley of Providence, R. I., were visitors early in the week at the home of Mrs. Bagley's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph C. Marsan, of Hunters avenue.

The semi-monthly meeting of the members of Poneman council, No. 34, Knights of Columbus, was held Monday evening in the council rooms on Providence street, with Grand Knight John J. Daley presiding.

The roses in the village are now at their best, and at every residence may be seen different varieties of these fragrant flowers. Especially beautiful are the rose gardens of Mr. and Mrs. Adam Heinrich of Providence street, which each year attract the attention of those passing in that section of the town. While Mr. and Mrs. Heinrich have many other varieties of flowers, their roses each year indicate that roses are their specialty.

Miss Roberta Vergason of North Third avenue has gone to North Stonington to spend the summer with her grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Daniel Vergason, and has as her guest, Miss Ruth Grimshaw, also of North Third avenue.

Friday is the Feast of the Sacred Heart, and patronal festival of the Sacred Heart church. It has been announced that the special services at the church on the feast day will include a high mass at 7:30 a. m., with devotions, followed by benediction of the blessed sacrament at 7:30 in the evening.

When the United Workers of Norwich hold their monthly Rocknook Well Child's conference on Friday at the Red Cross rooms in the Poneman building, there is to be a supply of toxin-antitoxin on hand to inoculate children against diphtheria, if their mothers desire that service.

Miss Helen Zekas of Hartford has been visiting in town this week.

John L. O'Connell of Hartford has been visiting Mahlon E. Wood of North Third avenue, returning home early in the week.

On Wednesday evening the regular weekly meeting of the members of St. Veronica's society was held at the society's rooms on Providence street.

Miss Mildred Durocher, a student at the Academy of the Holy Family in Baltic, is spending the summer vacation at the home of her father, Moise Durocher, of Providence street.

Antonio Caron, who attends college in Washington, D. C., is at the home of his mother, Mrs. Joseph H. Caron, and family of School street.

Mr. and Mrs. Floyd Parish and daughter, Lorraine, of Hartford have been visiting Axel L. Aberg of North Third avenue.

Miss Catherine Fontaine, a student at the Willimantic State Normal school, is spending the summer at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Victor Fontaine, and family of upper Merchants avenue.

OBITUARY

Mrs. Konstanty Walicka

Mrs. Olga Walicka, wife of Konstanty Walicka of Chicken Row, Versailles, died suddenly Tuesday morning in New London, where she was being taken for treatment at a private hospital. Death was due to heart disease. She was 42 years of age. Mrs. Walicka was born in Poland, but had lived in Versailles for some time. She is survived by her husband. The deceased was a devout member of the Polish National Catholic Church of the Divine Providence in Norwich.

FUNERALS

Levi Carr

Funeral services for Levi Carr were held Wednesday morning from his late home, Railroad street, Occum, at 8:30, followed by a high mass sung at St. Joseph's church by the pastor, Rev. Ludovic O. Paradis. The service was largely attended and there were many beautiful flowers. Mrs. Joseph Peloquin, organist at the church, had charge of the music of the mass, which was sung by Mrs. Beatrice Bernard and Miss Marie Peloquin. At the offertory, Mrs. Bernard sang O Salutaris, and for a waiting hymn she sang Ave Maria. While the body was being borne from the church, the duet, Mother, Dear, O Pray for Him, was rendered by Mrs. Bernard and Miss Peloquin. The bearers were Joseph Lachapelle, Arthur Simineau, Ernest Aubin, Wilfred Chabot, Armand Gladue and Herman Paquette. Burial was in St. Mary's cemetery, Baltic, where the committal prayers were read by Rev. A. A. Jalbert of Immaculate Conception church. Undertaker George G. Grant was in charge.

Gerald Douglas

The funeral of Gerald Douglas was held from the home of his uncle, Robert Carr, of Railroad street, Occum, Wednesday afternoon at 2 o'clock, with Rev. John Manley Shaw, pastor of the Versailles Methodist Episcopal church, officiating. A large gathering of relatives and friends were present, and the floral tributes were beautiful and numerous. During the service, Mrs. Louis Erlbeck sang Sweetly and Tenderly. The bearers were: Edward Savageau, Fred Chabotte, Samuel Chabotte and Peter Noise. Burial was in Lovett cemetery, Versailles, where Rev. Mr. Shaw read the committal service. Undertaker George G. Grant was in charge of the funeral arrangements.

Y. M. C. A. IS GIVING BOYS LESSONS IN SWIMMING

J. Howard Demarest, physical director at the Y. M. C. A., with his able assistants, is keeping busy every morning this week with over 100 boys who are being taught to swim. The work is carried out in several classes, using the Osgood memorial swimming pool, which is one of the finest, and makes possible the rendering of this service, not only to boys, but also to men who desire to learn to swim.

The swimming classes for the boys are given for all from 11 to 17, who want to learn to swim, whether members of the association or not.

In view of several recent drownings, it is apparent that these swimming lessons are an especially timely service which the Y. M. C. A. is rendering for the community. The officials of the association want parents to understand that they want to teach as many boys as possible.

EXPECTING TO BEGIN RIVER DREDGING WORK

According to information received from Senator Hiram Bingham by a committee of the Norwich chamber of commerce, it is to be expected that work on completing the dredging of the channel of the Thames river to this city should begin soon. The contract awarded for the work has been approved at Washington and sent back to Rhode Island. From there it should be sent to the contractor who is then expected to begin work.

Driving Licenses Suspended

In the list of 57 announced this week by the state highway department for having their licenses suspended for a year for driving under the influence of liquor are the following from this part of the state:

Armand Billings, Dayville; George C. Allen, Jr., New London; Albert Gladue, Versailles; Joseph Farra, West Willington.

RIVER ROAD TO JEWETT CITY IN LIST FOR NEW HIGHWAY CONSTRUCTION

In a list of 15 new projects for state highway construction and re-construction upon which Commissioner John A. MacDonald is asking for bids by July 7, is the so-called river road from Norwich to Jewett City, which is on Route No. 12.

The Jewett City road project is for about 25,589 feet of concrete, running from the Norwich city line on Boswell avenue, near St. Joseph's cemetery, to the Lisbon-Jewett City line, and is mostly in the town of Lisbon. The layout for this construction, it is understood, will pretty generally follow the lines of the present highway, but there are some new locations, one of these being at Taft's station where the new road will run behind instead of in front of a building at the corner as at present. At a point where the road passes through the section known as Blissville there is to be a new location farther to the east than the present highway. This will straighten out some of the curves in this section. At a point some distance farther along towards Jewett City there is another new location for the highway which will extend for about three-quarters of a mile. One of the curves which will be made easier will be at Round hill, where by cutting in on the west, the curve will be flattened out.

This five miles of concrete on the river road and five and a half miles on Route No. 108 between Manchester and Rockville are the largest projects in the present group.

These projects, however, will probably not be as difficult as the three and three-quater mile concrete paving job to be undertaken on the Bee Sherman Hill road in the towns of Middlebury and Woodbury, since this piece of construction, following a new highway line most of the way, will require the excavation of 92,600 cubic yards of earth and 11,400 cubic yards of rock. Similar to this project will be the work of building the approaches for the new 675-foot bridge over the Housatonic river at Cornwall. Buildings these approaches, although they total only slightly more than a mile in length, will necessitate the excavation of 85,000 cubic yards of earth.

Other contracts on which bids are asked are the following:

Town of Eastford: About 8,519 feet of waterbound macadam on the North Ashford-Kenyonville road; towns of East Haddam and Haddam: A 3 span 215 foot encased girder bridge over Salmon river on the Haddam Neck-East Haddam road; Town of East Hartford: A 65 foot triple box reinforced concrete bridge and approaches over Hockanum river on Route No. 17; Town of Kent: A 30 foot span encased girder bridge and about 1,327 feet of concrete at the canal crossing at Bull's bridge.

ATHLETIC EVENTS HELD AT CHURCH PICNIC

About 200 members of the United Congregational church Sunday school attended the annual picnic at Ocean beach Wednesday, which proved to be a very enjoyable event. They went to the beach by special trolley cars. Many enjoyed the bathing in the morning and afternoon and at noon all partook of basket lunches. A committee comprising John H. Sherman and C. I. Smith served orangeade.

In the different contests held on the beach the following were the winners in the boys events:

The winners of the girls events were:

50 yard dash, 100 yard dash, running broad jump and sack race—LaVere Tubbs, 1st, and Dorothy Blanchard, 2nd, in each contest.

A prize of a small penknife, donated by H. B. Cary for the girl securing the largest number of points was awarded to LaVere Tubbs. Theodore Kennedy amassed the most points among the boys and was given a large jackknife.

John H. Sherman, secretary of the Sunday school, planned the successful affair, and H. B. Cary furnished materials for the contests. The cars left the square at 9:15 a. m. and left the beach on the return trip at 5:45 in the afternoon. Each person was provided with a box of popcorn on leaving the beach.

BOZRAH WOMAN SUES FOR AUTO ACCIDENT INJURIES

Ruth B. Cone of Canterbury, owner of an automobile, and Charles Baldwin, a Norwich contractor, who was driving it, are made the defendants in a suit for $500 damages brought against them in the superior court by Catherine Perkins of Bozrah.

The plaintiff alleges that she was struck by the automobile while she was walking on Bozrah street in the town of Bozrah on Jan. 22, 1930, resulting in bruises on right knee, thigh, hip and cuts on right hand and fingers, from which she will suffer for a long time.

SEEKS DIVORCE AND CUSTODY OF CHILDREN

On the grounds of intolerable cruelty since October 20, 1924, Ross Destromp Schwartz of New London has brought suit in the superior court for divorce from Nicholas Schwartz of Centerton, N. J., whom she married July 21, 1913. She also asks the custody of three minor children. The suit is returnable in September.

PETITION FOR DIVORCE AGAINST MASS. WOMAN

Suit for divorce from Jessie Rose Von Hoff of Beachmont, Mass., has been brought in the superior court for this county by Frederick W. Von Hoff of New London and is returnable in September. They were married Dec. 21, 1925, and the commission of a statutory offense is alleged as the grounds for divorce.

FORECLOSURE FOR $5,602.93 BY COURT JUDGMENT

Judgment by foreclosure for $5,602.93 was awarded Albert C. Norman of New London against the National Bank of Commerce as administrator of the estate of Francis Reilly, late of that city, in a decision handed down by Judge Allyn L. Brown in the superior court here Wednesday.

Arthur H. Shurts was named committee of sale and the date of sale was set for July 19 at 2 o'clock. Meyer Hoillandersky, Foster K. Slatare and Alice L. Sheridan were named the appraisers.

The property involved is a fine residence at 110 Parkway. The Savings Bank of New London holds a mortgage of $10,000 on the property. Norman's suit was brought to recover on a mortgage note for $5,500 conveyed to him by Harry Heller of Montville who had received the note from the late Mr. Reilly.

FOOT GUARD COMPANY CAMPING AT NIANTIC

The encampment of the First company, Governor's Foot Guard, for five days at Niantic began Wednesday. Approximately 90 men are expected to attend the camp.

Capt. Frank B. Skiff, quartermaster of the company, has been at the camp site for the past two days, laying out three company streets with a line of officers' tents at their ending.

Buildings of the Disabled American veterans will be used as recreation quarters, and one of the National Guard mess halls has been serviced for the Foot Guard.

PROMISE TO COURT SECURES HIS RELEASE

Upon his promise to reimburse the rooming house keeper, whom he was accused of defrauding $45 for room and board, Charles Latham, 44, of this city, was released in the city court Wednesday morning upon payment of the actual costs. His sister promised to pay the bill. Latham is alleged to have stayed at the Young block for several months and then disappeared, owing the proprietress $45. The accused was arrested at a farm in Preston by State Police Officer Whitmarsh of the Groton barracks.

CONTINUANCE IN COURT IN GORDON CASE

At the request of City Attorney Charles W. Cassidy the case of Allen G. Gordon, 42, of 57 Twelfth street, charged with rape, was continued to Saturday morning, when he was tried in the city court Wednesday morning. The accused, who is totally blind, was released under $5,000 bonds, furnished by his sister. The alleged act is said to have been committed upon a 13-year-old Norwich girl, whose parents asked for the arrest of Gordon. He was arrested by Sergeant Matthew Delaney.

SURPRISE SHOWER GIVEN BY TELEPHONE OPERATORS

Miss Jane E. Toomey, one of the toll operators at the Norwich Exchange, was pleasantly surprised on Monday evening at the home of her brother at East Great Plain by the entire force of operators, including local and toll and numbering about 50. The evening was enjoyably spent as in the usual telephone manner, after which Mrs. Toomey served lunch, assisted by the Misses Dunn Coleman and Armstrong and Mrs. John Shorter. Little Miss Elizabeth Toomey also assisted in serving and helped to entertain. The shower gifts were numerous and beautiful. Miss Toomey will be married in the near future to Thomas P. Sweeney of Fitchville.

LYME EXHIBITION SHOW WORK OF NOTABLE ARTISTS

Something over 150 treasures of art in water colors, drawings and etchings make the present fine display at the Lyme Art gallery. It is here that the following distinguished artists have placed their latest treasures: Thomas Watson Ball, Alice L. R. Ball, Frank A. Bicknell, William Chadwick, Winfield Scott Clime, Ford Cooper, Charles Ebert, Mary Roberts Ebert, Caroline Weir Ely, Will Howe Foote, Clifford Grayson, Eugene Higgins, Henry L. Hoffman, Platt Hubbard, Wilson Irvine, Elinor Lathrop Sears, Percival Rosseau, Paul Saling, Henry Bill Selden, Edward Volkert, Everett L. Warner and Carleton Wiggins.

An engaging study entitled "Gologne," France by Percival Rosseau, an artist who enjoys international reputation as a painter of hunting scenes, hangs in the north wing of the gallery.

Farm lovers will find a number of sympathetic subjects in Edward Volkerts collection. The inimitable charm of Thomas Watson Ball's gallant ships are irresistible.

The landscape and marine effects rendered by Charles Ebert with so lively a sense of truth are thoroughly interesting. And one wanders into the west gallery hung with its black and whites, intrigued by their design and detail. The many vital glimpses and short-hand notes of artistic visions.

Tea was served to about 200 guests on the opening day of the reception.

WESLEYAN GUILD ENJOYS GARDNER LAKE OUTING

Members of Wesleyan Guild of Trinity Methodist Episcopal church and friends spent an enjoyable afternoon Wednesday as guests of Mrs. John C. Morgan at her summer home on the shore of Gardner lake. Perfect weather allowed all who attended the outing a splendid opportunity to be out in the open and a variety of entertainment was indulged in peculiar to the surroundings. The inner body was well provided for with the following menu: Parker house rolls, potato salad, cold ham, hot dogs, sandwiches, ice cream, cake and coffee. The committee in charge of arrangements was Mrs. Tyler D. Guy, secretary of the Guild, who was ably assisted by Mrs. Charles Browning, Miss Beanie Boardman, and Miss Ruth Baker. The members expressed their cordial thanks to Mrs. Morgan for making the day's outing possible.

HAS INCOME FROM $160,000 BUT DEFAULTS ALIMONY

Jerome Rich, divorced husband of Rosemary Rich, New London, supervisor of music in Waterford and Montville, was adjudged in contempt of court by Judge Allyn L. Brown at a session of the superior court here Tuesday morning.

Contempt proceedings were brought by Mrs. Rich as a result of her former husband's failure to pay $100 a month for the support of their child as ordered by the superior court.

Attorney Arthur T. Keefe said in court that he has been unable to locate Rich. Rich has an income for life from a $160,000 estate in Canada left by his mother.

NORWICH TOWN

Sunday night in the Norwich Town Methodist Episcopal church, Miss Gertrude Avery gave a most interesting missionary talk. Miss Avery has just returned from five and a half years spent in missionary work in India under the Congregational board. She told of how in many respects India is much like our own country. She paid high tribute to the work being done in India by the missionaries of the Methodist Episcopal church. The two mission boards, she said, work together hamoniously as they feel keenly their brotherhood in their building Christ's Kingdom in India.

The pastor, Rev. George Warren Potter, had charge of the service reading the responsive lesson and offering prayer. There was an attendance of about 40.

Thursday afternoon the Dorcas Home Missionary society of the Methodist Episcopal church will hold its monthly meeting at the home of Mrs. George Manning at Yantic.

The hike to be taken by the John Mason troop 2 Boy Scouts this week has been postponed to a later date.

GAVE BIRTHDAY SURPRISE TO MRS. EMILY E. DATE

Many of the friends of Mrs. Emily E. Date of Franklin gathered at her home recently to celebrate her birthday anniversary. It was in the form of a surprise party and proved a genuine surprise. The afternoon was spent socially and enjoyed by all. After refreshments were served, one of the number, Mrs. R. W. Woodward, in her charming manner, presented Mrs. Date in behalf of the ladies with a lovely potted geranium and read the following which was composed by her for the occasion:

"The first time I ever came to Franklin was in the spring of 1892, and the first person outside the family, whose acquaintance I made was one who was with us today. One of my chief pleasures that summer, was walking up Meeting House hill and then up a pretty lane to the house which for a hundred years has been known as the Dr. Nott house. There my friend and her sister always made me welcome and there I met many of her relatives and kinsfolk. One, I remember in particular, Mr. Isham Hyde. We had several pleasant talks, and he told me a great deal about Dr. Nott, who was a relative, and in whose family he had lived for many years; it was his home for seventeen years. Mr. Hyde told me of the books which Dr. Nott had given him to read, and what a formative influence they had upon his life and character. He was in those days before the infirmities of age had descended upon him one of the leading men in the community, by family, character, intelligence, probity, all of New England virtues of which we may well be proud. The Hyde family is one of the oldest in Franklin, West Farms. Their progenitor was one of the 35 incorporators of the town of Norwich, and his son who had grown to man's estate was also one of the thirty-five. From that day to this, the line has continued part of the time on the female side, but continuing to bear the rugged virtues which have characterized the family from its earliest days. It is not the Hyde family alone, but a characteristic feature of many New England families that self sacrifice was hardly considered as a virtue, but as an ordinary accompaniment of self-respecting living.

"Nearly every family had among its members some who had ties of blood relationship, but often times not of immediate kinship, it was a commonplace of existence that such should be given not merely food and shelter, but all the rights and privileges of the immediate family. We can all think of such instances in the by-gone days of Franklin, and perhaps a most notable example was that of the household of Capt. Isham Hyde. In this house where we are gathered to greet his daughter, cousins, aunts, and grandparents were welcome not as guests, but as life-long members of the family. The family roof-tree was not a merely pretty name, it was a sacred reality. It is a commonplace of psychology that virtues, and qualities descend, not from father to son, but from father to daughter. The mother looks to her son to realize her ambitions, but the father looks to his daughter to realize his ideals. Mr. Hyde was a many sided man. His pride in his family was well founded, and far reaching, but his pride, and his interest in the town of which he was so important a part was equally intense. He was an authority on the history and traditions of his birthplace, and other historians have looked to him for authoritative notes. We all know how this quality has descended to his daughter and how definite and certain are her accounts of our histories and traditions. In this house which has sheltered her ancestors for generations and which still shelters her children, and children's children, she has lived the most of her life and still inherits the intelligence, the character, and the kindliness which were so marked in her ancestors. She is still the authority on by-gone days and events. She still has the regard and friendship which have come down to her from her forbears. If the cloud of witnesses of the Hyde family who are gone 'hold her in full survey' as the hymn tells us, they must rejoice that while brief life is here our portion, character, intelligence, wide vision linger on so long as the family name endures."

GAVE HEARINGS FOR AUTOMOBILE OPERATORS

At auto hearings held at the common pleas court room here Tuesday morning disposition was made in the cases in the following manner:

Lawrence C. Drescher, High street, Baltic, and Henry Rothstein, North Franklin, to determine who shall furnish proof of financial responsibility; Rothstein to furnish insurance until civil suit is settled.

Albert B. Peckham, R. F. D. No. 1, Norwich, and Leo Labbe, 21 North B street, Taftville, to determine who shall furnish proof of financial responsibility; decision reserved.

Joseph J. Lukegard, A. and P. Tea Co., Uncasville, fatal accident; reinstated.

Bolias Davidites, Lebanon, operating under influence and no operator's license; allowed to apply for license.

ALLEN LATHAM, JR., IN RACE AT POUGHKEEPSIE

The varsity crew of Massachusetts Institute of Technology which rows in the big college regatta on the Hudson river at Poughkeepsie this (Thursday) afternoon, has a Norwich Town young man pulling the bow oar. He is Allen Latham, Jr., of Scotland road, who is a senior at Massachusetts Tech and previously rowed No. 7 on the famous M. I. T. jayvee crew which won every race it entered during this season.

Early Morning Thunder Shower.

There was a sharp but brief thunder shower about 3 o'clock Wednesday morning, during which the rain fell in torrents for a few minutes. The rainfall was .16 of an inch, according to the gauge at the water department office.

ENJOYABLE FLAG PARTY GIVEN FOR CHILDREN

The mothers and children of the beginners and cradle roll departments of the Central Baptist church, were given a flag party Wednesday afternoon from 3 to 5 o'clock in the Noyes parish house. As the children arrived they were presented patriotic hats which they immediately donned.

Games were played and a flag hunt was indulged in. Recitations by the Misses Frances and Agnes Stone and songs by the beginners department were given for the entertainment of the mothers present.

At 4:30 the children led by Charles Noyes marched to the tables where they were served ice cream wafers and small cakes, decorated with flags. Each child received a prettily decorated basket filled with wafers and candy. The tables were trimmed with patriotic colors and the favors were candy fire crackers.

Between 75 and 80 were present, with Mrs. C. Edward Smith in charge assisted by Mrs. Marguerite Stone and the Misses Frances and Agnes Stone.

SOUTHERN CROSS LANDED AT ROOSEVELT FIELD, 6.31 P.M.

Eastern Standard Time—Before Landing the Crew Treated the Crowd to a Thrilling Exhibition of Vertical Banks—The Plane Had Taken Off At Harbor Grace, N. F., For 1,100 Mile Flight At 3.05 A.M.—Crowds Gazed Upward From Rooftops, Windows and Streets of New York As the Plane Passed Over the City So High That It Could Be Identified Positively Only With Field Glasses

ROOSEVELT FIELD, New York, June 26.—(AP)—Treading the highways of the sky as lightly as a sport plane, the tri-motored Southern Cross dropped to earth today, completing the flight from Ireland interrupted by a forced landing in Newfoundland for refueling.

Captain Charles Kingsford-Smith brought his famous plane to an easy landing at 6:31 p. m., E. S. T., today, before a crowd of thousands, most of whom had been waiting the greater part of the day. Within a few days he expects to fly on non-stop for the west coast, thus completing a circumnavigation of the earth begun two years ago with his historic flight across the Pacific.

Although they had flown 1,100 miles today the four members of the crew, Kingsford-Smith, Evert Van Dyke, J. Patrick Saul and J. W. Stannage, insisted they were not tired. Before landing, as though to demonstrate the fact, they treated the crowd to a thrilling exhibition of vertical banks above the field.

The fliers spoke briefly to newspapermen before leaving for New York city but told nothing of their experiences above the sea. Tomorrow they will be formally received by the city and for several days they will be honored at various celebrations.

From rooftops, windows and streets, New York's crowds gazed upwards as the Southern Cross passed over the city en route to the landing field. The plane was so high that its great silver body could be identified positively only with field glasses, but the throngs knew it was close, and cheered wildly when it came in sight with several escorting machines.

From the tower of the New York Central and other buildings came the barrage of paper with which New Yorkers invariably litter their streets when welcoming distinguished guests. Like a flock of multi-sized birds the papers looked, as the breeze lifted them, dropped them, and whirled them in circles.

Hundreds rushed to windows of downtown hotels and office buildings, all craning their necks to see the new heroes.

"Dya see it?" they shouted to one another.

Most of them saw it, and all of them heard it. The crowd hurried on, while police began forming lines to guard the fliers' march to their hotel.

SOUTHERN CROSS CREW IN NEW YORK HOTEL

NEW YORK, June 26.—(AP)—Escorted by motorcycle policemen the Southern Cross fliers made a fast run into the city in flag-bedecked automobiles, covering the 20-odd miles in little more than that many minutes through heavy traffic.

They were greeted by an enthusiastic crowd which had waited for some time, in the lobby and on the steps of the Hotel Roosevelt, the fliers' headquarters while in the city.

Crowds lined the sidewalks in many of the Long Island cities along the route, the children especially giving vociferous welcome as the party swept past at 60 miles an hour.

A sharp summer storm broke over the city five minutes after they had arrived at the hotel, flooding the open cars in which they had been brought in triumph from the field, and in which, but for the grace of five minutes time, they would have been sitting.

Arriving at the hotel, the fliers went immediately to their suite on the eighth floor and according to reports brought out by hotel employes, "jumped right into the bathtub."

No further activities were planned for them tonight, except a long distance telephone call Major Kingsford-Smith wanted to make. The call was to his fiancee in Australia.

PERSISTENT REPORTS OF DISORDERS IN BOLIVIA

BUENOS AIRES, June 26—(AP)—Reports of disorders and a critical situation in Bolivia rolled in tonight despite a government communique issued at La Paz which minimized the importance of a revolutionary movement in Oruro.

The communique confirmed reports that some officials and the Camacho regiment of the army at Oruro had taken possession of the city, telegraphing the prefect at La Paz they favored the establishment of a new government under Abianco Gallnda, Jose Lanza, Mariaga Pando Osorio and Julio Sanjines, but added:

"The movement lacks importance. The Camacho regiment remains isolated at Oruro, without connection with the remainder of the republic where the garrison commanders have declared themselves firm in their loyalty to the government and the public order.

"Authorities at Oruro submitted to the military movement without resisting. There were no casualties. Tranquility reigns throughout the republic and public order is assured."

GOVERNOR HAS RESUMED OFFICE IN CHIHUAHUA, MEX.

EL PASO, Tex., June 26—(AP)—Governor Francisco R. Almada of Chihuahua, Mexico, flew back to his capital late today and declared he would again be domiciled in the governor's palace at Chihuahua City before sundown and in full control of governmental reins.

He came to Juarez by airplane yesterday after his claimed impeachment by the chamber of Deputies on charges of misconduct preferred by partisans of Manuel Prieto, candidate for governor of the state.

Almada's plane, chartered to take him back to the capital, was cheered as it took to the air at the Juarez airport early this afternoon, when members of the Partido revolution Rio Del Norte gave a demonstration.

Almada decided to return to Chihuahua City immediately upon receipt of a telegram from Secretary of the Interior C. Riva Palacios in the City of Mexico assuring the governors of "safety and justice."

PROSPECTIVE BRIDEGROOM CHARGED WITH BURGLARY

HARTFORD, June 26.—(AP)—An application for a marriage license today led to the arrest of the prospective bridegroom as an escaped Ohio prisoner, charged with burglary. Tonight, when Clayton Pinney, 21, formerly of Tariffville, went to call on his fiancee in Bloomfield, he was met by deputy sheriffs of the office of County Detective Edward J. Hickey and was locked up in the Hartford police station to await action by Ohio authorities.

TARDIEU FRENCH GOVT. WON VOTE OF CONFIDENCE

PARIS, June 26—(AP)—Premier Andre Tardieu's government won a victory today in its first fight with the opposition since the east recess, carrying a vote of confidence by 330 to 262.

The vote came about when socialists made a strong attack on the government, accusing it of depleting the treasury.

Vincent Auriol and Leon Blum, socialist leaders, demanded an investigation of the treasury's condition by a special committee.

With that the premier moved a previous question and made the vote one of confidence.

The socialists accused the government of "turning its back on the policy of Locarno and dreaming of nothing but the race for armaments" and charged in briskly when the 17,000,000 franc ($650,000,000) program of public improvements for five years was brought up.

They alleged that 5,000,000,000 francs on which the government counted for its initial outlay, was not available without the issue of treasury bonds and said the government had made unauthorized expenditures for national defense.

Premier Tardieu retorted with accusations that the socialists had tried to discredit France as well as the government by false reports of treasury leaks and plans for secret armaments. He emphatically denied the charges and, turning toward the socialist benches, he cried:

"And you knew that was false."

DRY ADMINISTRATOR WILL DECLINE TRANSFER

NEW YORK, June 26.—(AP)—Major Maurice Campbell, prohibition administrator here, who has been ordered transferred to Boston as permit supervisor in the industrial alcohol bureau, tonight laconically announced, "I'm not going to Boston."

He telephoned his announcement to the Associated Press. When asked whether he meant that the treasury department list was incorrect he said, "No."

He refused to answer a question as to whether he intended to withdraw from the service.

DECREASE IN LOANS TO BROKERS AND DEALERS

WASHINGTON, June 26 — (AP) — Loans to brokers and dealers held by New York Federal Reserve member banks for the week ending June 25, were announced by the federal reserve board today as $3,418,000,000, representing a decrease of $371,000,000 as compared with the preceding week.

CABLED PARAGRAPHS

PARIS, June 26—(AP)—The French government will wait for the arrival of the text of the new American tariff law in order to make a careful study of it before deciding what official action, if any, to take.

ROME, Ga., June 26—(AP)—Directors of the chamber of commerce here have asked municipal authorities to assume responsibility of caring for an obscure grave in Myrtle Hill cemetery in which is buried the body of President Woodrow Wilson's first wife.

ROME, June 26—Antonio Mosconi, minister of finance, told the senate this afternoon the government was considering "measures of legitimate defense" against the increased tariff barriers of other nations, although he did not mention the United States.

PARIS, June 26—(AP)—The first three months of this year have shown that France again has more births than deaths. The mortality report made public today lists 10,797 more births than deaths. In the first three months of last year deaths exceeded births by 7,000.

TERRIFIC THUNDERSTORM IN WESTERN NEW YORK

Buffalo, N. Y., June 26—(AP)—Roaring up from Lake Erie on the wings of a sixty mile gale, a terrific thunderstorm smashed its way across western New York this afternoon, stabbing here and there with lances of flame and leaving two dead, several injured and untold destruction in its trail.

James Sullivan, 60, and his next door neighbor, Timothy Davey, 52, of Buffalo, were killed.

A 25,000 barrel storage tank of crude oil at Olean burst into flames when struck by lightning.

About thirty tiny fishing vessels were out on Lake Erie when the dense black clouds swept up from the west, shrouding the eastern end of the lake and the city of Buffalo in the darkness of night, while beneath the overhanging blackness the gale lashed the lake into huge swells.

The fishing vessels raced for shore and all but one were believed to have won safety.

The little boat containing Sullivan and Davey was snatched back almost from the very harbor mouth by a huge wave which tossed it high before capsizing it.

From the harbor breakwater Victor McEwan, 23, of Buffalo, plunged to the rescue. He reached the boat just as Davey's hold relaxed, dragged the drowning man to the surface and battled his way back through the raging waters to the wall where strong hands helped him ashore with his lifeless burden. Davey failed to respond to first aid treatment. Sullivan's body was not recovered.

DRASTIC REORGANIZATION OF DRY ENFORCEMENT AGENTS

WASHINGTON, June 26—(AP)—Demanding greater activity and effectiveness from state authorities in the enforcement of prohibition, Attorney General Mitchell today outlined plans for a drastic rearrangement of government enforcement agencies.

The reorganization will become effective on July 1 when the department of justice takes over from the treasury the duty of administering the nation's drylaws.

The attorney general said the present 27 prohibition administrative districts would be cut to 12 to correspond in some measure to the judicial circuits and the enforcement districts would be left as at present. There now are 87 in conformity with the judicial districts.

He explained that the plan would bring closer co-operation between the United States attorneys who prosecute violations and the deputy administrators who will bear the brunt of enforcement.

The changes will transfer 2,700 employes of the prohibition bureau from the treasury to the justice department.

Of these, 1,700 are prohibition enforcement agents. About 1,700 employes remain in the alcohol division of the treasury. In dividing the work the two departments also split the $13,500,000 appropriation provided for enforcement. The department of justice took $9,000,000 of the amount and the treasury retained $4,500,000 for industrial alcohol work.

SEARCHING FOR VIOLATORS OF PROHIBITION LAW

CLEVELAND, O., June 26.—(AP)—Federal authorities searched through Canton and Stark county tonight to arrest more men indicted for conspiracy to violate the federal prohibition law after three former Canton officials and alleged bootleggers gave themselves up today, pleaded not guilty and were released on bond.

The former officials are Edward E. Curtis, former safety director and brother of former Mayor C. C. Curtis; former Police Sergeant Ellis Darany and Arthur B. Drukenbrod, former city councilman. Curtis' bond was $10,000, that of the others $5,000 each. John Curtis, alleged wholesale bootlegger, also was released on $5,000 bond.

The indictments were handed down by a federal grand jury yesterday after an extensive investigation of the former city administration. Reports were current in Canton that the investigators found bootleggers and operators of vice dens had been protected by former city officials and that the city had been divided into districts to facilitate the collection of protection money.

LIMA, OHIO, REPORTS SLIGHT EARTH TREMOR

LIMA, Ohio, June 26.—(AP)—A slight earth tremor was reported here at 3:55 p. m. today. It lasted only a few seconds.

The shock was felt as far south as Bellefontaine, according to reports made to the telephone company here. Radiators in buildings here were shaken but no damage was reported.

30 REBELS WERE KILLED IN BATTLE BY BOLIVIAN TROOPS

LIMA, Peru, June 26.—(AP)—A wireless message picked up from Antofagasta and published in La Prensa here said Bolivian troops yesterday had killed 30 and wounded 100 rebels in an engagement about 500 miles from La Paz.

PETITION GRANTED BY UTILITIES COMMISSION

HARTFORD, June 26.—(AP)—Petition of the Danbury Power and Transportation company to discontinue the operation of street railway cars along North Main street from Bethany chapel to Wentworth street, Bridgeport, was granted by the public utilities commission today.

A Big Shake-Up In Chicago Police Dept.

Including 724 Detectives and 11 Lieutenants, 934 Men Have Been Transfered — Department Decentralized.

CHICAGO, June 26—(AP)—The police department's biggest shakeup in recent years, was ordered today by Acting Commissioner of Police John H. Alcock, who transferred 934 men. Most of those were ordered moved to or from the detective bureau. Included were 724 detectives and 11 lieutenants. Alcock also issued an order literally decentralizing the department and placing the responsibility for each district upon its commander.

RACKETEERS AMONG THOSE WHO LENT MONEY TO LINGLE

CHICAGO, June 26.—(AP)—State's attorneys' investigators said today they had uncovered evidence which indicated Alfred "Jake" Lingle, slain Chicago Tribune reporter, had borrowed $85,000 immediately after the stock market debacle last fall.

High public officials and racketeers were among those named as having lent money to Lingle when the stock crash caught him unawares. Among those named and the amounts reported lent were Samuel A. Ettleson, corporation counsel and Mayor Thompson's spokesman, $5,000; Major Carlos Ames, president of the civil service commission, $5,000; Alderman Bert Cronson, Ettleson's nephew and law partner of Clarence S. Darrow, noted criminal lawyer, $5,000, and an unnamed "high sanitary district official," $15,000.

Other developments today were:

Search for Lingle's slayer was diverted from James "Red" Forsythe to an unidentified "young Loop business man" as the actual player of the reporter.

Uncovering of a check for $500 given by Lingle last Sept. 13 to Police Captain Daniel A. Gilbert, who was assigned to command the Loop district a month later.

MEX. FEDERAL TROOPS IN CONTROL AT CHIHUAHUA

MEXICO CITY, June 26.—(AP)—Official reports from the city of Chihuahua tonight were to the effect that federal troops under General Eulogio Ortiz had driven the rebellious state political faction in the state from the capitol building, seized by the insurgents yesterday.

Provisional Governor Francisco Almada is expected to return to Chihuahua City from Juarez at once. Troops are patrolling the streets to prevent further disorders.

The government will decide whether to continue to recognize Almada or to accept Manuel Jesus Estrada, declared provisional governor by the rebellious faction.

According to unofficial reports, a group of state congressmen claiming to constitute a majority, passed a motion deposing Almada on the grounds that he was extending official support to one of the candidates in the forthcoming gubernatorial election.

This action was followed by street manifestations that culminated in an attack on the capitol, which fell into the hands of the rebellious. Almada was forced to flee.

The number killed in the clashes has still not been definitely determined here, reports varying between one and eight.

OVATION IN STAMFORD FOR LIEUT. HAROLD I. JUNE

STAMFORD, June 26.—(AP)—The home folks of Stamford today acclaimed Lieut. Harold I. June, chief radio operator and co-pilot with Bernt Balchen on Rear Admiral Richard E. Byrd's dash across the south pole, as their own hero in the greatest ovation ever given any person in the history of the city.

Coming from New York by automobile, June was met at the Greenwich-Stamford town line and at the head of a parade of cars rode triumphantly through streets lined with throngs of cheering people.

Attired in a white dress uniform, he was seated in the rst car with Mayor William W. Graves. His wife was in the second car with First Selectman Andrew Schlechtweg, and following them came June's 16-year-old daughter, Marguerite, riding with Mr. and Mrs. Irving June, the flier's mother and father, and his brother, Ernest A. June.

The procession ended at the Stamford Yacht club, where the lieutenant was the honor guest at a luncheon given by Stamford women.

CANDIDATE FOR SUPT. OF SCHOOL FOR BOYS

MERIDEN, June 26.—(AP)—While the special committee of the board of trustees of the Connecticut School for Boys would not make any announcements following its meeting today as to a possible choice for the superintendent's berth, the appearance of E. L. Edwards, of West Hartford, before the board marked him as one of the leading contenders. He was the only candidate to meet with the board today and is one of the few Connecticut candidates.

Following the special committee session, the regular meeting of the board of trustees was conducted, when only routine business concerning the needs of the school was transacted. The next meeting of the special committee will be held Monday at 10 o'clock.

UNEMPLOYMENT CURTAILS CONNECTICUT CO. INCOME

HARTFORD, June 26.—(AP)—Closed shops and unemployment have seriously curtailed the income of the Connecticut company, resulting in a daily loss in revenue of $3,100 a day compared with last year, President J. J. Punderford told the public utilities commission at a hearing here today.

"God knows what is going to happen to us. I don't," Mr. Punderford said when State's Attorney T. F. Noone, of Rockville, insisted that the company guarantee the present 25-cent fare between that city and Hartford. The hearing was on petition of the company to abandon the trolley line and substitute buses.

New Vets Relief Bill Passed By The House

Provides $[illegible]0,000 In Pension F[illegible]00,000 Men—Sust[illegible] Veto of Other Bi[illegible]

W[illegible]GTON, June 26—(AP)—With S[illegible] Longworth leading the administration forces, the house today [illegible]ed President Hoover's veto of the veterans relief measure and passed a substitute bill to provide $50,000,000 in pensions for 200,000 uncompensated World war service men.

Carrying the overwhelming house vote of 365 to 4, the new bill was sent to the senate where quick action is planned and a move is under way to liberalize its provisions to the same basis of Spanish- American war veterans pensions. The senate finance committee expects to approve the bill tomorrow and submit it to the senate for action.

Congressional leaders were informed that President Hoover would look with disfavor on any broadening of the measure that would call for expenditures in excess of those authorized in the house bill.

Regardless of the tactics senate democrats are to take to broaden the measure, republican leaders in both branches have agreed that congress shall remain in session until veterans legislation satisfactory to the chief executive is passed.

With this understanding house administration followers mustered their forces and sustained the president's veto of the Johnson-Rankin bill by a majority vote of 188 to 182. It required only a third of those voting to prevent overriding the veto. Republicans leaped to their feet and cheered when Speaker Longworth announced the president had been given a six vote majority.

Three democrats— Representatives Lanham and Johnson of Texas, and Milligan of Missouri—and the lone farmer labor—Kvale of Minnesota—voted against the new bill.

The substitute measure proposes to commit the government to a new policy toward World war veterans, it heretofore having granted compensation to nearly 2[illegible]0,000 veterans and their dependents, but refrained from granting pensions to veterans of other wars.

It provides a minimum pension of $12 per month to all veterans disabled to a 25 per cent degree, with a maximum pension of $40 for full disability and added provisions for those who have to have attendants. For the first time in the history of pension legislation, in America, a battle casualty clause is provided which would give a pension of $25 additional to veterans who were wounded in battle.

Within three years it will cost the government between $80,000,000 and $100,000,000 and affect 600,000 veterans. The vetoed bill was estimated to affect between 75,000 and 100,000 veterans and cost the government between $161,000,000, and $400,000,000 compensation, on some cases amounting to as much as $200 a month.

Action by the house in sustaining the veto definitely killed the bill. For it to have been passed over the veto would have required a two-thirds vote of both houses of congress.

UNEMPLOYMENT FIGURES FROM CENSUS RETURNS

WASHINGTON, June 26. — (AP) — Census returns on unemployment announced today fixed the total of jobless persons in an area inhabited by one quarter of the country's total population at 574,647.

These figures, the first yet announced from the national survey undertaken in April as to the employment situation, indicated the total number able to work but unable to find jobs would be in the neighborhood of 2,000,000 which, Secretary Lamont commented, was considerably less than the estimates generally current as to the probably number of unemployed in the nation.

The first returns, Secretary Lamont added, constituted a fair sample of the country, since they gave the count from 756 counties and 75 cities scattered well over the continent, though no complete states were enumerated. The figures will be followed by more complete study as the census bureau receives its data but included everything received up to Monday.

ROTARIANS HEAR SCION OF JAPANESE FAMILY

CHICAGO, June 26.—(AP)—The Rotarian world faced the east today as his excellency, Prince Iyesato Togugawa described the aims and ideals of Japan, his mother country, before the jubilee anniversary convention of Rotary International.

Scion of a family which for two and a half centuries ruled the destinies of the land of the rising sun, the prince told Rotarians Japan was not interested in naval armament save as a means of protecting her very existence, so dependent on sea-borne commerce.

"Japan cherishes no territorial ambitions and has no intention of forcing any national policy upon her neighbors," he told 15,000 delegates.

"Japan needs a navy only large enough to defend her corner of the Pacific, for upon it depends our national life."

Balloting upon the presidential candidates and directors of Rotary International was completed today, but results will not be announced until tomorrow.

INDIAN MALCONTENTS SENTENCED TO PRISON

BOMBAY, June 26.—(AP)—The government bore down on India's nationalists today for their civil disobedience activities, sentencing six men and five women to prison.

Four women rated as prominent—Urmila Devi, Bimal Pratiba Devi, Jyotrimayee Ganguly and Mohini Devi—were sentenced to six months simple imprisonment at Calcutta for their part in demonstrations connected with the anniversary of the death of C. R. Das, brother of Urmila Devi. Women nationalist volunteers besieged the courtroom while the trial was in progress.

Another report said a 16-year-old girl had been imprisoned in Bengal for six months after conviction on a charge of publishing a book calculated to undermine the loyalty of the police.

LIGHTNING HIT DYNAMITE BOAT: 31 MEN ARE MISSING

Eleven of Crew of 42 Were Picked Up By U. S. Coast Guard Boat—Vessel Was Blown to Pieces In the St. Louis River Near Brockville, Ont.—Most of the Missing Men Were Asleep In Bunks Below the Water Line When the Bolt Exploded the Dynamite.

BROCKVILLE, Ont., June 26—(Canadian Press)—A roaring explosion caused by a flash of lightning tonight was believed to have snuffed out the lives of most of the crew of 42 of a drill boat engaged in dredging and blasting in the St. Louis river near here.

Eleven men were rescued. The other 31 were missing and were feared to be dead.

The disaster, the most serious in the history of this district occurred so suddenly and with so little attendant excitement that occupants of summer cottages nearby knew nothing about it for some time. They thought the tremendous roar was merely another blast designed to remove shoals from the river bottom in Brockville narrows.

The vessel, which was named the J. B. King, was said to have been blown to bits by the blast. Most of the missing men were part of the night shift, asleep in bunks below the water line when the flash of lightning struck. Little hope was felt here that more than one or two of them survived.

The eleven rescued were picked up by a United States Coast guard boat and brought to hospitals here, where their injuries were said not to be serious.

Mrs. W. C. Walklate, who witnessed the accident from the veranda of her summer cottage about a quarter of a mile away, said she heard an explosion after a flash of lightning, saw a cloud of smoke arise from the spot where the drill boat had been at work and could then see only a few pieces of wreckage floating where the vessel, valued at $100,000, had been stationed.

The boat was employed by the contracting firm of J. P. Porter and Sons of St. Catherine's in deepening and widening the Brockville narrows.

One of the night shift, G. L. Brown of Ottawa, who was rescued, told of his narrow escape from death. He said he was sound asleep beneath the water line with his comrades when the explosion shattered the vessel. He said that he dove through a window and managed to cling to wreckage until picked up.

R. A. McNeil, foreman of the day shift, said that as soon as the explosion occurred the whole boat seemed to disappear beneath his feet and he found himself in the water, whence he was picked up a little later.

Luther Kuchenbecker, superintendent of the Porter firm, who was ashore at the time of the accident, said there was no dynamite aboard the craft. Previous reports were that there were 20 tons.

Kuchenbecker said there was a possibility the lightning had struck wires connected with charges of dynamite that were already placed in position in a shoal that was being removed.

The survivors, clinging to bits of wreckage, were picked up by the United States Coast guard cutter 211, which was proceeding downstream at the time of the blast.

They were: Joe Marohnick, William McNeill, St. Catherines, Ont; Everett Snider, Brockville; G. L. Brown, Ottawa; Kuvna Polich; C. Siserva; Joseph Belazino, Thorold, Ont.; K. A. McNeill, M. Kanjer; Leo Marron, Ottawa, and George Kucon, Montreal.

FINISHING YACHT RACE, NEW LONDON TO BERMUDA

First across the finish line was the Yankee Girl 2nd, a schooner owned by G. W. Warren, New York, which completed the 600-odd mile voyage at 12:15 p. m. The schooner Fame, scratch boat owned by J. D. Thompson of White Plains, N. Y., was second and the Boston schooner, Malabar 10th, owned by J. G. Alden, Boston, third.

Winners in the various divisions will not be determined until all the boats are in. Early tonight 17 of the craft had crossed the finish line.

Back of the first three, trailed, in order, the following: The cutter Viking, owned by F. J. Wells, Gloucester, Mass.; the schooner Rose of Sharon, E. R. Donaldson, New York; schooner Sayonara, V. F. West, Portland, Me.; yawl Dorade, O. J. Stephens, Scarsdale, N. Y.; schooner Telegram, G. W. Mixter, New York; schooner Lion's Whelp, P. S. Prague, Boston; schooner Mistress, G. E. Roosevelt, New York; schooner Quicksilver, 2nd, A. E. Pierce, Chicago; schooner Senora, W. H. Coburn, Boston; yawl Rugosa 2nd, R. Grinnell, Providence; schooner Flying Cloud 3rd, L. Grinnell, New Bedford, Mass.; schooner Curlew, F. I. Andrews, Flushing, N. Y.; schooner Dauntless, H. B. Merwin, Bridgeport, Conn.; schooner Teal, P. G. Bigelow, Norfolk, Conn.

DINNER OF INTERNATIONAL CHAMBER OF COMMERCE

PARIS, June 26.—(AP)—At the tenth anniversary dinner of the International Chamber of Commerce tonight, several prominent European financiers made indirect attacks against the Hawley-Smoot tariff bill.

Roland W. Boyden of Boston defended the new American duties, saying in a humorous address, "After all, the tariff is not my fault.

"You must remember that it was made with no hostile intentions toward any country, the idea of the Americans was that it was in their best interest, and after all each country works for what it considers its best interest."

Georges Theunis, president of the chamber and former Belgian finance minister, referred to "the exclusiveness which seems to prevail with some of our friends." He said that the proposed economic reorganization of Europe, though not aimed against anybody, "ought in the end to relieve the sufferings of Europe from the exclusiveness of other continents."

THREE DEATHS CAUSED BY LIGHTNING STORM

SAINT JOHN'S, N. F., June 26.—(AP)—Three lives were lost and large property damage was caused this afternoon in Lumsden, Bonavista North, by a thunder and lightning storm of unprecedented violence, a message to the minister of posts said. The storm was accompanied by hail of immense size.

Roofs and window glass were shattered to fragments by huge lumps of ice which crashed from the heavens. Thirty boats were sunk in the harbor and three fishermen were drowned or killed. They were Baxter Goodyear, Roland Cuff and Samuel Goodyear. The bodies were recovered. The whole population was panic-stricken by the storm, which came suddenly after a perfect summer day.

WEST HARTFORD MAN OVERCOME BY HEAT

HARTFORD, June 26.—(AP)—Overcome by heat while making his rounds, William Hanley, 45, of West Hartford, a pie salesman, formerly of Worcester, Mass., dropped dead here this evening on the rear steps of the home of James MacPherson at 23 Putnam Heights. Hanley leaves a widow and four children. He was born in Scotland and came to this city from Worcester. Until recently he was employed in the East Hartford plant of the Pratt and Whitney Aircraft company.

CLOSE OF THE RAILWAYS CLERKS NATIONAL BANK

CINCINNATI, O., June 26.—(AP) — One of the country's largest labor banks, the Brotherhood of Railway Clerks National bank, closed today as a direct result of the $1,000,000 check kiting operations of A. W. Shafer, whose speculations also forced the Cosmopolitan Bank and Trust company to close 16 days ago.

Fifty one per cent of the Brotherhood stock was owned by 122,006 United States and Canadian members of the brotherhood of railway and steamship clerks, freight handlers and station employes.

The Brotherhood bank board of directors voluntarily closed the institution after depositors withdrew $1,000,000 in the last three days. The run followed the resignation of three high bank officials last Monday.

Two of those former officials, Liman E. Norris, vice president, and Harry Rosenblum, cashier, were arrested on warrants sworn by United States District Attorney Haveth E. Mau, which charged conspiracy to violate the national banking act. They pleaded not guilty and were held under $25,000 bond each.

The Brotherhood bank had deposits of $4,800,000, total resources of $5,659,363, capital stock of $400,000, surplus of $100,000 and undivided profits of $65,958. Despite the forged signatures on Shafer's collateral with the Brotherhood bank, the institution was said by directors to be in sound condition in a report issued Monday.

The bank was opened in 1923.

FARM BOARD HITS WHEAT AND LIVESTOCK MARKETS

WASHINGTON, June 26.—(AP)— In a couple of statements fraught with high-charged possibilities, the farm board laid a heavy hand today on the long precarious wheat and livestock markets.

C. B. Denman, board member representing livestock, said in effect that the retail price of beef should be reduced immediately wherever it already had not been brought in line with the sharp slump in wholesale beef and cattle prices; and George S. Milnor, president and general manager of the Grain Stabilization corporation said wheat would not be put on the market in competition with the 1930 crop.

The latter statement admittedly was capable of the interpretation that the government may be called upon to stand the loss of from 50,000,000 to 75,000,000 bushels of wheat taken out of the 1929 crop.

Exact figures on the amount were not given, but Milnor said his organization had withdrawn from the market approximately three times the amount of the 1929 increase in the visible supply. Private trade estimates have placed the increase at from 17,000,000 to 20,000,000 bushels but the department of agriculture estimates it at about 25,000,000 bushels.

APPENDICITIS CAUSED DEATH OF HARRY G. STUTZ

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., June 26—(AP)—Failing to rally following an operation for appendicitis, Harry G. Stutz, widely known automobile inventor and manufacturer, died here today. He was 53 years old.

Stutz returned to Indianapolis last Monday afternoon from Orlando, Fla., where he had been living for five years, and entered a hospital that night. For a time his progress following the operation was satisfactory, but he declined rapidly when infection set in.

Stutz founded the car which in 1914, through its performance in the initial 500 mile race here, became known as "the car that made good in a day."

It finished eleventh, and until the race little was known of Stutz or the car he built.

Improvements on rear axles won Stutz country-wide recognition. He severed connection with the automobile company which bears his name about ten years ago, later organizing a new company which built the H. C. S. car. He retired from active business about five years ago.

Stutz married Miss Clara Dietz at Dayton, Ohio, in 1898. They were divorced about five years ago and Stutz married Mrs. Blanche Miller of Indianapolis. Both women are living.

THREE D. A. R. WOMEN ARE HONORED BY LOCAL CORPS

(Special to The Bulletin)

WILLIMANTIC, June 26.—Three local women who have been elected to posts of honor in the Woman's Relief corps were tendered a reception by Francis S. Long corps, No. 12, in G. A. R. hall Wednesday evening. They were: Miss Annie Hathaway Smith, department junior vice-president; Mrs. Helen French, department patriotic instructor, and Mrs. Louise Goss, fourth delegate to the national convention at Cincinnati, Ohio, in September.

Several officers of the state department of the W. R. C., including the department president, Mrs. Reinman of Waterbury, and several members of the G. A. R., headed by Dr. Cargill, department commander, of Bridgeport, were in attendance. Commander James J. Lee, who was recently elected junior vice-commander of the Department of Connecticut, Veterans of Foreign Wars, represented Gold Star post, No. 1724, V. F. W., Mrs. Marcelline English represented Gold Star auxiliary. Mrs. Florence Burchnall, president of the American Legion auxiliary; Mrs. Amy Anderson, president of the Daughters of Union Veterans, and Mrs. Rachel Gallagher, president of the United Spanish War Veterans auxiliary, were also present.

The program included solos and ensemble selections by Van's orchestra; vocal selections by Mrs. Regina LaFleur; esthetic dances by Miss Ida Wilhelm, and readings by Mrs. Ruth James.

Mrs. Marjorie Duggan, president of Francis S. Long corps, delivered the address of welcome. Remarks were made by Dr. Cargill, Mrs. Reinman, Miss Smith, Mrs. French and Mrs. Goss, the latter four being presented with gifts from the corps.

Coventry to Celebrate Fourth

Coventry was assured of a hot old Fourth of July celebration today, with the announcement of plans sponsored by the Men's Social club and Earl W. Green post, No. 52, American Legion. The festivities will begin with a parade in which every organization in the town and of Mansfield will be invited to participate. There will then be a picnic, sporting events and entertainment on the old training grounds and at Lake Wamgumbaug.

The parade will be in charge of Ralph Reynolds, chairman, Wilton Rose and Eugene Edgerton, and will form at the Center school yard. At least one band and a drum corps have been secured. There will be a division of school children, one of floats and a third of ancients and horribles.

Upon arrival at the grounds, a few short patriotic addresses will precede the picnic. Carleton P. King is chairman of sports and entertainment, Thomas L. Flaherty chairman of music and DeWitt Kingsbury chairman of refreshments.

OBITUARY

Mrs. Ann McNamara

Mrs. Ann McNamara, widow of Thomas McNamara, died suddenly at her home, 286 North street, this morning, of cerebral embolism. Dr. Louis I. Mason, medical examiner, viewed the remains and gave the above cause of death. The woman had been a resident of this city for over half a century. She leaves three daughters, Mrs. John R. Pickett of this city, Mrs. Frank O'Dwyer of Cambridge, Mass., and Miss Agnes McNamara of this city, one son, William J. McNamara, of Fairbanks, Alaska; a sister, Mrs. Sarah Sullivan, of this city, and several grandchildren.

William A. Robinson

William Andrew Robinson died at the home of William Dubberke in Hampton, Wednesday night. He was born in South Windham, Feb. 5, 1860, a son of William and Anne Puttet Robinson. He is survived by one brother, Albert Robinson, of Rhode Island.

The cases of Eugene St. Hilaire of this city, charged with breach of the peace, and Joseph Franchi of 119 North street, Hartford, charged with driving a car without a license, were continued in police court today until Friday morning. Franchi failed to appear in court, this fact accounting for the continuance in his case. One man arrested as a vagrant was sentenced to three months in jail.

Arthur C. Everest, recently retired from the employ of the American Thread company, has been added to the honor list of the long-service employes of the plant, having served the company for 51 years. Mr. Everest began his employment with the mills when they were known as the Willimantic Linen company. He worked in the twisting department for a few years and was then assigned to the inspecting department, where he was overseer for about 40 years, until his retirement early in May. Mr. Everest is now making his home with his daughter, Mrs. Florence E. Tracy, in Windsor.

Town Tax Collector Albert J. Piche issued notice today that but ten more business days remained in which payment of the extra town tax of and 1-2 mills could be made before 9 per cent interest charges begin to be levied.

An enjoyable lawn party was held at the home of Mrs. Elden Johnson, 117 Chestnut street, this afternoon by the Sorority of the Methodist church. The party began at 3 o'clock and continued on through the evening with an excellent program, including a play by members of the organization. The lawn was festively decorated and equipped with electric lights for the occasion. Mrs. Fred J. Williams of Maple avenue was chairman of the arrangements committee. During the afternoon, Rev. and Mrs. Harold H. Critchlow of Gales Ferry, formerly of this city, were guests at the party.

Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Keegan of 107 Oakland terrace, Hartford, formerly of this city, will celebrate the 25th anniversary of their marriage with a dinner at the Bond Friday evening. They will receive friends at their home Sunday. They were married June 28, 1905, at St. Lawrence's church, Meriden, by Rev. Alphonse Van Oppen. They have two daughters, Elsie and Catherine, and one son, Howard Keegan. Mr. Keegan is assistant manager of the Metropolitan Life Insurance company in Hartford.

The Windham Silk company plant will close for the entire week beginning June 30, during the annual inventory, according to notices posted in the mills.

Rev. and Mrs. Winslow David Lovell, Mr. and Mrs. Henry Fryer, Miss Mabel Slate, the Misses Louise Hawkins and Jessie McLellan, represented the local Baptist church at the annual meeting of the Ashford Baptist Sunday School association held in Danielson, Wednesday. The 1931 convention will be held here.

WEDDING

Brown—Warrender

Miss A. Louise Warrender and S. Benjamin Brown of Storrs were married at the home of the bride's parents, 46 Quercus avenue, at 2:30 o'clock Wednesday afternoon. Rev. T. Hawthorne Jones of Mansfield officiated. The attendants were: Charles Day, cousin of the groom, as best man, and Miss Eleanor Warrender, cousin of the bride, as bridesmaid. Mr. and Mrs. Brown are to reside in this city for a time upon returning from a honeymoon trip over the Mohawk Trail and in New York state.

Dew Ahern, son of Mr. and Mrs. John F. Ahern, and Russell Potter, son of Mr. and Mrs. Sherwood B. Potter, have been in Hartford this week playing in the state golf championship tournament.

Rapid progress is noted in the construction of the new highway from Willimantic to Storrs, through Mansfield Center. With utter disregard for the century-old course of the old highway, gigantic steam shovels have cut their way through wooded knolls and filled swampy hollows in following a new and more direct course over the eight-mile stretch. This type of work is especially in evidence at Spring Hill, where the Lewellyn J. Storrs homestead has been moved several hundred feet so that the highway could be run in a direct line, eliminating the dangerous curves which have existed there, and again a quarter of a mile north of Mansfield Center, where another curve is being done away with, also at the Mueller place, just over the city line, where the new road will take a direct course to the pumping station.

Mrs. Celia Cohen, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jacob Cohen, who is spending the summer at home, is now on a few weeks' visit in Camden, Me., with her accompanist, Miss Sylvia Langman. Miss Cohen has received a scholarship with Frank Bibb, a well-known vocal instructor and coach, of New York, who has a summer home in Camden.

Mr. and Mrs. Albert B. Smith returned tonight from New York. Their son, Parker Smith, has accepted a position with Gilbert, Barker & Co., in Springfield, Mass., to begin work Sept. 1.

The next meeting of the Lions club next Tuesday evening will be designated as guest night and John J. O'Rourke, executive secretary of the chamber of commerce, will be the speaker.

Major Joseph R. Morrison of the First Battalion, 169th Infantry, Captain Ellison S. Smith and Lieutenants Edward A. Morrison and Arthur J. Caisse of Company C, are to attend the regimental officers' school at Hartford Saturday evening.

Mr. and Mrs. Gail B. Shamback have as guest, Miss Sylvia Paquette of Three Rivers, Mass.

Miss Jane F. Ashton and Sigfred Peterson attended the annual outing of the New London County Mutual Fire Insurance company at Norwich Wednesday.

Mr. and Mrs. John F. Ahern have been entertaining Mr. and Mrs. James F. Ahern of New London.

Mrs. Frank Gelinas and Miss Agnes Dion are on a ten-day visit in Springfield, Mass.

Leonard Davis, son of Mr. and Mrs. Maurice Davis, is visiting his sister, Mrs. Peter Kaplan, in Springfield, Mass.

Miss Martha McGowan of Groton is guest of Miss Ida Lewis of Perkins Corner for a few days.

Principal and Mrs. Egbert A. Case and daughter, Virginia, are spending the summer in Norton, N. B.

Mrs. Molly Hempstead is in Chicago, Ill., on a three weeks' vacation.

John Gingras and John W. Sullivan were respectively delegate and alternate from A. C. Tyler camp, No. 8 at the annual state encampment of the Connecticut department of United Spanish War Veterans, held at Rockville today, with sessions Friday.

COMMUNITY AUCTION AT HAMPTON SAT., JULY 5

(Special to The Bulletin)

WILLIMANTIC, June 26.—In the hope of completing the fund necessary for the purchase of an adequate fire apparatus, the town of Hampton will stage a community auction Saturday afternoon, July 5. All of the articles to be sold will be donated by the townspeople and will include a variety of merchandise and goods such as farm tools, household furniture, antiques, and probably some livestock. Deputy Sheriff John H. Fitts will be auctioneer.

The new fire station in Hampton was completed some time ago but has remained vacant, owing to the lack of funds. The town appropriated $1,500 toward a new fire-fighting piece and nearly $2,000 remains of the $3,000 secured by popular subscriptions, the remainder having been used toward construction. The auction committee consists of: John F. Street, chairman; Chief Robert McDermott, Deputy Sheriff John H. Fitts, Frederick Aldred and James L. Goodwin; Mrs. Aldred, Mrs. Eva Dill, Mrs. Florence Nosworthy, Mrs. Alice Hammond and Mrs. Fred Davis.

Mrs. M. Palmer and two sons, Henry and Kenneth, and Miss Dorothy LaZeph, of Hartford, Mrs. Frank Lathrope and daughter, Blanche, of Yantic, leave Monday, June 30, for a motor trip to the middle west. They will visit relatives in Nebraska.

COLUMBIA

Mrs. George Woodward, Mrs. C. V. Wood and Miss Mary Lennox of West Brookfield and Springfield, Mass. called on friends in Columbia Tuesday, and visited the cemetery where Mr. Woodward is buried.

Three young ladies from Waterbury are staying at the cottage owned by Miss Florence Welles.

Mrs. Welles of Hartford visited the McCorkell place Wednesday. Friends of Miss McCorkell will be very sorry to learn that she is still in the hospital, suffering from the effects of a fall down stairs two months ago, and that in all probability she will be unable to open her Columbia home this summer.

Mr. Knofler of South Manchester has opened his cottage at the lake for the summer.

Mrs. Mary Williams went to Brimfield, Mass. Thursday to attend the graduation exercises of the Brimfield high school, her niece, Miss Olive Bagley, being one of the graduates.

Mr. and Mrs. Berkman of Hartford have arrived at Columbia lake for the summer. Mrs. Berkman is Irene Kahn, the pianist, of Hartford.

Mr. and Mrs. E. P. Lyman and Mr and Mrs. Philip Isham motored to South Manchester Wednesday evening to attend the graduation exercises in which Mr. and Mrs. Lyman's granddaughter, Miss Barbara Stoltenfeldt, took part.

The class of 1918, Windham high school, held its biennial reunion Saturday evening at the Nathan Hale hotel, with two members from Columbia, attending, Mrs. Philip Isham and Miss Laura Greene. Mrs. Isham, who wrote the class song in 1918, also wrote a special song for this reunion.

The Columbia pulpit was occupied Sunday morning by Dr. Charles Dickinson, of Boston, who will also supply next Sunday. The Christian Endeavor meeting held Sunday evening was led by Miss Harle Field.

The Columbia pupils graduated Thursday evening from the Windham high school in Willimantic. Clayton Hunt, Jr., and Samuel Price. Clayton Hunt was awarded the medal given by the Rensselaer Polytechnic institute for the highest average in mathematics and science during the junior and senior years.

CHAPLIN

Mrs. Herbert E. Plass and daughter, Jean, of Glen Ridge, N. J., spent two days the past week at their summer home in the village. Herbert Plass, Jr., goes abroad again to spend the summer and his younger brother, George, will go to a camp in Maine for two months.

Stafford Springs

NEARLY 1,200 AUTOMOBILES OWNED IN STAFFORD

(Special to The Bulletin)

STAFFORD SPRINGS, June 26.—Statistics recently published by the Connecticut motor vehicle department for the year 1929 show that there were 1,196 automobiles in the town of Stafford registered during the year. There were 54 accidents, 194 court cases and 2 complaints. In the number of court cases, Stafford is ahead of many neighboring communities. It is thought that this is not due to the fact that operators of automobiles in Stafford are more lawless than elsewhere, but it is probably due to the greater activity of the police in this section. In addition to the local police, the state police barracks is located here and violations of the law are quickly and easily checked.

Several members of St. Edward's parish went to Bloomfield Wednesday evening and assisted in an entertainment given at the annual parish bazaar of St. Justin's parish. Attilio Frassorelli and Miss Mary Smith appeared in dance numbers and Mrs. Helen M. Edson, the Misses Margaret, Irma and Italia Panciera gave vocal selections. Rev. John J. Weldon, curate at St. Edward's church, played the piano for the songs and dances.

Mrs. Frederic Faulkner and Harold W. Bruce have recently purchased lots at the Holland Lake Shores in Holland, Mass.

The Cuban All-Stars defeated the Stafford Kaceys in a poorly played game at Hyde park Wednesday evening by a score of 12-5. The locals were outclassed by the visitors, who scored three runs in the opening inning and led the home boys all through the game. The Stafford team had a number of substitutes in the lineup.

The Girl Scouts have decided to organize a Girl Scout bugle and drum corps. It is planned to have 25 girls in the corps and any Girl Scout who wishes will be given a tryout. Frank A. Lasbury, who so successfully trained the boys' band in Stafford Hollow a few years ago, has offered to teach the girls. It is suggested that any Girl Scout who is not physically strong be examined by a physician before attempting to take lessons in bugling.

Miss Margaret Mullins of Webster, Mass., a former teacher in the local public school, has been the guest of Mr. and Mrs. William Angeley, at their home on High street.

Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Woods and family, of Fisk avenue, Mr. and Mrs. Henry Woods and Mr. and Mrs. Walter Woods left recently for Berlin, N. H., where they plan to spend several days.

Rev. H. C. Beebe, pastor of the Congregational church of West Stafford is a patient at the Peter Bent Brigham hospital in Boston, Mass.

Mrs. Olah Ramsdell is spending several weeks with Mr. and Mrs. Fred Wormstedt, on Furnace avenue.

Miss Elizabeth Damon, of Malden, Mass., has been the guest of Miss Mary I. Newton at her home on East Main street.

Mrs. Joseph Fontanella, of South Manchester, is spending the week with her mother, Mrs. G. Netto, on High street.

Mrs. Bridget M. Carey is visiting at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Louis St. Germaine, Jr., on Curtis avenue.

Wilfred Haigh is enjoying two weeks' vacation from his duties at the Johnson Woolen mill and is visiting relatives in Plymouth, Mass.

The engagement of Miss Florence Esther Huling, of Gaffayette, R. I., to William Herman Schmidt, son of Mrs. Anna Schmidt, of West Main street, has been announced. The wedding will take place Saturday, July 7, at Gaffayette.

William E. Nichols has returned to his duties as station agent for the Central Vermont Railroad Co., after several weeks' illness.

Francis S. Brick and J. Kingsley Converse will assist the pastor in the service of worship Sunday morning at the Congregational church. Rev. Charles D. Kepner will preach on "The Greatest Common Denominator of Religion," including a criticism of the movement of "Humanism."

Mr. and Mrs. George Pallanck, of Minnesota, formerly of Stafford Springs, who recently visited relatives in the borough, have gone to Italy where they expect to spend the summer. They are accompanied by Guido Pallanck, of Meriden.

Mrs. Lionel Bousquet, who recently underwent an operation at the Hartford hospital, is now at her home at Maple Corners and is making a good recovery.

COLCHESTER

BONFIRE AND FIREWORKS PLANNED FOR THE FOURTH

(Special to the Bulletin.)

COLCHESTER, June 26.—The Colchester Fire Co., under Chief Brown, is making arrangements for a real old time celebration here the evenings of July 3rd and 4th. Following a dance in Grange hall, the customary night before the fourth bonfire is to be held on the ball diamond in the Center park. Chief Brown requests that young and old bring old boxes and barrels and before anything is placed on the fire it will be personally inspected by the chief and his assistants to be sure that no valuable property is being destroyed. The 20 members of the fire company will be on hand to keep order.

On the evening of the fourth, a mammoth fireworks display is to be held on the park. Members of the fire company are securing funds by public subscription and several of the public spirited citizens have already contributed ten dollars each. It is thought that the subscription will reach the $250 mark within the next few days. Skyrockets, floral displays, Roman candles and colored mines are only a few of the expected attractions. A greater variety and more elaborate set pieces and floral sprays than in previous years will be provided. Last year the center of the village was filled with automobiles and interested spectators from here and many surrounding towns and in view of the more extensive program planned for this year, a still larger crowd of spectators is expected.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank S. Rathbun of West Hartford visited Thursday with Mr. Rathbun's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas S. Rathbun.

Principal Merle B. Woodmansee of the Dublin district school has left to spend several days at his home in Preston. On July 5 he is to leave for New York to take a course at the New York university summer school.

Mr. and Mrs. Arthur H. Chapman and Charles E. Lyman spent Wednesday at the Chapman cottage, Harbor View, Clinton.

The residences of Mrs. Harriet E. Wickwire and Harold Clark on Hayward avenue are being painted this week.

Miss Sarah W. Bigelow has returned from several days' visit with friends and relatives in Boston.

A large number of students and alumni of Bacon academy gathered in front of Day hall Tuesday evening and enjoyed singing many of the old time school songs, the event being a revival of a custom in vogue over 100 years ago. The front lawn was gaily lighted and many passing motorists stopped to enjoy the program which was the final event of commencement week. Dr. Arthur L. Stebbins led the singing and several of the alumni rendered duet and quartette selections. After the singing, an hour of dancing was enjoyed by the students and alumni inside the hall, with music by the Academy orchestra.

The Bacon academy instructors, Misses Pearl M. Tiffany and Alice B. Condren and Principal John Welles Goodrich are to leave soon to take a course at Columbia university summer school. Instructor Cecil V. Howell is to attend the University of New Hampshire summer school.

HEBRON

Monday afternoon, Dr. Austin Warren, of Boston University, Mass., and who is one of the lecturers at Hebron summer school, became overcome by the rough water at Lake Terramuggus, Marlborough. He was rescued by Rev. Benjamin H. Bissell, D. D., and Dr. Eugene Chase. He recovered shortly afterward.

Charles Ramsay of Boston university, gave the first lecture, June 24, on "Adam Smith." The second lecture, on John Wesley's works and life history, was given by Rev. Benjamin H. Bissell, D. D. Lectures are given every morning in Hebron library, from 9:30 o'clock to 12 noon.

WESTFORD

Children's day services will be held next Sunday at the Hill church.

A home economics club was organized on Westford Hill last Friday. Miss Clara Armitage was chosen leader. Miss Billings of Putnam and Mrs. Coolidge of South Killingly were present and explained the purpose and methods of the organization.

Mrs. Howie has gone to the hospital for treatment.

DANIELSON

POLICE SEARCHING WOODS FOR RALPH E. SHIPPEE

(Special to The Bulletin.)

DANIELSON, June 26.—A man hunt, with Ralph E. Shippee, a youth of about 20, as the quarry was on this afternoon, and all police and such willing citizens as were available, joining in.

Shippee, whose home is at Elmville, escaped late yesterday afternoon from the state reformatory at Cheshire. Shortly afterwards a Ford coupe was reported stolen in Meriden. This may have been merely coincidental to Shippee's escape.

Early this morning, long before day light, a call came to the barracks here from the Willimantic police with the information that a car with a young man answering Shippee's description was noticed proceeding through that city in the direction of Danielson.

State Officers Elton Nolan and H. Theodore Strand set out to checkup and while traveling at high speed based a car that they have good reason to believe was the one in which Shippee was riding, but by the time they could slacken speed and turn their machines about the car had turned off into some side street here in Danielson and the trail was lost.

This afternoon Officer Strand went to the Shippee home at Elmville and discovered the escaped youth there, but before he could get to him Shippee dashed out and made his way into the nearby woods. Other officers were summoned then and the hunt started out in earnest and was destined to last for hours.

Shippee was recommitted to Cheshire only a short time ago for having broken his parole by becoming intoxicated. He was originally sent to the institution for stealing cord wood from Frank Eldridge, resident in the South Killingly district. Prior to that time he had been on probation for being involved in breaking and entering St. Joseph's church at Dayville and St. James' church here in Danielson and robbing poor boxes and votary stands. William Cully, also of Elmville, and about Shippee's age, was involved in the church breaks with him, and was sent to Cheshire for his part in the affair. Cully is also on parole now, and is in town.

Advices from Cheshire today were to the effect that Shippee managed to escape when the vigilance of the guard was relaxed a bit while he was doing outdoor work with other inmates of the institution.

Recover Stolen Goods.

Printed goods totaling 690 yards and of a value of $140 have been recovered by State Officer Royal V. Scranton and State Officer Johnson of the Groton barracks from the homes of Frank King and his father-in-law, Henry Boutiette, and from the home of Louis Cologne and Charles King, brother of Frank. These homes are in isolated sections of the town of North Stonington. The cloth was stolen from the mill of the Glasgo Finishing company from time to time during the past six months.

Recovery of the cloth came about as the result of State Officers Scranton and Johnson visiting the home of Frank King and Henry Boutiette to arrest them on a charge of stealing chickens. The officers found two stolen chickens there. Upon searching the house the cloth was uncovered and later more was found at the home of Cologne and Charles King. Frank King and Boutiette are being held at the county jail in Norwich or presenting in the town court of Griswold yesterday morning. There will be a charge of stealing eight chickens against them, all aside from any prosecution that may be undertaken relative to the cloth.

Last night Cologne was released under bonds of $50. Charles King was in a justice's court in Lisbon last night on a chicken stealing charge and was sentenced to serve 60 days in the New London county jail. There is also a charge pending against him of stealing 372 yards of cloth valued $33. The chickens that Frank King and Boutiette will be charged with stealing were the property of Mrs. Albert Greene of Griswold.

The Judge Was Once An Ump.

You would never suspect it and he never mentions it, but it is a fact nevertheless. Judge W. Benner Woodward was a salaried baseball umpire at one time. They used to pay him $1.50 a game. This was revealed this afternoon when Manager Jeremiah Doyle of the original Wauregan Greys was seeking to re-enlist the judge as umpire for the great reunion game of the Greys and the Jewett City team at Wauregan on the Fourth. Manager Jerry recalled that Judge Woodward used to officiate for him, and do a good job, too, and he would like to have him back in action when the old-timers get together on the holiday. Like all good jurists the judge is reserving decision on the matter, but if he doesn't agree to umpire he may be on hand to see the game. He was a star pitcher for Killingly High school days and also did considerable pitching during the years he was attending Boston university.

FUNERAL

Mrs. Joseph Farron.

This afternoon at the home on North Main street funeral services for Mrs. Joseph Farron were conducted by Rev. Harding W. Gaylord of the Westfield Congregational church, of which she was a member. Relatives and many friends were in attendance. Burial was in Westfield cemetery. The bearers were Clifford H. Starkweather, Wilfrid L'Heureux, Oliver P. Bartlett, George B. Guild, Everett T. Tillinghast and Henry M. Thompson. A. F. Wood was in charge of the arrangements.

Albert Benoit and Albina Benoit, brother and sister and residents of Goodyear, were before Deputy Judge Charles S. Francis in the town court to answer to the charge of taking roses from the highway embankment on Elmville road, north of the state police barracks. They were each fined $1 and actual costs. The fines being remitted they paid a total of $3.40. Mr. Benoit explained that neither he nor his sister knew that the roses were the property of the state, having been set out by the highway department. He had seen other persons taking roses there a few days ago, so did not realize he was breaking the law when he started to pick them. Such, however, was the case. Officials again warn that a law is being violated by picking flowers along highways, or on nearby lands, if permission of the landowner has not been obtained.

A. F. Wood will round out 39 years in the undertaking business in Danielson next Monday. He succeeded to a business established 110 years ago by W. C. Bacon. Mr. Wood told this morning of looking over some old accounts and of coming across one, back 1832, when for the funeral of a little child the charge was $1.44. The records also show that the undertakers charges for the funeral of any adults ran from $12 to $16 or so. Of course no such handsome and expensive caskets were used that many years ago as are in present day use. That long ago narrow pine coffins, often made here on a few hours notice, were the receptacles of the bodies of the dead.

Mrs. Oliver W. Stewart of Chicago is visiting with friends in Danielson for a few days.

PUTNAM

GOBIN APPEALS DECISION OF JUDGE TOURTELLOTTE

(Special to The Bulletin.)

PUTNAM, June 26.—Through his attorney, Samuel B. Harvey of Willimantic, Oliver Gobin of Grosvenordale gave notice of appeal to the superior court of a fine of $2 and costs imposed this morning by Judge P. P. Tourtellotte in North Grosvenordale, when Gobin was found guilty of a charge of assault.

The little basement quarters where Judge Tourtellotte holds his sessions of justice court was jammed to the doors with an interested crowd of spectators who were anxious to see if the case would actually go to trial. Gobin, who is a dairyman, was arrested after he had assaulted Joseph Bruneau, another village milkman. The alleged melee took place early Sunday morning, June 15, and was the result of an argument concerning the ownership of milk bottles in possession of one of the men involved.

Attorney Irving H. Miron of this city acted for the town of Thompson and directed the prosecution. It was mused about the village a few days ago that the case would not be pressed, but arrangements were made to go ahead with the hearing following a consultation between Attorney Miron and Amedee Bellerose, grand juror. The testimony of the plaintiff was submitted to the court through an interpreter, as was that of James Talabac, a Roumanian, who testified in behalf of Bruneau and corroborated Bruneau's statements that Gobin had delivered the initial blow.

Attorney Harvey sought to have the allegation changed from assault to that of breach of peace on the part of both of the milk dealers. This motion was denied by the court after Justice Tourtellotte announced that he was convinced through the evidence admitted, that Gobin had actually committed the offense. Bonds for Gobin's release were arranged for and he will appear in superior court at the September term having criminal jurisdiction.

If plans presently under consideration materialize, Putnam will have in the near future, a modern airport. Three air-minded Putnam citizens, S. Nikoloff of Pomfret street, Whitman Danielson of Putnam Heights and Mrs. F. W. Goodridge of Pomfret are concerned with the project. The John Larned farm on the Pomfret-Putnam road is the site under consideration. Providing plans develop a corporation with a capital of $5,000 is to be formed. As soon as arrangements are completed transfer of the farm land will be officially executed.

The Larned farm is ideally situated for such an utility. Its broad expanse of acreage roll hundreds of yards in all four directions without a single obstruction that would hinder the landing of an airplane.

The action on the part of the Putnam men and the Pomfret woman was prompted to the ever increasing need for an airport in this city. Every day additional ships of the air are passing over the city which is on the direct air route between New York and Boston. The giant cabin ships of the Colonial Air Transport company sail over Putnam in increasing numbers each day as well as other air traffic. At the present time there is no official airport in the vicinity hereabouts Webster has an emergency airport, but that city is not directly located on the established passenger route as is Putnam. Larned field has long been improvised by airmen stopping off at Putnam. Pilots have reported it to have excellent possibilities.

Mrs. A. A. Vonsiatsky, wealthy Thompson resident, has undertaken the leadership for a drive to be launched next week; its purpose being to raise $25,000 for the completion of the nurses home fund of the Day Kimball hospital. The drive, while not officially underway, has already got off to a flying start, there having been pledges to the amount of $2,000 already received. The donation pledges have been made by two separate residents of the county and were made to the effect that $500 could be paid this year and $500 next year. The terms were the same in both instances.

The nurses home, a worth while project doubtlessly, will receive the backing of the entire communities and from surrounding communities where the hospital is serving its needs in a most effective manner.

The drive is to be conducted systematically in order that its results may be those which are already visioned by those supporting the movement. Mrs. Vonsiatsky on next Wednesday, will entertain at luncheon. The primary purpose of the luncheon will be to assemble loyal supporters of the hospital at which time plans for the drive will be formulated. Committees will be appointed and subcommittees composed of men and women representative of Danielson, Woodstock, Pomfret and Thompson will be named to direct the work in their respective communities.

The home fund at present totals $26,000. The home for the nursing staff of the hospital is an urgently needed institution and if the fund can be completed this summer work on the structure will be started this year. Plans have been drafted and an architect's drawing of the building has already been received here, as was stated in The Bulletin some weeks ago. The building will be 76 feet in length and 38 feet wide. It will be three stories in height and will have a sub-basement for the heating plant. Brick construction will be used throughout the exterior portion. Decorations will consist of cast stone trimmings. It will be a type of building highly fire resisting, since the interior as well as the outside will embody fire resisting material wherever possible.

Quarters for the hospital employees will be on the first floor. The floor layout plan will contain 10 sleeping rooms, a recreation room, a laundry, trunk room and kitchenette. A general bathroom with tubs and toilet facilities will be provided. The second floor will house the superintendent's suite, head nurse and housekeepers' rooms, a dormitory for special nurses, a sun porch and parlor.

The third floor will be exclusively devoted to quarters for the members of the nursing staff. There will be a general bathroom with two tubs and a shower arrangement. The structure will be located in the large plot of land on the west side of the hospital.

OBITUARY

Mrs. James H. Converse

Martha Jane Converse, 76, wife of James H. Converse of Thompson, died from heart disease at the home of her son, Louis Converse, on Quadic road, Thompson, early this afternoon. Mrs. Converse, a widely known and highly esteemed resident of Thompson and Putnam, had been in failing health for a number of weeks.

Mrs. Converse was born in Putnam, Dec. 30, 1853, the daughter of Charles Trumbull and Catherine Dean Lincoln. She attended schools in Putnam and North Windham and with the exception of about a year and a half lived here all her life. She was of pleasant and sunny disposition and through her optimistic attitude on life made many friends. Mrs. Converse was born of Colonial ancestry and was a lineal descendant of Jonathan Trumbull, one of the signers of the Declaration of Independence. She made her home in the Sawyer district until a year ago when a fire of mysterious origin destroyed the house. From then until her death today she lived in Thompson. Although apart from the town of her birth she maintained a keen interest in the affairs of the First Baptist church of which she was a member and kept up her many friendships in this section.

She was the mother of five children, four of whom survive her. They are Louis Converse of Thompson, Henry L. of Ring street, this city; Mrs. Dyer S. Elliott and Mrs. Warren E. Logee, both of Thompson.

Rev. W. Arthur Routhier, pastor of St. Anthony's church in Bridgeport, was a visitor here today. Rev. Father Routhier, who is a former curate at St. Mary's church, spent the greater part of his brief stay in Putnam renewing many of his old time friendships and acquaintanceships.

C. A. Boswell of Providence, R. I., a member of the executive staff of Bryant Stratton business college was in this city today on business.

Attorney Samuel B. Harvey of Willimantic was in Putnam today conferring with Putnam members of the Windham County Bar association.

Edward I. Doyle, noted song composer and pianist, was in Putnam today, visiting with friends. Mr. Doyle is handicapped with the loss of his sight but he has overcome this obstacle as is shown by the remarkable manner in which he carries on his work in the field of music. This afternoon and evening he appeared at the Bradley theatre where he played and sang a number of his own compositions.

Auto Fatalities Equal

WASHINGTON—(AP)— For two consecutive four-week periods in April and May, 78 large cities in the country reported 605 deaths from automobile accidents. The greatest number of fatalities for a four-week period, 842, occured in October of last year.

is to speak at the Westfield Congregational church next Sunday afternoon at 3 o'clock in the interest of prohibition and law enforcement. Mr. Stewart is president of the flying squadron and editor of the National Enquirer of Indianapolis. He is an authority on constitutional government and a recognized national leader among the dry forces.

Charles Fitts, 48, Hampton, was being held at the county jail in Brooklyn today in default of $6,000 bonds awaiting a hearing of his case, involving allegations of indecent assault as the result of statements made by four little boys. He was presented in a justice's court in Hampton last evening. A continuance of the matter being granted, Fitts was committed to jail in default of bail.

Fireworks have gone on sale in the borough, and not all the youngsters who have already invested in some are obeying the police ruling that none shall be set off until the morning of the Fourth.

One-day traffic at Jewett City and the delays resulting from it, is handicapping motor coach operators in keeping on schedule time on trips into Danielson from the south.

Approximately $100 was realized at a whist given for the benefit the Haven at Abington at the home of Dr. and Mrs. Robert F. Souther here yesterday.

Mr. and Mrs. A. V. Woodworth were at Norwich yesterday for the outing of the New London County Mutual Fire Insurance company.

United States Senator Frederic C. Walcott of Connecticut may be addressed at Washington, D. C., by young men who are ambitious to win an appointment to either the United States military academy at West Point or the United States Naval academy at Annapolis. There are to be two vacancies at West Point and one at Annapolis during 1931.

Store forces here have it all figured out that they work only one more Thursday afternoon, that of next week until September. The closing will be as general as for the past few years.

E. W. Hayward, who was killed when struck by an automobile at Glendale, Cal., was a past master of Moriah lodge of Masons of Danielson.

CITY STREETS AND STATE ROADS

In dealing with the many phases of street and highway safety, the third annual conference of experts at Washington "believes that the traffic needs and demands upon the streets and highways for the next ten or 15 years should be adequately anticipated and cared for." It points out that from the gain which has taken place in the number of motor vehicles in past years it can be anticipated that there will be a substantial increase at the end of 15 years and plans for street and highway construction should be made accordingly. It insists that "effective and lasting remedies must correct the primary causes of congestion, provide needed additional traffic capacity and coordinate land utilization with traffic and transportation facilities."

The conference points out that adequate control of traffic at important street crossings, enforcement of sound regulations, the marking of through highways, standardized rules for making turns and diverting through traffic around congested districts and removing it from purely local traffic will afford relief and improvement. Furthermore, the widening of roads, the elimination of "bottlenecks" and the construction of encircling streets and thoroughfares around congested districts will help.

These are suggestions which must be taken into consideration by many communities, among which is Norwich. In general, the ideas may well be applied in the building of state highways, for the more traffic can be distributed, or given a chance to reach its destination by other or shorter routes, the less congestion will be created on the trunk lines.

Norwich must do some thinking about diverting through traffic and getting it away from the center of the city where streets are narrow and badly congested. It must give attention to encircling streets which are available but not in as good condition as they should be. It must recognize the possibilities of Talman street, Boswell avenue, Broad street, and the improvement of the highway that will take traffic from the north at Norwich Town via the road past the fairgrounds and send it along south from Trading Cove.

In the same way, the betterment of cross country roads will attract much of the traffic which now has no alternative. With an effort to reduce distance and congestion by providing more usable roads, attention could be given to many sections which need opening up, and greater safety would follow.

THE SUSTAINED VETO

It took time and persistent effort on the part of President Hoover to bring sufficient members of congress to a realization of what they were doing in the way of veteran relief legislation, but it succeeded in causing the house to reverse itself, and gives promise that sound instead of bad legislation will follow.

In the matter of pension legislation congress has been disposed to run wild. It cannot escape the charge that it was more intent upon reaping the benefit election day of what it might do in the way of such legislation of this character than in actually meeting the situation. It was rushing into unwise and unwanted legislation with its eyes on the political effect.

It took courage for the president to combat such an overwhelming majority in both houses, but he was sure of his position and there are many evidences that his attitude, rather than that of congress, appealed to the country. When he took the matter to the people he was able to get a better hearing from the house and in voting to sustain the veto of the Rankin bill the house has taken a commendable move. So much aroused was it that it provided a majority support for the veto instead of the needed one-third.

The prompt presentation of another bill that meets the needs of the veterans and eliminates the unfairness and discrimination that existed in the Rankin measure should result in speedy enactment. It carries the approval of the president, but no one can tell what the senate will do with it. If that body undertakes to load it down with those undesirable features which it insisted upon before, it will not read the sentiment of the country aright and it should encounter opposition in the house sufficient to block it.

RUBBISH DUMPERS

There cannot fail to be much sympathy for a woman non-resident taxpayer of the city of Springfield, whose property has been invaded by those who needed a dumping place for all kinds of objectionable refuse and not only made to look disgraceful but to gain the attention of the board of health, which ordered her to abate the nuisance.

Here is a case where a taxpayer's property has been overrun by others and covered with boxes, cartons, papers, baskets, and refuse of a general character, together with perishable material, apparently from stores, until it has become an eyesore and a menace to health. This was not done with permission of the owner, but without it. What would otherwise be an attractive wooded area has been made decidedly objectionable. The burden has been put upon the owner to dispose of this accumulation. Just what success will follow the effort to have those responsible for it bear the expense of clearing it away is a question, but even though it is accomplished, it evidences an invasion of property rights which is enough to arouse community indignation.

The thought of the dumpers has apparently been to get rid of their rubbish and waste the easiest way possible. Most of it could probably have been burned and thus eliminated, but it would have involved more time and attention than they were willing to give to it. They were content to damage another's property in order to serve their own purposes.

It is a manifestation, on a different scale, of that same spirit that is displayed by picnic parties which are attracted to pretty localities with their lunches during the summer time, enjoy the day in various ways and then depart, leaving the grounds littered with all kinds of rubbish for someone else to clean up. They have had their good time and have no further interest. They are not grateful enough for the use of the grounds to clean them up. They have no regard for those who may follow.

In the Springfield case there has been an invasion of private grounds for detrimental purposes, and those responsible for it deserve to be taught a lesson.

SHIFTING ENFORCEMENT

Since prohibition has been in force it has been recognized that the task of enforcement is by no means a simple one, that plenty of difficulties are being encountered and that instead of being left in the hands of a bureau under the treasury department it should have been placed in control of the department of justice. Service of that kind is much more closely allied with the latter department.

Not until this was brought to attention by the Wickersham committee as the result of its investigations did it get much notice and, even then, then was no mad run to authorize the transfer. But it has been provided for and preparations for the change are going on. The transfer of the enforcement duties to the department of justice necessitates the establishment of the prohibition bureau therein and the appointment of a director.

Federal District Attorney A. W. W. Woodcock of Baltimore has been named for that post. He has been adviser of the Wickersham committee, is familiar with the prohibition problem and is expected to work for a better cooperation between the federal and state authorities in the work of enforcement. That a lawyer should be selected as director may not have been necessary, but it is post in which a lawyer is bound to fit admirably in view of the work involved.

It isn't to be expected that the mere shifting of the enforcement office from one department to another is going to solve the whole problem. Possibly Director Woodcock will meet with no better success than has Dr Doran, the present prohibition commissioner, but he will have advantages which are not possessed by the latter and the expectations are that there will be a smoother operation. It is certain that he will encounter plenty of work, plenty of opportunity for bringing the influence of his office to bear in the task of securing better enforcement, and it will be surprising if there isn't also plenty of criticism because of the inability to overcome the manifest public opposition to the dry law.

Nevertheless, it will provide an additional opportunity for seeing what can be accomplished in the way of enforcement without such handicaps as the work under the treasury department encountered.

VALUE OF RADIO IN FLYING

Captain Kingsford-Smith isn't the only long-distance fliers who has attached great importance to the radio in ocean flying. Others have been equally well convinced of the value of this means of getting information and in keeping in touch with ship and land stations.

There are those who have succeeded without it and there are those who have failed. It doesn't necessarily insure success, for failure has come to those trying to fly across the Atlantic even though they carried wireless equipment. When the time comes, however, when there is uncertainty as to location, when doubt surrounds the compass, when fog is so thick that it is impossible to see, there cannot fail to be a large degree of comfort from the fact that a means of communicating with those who can furnish directions and supplement an uncertain compass is available.

To those who have done no flying or those who have not attempted to wing their way over the Atlantic, there cannot fail to be a strong appeal for the protective advantages of the radio. It is to the ship of the air what it is to the steamship in times of uncertainty and distress. There isn't anything of much more importance to those flying through fog than to know whether they are going in a circle or making headway, whether they are going to be able to find a landing place, and where it is. The flier may or may not be able to call for help and be taken off his plane, as the mariner might be in case of necessity, but he can get and give information as to where he is and where he ought to be, which is oftimes a matter of vital importance.

The flight of the Southern Cross has fully demonstrated the wisdom of having all planes crossing the ocean equipped with wireless and it is to be hoped that its experience will convince all other fliers of its necessity. Its protective advantage is too great to be disregarded.

CASTLES IN THE AIR

"Your castles in the air are very beautiful, Nancy, though unfortunately we can't live in them," remarked Peter Cass. "We have to depend upon facts and figures."

"Facts and figures!" Nancy repeated. "Why shouldn't facts and figures go with castles in the air?"

"Perhaps they ought to, but they don't."

"Then we must wait until facts and figures become true before we can marry?"

"I'm afraid so," returned Peter. He was as anxious as Nancy to speed the wedding day, but there were certain things he must first accomplish. The most important was to increase his limited income.

"No one possibly could be better at facts and figures than you are!" cried Nancy, "so I won't despair."

"They haven't paid very well up to date," observed Peter, a bit ruefully.

To Nancy, who found it difficult to add three columns of numbers several times and have the result come out the same Peter was a wizard.

Peter was a civil engineer and he took such pride in the work that Nancy often said his drafts looked more like engravings than pencil drawings. Hitherto his profession had so completely absorbed him that salary was a minor consideration. Since his engagement to Nancy, however, he had awakened to the realization that two persons cannot live as cheaply as one.

That evening when Peter called he had found Nancy brimming with lively spirits; she had spent the afternoon at a large department store that had a model cottage exhibit charmingly furnished on a limited amount of money plus good taste. Now her mind was teeming with delightful pictures of a cozy, inexpensive home.

Peter listened enraptured to her chatter until, growing sensible that her schemes were destined to remain unfulfilled for the present, he took pencil and paper and getting down to "facts and figures" soon had all her castles in the air tumbling about her ears. But Nancy refused to be discouraged, Peter had ability. What he needed was a chance to prove it. She believed he was too modest.

As Peter was leaving, Nancy exclaimed, "I still have faith in my castles in the air. It will take more than facts and figures to convince me they don't exist."

"I wish they did," he sighed.

One evening a few weeks later when Nancy was expecting Peter, he telephoned to inform her he was engaged on some important work and would not be able to leave the office until late. This went on for some time and the following months Nancy seldom saw him except on Sundays. She knew he was busy with "facts and figures" involving something new, but he offered no explanation as to the nature of the task and she did not question him. He did inform her, however, that his fee would enable them to carry out their long-cherished design and Nancy set happily about preparations for that event.

When his new building finally emerged from under ground and began to climb skyward Peter invited Nancy downtown to celebrate. After luncheon they walked across the city and, standing on a bridge, gazed at the huge girders slipping into place and listened to the music of riveting steel.

"You see, my dear," Peter explained, "all the land the company had to purchase was a narrow strip at the water's edge, another at the western boundary and a certain number of squares between the railroad tracks for foundation pillars. The rest of the building is erected on air rights."

As Nancy gazed she saw in fancy the completed structure rising tier after tier upward toward the sky and suddenly she exclaimed, "Oh, Peter, it was you who tried to convince me that nowadays there are no such things as castles in the air!"—Chicago News.

YOUR HEALTH

Yoghourt

By Amin Khairallah, M. D., Brooklyn. (From Gorgas Memorial Institute)

Yoghourt is a special milk preparation which has become increasingly popular since the war. Its value both as a food and therapeutic agent deserves to be better known for the peoples of the Near East have found it both palatable and healthy for centuries, and the Arab Leben and Armenian Matzoon are simply national names for an international food.

The yoghourt culture consists of three bacteria, namely, Bacillus Bulgaricus, a lactic acid streptococcus, and Bacillus lebenis. The Bulgarian bacillus and the streptococcus are the organisms producing lactic-acid, while the role of the remaining bacterium is not clearly understood. Usually two yeasts are also present, and these produce a little alcohol and aromatic compounds which import the characteristic fragrance and flavour of yoghourt. All bacteria present in properly prepared yoghourt are harmless. Yoghourt probably contains the fat-soluble vitamins and vitamin B derived from the original milk.

Yoghourt is thus a nourishing and sustaining food, and it is well known that Bulgarian peasants, who use sour milk products as a staple food, frequently attain a ripe old age. It is in this respect that Professor Metchnikoff considered such sour milk products as yoghourt to be foods capable of arresting intestinal putrefaction and thus postponing old age. The organisms present in yoghourt not only check the growth of putrefactive bacteria, but ultimately replace them. Since the earliest times mankind has learnt to use yoghourt and similar products as a food, and as a remedial agent for intestinal affections and we can well add it to our "better health" diet.

To prepare yoghourt cow's milk is first brought to the boil and then allowed to cool to 130 degrees F. It is then inoculated with a special culture of bacteria. The liquid is then placed in a bowl, covered with a cloth, and allowed to stand in a warm place for 8-10 hours without shaking. By this time the milk is curdled, and has become pleasantly acid, and after further cooling on ice is ready for consumption.

The use of a pure culture for inoculation of the sterilized milk cannot be over-emphasized. Such cultures can be purchased at any Greek, Armenian, Syrian, Bulgarian or Turkish restaurant, or grocer, or from many dairies. After the first batch has been successfully made, a tablespoonful should be saved to be used as the culture for the next batch, and so on indefinitely. About one spoonful of today's Yoghourt stirred into three cups of milk will make tomorrow's supply.

BURGESS BEDTIME STORY

Jerry Isn't Proud

Sometimes 'tis hard to cling to pride,
E'en though you want to and have tried.

—Jerry Muskrat.

Jerry Muskrat didn't know just when his new family arrived in the snug home in the bank of the Smiling Pool. You see, Mrs. Muskrat had not allowed Jerry to come into the house for several days. At first Jerry had thought this was due to crossness on her part. Being rather good-natured himself, he hadn't minded and had promptly left every time Mrs. Muskrat had sent him away.

The one day as he crept up the long hall to see if Mrs. Muskrat was at home, he heard certain sounds that caused him to stop and hold his breath and listen. Then very, very softly he left by the way he had come. He had a queer feeling, did Jerry. When at last he reached the Big Rock at the Smiling Pool and climbed out of water, he looked back towards the entrance to his home with such a funny look on his face. "I do believe," said he, "that there are babies in there. I do believe I have a family."

After that Jerry hung around his home more than usual. He was waiting for Mrs. Muskrat to come out. At last she did. Of course, she had to come out to eat. "My dear," said Jerry, "why didn't you tell me? How many are there?"

Mrs. Muskrat paid no attention to the first question. To the second she merely answered "Plenty." So Jerry was no wiser than before. Mrs. Muskrat did not stay out long and while she was out she appeared to have something on her mind. Jerry hung around until she had once more gone into the house.

"She might have told me how many there are," said he in a grieved tone of voice, as he swam over towards the Laughing Brook. "I'm their father and I guess I've a right to know. She said that there are plenty, but that doesn't mean anything. That might mean three, or it might mean four or five."

The more Jerry thought it over, the more he wanted to know how many children he had. He began watching his house or the entrance to it, for a chance to slip in while Mrs. Muskrat was out. At last he got the chance. Mrs. Muskrat swam over and disappeared among the bulrushes around the Laughing Brook where it enters the Smiling Pool. Jerry, who had been hiding nearby, took his chance. The instant she was out of sight he swam to the entrance to his home and a second later he was scrambling up the long hall to the snug bedroom at the end.

Now, I don't know just what Jerry expected to find. No, sir, I don't know just what he expected to find, but I am quite certain he didn't find what he expected to. Perhaps he expected to find some cute little babies in fur coats. If he did, he was badly disappointed. Of course, it was dark in there and he couldn't see, but he could feel, and what he felt was a squirming mass of tiny creatures without any fur coats at all. They were just naked and helpless and squirming. How many there were Jerry couldn't tell, but there were more than he had any idea there would be.

Jerry only remained a minute. There was only one way out of there and he didn't want to be caught in there by Mrs. Muskrat. So he got out of there in a hurry. He went over to his favorite place on the Big Rock to think things over. Somehow, Jerry didn't feel at all proud. That mass of squirming, helpless, coatless little babies didn't seem like anything to be proud of. It didn't seem as if they could ever be worth looking at.

A Washington Bystander

By KIRKE L. SIMPSON
Associated Press Staff Writer

WASHINGTON, June 26—President Hoover may have given consideration already to selection of a cabinet successor to Secretary Davis, assuming that Mr. Davis makes the election grade in Pennsylvania in November.

And Mr. Davis expects to do that, and do it as handily as he rolled under Mr. Grundy in the senatorial primaries.

But assuming that the president has given thought to naming Davis's successor, he has given no inkling as to who it might be.

Yet a tentative nomination already is on the books. It occurs in this language, used on the floor of the house:

Praise

"If I were president and if Mr. James Davis were elected senator, I know of no better man who could qualify for the position of secretary of labor than the gentleman from Washington who has studied the problem of immigration and labor so thoroughly and so scientifically.

"Let me tell you, Congressman Albert Johnson, you have played the most important part in calling the attention of the American people to the fact that restricted immigration must come at once to protect the standard and the interests of American labor."

No doubt that sounded sweet in the Johnsonian ears. It is not so often a house member hears such an estimate of his efforts publicly stated. It was all the sweeter for the fact that it came from democratic lips—Dr. William Irving Sirovich, New York city.

Still, a democratic nomination to the Hoover cabinet admittedly butters few political parsnips.

Another Bouquet

While he was at it, Dr. Sirovich, who for once was not making an anti-poison-liquor speech, handed a few bouquets also to another house republican, his New York colleague, J. Mayhew Wainwright.

"For 30 years," he said, "this modest, lovable personality has represented Westchester county in the senate of New York and in congress. It is a great pity this republic of ours is to miss his wise counsel as he has determined not to return to congress next year.

"I sincerely trust that a true servant of the people may realize every ambition in the future that faithful public service entitles him to receive."

Surely the doctor was in an expansive mood that day. One wonders if he would have had as much to say if Mr. Wainwright was still in the race—and with election coming on.

IN THE DAY'S NEWS

Cochin China.

Cochin China, one of the world's chief rice producing areas, again is changing its face. "Once it was a thickly forested area, formed by silt washed down from Asia by the Mekong and other rivers; but the natives routed tigers, leopards, panthers, venomous snakes and crocodiles, and laid out miles of rice fields, studded here and there with banana trees and sugar plantations," says a bulletin from the Washington, D. C. headquarters of the National Geographic society.

"Now the natives are laying out cotton, rubber and cocoanut plantations. Modern agricultural methods are slowly seeping into Cochin China, but the traveler still sees the natives aping their ancestors throughout the colony.

"From a modern boat or luxurious railway coach the traveler sees brown-skinned natives under huge lamp-shade like hats tilling the soil. Their tractors are crooked sticks; their tractors, ungainly water buffaloes. One can ride for many miles in Cochin China and seldom be out of sight of rice fields. Indo-China and Burma are the world's greatest rice producing countries, and in the former, Cochin China ranks foremost.

"Apparently season has nothing to do with Cochin China rice culture. Here is a field being made ready for planting. Next to it is a flooded field planted, but rice sprouts have not yet penetrated the water's surface. In a nearby field young sprouts form a sea of green, hiding the lake. And within eyeshot yellow fields of ripe rice appear ready for harvest.

"Coolies trudge the roads under heavy baskets of rice destined for market. Native boats of all sizes and shapes, from small matting-covered sampans to huge clumsy junks float down the rivers, their bottoms filled with the cereal; and in the Cochin China ports, foreign vessels that have deposited their cargoes of machinery, textiles, automobiles, wine, and other foreign goods, are taking on cargoes of rice that will grace the tables of many lands.

"Mile after mile through the countryside of Cochin China the traveler fails to pass a village. A guide points out one but it is almost hidden by lofty bamboos, poinsettas and rhododendrons. Penetrate the wall of verdure and one comes upon a group of flimsy houses on stilts, peopled by women in gaudy striped sarongs, wrapped about the hips and knotted; naked children, and half-clothed men.

"Capping the southern extremity of Indo-China, Cochin China is but 60 square miles smaller than West Virginia and Delaware combined. If the rivers continue to enlarge the colony as the Mississippi has added acreage to Louisiana, Cochin China will match the areas of these states in a decade.

"Saigon, now capital and largest seaport of Cochin China is not the largest city in the colony. That honor goes to Cholon a neighboring city largely populated by Chinese. But Saigon is, perhaps as well known to mariners and travelers as all Indo-China. It was formerly the capital of Indo-China and still is a mecca for Frenchmen in the east.

"Saigon and Hanoi have been called 'Bits of Paris in the Orient.' True, imposing government buildings rise in gardens laid out by French landscape architects, but Indo-China verdure dominates, while the graceful gabled roofs of oriental buildings form real oriental vistas. The streets are straight, wide and shaded. They bear French names and are traversed by French automobiles; but where there is one automobile, there are a half-dozen rickshaws. Ten thousand foreigners wearing Paris fashions are found in Saigon but they rub elbows with little Ammanite women in black, Cambodian women in bright sarongs, perspiring, half-naked coolies, and native soldiers in blue puttees and khaki uniforms. Tonkinese, Malays and Siamese also mingle in the street crowds.

"French shops display European products on one street, but around the corner, a native store caters to the orientals. In the cafes, the Frenchman finds Paris gaiety but along the many creeks and canals about the city, the traveler is lost in a wholly oriental atmosphere, where streets are lined with flimsy huts, and open-front shops where dried fish, strips of fat, baskets of eggs and loaves of bread hang from the rafters. Women chewing betelnut sell oranges and cocoanuts along the sidewalk. The air reeks with the odor of fish emanating from the native restaurants.

"Cochin China was a part of the Khmer Kingdom from the ninth to the twelfth centuries. It was annexed to Annam until 1867 when it was occupied by the French. Of the five states of Indo-China, Cochin China is the only French colony. The others, Annam, Cambodia, Tonkin and Laos are protectorates."

Stories That Recall Others

Tax Rush.

A firm advertised it would give away certain articles to boys of a certain age recently and before the store was opened for business a long line of boys was on hand. A citizen seeing the boys in line, asked:

"What on earth is the matter, boys?"

One of the small urchins replied: "We're waiting to pay our taxes."

Might Become a Habit.

Billy was one of a large family where the children were accustomed to wait on themselves. Usually he was dressed and out of the house at an early hour. One morning he was found sitting disconsolately on the edge of the bed making no move to dress.

"Why Billy," said his mother, "Why don't you get your clothes on? You are old enough to dress yourself now, you know."

"Yes, I can put my clothes on all right," replied Billy on the verge of tears, "but if I commence to dress myself I'll have to keep it up, and I ain't goin' to do it."

OKLAHOMA SOLON HAD MOTOR BUGGY IN '05

WASHINGTON —(AP)— Rep. J. V. McClintic, Oklahoma, may have been his state's pioneer motorist.

When the state was still a territory, in 1905, he acquired a one-cylinder motor buggy, nick-named "The Success."

"It did everything but live up to its name," he said. "I never did get it outside the town limits. After causing a lot of runaways and making my friends mad I decided it was premature for the west."

The motor was removed and drive shafts attached to transform the car into a horse-drawn carriage.

Travel Time Cut In Half

PARIS—(AP)— Air-rail service between Paris and Bucharest has cut travel time from 47 to 23 hours. The line operates daily except Sunday, on a rate $27 higher than firstclass rail and sleeping car fare.

BERLIN AUTOS INCREASED 4,308 IN SINGLE MONTH

A HISTORY OF CONNECTICUT INDUSTRY
Released by Manufacturers Association of Connecticut

The Frank Parizek Manufacturing Company, West Willington.

In the year 1909 Frank Parizek, a man 41 years of age, began manufacturing ocean pearl buttons in a small wooden mill. His help consisted of his wife, a son, and three other people. They continued for about a year and then, after finding that it did not pay, were compelled to close down.

Mr. Parizek studied the situation, found where he had erred, and began operation anew about half a year later. This time he began with seven employes outside of the family. A daughter now helped the wife sort buttons. Gradually, the business grew and the wooden mill was enlarged.

In 1916 this building proved to be too small and impractical. Consequently a two-story brick structure was erected. In 1922, as business increased, a wing was added. In 1924 the business was incorporated under the name of The Frank Parizek Manufacturing company. All the stock is owned by members of the family. As the industry continued to prosper, another section was added to the factory in 1927. Even this did not prove to be enough and last summer (1929) another very up-to-date addition was made. The corporation now occupies approximately 12,000 square feet, employs over a hundred people, and is one of the largest manufacturers of mother of pearl buttons.

Mr. Parizek was the active head of the business until his death last January. All responsible positions are held by members of the family. The present officers are: Mrs. Anna Parizek, president; Charles Wochomurka, vice president; Emily R. Parizek, secretary; Frank C. Parizek, treasurer; Mrs. Mary Wochomurka, assistant treasurer.

SAYS BON-TONE IS A WONDERFUL SYSTEM REGULATOR

Had Been Ailing Two Years; Six Bottles of Bon-Tone Brought Remarkable Results.

Bon-Tone puts your bodily machinery in motion, and makes you feel wonderful with all your vital organs functioning as Nature intended them to.

Bon-Tone tones up the digestive organs until they give off the required amount of gastric juices to digest your food properly. It wakes up a lazy liver, stimulating it to greater activity, and regulates the flow of bile. It also acts on the kidneys and bowels; in fact, each and every herb in Bon-Tone assists the others and combines to form a tonic, system cleaner, and alterative of the highest type.

Mrs. John Kustar of 58 Madison street, Waterbury, Conn., says: "For the past two years I had been ailing. My stomach became all out of order; and after eating, gas would form and crowd around my heart. Sometimes I would wake up in the middle of the night with pains around my heart due to this gas; and I would not be able to go back to sleep until I took something to relieve me of the gas. My blood circulation was very poor, too; as my hands and feet felt numb all the time. I also had severe attacks of dizzy headaches.

"I read in the paper about others who had gotten such good results from Bon-Tone, that I decided to try it. I have now taken only six bottles of this medicine, and my stomach is better, and the numbness in my hands and feet is fast disappearing, as are the headaches. I think Bon-Tone is a wonderful system regulator, and I will be glad to recommend it to anyone."

There is a Bon-Tone Man in Norwich at Smith's Pharmacy. Stop in and have a talk with him and start on the Bon-Tone treatment today.

Bon-Tone is also for sale by all leading druggists everywhere.

RELIEF FROM CURSE OF CONSTIPATION

A Battle Creek physician says, "Constipation is responsible for more misery than any other cause."

But immediate relief has been found. A tablet called Rexall Orderlies has been discovered. This tablet attracts water from the system into the lazy, dry, evacuating bowel called the colon. The water loosens the dry food waste and causes a gentle, thorough, natural movement without forming a habit or ever increasing the dose.

Stop suffering from constipation. Chew a Rexall Orderlie at night. Next day bright. Get 24 for 25c today at the nearest Rexall or Liggett Drug Store.

MUSICIANS' CLUB RAIDED BY NEW LONDON POLICE

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, June 26. — The Musicians' club, Gardo theatre building, state street, was raided tonight by the local police and J. Nicholas Dunz, alleged proprietor, was arrested charged with violation of the liquor law, keeping with intent to sell and possession. He was later released on bail of $1,000, furnished for his appearance in the police court tomorrow morning. The club room was raided about six months ago and at which time Dunz's brother, Charles, was prosecuted, being fined $400 and costs. The raid was conducted by Sergeant John Courtney, Automobile Patrol Officer George Cockell and Patrolmen Michael Dorsey, Arthur Feeley and Frank Philopena.

Peter Morse, 107 Washington street, was arrested tonight charged with violation of the city's parking ordinance and will be presented in the police court tomorrow.

Isabel Gorra, 123 Bradenburg avenue, was arrested this evening, charged with parking overtime on State street. She posted the customary bond of $2 and will be presented in the police court tomorrow morning.

EXPLAINED THAMES RIVER NAVIGATION TO LIONS

The weekly luncheon meeting of the Norwich Lions club was held Thursday noon at the Wauregan hotel with Lion Joe French as the speaker. He gave a brief talk on the markings in the channel of the Thames river and also spoke of the deep and shallow places between here and New London.

Vice President Charles Solomon presided at the meeting in the absence of the president, Charles W. Cassidy. The song leaders were Dr. Kopland K. Markoff and Jean Kieffer.

The hearings assigned were the following: Goldberg Rubber Tire company for permission to install four more gasoline pumps at the corner of Franklin and Willow streets; Berkman Bros. for permission to establish a gasoline filling station, with four pumps, at a location on the Willimantic highway at Yantic, and Harrington and Son, for permission to erect a building at about 695 Boswell avenue for a monumental works.

OBITUARY

Mrs. Charles Class

The death of Lillian Charbonneau, wife of Charles Class, formerly of Norwich, occurred Thursday morning at her residence in Boston, in her 49th year. She was a resident of that city for the past four years, going there from Norwich, her native city. She has many warm friends here who are left to mourn her loss.

Besides her husband, Mrs. Class is survived by her mother, Mrs. Olivia Charbonneau of 37 Penobscot street, two sisters, Miss Louise Charbonneau of Watertown, Mass., and Miss Minna Charbonneau of this city and six brothers, Fred, William and Clovis of this city, Charles of New York, George of Chicago and Joseph of Central Village.

William Paisley

William Paisley, formerly of Taftville, died Thursday afternoon at South Norwalk where he was engaged in the drug store business. He was about 57 years old.

While a resident of Taftville, Mr. Paisley worked as druggist at the Taftville pharmacy, Front street, moving to South Norwalk about 25 years ago. His father, Ennis Paisley, who was overseer at the Ponemah mill for a long time, died in Norwich in 1921 shortly after his retirement from active work.

Surviving him are four daughters, Misses Elizabeth, Vicia and Phyllis Paisley, and a married daughter, who was Miss Lillian Paisley, and a son, William Paisley, all of Collinsville, Pa. He also leaves a brother, John Paisley of Kittery, Me., and a sister, Mrs. William Hall of 70 Hamilton avenue. His many friends in the Taftville section of the city and here will learn of his death with profound sorrow.

FUNERALS

Mrs. Patrick H. McNamara

Funeral services for Mrs. Patrick H. McNamara of Quincy, Mass., were held at 8:30 o'clock Thursday morning at the home of her daughter, Mrs. James J. Sherry, of No. 65 Union street. At the requiem mass in St. Patrick's church at 9 o'clock, Rev. James Dargan was celebrant and the music was in charge of Mrs. Bernard C. Coyle. Pie Jesu was sung by Roderick F. Sullivan at the offertory and Lead Kindly Light as a waiting hymn. Chopin's Funeral March was played at the recessional.

Burial was in St. Mary's cemetery and the bearers were Michael J. Curran, Alex J. Kilroy, Michael Bray and Herman F. Arenditz of Quincy, Mass. The funeral was attended by a large gathering of mourners, including people from Somerville, Naugatuck and Quincy, and the floral tributes were numerous and beautiful. The funeral arrangements were in charge of Undertakers Hourigan Bros.

Mrs. Konstanty Walicka

Funeral services for Mrs. Konstanty Walicka, who died suddenly at New London Tuesday morning, were held at 8:15 o'clock Thursday morning at her home on Chicken road, Versailles, followed by requiem high mass in Divine Providence church, Norwich, at 9 o'clock. Rev. F. Miklaszewski of New London and Rev. Fr. Lesniak of Norwich officiated at the mass. The music was in charge of Miss Frances Kslazek.

Burial was in Divine Providence cemetery, Norwich, and the committal services were read by Rev. Frs. Miklaszewski and Lesniak. The bearers were Joseph Grabowski, Anthony Stefanoski, Alexander Grabowski, John Ishicki, Joseph Radowicz, Wincenty Kulas. There was a very large attendance of relatives and friends and the floral tributes were numerous and beautiful. Undertaker J. Wojtkowski was in charge of the funeral arrangements.

On Commission With Mayor Robbins

County Commissioner Robert J. Smith, of Manchester, has been appointed by the governor a member of the commission to investigate state, county and municipal pensions plans. Mayor Lee Roy Robbins is a member of this commission.

REV. JOSEPH H. KING'S SILVER JUBILEE OF HIS ORDINATION

REV. JOSEPH H. KING.

Rev. Joseph H. King a native of Norwich, who has been pastor of St. Francis Xavier Catholic church at New Milford since 1921, is about to celebrate there the 25th anniversary of his ordination to the priesthood at the cathedral at Tarnow, Poland, June 29, 1905, by Bishop Leon Walenga.

The first of the special anniversary events will be a "jubilee hour" this (Friday) evening for the children of St. Francis school at the school auditorium. The following is the programme to be carried out:

Spring's Approach, orchestra; primary graduates, 1st and 2nd grade pupils; baseball, fourth and fifth grade pupils; Old Black Joe, James Carroll and Helen M. Meloy, accompanists, E. Maxwell, M. Hulton, J. Hulton; spiritual bouquet, third and fourth grade pupils; mystical gifts, fifth grade pupils; march, Brilliant Camp, orchestra.

On Sunday morning the men of the parish are to go to holy communion in a body at the 7:30 mass for the intention of Rev. Fr. King, in tribute to his building up the Holy Name society and Knights of Columbus.

On Sunday there will be masses at the church at 7:30, 9 and 11 o'clock, DST., the last being a solemn high mass of thanksgiving celebrated by Father King, assisted by Father James Travis and Father James J. Tyler, formerly stationed at New Milford with Father King. Rev. D. F. Sullivan will be master of ceremonies and Rt. Rev. Msgr. M. H. May, of St. Patrick's church, Norwich, will preach the sermon.

Arrangements are being made for an attendance that will overflow the church. There will be seating capacity for 800 and it is expected there will be unusually large attendance of friends of the priest from Torrington.

Lunch will be served the guests of Father King in St. Francis hall, in charge of a band of women of the church, with the co-operation of the women of the mission church in Brookfield.

Parking of visitors cars will be in back of the high school on Main street and the Center school, which is opposite St. Francis rectory.

A dinner for the priests will be given in the dining hall of Canterbury school on Wednesday, July 2, at 12:30 p. m., DST.

Wednesday evening, July 2, at the town hall in New Milford, a parish entertainment will be given to Father King, after the entertainment an orchestra will play dance music. J. Leo Murphy will be the master of ceremonies.

Rev. Father King is the son of the late Daniel King and Winifred Egan, former residents of the East Side section of this city. He was born in Norwich, Nov. 6, 1882, and following the death of his parents he made his home with his grandmother, the late Mrs. Margaret Egan and was also cared for by his aunt, Mrs. Margaret Egan McCaffrey. He is the nephew of William R. Egan of 89 Cliff street, Norwich, and James T. Egan of the Shannon apartments.

He graduated at St. Patrick's parochial school in 1895 and at Norwich Free Academy in 1899. This was followed by study at Niagara university where he graduated in 1901 and he then went abroad for study at University of Lemberg, 1901-1903, and the Diocesan seminary Tarnow, Poland, 1903-1905. He was ordained June 29, 1905 at the cathedral in Tarnow by Bishop Leon Walenga.

Rev. Father King celebrated his first mass in his home church, St. Patrick's of this city, Aug. 13, 1905, and was assigned to St. Francis church, Torrington, in that year, continuing there until 1919. For the next two years he was at St. Bridget's church, Moodus, and since 1924 has been at the church in New Milford.

He is affiliated with the Elks, Knights of Columbus, Lions' club, Holy Name society, and Commercial club of New Milford, and is chaplain of Canterbury school, a Catholic preparatory school under lay auspices with the patronage of Bishop Nilan.

ST. FRANCIS XAVIER CHURCH, NEW MILFORD

The St. Francis parish property, consisting of the church building, the school and convent, and the cemetery, has been developed and beautified during his pastorate and kept up to its present fine condition. Included in the developments during this pastorate have been the enlargement of the cemetery and the building of a new vault, which is a model of utility and beauty. The cemetery has been completely fenced and Father King established the annual visit to the cemetery as a parish action on Memorial day. The old Inglesida school building was purchased from Verton Staub and once again devoted to school uses. Rev. Father King brought the Franciscan nuns of Allegheny to New Milford to teach and also brought the Holy Name society to a strong position in the parish through his interest in its work. He has always been interested in community activities and has brought about a very fine friendly feeling between Catholics and non-Catholics.

WESTERLY DRIVER ARRESTED AFTER CRASHING HYDRANT

(Special to The Bulletin)

WESTERLY, June 26.— About 10 o'clock tonight an artificial geyser spouted when a hydrant in front of 61 Oak street was struck by a Dodge truck reported as driven by John DeSantis, the operator of a variety store at 66 Oak street. Waterworks employes shut off the water, but before this the street became a miniature river and water continued to flow down Oak street hill in the gutters.

Patrolman Paul McCarthy was unable to locate the driver, who had left the vicinity and could not be found at his home when the officer called. The blow struck was a glancing one which broke the hydrant off near the ground, and the right side of the truck had bent mudguards and a twisted frame.

Later, on direction of Lieutenant George H. Champlin, Officers McCarthy and Button visited the store and found DeSantis lying asleep on the floor under the counter. He was taken to the Westerly police station to answer to a charge of leaving the scene of an accident and possibly drunken driving.

While a crowd was gathered in front of the store and the officers inside, Antonia Sposato passed the scene in a Ford car and asked what the trouble was. At that time a front wheel came off and he had troubles of his own.

DECLINES BACTERIOLOGY APPOINTMENT AT STORRS

(Special to The Bulletin.)

STORRS, June 26.—Dr. L. A. Bradley, assistant professor of bacteriology at Massachusetts Agricultural college, has declined to accept the appointment recently offered him as head of the bacteriology department at Connecticut Agricultural college, it was announced here today. Dr. Bradley was expected to succeed Professor-emeritus William M. Esten, who will retire on September 1, but instead will retain his position at the Massachusetts institution. His refusal to accept the appointment came as a surprise, but it is stated that the Massachusetts college presented a more advantageous offer.

ONE WIFE IN NORWICH ANOTHER IN HARTFORD

Noat Cooper, 29, gypsy horse-trader, left his wife and home in Hartford on May 27. He disappeared within an hour after the arrival in Hartford of wife No. 1 from Norwich. Cooper is now wanted by the police on a warrant alleging bigamy.

In 1923, Cooper married Mary E. Daines in Norwich and disappeared shortly afterward. In 1928 he married Jennie LaBlanc in Middletown, N. Y. it is said, and they moved to No. 92 Retreat avenue in Hartford. Cooper was missed soon after he learned that his first wife had called at his home and had talked things over with his second wife.

SUES PROMPTER'S ESTATE FOR HOUSEKEEPING SERVICES

The late Edwin L. Tinkham of Hanover, long well known as a prompter at country dances, failed to keep a promise he made, according to Mrs. Charlotte E. Simms of Sprague, and on that account she has brought suit against his estate in the superior court.

This promise, she claims, was that he was to make a codicil to his will providing that if he died before she did she was to receive the life use of his estate, because she gave up her work as a practical nurse in Hartford, applied for a divorce from her husband who had deserted her, and came to Tinkham's home in Hanover to be his housekeeper and take care of him for the rest of his life. She got her divorce in Hartford, Feb. 7, 1930, and she carried out her part as housekeeper at Tinkham's home, she claims, from the latter part of June, 1929, to July 29, 1929, when Tinkham died. He made no codicil to his will and the Thames Bank and Trust company, which is administrator, has disallowed the claim she has made against the Tinkham estate.

Mrs. Simms asks the court for a decree directing the defendant to pay to her the income of the estate of Edwin L. Tinkham during her lifetime and such other relief as to equity may pertain.

MYSTIC TELEPHONE MAN RETIRING AFTER 35 YEARS

George D. Johnson, manager of the telephone exchange at Mystic will retire from the company July 1 after thirty-five years of service.

Mr. Johnson was born in Liverpool, Nova Scotia, on December 15, 1861. He followed the sea when a young man but after being shipwrecked seven times left this vocation for the business of drayman for a time.

He entered the employ of the Western Union in 1886, and later he was promoted and transferred to Norwich. During this period he married and soon after was transferred to Willimantic.

On December 9, 1895 he reported in Hartford to the Southern New England Telephone company with whom he has been all these years working as lineman, gang foreman, repairman, installer, chief operator and his present position as stock clerk, wire chief and exchange operator. He came to Mystic on July 4, 1900 when the business in that exchange consisted of 124 phones. Setting 100 new subscribers a year for a mark. Mr. Johnson has worked the exchange up to the present 2,204 phones and it is still growing.

AIRPLANE SOUTHERN CROSS FLEW OVER NORWICH

Many Norwich people had an opportunity to see Capt Kingsford-Smith airplane, Southern Cross, as she winged her way over Norwich about 5:25 o'clock Thursday afternoon on her way from New Foundland to New York, from where she will take off for the west coast. The ship was first reported seen flying over Fox Hill by a number of boys, who could decipher the big letters on it. After passing over the city the airplane followed the Thames river for a distance and then headed in the direction of New York. It was due to arrive there at 6 o'clock in the evening.

BANKERS ARRIVING FOR EASTERN POINT CONVENTION

Bankers from various places in New England were arriving Thursday at the Griswold hotel at Eastern Point for the convention of the New England Bankers' association, which begins today (Friday) and continues Saturday.

Annual meetings of the Connecticut Bankers' association will precede the convention. The annual meetings will be in the morning and officers will be elected by each association. Earle W. Stamm, vice-president and cashier of the National Bank of Commerce, of New London, is president of the Connecticut association.

Many bankers from this city are to attend the meeting of the Connecticut association and the big convention.

A banquet will be held Friday night, with Lieutenant-Governor Rogers as toastmaster. The business session of the New England association will be Saturday morning. Saturday afternoon delegates and guests will cruise on Long Island sound. A stop will be made at the Fishers Island Country club and a motor trip around the island will be made. The 245th Coast Artillery of the New York National guard will present a review at Fort Wright.

LITTLE GIRL DIES FROM AUTO ACCIDENT INJURIES

Helen Nawrocki, 6, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Peter Nawrocki of Yantic, died at 2:10 o'clock Thursday afternoon at the Backus hospital, as the results of injuries received Wednesday evening in an accident at Yantic. The driver of the machine, into which she ran and was then thrown to the highway, was William C. Kendall, who resides at the Y. M. C. A. dormitory. Her death was from concussion of the brain and other injuries.

The accident was caused when the child in company with other children, who were following an empty hay wagon in charge of Gene Rogers of Yantic, ran out from behind it into the approaching machine. The little girl was rushed to the hospital by Ex-Senator Hermon J. Gibbs of Yantic and his son and remained on the danger list there until her death.

According to Coroner Edward G. McKay and Constable Lucius Fenton who made an investigation the accident was unavoidable.

Besides her parents the child is survived by four brothers and a sister.

HEROIC MONTREAL PRIEST WAS WELL KNOWN HERE

Rev. Raymond Cloran, S. J., prefect of discipline at Loyola college, Montreal, who lost his life in the St. Lawrence river on June 24 in a heroic effort to save two young girls from drowning, was a nephew of the late Joseph A. Cloran, formerly a well known Norwich real estate operator.

Rev. Raymond Cloran was well known to many Greeneville people and had been a frequent visitor at the home of the Curran family on Eleventh street, as Annie Curran, now Mrs. Joseph E. Burns of 45 Grove street, was for many years a nurse in the Cloran family.

Joseph Cloran was the owner of much real estate in Norwich about ten or twelve years ago, and was a member of the Elks and other organizations.

CHARGED WITH PASSING CHECK THAT WAS NO GOOD

Arrested Wednesday evening by State Policeman Donald Brown of the Groton barracks on the charge of passing a worthless check, Henry C. Russell, 38, of Montville, was presented in the city court Thursday morning. His case was continued to July 21 to allow him time to raise the money to make good the check and pay $3.50, the costs of the court. Russell purchased a suit at the store of Albert Spinosa, Broadway, and in payment for it gave a check for $22.50. When the merchant tried to cash the check at the bank it was found there were no funds to cover it, so he asked for Russell's arrest. The purchase was made last February.

MADE AERIAL GUNNERY TESTS AT GROTON PORT

Lieutenant Charles Wright, accompanied by Corporal Frank Bednarz of the first observation squadron at Mitchell field, flew one of the national guard Falcons to Groton this week to test the forward and rear machine guns mounted on the plane in preparation for the aerial gunnery training to be incorporated in the camp this year. Corporal Bednarz was detailed to the Hartford air unit to supervise the installation of the guns and to care for them during the camp period at Groton from July 5 to 19.

Captain Harry Generous, deputy commissioner of the state department of aeronautics flew to Groton for a department inspection at the commercial field there.

TO REIMBURSE STATE FOR WORLD WAR PROPERTY

A bill "to grant relief to those states which brought state-owned property into the federal service in 1917" went through the senate Wednesday afternoon. It passed the house about three weeks ago. Certain official rulings some time ago held up reimbursements then under way to the states for this property, which was brought into the federal service during the war by National guard units. This bill is aimed to straighten out the situation and make certain all states are reimbursed in full. The militia bureau has given Connecticut credit to the extent of $54,403 for state-owned property it brought in after July 3, 1917.

ORDER COUPONS FOR BROADCAST BOOKLET

The recent Norwich broadcast series, sponsored by the chamber of commerce and attracting so much favorable comment and interest, is bringing many inquiries and orders to the job department of The Bulletin for the booklet in which the broadcast will be printed in its entirety. Orders for the booklet are coming from points as far away as England and from all parts of the United States.

For the convenience of those wishing to secure the booklet when it is issued about Aug. 1, order coupons are available at The Bulletin business office and also at Fagan's Smoke shop where they can be filled out to obtain delivery of the booklet.

$1,250 FINE AND JAIL FOR WATERFORD BOOTLEGGER

Before Judge Warren B. Burrows, in United States district court at Hartford Thursday, Samuel Santanello, implicated in a liquor raid made in Waterford, April 24, was fined $1,250 and sentenced to one month in jail. The still seized in the raid was one of the largest ever found in the state, and had a capacity of some 3,000 gallons. Storage vats for 275 gallons were found along with three carloads of molasses. Eight barrels of molasses were being delivered from a truck at the time the raid was effected. Attorney Danaher said that Santanello was not the prime mover in the business, but inasmuch as the man refused to talk or implicate others, he would not recommend clemency to the court.

WEDDINGS

Moorecroft-Lee.

Miss Dorothy Lee, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Storrs Lee, of Hanover, and Arthur O. Moorecroft, son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Moorecroft of Hanover and Sherbrooke, Ontario, were united in marriage Thursday afternoon at the old Lee homestead in Hanover. The ceremony was performed by Rev. Levi P. Rowland, of Detroit, first Y. M. C. A. secretary in the United States and cousin of the bride. He was assisted by Rev. Dwight C. Stone.

The Misses Faith C. and Ruth C. Lee, sisters of the bride, were maids of honor and W. Storrs Lee, brother of the bride, was best man. Sixty guests were present.

The parlor in which the ceremony was performed was banked with Dorothy Perkins roses and laurel. The dining room and other parts of the house were decorated with delphinium roses and bachelor buttons. The bride was dressed in white chiffon with veil trimmed with orange blossoms. She carried a shower bouquet of bridal roses and babies breath. The bridesmaids were dressed in flowered chiffon, carrying bouquets of delphinium and talisman roses. The couple left for a trip into Canada immediately following the wedding. They will later make their home in the Lee homestead at Hanover.

Mrs. Moorecroft is a graduate of Norwich Free Academy, in 1923.

The groom attended school in Sherbrooke. Among the presents received by the bride were silver, pewter, glass, pyrex, linen, pictures, money, electrical appliances and china.

Out of town guests present were from Detroit, Darien, Worcester, Norwich, Danielson, Manchester and Glastonbury.

Buteau—Caron

Miss Alvea Agnes Caron, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Noe Caron of High street, Baltic, became the bride of George Buteau of Valley Stream, N. Y., at a pretty June wedding solemnized Wednesday morning at 9 o'clock at St. Mary's church, Baltic. The ceremony was performed by Rev. William T. O'Brien with Rev. Thomas Lynch as deacon, and Rev. A. A. Jalbert, sub-deacon. Miss Nellie Milner, the church organist, was in charge of the music.

The couple had as their attendants Miss Medora Buteau, sister of the groom, and Alme Caron, the bride's brother.

The bride, who was charming in a French frock of Alencon lace with hat to match, carried a shower bouquet of Columbia roses. Her bridesmaid was gowned in figured chiffon and her bouquet was of talisman roses.

Following the ceremony a wedding breakfast and reception was held at the home of the bride's parents. And later in the day Mr. and Mrs. Buteau left on a honeymoon trip to Niagara Falls. As a going away costume Mrs. Buteau wore an ensemble of blue silk. On their return, in about two weeks, the happy couple will make their home at Valley Stream where the bridegroom conducts a drug business. They will reside in a newly built and furnished home. The bridegroom is the son of the late Mr. and Mrs. George Buteau, former residents of Baltic.

Among the many gifts received by the bride was a new automobile from the groom. Her gift to Mr. Buteau was a billfold and to their attendants the couple presented gold pieces.

Among the guests at the wedding were Dr. and Mrs. McLaughlin of Danielson, Mr. and Mrs. Henry Benson of Hartford and George Caron of Waterbury.

Kenig—Feister

Miss Ida Feister, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Solomon Feister of No. 51 Fairmount street, was united in marriage with Hyman Kenig, son of Mr. and Mrs. Isaac Kenig of No. 71 Mechanic street, here last Sunday, by Rabbi Morris Tonkel. The bridegroom is employed as a clerk at the Norwich postoffice.

DIED

At the Age Women Dread

"Three years ago I was in bed three months with a nervous breakdown. After that I had to lie down often. I have four children, the youngest 21, and I board two little schoolgirls. I try to keep my home as a mother should but I am at the age so many women dread. Since taking six bottles of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, I feel 100% stronger. I am not so nervous and my appetite is better."—Mrs. Della Hutsell, 623 East 1st Street, Casper, Wyoming.

CORNELL SPRINGS BIG UPSET WITH SMASHING VICTORY AT POUGHKEEPSIE

POUGHKEEPSIE, N. Y., June 26.—(AP)—Shades of Old Man River, Old Pop Courtney and the rowing glory that is again Cornell's!

In one of the most spectacular, dramatic comebacks the Hudson has ever known, Cornell's big Red crew made a show of the greatest fleet in intercollegiate regatta history this afternoon, winning the four-mile varsity race for the first time in 16 years to again rule the waves that the Ithacans dominated so long in the palmy days of the late Charles E. (Pop) Courtney.

Substitute Stroke In

Stroked by a 19-year-old sophomore, Robert M. Wilson, of Montclair, N. J., pacing the first big college race of his career as a substitute, Cornell fought off a smashing challenge by Syracuse to win by three good lengths.

Cornell took command of the varsity race shortly before the halfway mark was reached after the surprising Massachusetts Tech crew, competing in the regatta for the second time, had set a sensational pace from the start. From the two-mile mark on, Cornell shook off M. I. T., and was unchallenged except by Syracuse for the rest of the long route, drawing away from the gallant Orange boatload in the last mile.

M. I. T. Finishes Third

Massachusetts Tech, hanging on gamely, finished third, six lengths behind Syracuse but two good lengths ahead of California, which finished fourth. Two lengths behind the Golden Bears came Columbia, 1929 champions, in fifth place, with Washington, hitherto unbeaten and the outstanding favorite of the entire fleet, finishing sixth. The Huskies were three lengths in front of Pennsylvania, which in turn had a length and a half over Wisconsin. Trailing as they shipped a big load of water over the last mile and a half, the highly touted Naval academy eight, favorite of the east, gave up the struggle when within a furlong of the finish. Slowly the Middies sank as Old Man River again exacted a heavy toll among the leading contenders.

Cornell, outriding the waves and outrowing all rivals, not only lifted the blue ribbon prize of the regatta for the first time since 1915 but came within a few seconds of actually sweeping the river as the Ithacans divided the first two races of the regatta with their upstate rival, Syracuse.

Cornell Also Wins Jayvee Race

Cornell scored a smashing victory in the three-mile junior varsity race, beating the favored Washington Jayvees by five and one-half lengths, and Syracuse captured the two-mile freshman honors, with Cornell in second place two lengths behind.

Trailing Cornell and Washington in the junior varsity race, were Columbia, Syracuse, Pennsylvania and Navy. In the freshman event, behind Syracuse and Cornell, came Columbia, Pennsylvania, Washington, California, Navy and Massachusetts Tech.

Washington, favorite in the Jayvee event, was soundly whipped by Cornell and even more convincingly beaten in the varsity struggle after finishing fifth in the freshman event. California was sixth in the freshman race, more than a length behind their rivals, but gained some revenge over the Huskies by taking fourth place in the varsity battle, more than four lengths in front of the Washington crew that had beaten the Golden Bears for the Pacific coast championship.

Twenty-three crews, the greatest array in the history of the regatta, went to the starting stakes in the three races.

Tech Takes Lead

From the outset of an exciting battle, the advance dope was spilled as the rugged M. I. T. crew in its trim, black shell, shot out into the lead over a flock of favorites. The Navy perhaps held a slight edge for the first few hundred yards, due to a perfect getaway, but the Tech Engineers were out in front after a half mile and they had an open water advantage over the field at the mile mark.

For this part of the route, Navy, Washington, California and Columbia, all figured very much in the racing, were blanketed. Cornell, off somewhat raggedly, nevertheless was the first to challenge Tech and when the big Red crew, with its new and comparatively inexperienced young stroke oar, Wilson, went out in front just short of the two-mile mark, they stayed out there.

At two miles, Cornell had a half length lead over the fighting, gallant Tech boatload that refused to admit it was licked. It was three-quarters of a length at the two and one-half mile mark, where Syracuse for the first time began to make itself answered as a real contender. As M. I. T. dropped back slowly, Syracuse came on with a rush and Cornell had to spurt to hold an advantage of a length as they swept under the high railroad bridge, entering the decisive last mile. The Orange, however, had shot its bolt in a sensational effort to catch the Ithacans and Cornell went on to widen its margin steadily in the last triumphant mile. In the last half mile alone Cornell doubled its lead with a spurt that had the rest of the fleet distanced, with many of them also waterlogged and on the verge of swamping.

Time 21 Mins., 41 Secs.

Cornell's time for the four miles, 21 minutes and 41 seconds, was more than three minutes behind the record set by California in winning the 1928 race. It was Cornell's 14th victory in the varsity race since 1895, although the first for the Ithacans since they whipped the famous Stanford crew in 1915.

In the freshman race, Syracuse came with a great rush in the last mile to win for the second straight year.

In the junior varsity race, Washington's favorites got the jump and led for the first half but quickly yielded to Cornell's smashing boatload, which went on to win as it pleased. These two were the only contenders at any stage. Columbia was third, two and one-half lengths behind Washington.

YANKEES TAKE FREE SLUGGING GAME FROM INDIANS

NEW YORK, June 26—(AP)—The Yankees presented Herb Pennock with his seventh victory of the season today and the pitching leadership of the American league by outslugging the Cleveland Indians to win the series opener, 13 to 11.

Pennock was unsteady at times and finally was removed from in the eighth inning, but the Yanks had piled up too big a lead for Cleveland to overcome. Five of the Cleveland runs off Pennock were results of home runs, Seeds and Hodapp each hitting one with a man on base and Averill did the trick with empty bases.

Tony Lazzeri went them one better in the fourth inning just after Wes Ferrell, Cleveland ace, had been driven from the mound. Tony welcomed Holloway with a homer with the bases loaded. The score:

RED SOX BUNCH RUNS IN 5TH TO BEAT CHICAGO

BOSTON, June 26—(AP)—The Boston Red Sox defeated Chicago, 9 to 7, here today, it being the sixth consecutive victory for the Red Sox over the White hose in this year's series between the two teams.

The Red Sox bunched five of their runs in the fifth inning, when they knocked both Thomas and McKain from the box. Kamm of the White Sox and Miller of Boston both had perfect days at bat, three hits in three times up. The score:

SENATORS CONTINUE TO WIN, BEATING TIGERS, 12-4

WASHINGTON, June 26—(AP)—The Nationals took advantage of every break today and battered two Detroit pitchers for a total of seventeen hits to win 12 to 4.

Joe Judge, who has been out on account of a Charley Horse, returned to the game at first, scored once, batted in a run and made two hits.

Rensa and Harris hit homers.

Whitehill lasted one-third of the first inning and during that period Washington collected five hits. Before Herring could stop them the Nationals had scored seven runs.

Marberry was airtight in the pinches and although hit safely ten times kept the hits scattered. The score:

LARKSPUR TAKES FIRST MONEY AT CHERRY PARK

HARTFORD, June 26—(AP)—Twice leading the field home in the trotting event for the foals of 1927, Larkspur, owned by the Wedgemere stables, Framingham Center, Mass., scored two easy victories to take first money in the $2,000 purse at Cherry Park in Avon, today. Larkspur led all the way in both races, with Day Tide, who won second place for the money, hanging on close behind. The winner was pushed hard finishing the second heat when he barely edged out Day Tide and Peter Ingomar. Leona the Great took third money.

Corporal Lee, owned by J. J. Roberts, of Worcester, Mass., wired first in both heats of the pacing event for the foals of 1928, sweeping into the lead and taking the rail at the first turn in the opener. Calumet Bailey snapped two hobbles and was distanced, and Corporal Lee paced on ahead of Katrina and Silver Signal to come under the wire an easy winner.

With the selection of Howard T. Jones as assistant to Amos W. W. Woodcock, Attorney General Mitchell completed his choice of executives to direct the work of the prohibition bureau after its transfer to the justice department on July 1.

What's the matter with the fight game in Norwich?

Here we have as nice a boxing card as was ever put on in the city and a mere handful of fans turn out to see it.

Yet have a ham card in some other part of the state and the Norwich enthusiastics will flock there by the hundreds. It is apparently the same old story of thinking that what is shown in the big towns is better than that in your own back yard.

Last night Jackie Burns spent plenty of good money to give the fight fans of Norwich a fine evening's entertainment yet it was wholly unappreciated by these same people.

A few paid in but a good many more were content to sit on the roofs of other buildings and get an eyeful of fight for nothing. It is these kind of fans that put the good old game of fisticuffs on the rocks in Norwich.

I'm not going to say anymore on this subject and those who watched the bouts from the roofs of adjoining buildings should let their conscience be their guides in the future.

This time we will mention no names.

DAVE MORTON WINS CLUB CHAMPIONSHIP AT N. G. C.

Dave Morton, No. 1 player at the Norwich Golf club, proved his right to the position by defeating John D. Moulton 4 and 2 in the finals of the club championship yesterday afternoon. Morton, who has been in a slump for the past few weeks, found his game yesterday and played a brilliant game. Moulton was smothering his tee shots which brought him plenty of trouble.

VANCE PITCHES ROBINS TO EASY WIN OVER CUBS

CHICAGO, June 26—(AP)—Dazzy Vance pitched for the Brooklyn Robins today as they opened their "first place" series with the Cubs and gave them a 7 to 1 victory. Winning the game put Brooklyn two full games ahead of Chicago.

The dazzler held the hitherto heavy hitting Cubs to nine scattered hits and was complete master of the situation. The Robins found Charley Root for five hits in the second inning, and these, combined with an error and a hit batsman resulted in five runs. Teachout and Nelson allowed Brooklyn only five more hits. PIRATES TAKE TWO FROM THE PHILLIES

PITTSBURGH, June 26—(AP)—A pitcher's battle and a slug fest brought the Pittsburgh Pirates a double victory over the Philadelphia Nationals today, the home team taking the first game 1 to 0, and the second 11 to 5.

The Pirates won the first on a fluke, though outhit four hits to seven. Collins, Phillies pitcher, dropped the ball while winding up for his delivery in the third, and Brickell scored before Collins recovered.

Grantham hit the only home run of the double header, a smash to the fence in the second contest. The score:

GIANTS WALK ALL OVER CARDS TO WIN BY 12 TO 4

ST. LOUIS, June 26—(AP)—The New York Giants ran wild against Cardinal pitching today while Clarence Mitchell held his former teammates under control and New York won the first game of the series 12 to 4.

Every Giant got one or more hits in the total of 20 collected off five Cardinal pitchers. Critz and Leach made four apiece while Mel Ott contributed a home run. The Giants scored in every inning but the ninth when Bell held them hitless. Mitchell was in trouble only in the eighth when four hits and an error gave St. Louis three runs. The score:

SMALL CROWD SEES GOOD CARD OF BOXING AT MAJESTIC ROOF

One of the best cards of boxing ever held in this city, topped by a gruelling bout between Marty Owens of New Bedford and Lew Petrone of Worcester in which Owens slugged out a decision, was seen by one of the smallest crowds ever to see a boxing show in this city. The lack of support for such a card was disheartening to Jackie Burns, local promoter, and it will probably mark the last card to be held on the roof.

The card was without doubt one of the fastest ever seen in the city. There were no knockouts but there was fighting ever minute of the way and the action was torrid in many spots. Not only did the mere handful of the faithful see some good boxing but they saw as nice a job of refereeing as they ever saw. Billy Taylor of Hartford was the referee and he kept the boys in action from start to finish and there was very little going on in the ring that he missed.

There was no feature bout, there couldn't be for every one ranked on a par with the other and they were all good. In the final Marty Owens of New Bedford punched out a close verdict over Lew Petrone of Worcester, who substituted for Alex Touraine of New Haven, who was unable to appear because of a cut eye. Owens had a right hand that took the steam out of Petrone in the last three rounds giving him the decision. Owens in the seventh round scored a knock down when he drove Petrone to the ropes and crossed his left to the jaw to send the Worcester boy flat on his face. Petrone took a count of eight before continuing the bout. This was the only knock-down of the card.

The three six round bouts were filled with plenty of action plus good boxing. In the first Tony Ruggerio of Providence barely took a decision over Joe Oliver of New Haven. Ruggerio, a long, rangy chap with an awkward fighting stance scored with a left and right jab to Oliver's head. Oliver was a very aggressive little fighter and gave away four pounds to the Providence boy. Oliver weighing 135 to Ruggerio's 139. Oliver hits very hard and had the bout gone longer Ruggerio might not have copped the verdict.

Pat James of Providence, the fighting student, won a grueling bout from the veteran, Spike Marino of New Haven in six rounds. James scored with a looping right to the body and frequently his blows went low. Twice he fouled Marino but the New Haven boy refused to claim them and kept fighting. Marino gave James plenty of punishment in the early rounds but the college youth was just a little faster and landed more frequently. Neither boy was badly hurt during the six stanzas.

Romeo Dubois of New Haven slammed out a clean-cut win over Tony Catalano of Providence in the other six rounder. Dubois had the reach on Catalano and although Catalano tried to carry the fight to the Frenchman Dubois beat him to the punch time and again. Dubois took five of the six rounds with Catalano taking the first.

Local interest centered in the opening bout in which Jimmy Quinn of Norwich shaded Eddie Forest of New Bedford by four points. Quinn took all of the four rounds by a point due largely to his boxing ability and not through his ability to hit. Quinn was noticeably weak with the punching and his blows carried but little semblance of a knockout.

Among the notables introduced from the ring was Connecticut Lightweight Bobby Mays and Mickey Dundee, who is making his home in Norwich at the present time.

EIGHT AMATEUR BOUTS AT DANIELSON TUESDAY

(Special to The Bulletin)

DANIELSON, June 26—Thirty young amateurs with aspirations to reach the heights in the boxing game will assemble here next Tuesday evening, with 16 of them being assured of going into the eight bouts that Promoter Louis Pelouquin has arranged for his first open air card of the season, or ever for that matter, in this town. The bouts will be at the new North Street arena.

The boys who have signed up come from far and near, and here is the list of them by classes: 112 lbs., Willie Thibeault, Danielson; Kid Forcier, Webster; Kid Tourney, Webster; Johnny O'Connor, Worcester; Patsy Lone, Worcester; Smokey Lacey, Norwich; 118 lbs., Joe Paradise, Moosup; Walter Zembat, Jewett City; 126 lbs., Kid Frisco, Webster; Mike Prescott, Worcester; Battling Goulais, Putnam; Anselm Bernier, Danielson; Ray Landry, Danielson; Joe Fournier, Worcester; 135 lbs., Gene Reizt, Worcester; Kid Shumway, Webster; Johnny Silo, Hartford; Mike Tempest, Hartford; Benny Showski, Jewett City; Johnny Dosh, Norwich; Young Brushey, Norwich; 150 lbs., Young Gravelin, Moosup; Joseph Wikosky, Jewett City; Russell Garbo, Hartford; Kid Russell, Webster; 160 lbs., Joe Butler, Worcester; Herman Joly, Danielson; 175 lbs., Steve Wezniak, Jewett City; Big Boy Cote, Moosup; Ernest Joly, Danielson.

There is an additional list of boys from surrounding towns that have not as yet sent in their weights, but will be on hand to go Tuesday evening. Most of the boys coming here have had ring experience and have been training hard. They are in good condition, and the fans are assured of plenty of action.

DEATH OF MRS. A. G. BROWN AT VOLUNTOWN

(Special to The Bulletin.)

JEWETT CITY, June 26—Mrs. Harriett Angeline Brown, 83, wife of Albert G. Brown, died in Voluntown on Wednesday, having been seriously ill only since Saturday. Her death is a great shock to her family, for all arrangements had been made to celebrate Mr. and Mrs. Brown's sixty-fourth wedding anniversary on next Sunday. Now the mother will be laid to rest on that day. Mrs. Brown was the daughter of Slocum and Thankful Tefft Harrington and was born in Natick, R. I. April 29, 1847. On July 1, 1866, she was married in the town of West Greenwich to Albert Brown. Mrs. Brown's home has been in Voluntown since she was 16 years of age. She was a member of Escoheag church. Besides her husband she is survived by two sons, Fred of Voluntown and Thomas of East Main street, Jewett City, and three daughters, Mrs. Susie Partelo of Voluntown, Mrs. Edward Gallup of Russell Road, Greenville, and Mrs. Daniel Gallup, of Danielson. She leaves ten grand children and five great grandchildren. A daughter, Mrs. Idella Sweet, died in Danielson, two years ago, a son at twenty years of age, and another daughter in infancy.

One side of the new concrete road was completed Wednesday night to Bishops, and one way traffic north passes over nearly all of the new concrete. Coming south, at present, the drive is mostly rising and falling, about as uncertain a performance as the stock exchange.

With the Fourth of July approaching, Chief Walter A. Field and Fire Marshall George H. Prior are calling attention to the record of fires during 1929. Two bad fires, which occurred on the night of the Fourth, did property damage of over $3,000. Both blazes were traced to falling sky-rockets.

Saw "Southern Cross."

Three reports from sections far removed from each other were received by the correspondents within a few minutes of each other, saying that the Southern Cross and its pilot plane had been seen about 5:30. One came from Henry Webster on Aspinook street in Jewett City, another from Sam Palinsky in Hopeville and the third from Susan Terry near the Preston line. The letters on the fuselege were plainly visible.

Rev. G. F. Goodenough, pastor of the Jewett City Congregational church and Mrs. E. H. Hiscox, delegate, Rev. Harold Arnold, pastor of Pachaug church, Rev. W. J. Reynolds, pastor of Newent church and Fred N. Robinsch, delegate, were in Norwich Town Thursday afternoon to attend the Council which met to act on the resignation and the church's acceptance of the termination of the pastorate of Rev. Gurdon Bailey.

Mrs. John Brown and son, Lawrence, of Stevenson, Conn., have been guests at Mr. and Mrs. Floyd Ray's home in Pachaug.

James McKenna, the son of Mr. and Mrs. John McKenna, is a patient at Backus hospital, following an operation for appendicitis on Monday.

Miss Marjorie Turner Todd has charge of the boys and girls hour during Chautauqua, her special purpose being to give the children a good time and to help them find constructive hobbies and how to fill their spare hours.

Friday, the Holy Name team are to meet the Norwich, Jr. Elks team, which is a member of the Norwich, Jr. Twilight league. The Norwich league has not as yet started, so the Bills are bringing the young Bills to Jewett City for a tryout game prior to the opening in Norwich. No doubt the Norwich boys will be given a strenuous workout here, facing either Vachon or Wolkosky on the mound for the H. N. S. This game will be played on the Fisk grounds at 6:30 p. m.

Thursday afternoon, on the Fisk diamond the Slater Cubs defeated the Polish all stars in a lively game by the score of 2 to 1. The winners' line-up included the following galaxy of juvenile stars: Lon Chaney p, Snookums c, Prince 1b, Henry 2b, Ziegfield Follies ss, Willy 3b, Joe (W) Handsome lf, Frankie cf, Dopie rf.

Miss Margaret Reed of Tougaloo, Miss., is visiting Miss S. K. Adams.

Miss Helen Hull left Wednesday for Dayton, Ohio, and from there with her sister and family will go to Black Lake in Northern Michigan for a month.

Mrs. Marian Strickland and three children of Middletown spent Thursday at Mrs. H. E. Paul's. Mrs. Paul's grandson, Hall, celebrated his ninth birthday with his visit here. Miss Marian Strickland will remain to attend Chautauqua, as is her custom every year.

EASTERN VOLUNTOWN

Tuesday morning a cool nice morning.

Bobbie Bitgood of Pechaug, grandson of Mr. and Mrs. William Bitgood, visited with them Sunday in the afternoon Mr. and Mrs. Alfred and children of Plainfield and they had for callers Mrs. Lewis Ingolls and Mrs. Harry Clark of Danielson and there were two gentlemen from New London, Mr. Gould and Mr. Roy. They wanted to go to Escoheag hill to hire a cottage to camp out this summer. They said they wanted to be near Beach Pond. It is about three or four miles from Beach Pond where they said they wanted to hire a camp. I don't think they knew what they wanted.

Mr. Bitgood has commenced mowing his yard.

Callers at Mr. and Mrs. Lee Remington's in Oneco Sunday were Mr. and Mrs. Charles Barber and granddaughter, Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd Barber and Lloyd Barber, Jr., of Jewett City, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Leonard and lady friend of Providence.

Mr. and Mrs. Lee Remington called at Mrs. George Kenyon's and Annie Bitgood's on Sterling Hill Sunday afternoon. When they got there they found Elisha Bitgood and daughter and Emma Chaffee of Hope Valley and Mary Douglas. Elisha's sister of Sterling, George Weeks and wife and baby of Plainfield were visitors that day.

Jefferson Barber went to Oneco trading Tuesday.

Charles Douglas is home this week doing his hoeing in his garden.

Mr. and Mrs. Albert Dawley and two grandchildren, Mrs. Harold Bitgood and daughter went clamming Sunday to the place they call Midway near Groton. Did not have very good luck. Mrs. Dawley went to the cemetery in Stonington where her mother is buried. They stopped on their way back and had a picnic.

Fishman from Oneco was through Eastern Voluntown Tuesday. He was going around by Beach Pond.

Mr. Bitgood had peas from his garden this week Tuesday.

Mr. Lybeck of Beach Pond met with quite a loss June 23. His garage burned up. He had a truck and his boy had a new Pontiac auto. It cost him $700 or more and lots of other things besides. The insurance on the garage was $50. It was a bad loss for him. He has the sympathy of all his friends.

Your correspondent had quite a few views from Newport this week. They thank the one that sent them. They enjoy looking at them and also reading them.

Mr. and Mrs. Albert Dawley and two grandchildren, Maurice Harrington and Amy Gravlin called at the Pine Grove farm Tuesday.

Mr. and Mrs. William Bitgood of Pachaug visited with Mr. Bitgood's parents at Eastern Voluntown one day last week.

Joel Barber and Fred Buxbee of Jewett City were callers at Joel's grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. William Bitgood, in Eastern Voluntown, recently.

Emma Wilcox has come on to her farm for the summer. She has Mrs. Sabra Baker with her.

MOOSUP

Mrs. Jerry Coady is convalescing from a serious attack of pneumonia. Mrs. Grace Sweet has been caring for her.

Mr. and Mrs. H. A. Roberts, Miss Freda Eyres, Mr. and Mrs. Edward Mortimer and daughters, Dorothy and Marjorie, motored to Charleston beach on Sunday afternoon.

Rev. R. W. E. DeWolfe, with a party of boys including John Hoar, Howard Roper, Delphis Bonner, Waldo E. DeWolfe, Jr., and Norman Gallup and Robert Monroe, of Sterling Hill, are attending a camp for Baptist boys at Camp Rainbow near East Granby.

Rev. P. A. Kimister, of the First Baptist church, Norwich, will preach at both Moosup and Sterling Hill Baptist churches on Sunday morning. Rev. R. W. E. DeWolfe will preach in Norwich church for Rev. Mr. Kilmister.

On Sunday afternoon at 3 o'clock at the Baptist church, Miss Norma C. Brown of Bloomington, Ill., will address a meeting of the 15 church union on "The Era of Law Enforcement." Miss Brown is vice president of the Flying Squadron foundation, associate editor of the National Enquirer and an ordained minister. Miss Brown speaks in a logical and clear manner.

On Saturday afternoon the Baptist Sunday school will go to Bates' pond at Webster lake for their picnic. Cars will leave around 1 o'clock and those desiring transportation should notify Mrs. George Sanderson or Paul Roper. Basket lunches will be taken to eat at supper time, and the return trip will be made at about 8.30.

NO. GROSVENORDALE

Company A of the fire department held its monthly meeting at the rooms in the fire department last evening.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Auclaire, Mrs. William Davern and sister of Webster were called Thursday to the bedside of their father who is at the Haven at Abington. John Auclaire has been seriously ill for some time.

Mrs. Joseph Beaulac is ill at her home here.

Henry Brodeur is confined to his home on Buckley hill with blood poisoning in his right arm.

The supper at the Congregational church on Wednesday was a great success. Over 100 people were present, including a number of out of town visitors.

Mrs. Thomas Thornley spent Wednesday in Providence.

The Catholic Women's Welfare council held a public whist party on Tuesday evening. Prizes were won by Miss Annabelle Roy, Jack Franklin, Mrs. Berry and Joe Lefevre.

Laws in eleven states prohibit marriage between Mongolians and white persons.

If You Have Bad Feet

Read What This Grateful English Woman Writes About Radox

"Fifteen years ago I began to suffer with bad feet and corns, and as time went on they got from bad to worse, thus making life a misery. I was recommended to try Radox (after spending a small fortune in one 'cure' or another). I found very great relief in a very short time. I am pleased to say that my corns, also the hard skin from the soles of my feet have disappeared, and walking, which was a torture, is now a pleasure. I can assure you that I recommended Radox to all my friends."

Mrs. L. P. W.,
Peterborough, England.

23rd September, 1929.

When you put your feet into a footbath containing Radox, the salts soften the hard outer layers of the corn, and the oxygen which Radox liberates enters the pores, opens them, and penetrates further and further, carrying the corn-softening salts right into the root of the corn, which is thus loosened so that it can be lifted out bodily.

Get a generous box of Radox at Lee and Osgood or any drugstore in America—a 15 minute bath three or four successive nights will rid you of corns and callouses.

WHEN YOU WANT to put a business before the public, there is no medium better than through the advertising columns of The Bulletin.

GOOD FARMING

(Written Specially for The Bulletin)

Big.
Bigger.
BIGGEST.

That's the modern world's scale of merit. Mere bignes has taken the place once reserved for quality.

Has Vanastorbilt a fortune of $500,000,000? Then Ford will "call" him with one of $750,000,000 and assume the premier rank in the world's "Who's Who." Has Woolworth built a 77 story business tower? Then Chrysler will top him with one of 83 stories and become "the cynosure of all eyes," whatever that may be. Has Hank Haskins grown an 80 pound squash? Then Sam Sackett will trundle in one weighing 100 and be unanimously awarded the blue ribbon.

That big squash may be so coarse and stringy and rank of flavor that even the brindle cow has to be half starved before she can be induced to eat it. That tall tower may quiver in the gale, in ominous rehearsal of the closing performance, when some comparatively gentle earthquake shall tilt it a hundredth of an inch out of its delicate balance and topple it over. That big fortune may be a comfort to its possessor and a service to the world,—or it may not. Who cares, anyway? It's the biggest, isn't it?

I read in the papers that the owner and operator of the biggest farm in the United States, one T. D. Campbell of Montana, is about to sail for Russia to advise the Bolshevists how to cultivate 11,000,000 acres of land according to the Campbell idea and along the Campbell lines.

It seems that not only is the Campbell farm in Montana the biggest in the world, but it is wholly operated by machinery. There isn't a plowman nor a farm hand nor a cow boy on it. All the employees are either engineers or mechanics. They are not expected to know anything whatever about corn or wheat or potatoes or hens. But they know all about spark-plugs and gadgets and pistons and cylinders. They start across a field, with their eyes glued to the pressure gauges and their ears keen to note the sounds as the gears mesh and their oil-cups handy in case a bearing begins to squeak. Whether they are supposed to be plowing or seeding of harvesting is all one to them. They are interested in their machines, not in the soil or the speed.

It is currently reported that Mr. Campbell has the biggest acreage of wheat of any man on earth, and the most complete line of farm machinery. It is also currently understood that, by the exclusive use of machines, he has thus far been able to produce wheat at a cost of a cent or two less per bushel than other wheat-growers, thus insuring himself a profit, even at prices so low as to spell loss to many.

He doesn't, as I am informed, pride himself on his yields per acre or on the superior quality of his grain. He isn't in the game to see how many bushels he can reap off an acre nor how supreme the value he can get into his wheat. He doesn't care whether he produces seven or 37 bushels to the acre, so long as he can turn out each bushel a cent or two cheaper than his neighbors.

If, say, he has 40,000 acres in wheat and they yield at the rate of seven bushels to the acre, he will harvest 280,000 bushels. If, again, his machines enable him to produce at two cents a bushel cheaper than other farmers, he will be $5,600 "to the good," won't he?

Well, that opens up another side to the question. The result is manifestly "to the good" of his bank account. But is the swelling of a bank account the sole or even the chief end of farming? Mr. Campbell seems to think so. It is perfectly natural that the bolshevist tyrants who have enslaved Russia in a servitude crueler than tsarism, should also think so. But what do reasonably unselfish and foresighted farmers think?

There is no doubt that a bank account is a mighty comfortable thing to have,—I wish I had one, this minute, a good fat one that I could draw on regardlessly, without fear of using it all up.—You feel much the same way? Of course you do. We all do. And so we'd all like to be young and handsome and strong. We'd all like to be able to do anything we wanted to. We'd all like to win every game we went into.

But, you see, we can't.

"To be young, handsome, twenty-two,
With nothing else on earth to do
But all day long to bill and coo,—
It were a pleasant calling."

Unortunately, that isn't the way the world wags. The years are inexorable. And there are more blanks than prizes in the lottery of life. There could be no winners if there were no losers.

We've all read the fable of the frog who didn't see why he couldn't be as big as the ox. So he inflated himself with pride and ambition and hot air till his frog's skin split and left him a sadly disillusioned and far from ornamental or useful amphibian.

We've also read of men who greedily seize new lands, wherever such are to be found, work them furiously till their stored-up fertility has been exhausted, and then move on to loot other land. They call themselves farmers. But are they? Seems to me they're only miners, taking without giving, ravaging without repairing.

And so, now-a-days, we hear of the "big farmers," who ramble around over 50,000 or 100,000 acre ranches on tractors and combines. We are asked to admire them, to envy them, to imitate them humbly and afar off.

It's very much like asking us to eat Wolf River apples because they grow as big as pumpkins, and Kieffar pears because they yield prodigiously. We are "behind the times" and quite lacking in "the modern spirit" if we protest that Snow apples are juicier and tiny Seckel pears sweeter.

It isn't "sweetness and light" that the crowd calls for, these latter days, but hugeness and turgidity. So in all other manners of life, so in farming. And I suppose it is true, in a sense, that we might as well be out of the world as out of the fashion. There's this consolation and support however; no fashion has ever yet endured permanently. It rises, reigns, and "squishes" into what the pollysyllabic Cleveland called "innocuous desuetude." This particular worship of Inflation will doubtless follow the usual course.

Not far from where I am writing there is a farm whose history can be read for something like 150 years. And, in my eyes, at least, it illustrates the spirit and practice of real farming. Let me tell you about it, briefly.

The first settler, like other pioneers, spent his life clearing it of its covering forests. The second in descent had his work cut out for him in cleaning up the stumps and digging out the rocks and draining the swamps. The third,—whom I can dimly remember,—inherited a really productive farm. He spent his long life in making it still better, acre for acre and rood for rood If he got a field to produce 60 bushels of corn or 40 of oats or two tons of hay to the acre, he promptly raised his standard and demanded 70 bushels of corn and 60 bushels of oats and three tons of hay from it. Nor would he rest till the new scale had been realized. His father had left him a good farm. He proposed to leave to his son a better one.

And he did.

That son, fourth in the line, kept up the family tradition. Firmly footed on the old ways, he never hesitated an instant to abandon them when something better offered. His father had believed wholly in stable manure. He went in for lime and phosphates wherever he found them better allies. His father had grown Durhams; he switched over to Jerseys. The father prided himself on his merino sheep; the son found coarser-wooled breeds better suited to the farm But, whatever changes he made in details, the governing principle was never yielded nor forgotten,—that of every year making the old farm better than it found it farm. And now Number Five is enjoying the fruits of his forebears' labors and plannings. He is a young man and I am an old one, and our lines seldom meet, but from what I hear, he is going to carry on the family tradition.

This particular farm of which I write is not and never has been a "show" place. Its buildings are adequate but not ambitious; its routine is entirely practical with small thought for the ornamental. The eye of the non-farmer would see nothing unusual about it. It isn't even big,—perhaps a couple of hundred acres. But it has, for three generations at least, produced always a sufficiency and many times a surplus; it has sent out more than a score of good citizens to do their part in the upbuilding of their country; it has not worn out but has been kept steadily improving in productivity.

That's what I call good farming. That's what I call a good farm. It isn't a machine-shop, though machines are used wherever and whenever found desirable; nor is it regarded as a mine to be exploited, robbed and abandoned. It is an investment to be watched and nursed and promoted. Above all, it is a home from which for a century and a half the good influences of industry and thrift and service to an ideal have radiated.

Probably I'm old-fashioned; a man nearing his eighties has the right to be. But my feeling is very strong that this small New England farm is a bigger success, in the true meaning of that much misused word, than any sprawling ranch where the idea is to get as much as possible out of it with the least work.

What these United States need is more such farms, and fewer such ranches.

THE FARMER.

WESTERLY

AUTO DRIVER HELD IN $2,500 BONDS

(Special to The Bulletin)

WESTERLY, R. I., June 26.— Late Wednesday night Elmer J. Brown of Providence, operator of the automobile which figured in a crash on the Kooseneck Hill road resulting in the death of Clarence Proffit, aged 30 years, of Caswell court, Providence, pleaded not guilty before Clerk H. P. Clark in the Third District court to operating an automobile recklessly resulting in death.

Brown was required to furnish surety in the sum of $2,500 for his appearance before the district court this (Friday) morning.

On Friday and Saturday the Westerly Garden club will hold its annual flower show at the library building. The exhibit will cover all types and varieties of flowers. All awards are made as to standing, whether private or commercial grower.

The following are the chairmen of the different classifications, Mrs. Frank Sullivan, Mrs. Henry L. Burlick, Mrs. Ralph Segar, Mrs. Raymond Hiscox, Mrs. John O'Connell, Mrs. Lewis Tetlow and Mrs. Wells R. Fowler.

Abel P. Randall of Hadlyme, formerly of Westerly, was a visitor here on Wednesday and attended the St. John's day observance of Narragansett commandery, No. 27, K. T., of which he was a past commander.

Miss Jessie M. Surber and Miss Mary Lawrence Voss left Westerly on Wednesday on a three months' vacation and tour of the Pacific coast, returning home by way of the Canadian Rocky mountains.

John Paton and Joseph Tyler of Mystic, members of Palestine commandery of New London were present on Wednesday evening at the St. John's day observance of Narragansett commandery, No. 27, K. T.

Rev. Arnt L. Schoning, pastor of the Broad street Christian church, and Orlando R. Smith, both members of the executive committee and Miss Lizzie E. Martin and Carl G. Anderson, delegates from the Westerly church, were Providence visitors on Thursday and attended the special convention of the Christian church held at the Elmwood Christian church when preliminary details concerning the merger of Christian and Congregational churches were considered.

June 20—Margaret Pengelley to William L. Archibald and wife, Gertrude A., of Ridgefield, Bergen county, N. J., lot of land on the south side of Pond street at Misquamicut beach near Weekapaug breachway.

June 21—John Chester Warner to Marjorie S. Warner of Hartford, lot or parcel of land near Napatree Point, Watch Hill. Herman A. Phillips and wife, Josephine E., of Clearwater, Fla., to Raymond A. Reynolds and Elbert I. Reynolds, tract of land at Misquamicut.

Miss Betty Clark, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Herbert P. Clark of Westerly, was among the 24 guests present at "Sand Garth," when Miss Eleanor Sullivan, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frank A. Sullivan, was the hostess to a number of her friends at a party at which games were played and bathing and refreshments were enjoyed. Miss Sullivan leaves Westerly this week for a summer camp in Vermont.

Rev. John M. Colkins of Wallingford, Conn., was a Westerly visitor on Wednesday, the guest of relatives and in attendance at the St. John's day observance of Narragansett commandery, No. 27, K. T., of which he is a member.

STONINGTON

Invitations have been issued for the wedding of Miss Helen Chase Streeter, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Edward C. Streeter of Boston and Stonington, and John Bertram Whitelaw, son of Mr. and Mrs. Aubrey Whitelaw of New York and North Stonington. The ceremony will be performed in the Second Congregational church at Stonington by the Rev. Dr. George Kilpatrick of Hamilton, Ont., and the Rev. Elmore McKee of Yale university. Miss Peggy Hamil of Medford, Ore., will be maid of honor and the other attendants will be Mrs. William Gratwick, the Misses Harriett Morse, Ellen Wales, Isabella Grandin and Mary Cushing of Boston and Miss Elizabeth Wade White of Waterbury. George Whitelaw of North Stonington will be the best man, and John Streeter, brother of the bride, John Toop of Philadelphia, Arthur Baird Hersey of Briarcliff Manor, N. Y., Samuel Armstrong Scoville of Hampton, Va., Thomas Painter of New Haven and Julian A. Ripley of New York will be ushers. The reception will be held in the garden of the home of Dr. and Mrs. Streeter, Red Brook, Stonington. Dr. and Mrs. Streeter will give a dinner party on Friday evening for the wedding party and will be followed by a dance at the home of Mrs. Robert L. Johnstone, Salt Acres, Stonington.

Frank Shannon was a visitor in New Haven on Wednesday.

MONTVILLE

THREE CASES TRIED IN LOCAL COURT

(Special to The Bulletin.)

MONTVILLE, June 26—The breach of peace case of Chester Henry, a Chesterfield resident, was tried before Justice of the Peace Oscar E. Church of Montville. He was arrested on complaint of his brother, Raymond Henry, to the State Police that his brother fired a shot gun at him and forced him to flee from his farm. The trouble started when Chester who owns a goat had a small kid stray away from the farm and he couldn't find it. A Mr. Fink suggested that he let the goat find the kid.

When Chester's brother, Raymond, saw the goat in the garden he threw a stone at her and brought her to the ground and when Chester saw him getting another stone, it is understood he loaded his shotgun with a blank and fired it in the air in the opposite direction to scare his brother away which she succeeded in doing. When Chester heard Wednesday that the state police were looking for him he turned his car around and proceeded towards Groton barracks to give himself up. He was intercepted by Officers Martin and Philopena of the New London police and locked up in the police station. State Trooper Donald Brown brought him to the Justice court in Montville Thursday morning and this case was nolled upon payment of the costs of court.

The case of La Bounty vs. Bonville, which has been continued for the past three weeks was settled this morning at the Montville justice court when Justice of the Peace Oscar E. Church ordered that the furniture that was replevined from Mrs. Benjamin Bonville to her husband on May the 17th of this year be returned to Mrs. Bonville Monday, June 30th. Lawyer Quinn of Norwich was counsel for Mr. Bonville and Lawyer Hollandersky of New London for Mr. La Bounty.

The case against Carl Hulten of Uncasville who figured in an auto collision Tuesday evening by the Burt Hewitt's place on the New London-Norwich Highway at Uncasville was tried this morning before Justice of the Peace Church and was dismissed.

The unbeaten Montville Independents will tackle a hard team Friday evening at the Gair diamond at Uncasville when they cross bats with the fast New London Colored Giants. The Colored Giants have strengthened their team considerably since their last appearance here about a month ago with the Robertsons Paper Box Co nine.

The home cooked food sale which was held Wednesday afternoon on the lawn of the Uncasville M. E. church proved a success. This sale was under the auspices of the Ladies Aid Society and was in charge of Mrs. Richard Johnson, as chairman, assisted by Mrs. Hubert, Mrs. Minnie Johnson, Mrs. Ernest Moss, Mrs. Charles Hope and Mrs. Charles Ramage.

Mr. and Mrs. Napoleon Jarvis of Glasgo, Conn., were guests of Mrs. Peter Gauthier of Pequot Thursday

Much progress is being made in the new building of Pappas Bros., at the Uncasville Four Corners.

Mr. and Mrs. George A. McCarthy have returned to their newly furnished home at Waterford after a two weeks honeymoon motor trip to Canada. Mrs. McCarthy was before her marriage, Miss Atzelia H. Newton of Uncasville.

GOSHEN

Those from Goshen who went on the five-hour boat ride down the Thames and out into Long Island sound, Thursday evening, June 19th, report a very enjoyable trip. Features were the beauty of the ever-changing scenery, the hundreds of yachts at anchor, a moving freight drawn by one engine of over 150 loaded freight cars on the Groton shore, and coming back there were the beauties of the electric lighted city down by the sea and of myriads of yachts decorated in holiday attire, the prevailing colors being blue and red. Last, but not least, was the social time enjoyed by the 335 passengers.

Isaac Isdansky, of Oakland farm, is reported convalescing, having undergone an operation in New York city hospital. It will be several weeks before he will be able to return home.

A number of farmers have begun haying. The sudden thunder shower Saturday caught out quantities of hay. During the shower, hail fell, doing damage to tender vines. The hail was as large as lemon drops.

Sunday morning the sermon by Rev. Howard Bushnell was based on the "Talents", the rewards of which are not so much the amount invested as the conscientious and wise use made of the talents, which may differ widely in individual cases. The C. E. meeting in the evening was led by Ruby Faulkner on the subject, "How Jesus Made Leaders of His Disciples."

Mr. and Mrs. Walter Thorpe, of Lebanon, and Mrs. Brewster, of Norwich, were callers here Sunday, taking Florence, Charlie, and little Willie Brewster to Lebanon for a few days' visit with their sister, Mrs. Thorpe and Mrs. Pitcher.

Friends of Miss Alice Faulkner have received letters from her during the past week, giving interesting accounts of her trip and expressing her delight of the climate of Cape Cod.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank E. Hyde and Miss Clara S. Hyde, of Lisbon, Mr. and Mrs. Walter A. Hyde and children, Ellsworth, and Myrtice, of Jewett City, were dinner guests Sunday afternoon of Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Randall.

The 4-H Cooking and Canning club, of Goshen, met at the home of Miss Clara Gilette on Saturday.

Miss A. Gillette, regent of the local D. A. R., attended the commencement exercises held at Connecticut college, last week.

The local Y. P. S. C. E. entertained the intermediates and the juniors from the C. E. of Norwich Town church on Tuesday evening with supper at 6.30, followed by a program.

LEBANON

Miss Grace Burgess, accompanied Mrs. A. E. Hewitt to Matunuck Beach, R. I., on Wednesday, where they were joined later in the week by a number of relatives and friends who enjoyed a house party at Mrs. Hewitt's cottage.

The largest general hospital in the United States is the Cook County hospital in Illinois, which has 3,300 beds.

SAILOR CHARGED WITH MAKING ATTACK ON CAR INSPECTOR

(Special to The Bulletin.)

NEW LONDON, June 26.—Arthur A. Church, 32, a sailor, stationed at the submarine base, was arraigned in the police court this morning, charged with assault and trespassing upon property of the New Haven railroad. The case was continued until Saturday and he furnished a surety on his bond of $750.

Church was in the vicinity of Waldach street last night and had been drinking, it is said, although he was not intoxicated. He went to the Fort Rock freight house loading entrance and there entered an automobile owned by William C. Smith, of Blydenburg avenue, who is employed in the railroad yard as a car inspector. In inspecting some of the freight cars, Smith observed Church in the automobile and ordered him to alight. When the bluejacket, who was in civilian attire, did alight, he attacked Smith, it is claimed. The car inspector, however, was more than equal to the attack and he handed Church an artistic lacing, placing a "watermelon" on his eye and splitting his face. During one of the exchanges, Church fell to the ground and while lying there he brutally attacked Smith. Smith went to the railroad tower and there he informed the towerman of his experience. The latter communicated with officials at the union station and Special Agent John Anderson was assigned to the case. He commandeered an automobile and, securing the services of Patrolmen Braxton Hill and Arthur Feeley, went to the railroad yard in search of Smith's assailant. Police headquarters were asked for assistance and Patrolmen Frank Philippens and George Goldberg also went to the yard, but Church left before the arrival of the officers. A search, however, resulted in Goldberg locating Church in the rear of the Humphrey-Cornell company premises, Sparyard street. Church was taken into custody and after having been identified by Smith was locked up. Smith was treated by a physician.

Ripley Parks, 28 Pearl street, Mystic, and married and operator of a public service automobile, was presented on a charge of driving while under the influence of liquor. He entered a demurrer, which was overruled and Judge Daniel M. Cronin imposed a fine of $100 and costs. Parks drove to New London yesterday. He had a woman passenger with him, who left the automobile, and Sergeant John Courtney, who had been attracted to the erratic driving of Parks made an investigation, which revealed that the driver was very much intoxicated, so much so that Courtney refused to allow Parks to drive to police headquarters, the officer taking charge of the car, a Pierce-Arrow.

Charles McCullough, submarine base, was charged with speeding and he was fined $10 and costs. McCullough, who is a member of the crew of the U. S. S. Lonsdale, submarine base, was arrested yesterday afternoon by State Police Officer Peter Busch on the Thames river highway bridge.

Herbert F. Dunn, 17 Owen street, Hartford, was also charged with speeding. His case was continued until July 2. Dunn was arrested on Ocean avenue last evening by Motorcycle Officer George Cockell.

Thomas DeRoy, 186 Main street, was charged with begging and intoxication. He was arrested on Main street last night by Patrolman William Graham. Today he was given suspension of judgment.

Lues Reiter and his wife, Lena, 103 Westfield street, Providence, R. I., were charged with violation of a city ordinance, which prohibits the use of an automobile for the purpose of disrobing. Both husband and wife were fined $5 and costs. Reiter and his wife drove to New London yesterday and early in the evening went to Ocean Beach, where they decided to enjoy the bathing. They were arrested while using their automobile as a bath house.

FUNERALS

John F. Brown

The funeral of John F. Brown, late of Quaker Hill, where he was employed many years as a paper mill worker, was held this morning at 9:30 o'clock from 43 Shapley street, the services being conducted by Rev. J. Romeyn Danforth, pastor of the First Church of Christ. The bearers were Thomas Woodworth, Walter Scott, Arthur Strickland and Carl Southworth. Burial was in Union cemetery, Waterford.

Mrs. Walter Beauchamp and infant daughter, 251 Huntington street; Mrs Charles West and infant son, 50 Forrest street, Groton; Mrs. Thomas McNamera and infant daughter, 37 Walden avenue, and Charles Peck, Essex, patients at Lawrence-Memorial Associated hospital, were discharged today.

Mary Lou Reed, 4, of 19 Starr street, escaped serious injury miraculously yesterday afternoon when she fell two stories and sustained only bruises and a fractured shoulder. She is now a patient at Lawrence-Memorial Associated hospital. The child was playing about the house and, going to an open window, was unobserved. The youngster succeeded in climbing to the sill and, losing her balance, fell to the ground, a distance of about 18 feet.

William Hubbard, employed at the Yale Engineers' camp, East Lyme, sustained painful, but not serious, injury yesterday afternoon and he may suffer the loss of a part of one finger as the result of an accident. Hubbard was engaged in making repairs to a car at the camp and his left hand became caught in a manner as to severely lacerate the flesh of the first finger. He was taken to Lawrence-Memorial Associated hospital.

Chester Majka, 14, residing at 27 Fourth street, was arrested by state police at Danielson last night as a runaway. His parents were notified and they arranged for the return home of the boy this morning.

The plant of the Onondaga Textile Mill, Inc., 62 Trumbull street, was threatened with serious damage by fire this afternoon when material in process of manufacture burst into flames. An alarm was sent in from Box 521, corner of Trumbull and Smith street, which was responded to by Chief Thomas Shipman and four pieces of apparatus. A small quantity of chemical sufficed to extinguish the fire, which originated from overheated bearings, which ignited the cloth. The damage was small.

William Russell, formerly of New London and Waterford, was arrested here last night by State Police Officer Donald Brown, charged with taking an automobile without permission of the owner, the car being owned by the Red Wing Auto corporation of Hartford. Russell was taken back to Hartford today for trial. When Russell could not be found in Hartford and with the knowledge that he formerly resided here, the state police and New London police were given the identity of the markers on the auto sought and a few hours later Officer Brown found Russell with the auto and arrested him.

WEDDINGS

Rogers—Thompson

Horace E. Rogers, son of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Rogers, Colt street, and Miss Harriet M. Thompson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. L. M. Thompson, Highland avenue, were married at 4 o'clock this afternoon at the rectory of St. Joseph's church, the ceremony being performed by Rev. William C. Fitzsimons. Charles R. Alling was best man and Miss Eleanor McMahon was the bride's attendant. Immediately following the ceremony, a reception was held at the home of the bride's parents, and was attended by about 75 guests. Upon the conclusion of their wedding tour, Mr. and Mrs. Rogers will reside at 820 Montauk avenue. Mr. Rogers is employed by the Thompson Motor company.

Brooks—Shea

Walter W. Brooks, Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Walter W. Brooks, Uncasville, and Miss H. Irene Shea, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John H. Shea, 17 Vietz street, were married at the rectory of St. Joseph's church at 9:30 o'clock this morning by Rev. William C. Fitzsimons. Charles Brooks, brother of the groom, was best man, and Miss Rosalie Shea, sister of the bride, was bridesmaid. Following the ceremony, a reception was held at the residence of the bride's sister, Mrs. Herman Seifert, 216 Vauxhall street. Mr. and Mrs. Brooks are now enjoying a motor tour to Canada and upon their return will reside at Uncasville. Mr. Brooks is employed by the Robert Gair company.

Amanti—Impelliteri

Isadore Amanti, son of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Amanti, 94 Williams street, and Miss Jane Impelliteri, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Impelliteri, of the same address, were married at 9 o'clock this morning at St. Mary's Star of the Sea church by Rev. Timothy M. Crowley, the ceremony being witnessed by a large number of relatives and friends of the couple. Theodore Impelliteri, brother of the bride, was best man, and Miss Sally Impelliteri, sister of the bride, was bridesmaid. Tonight at the Education Center of the Workmen's circle, Jefferson avenue, Mr. and Mrs. Amanti were tendered a reception, which was attended by a large throng of guests. Mr. and Mrs. Amanti will spend their wedding tour in Atlantic City and Washington, and upon their return will reside on Williams street.

Barner—Bennett

Frank O. Barner, Thames street, manager of the Hudson-Essex company, and Bernice D. Bennett, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Bennett, Providence, R. I., were married in the Little Church Around the Corner in New York last Saturday. Announcement of the wedding was received this week by friends in this city of the couple.

Winthrop Thurlow, Amity street; Mrs. William Taylor, Niantic; Mrs. Harry Sloan and infant daughter, Waterford, and Mrs. Arthur Paine, 51 Alger place, patients at Home Memorial hospital, were discharged today.

George D. Sabagh, 77, of 72 Shaw street, was hit by an automobile truck driven by Alex Steinberg, North Bank street merchant and residing at 28 Linden street, last night, and although the aged man sustained apparent injuries no more serious than bruises and contusions, the outcome cannot be foretold because of his age. Sabagh is suffering from shock. He was on Bank street about midnight and attempted to cross at Truman street. As he stepped from the curb, he walked in front of the automobile and was knocked down. He was taken to the office of a physician and after he had been given treatment was taken to his home.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Palace Theatre

When Mazatlan, a little seaport on the southern coast of Mexico, was selected for the location of the new melodrama, "The Sea Bat," which opens at the Palace theatre tomorrow where it will be shown through Tuesday of next week, it was not only because this is an excellent place from which to get unique shots of the sea monster which plays an important part in this picture and from which it gets its name, but because it is one of the most picturesque scenic spots in the vicinity of Hollywood.

"The Sea Bat" is far more than an exciting narrative of an ex-convict who comes to a native village in the disguise of a clergyman and is subsequently involved in a series of surprising incidents, including undersea adventures and a half-mad attempt to escape in a frail sailing craft. One of the most interesting features of the production are the "shots" of the natives who resemble African savages in their disregard for conventional clothing, their sun-blackened bodies, and their fantastic Voodoo worship.

The cast of "The Sea Bat" includes many favorites, among whom are: Raquel Torres, Charles Bickford, Nils Asther, George F. Marion and John Miljan. This is the first appearance of Nils Asther in a talking role and not only is this an attraction but also his battle with a huge sea monster under many feet of water.

The double-feature bill combining "A Lady of Scandal," a smart drawing room comedy with Ruth Chatterton in the most unusual role of her career, and "Two Weeks Off," a light comedy of summer vacationists with Dorothy Mackaill and Jack Mulhall, will be shown at the Palace for the last times today.

The Popularity Contest will soon draw to a close, the finish being decided for the end of June. All those who are interested should make special efforts to pack in the votes for the few remaining days to give their favorite confestants a good majority in the final count. Tonight 7,000 votes will be awarded to the young ladies of the contest; be here, and help your favorite win.

Bread Theatre.

RAMON NOVARRO

Broadway Theatre.

John Gilbert's engagement at the Broadway in "Redemption" his latest talkie ends today. The cast surrounding Mr. Gilbert in this, his best talking effort, is, to use a much abused term "all star" including as it does, Renee Adoree, Conrad Nagle, Eleanor Boardman and Claire McDowell.

Jack Oakie, Paramount's sure-bet laugh-maker, will be seen and heard at the Broadway four days starting tomorrow in his first starring vehicle, "The Social Lion."

It is a hilariously funny story of a young garage mechanic and would-be pugilist who gets a place on a ritzy country club's polo team because he is the town's most proficient mallet-wielder, having learned polo when he was serving an enlistment in the army.

Jack Oakie, of course, is the pugilist-noloist social lion aspirant. He never had a funnier role. Skeets Gallagher is the partner and pal of Oakie. Mary Brian is the plain little girl, and Olive Borden is the ritzy daughter of society who tries to make a sap out of Jack, but fails.

Others in the excellent supporting cast are Charles Sellon, Cyril Ring, E. H. Calvert, James Gibson, William Bechtel, Henry Roquemore, Richard Cummings and Jack Byron.

MANSFIELD DEPOT

Mrs. E. C. Gergler's uncle, Walter Oldershaw and R. Myron Rogers of Plainville called at her home Tuesday.

Byron Houston and W. B. Farrington marched in the St. John's commandery division of the Civic Day parade held in Willimantic last week Wednesday in connection with the community reunion. A large number from here viewed the parade.

Mrs. Botham's and Mrs. Bateman's granddaughter, Claire Frink, was valedictorian. After graduation Mr. and Mrs. Irvin Botham of Mansfield Depot, Mrs. David Bateman and daughter Florence of Springfield, Mass., Dr. and Mrs. George Wilcox of Willimantic, Mr. and Mrs. Henry Frink and daughters Claire and Fern enjoyed a supper at the Brigham tavern in honor of Claire's graduation.

Mrs. David Bateman and Miss Florence Bateman of Springfield, Mass., spent several days with Mr. and Mrs. Botham last week.

Mrs. Fenelon McCollum and children Fay and Betty, Mrs. George Bassett and daughter, Harriet spent the day recently at Lake Hayward, East Haddam.

Harold Hansen and Mrs. Myron E. Green attended the reunion and banquet of the Windham high school class of '18 at the Nathan Hale hotel, Saturday evening.

Visitors at Mr. and Mrs. E. C. Gergler's Sunday were Mrs. Gergler's parents, sisters, brothers, nephew and son, Mr. and Mrs. J. J. Oldershaw of West Hartford, Miss Maude Oldershaw, Mrs. F. H. Edwards and children of Meriden, Mr. and Mrs. William Oldershaw of Willimantic, Mr. and Mrs. Durwood Oldershaw and infant son, Howard William of Groton.

Forty-four members of Urial lodge, A. F. and A. M. of Merrow attended church services at South Willington Sunday in honor of St. John's day. Mr. and Mrs. Harold Hansen and George Cosgrove attended from the Depot.

Helen Botham led Christian Endeavor Monday evening.

Claire Frink of South Coventry is visiting her grandmother, Mrs. Irvin Botham.

Rev. and Mrs. Frederick Howell, May Korner, Edith Hammerlin, Marion and Helen Botham of the Eben Dunham Memorial Sunday school and Margaret Houston of the Spring Hill Baptist Sunday school will attend the Baptist Sunday school convention in Danielson Wednesday.

Carl Snow is visiting his aunt in Boston.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Baggs and son John are visiting relatives in Boston.

I intend to be away, from July 17th to Sept. 1st, and if any of my customers could anticipate their needs, in my line, between these dates, I would greatly appreciate their order now.

STOCK MARKET CLOSED WITH RALLY FOR THE SECOND SUCCESSIVE TIME

NEW YORK, June 26—(AP)—The bears muffled their drums and spiked their big guns today, beating an orderly retreat that enabled the stock market to close on a rally for the second successive day, thereby establishing a record for the current month. Sales, however, were the smallest since June 13, totalling only 2,272,000 shares.

With the aid of short covering, which followed one attempt to depress prices, the more active shares finished one to five points higher in the dull market, while some of the volatile issues advanced 6 to 20 points. Commodities improved substantially, but the bond market continued dull.

Money went begging, after renewing at 2 per cent, the plentitude of funds forced the official call loan rate down to 1 1-2 per cent the lowest since August 1, 1917.

In general, sentiment was relieved by the realization of the pressure against the speculative commodities, wheat got 3 to 4 cents a bushel higher, although the gains at the close were reduced to 2 5-8 to 3 1-2. Bullish Canadian grop news, and announcement that the grain stabilization corporation would not dispose of its holdings figured in the improvement in this staple. Corn rallied less vigorously and was up 1-2 to 7-8 of a cent net. Cotton finished about $1.50 to $2 a bale higher.

The striking news of the day came after the close of the market. It was the $371,000,000 drop in brokers' loans, one of the largest on record and the largest since the autumn panic, bringing the decline for the past three weeks to $655,000,000 and the total of loans outstanding to $3,410,000,000 against $5,542,000,000 a year ago.

During the period covered by the loan report the volume of trading had not been particularly heavy, although the interval included the 6,400,000 share turnover on June 18. In view of this, the size of the decrease was a surprise to the financial community which, in view of the known volume of short selling, had not realized fully the extent to which weak margined accounts had been closed out.

Aside from a flurry of selling soon after the opening, the course of stocks was upward throughout the day. The announcement of the split-up and extra dividend in American Tobacco was favorably construed, for it had been some time since the market had had such a piece of news on a leading stock. Anaconda's dividend reduction had been expected; some quarters in fact, had been prepared for a larger cut.

U. S. Steel got one point below yesterday's close in the early selling, but thereafter sold six points above the Wednesday low and finished a point net higher. American Can, American Telephone, General Electric, Atchison, New York Central, Standard Oil of New Jersey, Westinghouse Electric, General Electric and Union Pacific, among others, were up one to four. American Tobacco gained 14 points, Ingersoll Rand 20, Eastman Kodak 10, Diamond Match 12 and Allied Chemical 8.

Foreign exchanges were irregular. The Spanish peseta again went into new low ground.

PLAINFIELD

Mrs. Irving Flagg entertained the M. M. club Wednesday evening at her home. Bridge was played and the prizes were won by Mrs. John Gallup, Miss Florence Wibberly and Miss Teresa Sullivan. Refreshments were served by the hostess.

Mr. and Mrs. Pierre Roy and son, Alfred, Miss Virginia Lebonne and Alex Mitchell are on a motor trip to Vermont and Maine.

Mrs. Emma Tuninsen and daughter, Helen, of East Orange, N. J., are visiting at the home of Mrs. Tuninsen's brother, Walter Kingsley.

Miss Dorothy Prentiss has returned to her duties as student nurse at Waterbury hospital, after spending three weeks at her home.

Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Marsland were in Norwich Tuesday.

Mrs. Tiernan, of Miami, Fla., is visiting with her son, Fred Ledger.

Walter William Kritemeyer, of Moosup, and Miss Louise Irma Kolgel, of Summit, R. I., were married Saturday at 1 p. m., at the parsonage of the First Congregational church by Rev. William C. Prentiss. 50 Miles An Hour May Be Safe

ROCHESTER, N. Y.—(AP)—A speed of fifty miles an hour on an open highway can not always be considered dangerous, according to an opinion of Supreme Court Justicee Benjamin B. Cunningham, affirmed by the court of appeals.

NEW YORK, June 26—(AP)—The weekly report of the federal reserve bank of New York showed gold imports of $157,000, chiefly from Latin-America. None was exported and there was no net change in gold earmarked for foreign account.

Success

genius, that power which dazzles mortal eyes,
Is oft but perservance in disguise.
Continuous effort of itself implies,
In spite of countless falls, the power to rise.
'Twixt failure and success the print's so fine.
Men sometimes know not when they touch the line;
Just when the pearl is waiting one more plunge,
How many a struggler has thrown up the sponge!
As the tide goes clear out it comes clear in;
In business 'tis at turns the wisest win;
And, Oh,how true when shades of doubt dismay,
" 'tis often darkest just before the day."
A little more persistence, courage, vim,
Success fill dawn oer failure's cloudy rim.
Then take this honey for the bitterest cup;
There is no failure, save in giving up.
No real fall, so long as one stil tries,
For seeming setbacks make the strong man wise.
There's no defeat, in truth, save from within,
Unless you're beaten there, you're bound to win.

C. C. Cameron.

HUMOR OF THE DAY

Hewitt—Can you get your wife to try the budget system?

Jewett—No; she won't budge.—Exchange.

Miss Pounds—Don't you think I'm a little too heavy to sit on your knees?

Mr. Longsuffer—I thought so at first, dear, but my knees have become numb since then.—Detroit News.

"I don't want to buy your crackers, they tell me the mice are always running over them."

"That ain't so; why, the cat sleeps in the barrel every night."—Boston Transcript.

"I came from Barcelona in my car at 150 miles an hour."

"That is a lie."

"So it is, but all the same it is a good speed, isn't it?"—Guttierrez.

Teacher—Robert, if you are always very kind and polite to all your playmates, what will they think of you?

Robert—Some of 'em would think they could lick me!—Goblin.

"I was sorry for your wife in church this morning when she had a terrific attack of coughing and everyone turned to look at her."

"You needn't worry about that. She was wearing her new spring hat."—Exchange.

Two bandits walked into a trunk store and locked the proprietor and sole customer in a wardrobe trunk while they rifled the safe. The customer, who was the Man Who Always Rode in Upper Berths, pulled out a flashlight and looked around him.

Jerry had had his first term at boarding school and while he was on holiday his uncle visited the family.

"Hallo, Jerry!" said Uncle. "How do you like your Form Master?"

"He's not too bad, Uncle," replied Jerry. "Rather bigoted, though."

"How so?"

"He will insist that words can only be spelled his way."—Punch.

One of the important questions to be answered by the 1930 census is whether there are still 104 men to 100 women in the United States.

A study of 2,100 foreign born women earning their living in Philadelphia and the Lehigh Valley showed that they represent twenty-five nationalities.

According to the newspaper Cuventul, former uoen Marie of Roumania already has finished and delivered to her publisher the first volume of her memoirs. Two other volumes will follow in the course of the year.

A polite eighteen-year-old St. Louis youth snatched a woman's purse, took from it a dollar, handed it back, doffed his hat, and strode away. The woman, because of the lad's politeness, made no attempt to have him arrested.

Gypsies may be in for a hard time when the new German penal code is adopted. Paragraph 372 just approved by the codification committee of the reichrath, prescribes six weeks' imprisonment for members of bands who wander about the country without visible or justifiable means of support.

The Teutonic-Brazilian Colonizing society contracted with the government of Parana for the colonization with German immigrants of 50,000 hectares—approximately 125,000 acres—of land along the borders of Sao Paulo. This region lies in the zone crossed by the highway now under construction between Curityba, capital of Parana, and the city of Sao Paulo.

An earthquake irrigated a cantaloupe field at Brawley, Cal., recently when a tremblor caused small geysers to spout five inches high over the 160-acre field owned by the S. A. Gerrard company. The water irrigated the entire field and then flooded adjacent areas before subsiding. Small sand piles were left in the wake of unusual inundation, and a beet field nearby was completely covered by new sand.

FRENCH PLAN AIR LINES TO COLONIES IN TROPICS

PARIS—(AP)—New air routes are planned by France to cut travel time to its colonies.

Weekly service to Brazzaville, below the equator in French Equatorial Africa, will be put into operation in 1930. The air line will reduce to six or seven days a trip now taking 24 days. Within two years it is hoped the line will be extended to Madagascar.

Experimental trips will be made for the establishment of a line from Paris to Bagdad to link with the English line in India and a French route into Indo-China.

Surveys will be completed this year and agreements are being negotiated with England to allow operations over the entire far eastern line by 1931. The undertaking, it is planned, will cut travel time to eight or nine days from 20 days.

UNION

The haying season seems to be coming on early this year. The dry summer, followed by an open winter, made a light harvest of hay for this season on old fields. Newly seeded mowings look thriving since the recent heavy rains.

An interesting paper, "The Japan Advertizer," of June 2, published in Tokyo, was received here a few days ago. The paper was a marked copy with a vivid account of the earthquake which did considerable damage in various parts of Japan on the morning of June 1. Dr. and Mrs. Lindsay were guests at the Imperial hotel in Tokyo at that time. The damage done in Tokyo was slight, but hundreds of residents in the city were frightened when they were awakened from a sound sleep by the shock, and many rushed into the streets.

The beautiful weather of Saturday and Sunday brought many guests to town for the week end. Mrs. Ida Lawson of Middle Haddam, Donald Lawson of Hartford, Mr. and Mrs. Clement C. Lawson of New York, were at Camp Cove; Comptroller R. A. Longley and Mrs. Longley, accompanied by friends, from C. A. C., were at their Mashapaug cottage; E. A. POLES ALL READY TO USE GROW WILD IN ROCKIES

LARAMIE, Wyo. — (AP) — Poles all ready to use are the lodge pole pole, probably the best known tree of the Rocky mountains, Dr. Aven Nelson, of the University of Wyoming, reports to the American Association for the Advancement of Science.

"It often forms a pure, dense stand, so dense and uniform as to suggest a crop plant sown by the hand of man," he says.

"In such cases they shoot up as poles entirely free from branches, except at the top where the small crop of leaves is fighting for sunlight."

This New Gas Starter now on all

Coleman AIR-O-GAS Pressure Stoves

This New Coleman Starter does just what its name implies—lights instantly. Just open a valve and hold a lighted match to the starter—and it's going—right now!

Generates the stove to full cooking heat in less than a minute—and without reducing air pressure in the tank—without any extra pumping or refilling or bother of any kind. It places the Coleman Air-O-Gas Stove in a class by itself. Nothing else like it on the market.

Come in and see how these stoves equipped with this instant gas starter give you gas cooking heat in less than a minute.

WINDHAM

The beautiful sunset in the west and the thunder clouds in the northeast made an unusual setting for the outdoor service held on the lawn in the rear of the school house Sunday evening. The service was in charge of Rev. E. F. Smiley and the speaker was Rev. Mrs. Florence Jones of Mansfield who gave an impressive talk on "How Jesus Made Leaders of His Disciples." The singing was led by Miss Margaret Banton at the piano and John Dean, with his violin. Rev. Hawthorne Jones of Mansfield offered prayer. Other ministers present were Rev. Mr. Clarke of Brooklyn, N. Y. and Rev. William Martin Brown. The service was shortened on account of the threatened shower which finally passed to the east with only a few raindrops here.

A large quantity of rain fell during the heavy thunder shower about 4:30 Saturday and 2:30 a. m. Wednesday.

The final sewing meeting for the midsummer fair is to be held with Miss Clara Johnson, Thursday.

There was a successful food sale in the chapel, planned by Mrs. Alfred Harvey. Mrs. E. F. Smiley was in charge, assisted by Mrs. Dewitt Lathrop, Mrs. Eden Cook, Mrs. Vantine Anderson and Miss Marguerite Cook. Proceeds of $45 go toward the expenses of the junior choir and for music.

Mr. and Mrs. W. S. Chappell and daughter of New London and Miss Margaret Grainger of Montclair, N. Y. opened their summer homes here last week.

Mrs. E. W. McGuire has as a guest Rev. Mr. Clarke of Brooklyn, N. Y., at her summer home here.

Mr. and Mrs. Drury of Northampton, Mass., were the guests of their daughter, Mrs. Harold Leffingwell and family, Sunday.

Miss Anna Claassen motored to Wellesley, Mass., Tuesday with Rev. and Mrs. F. C. Williams to attend the conference there.

Sixteen members of the order of the Eastern Star of Putnam were guests of Mrs. John Bates at a fried chicken dinner last week, Friday.

Myrtle Tomkins of the graduating class of the grammar school was awarded the $5 D. A. R. prize for showing the greatest interest in American history.

Helen Tomkins has accepted a position at Dr. F. E. Guild's.

Mrs. Voker and son, Edward Abrams, of Trenton, N. J., called on Mrs. Homer F. Wood recently.

Mrs. Cora Moulton Duncan of Boston was at Miss Emma Larrabee's one day last week.

Miss Sygne Nyeberg and George Gee who were married two weeks ago in Quincy, Mass., have returned from their wedding trip and are living in their new home, the former Arthur Williams place on West street.

Pupils in the grammar school perfect in attendance for a year are John Dubnia, Annie Dubnia, Evelyn Huizdo and Anna Sikorsky.

Theology School Closes

HANOVER

Miss Marion Walker of Utley, N. S., is visiting at the home of Mr. and Mrs. William G. Park.

The Misses Caroline and Jennie Gallup and several of their Hanover friends enjoyed the salad and strawberry supper at the Parish house in Scotland, Tuesday evening, the 24th.

Mrs. Angus Park spent Sunday at Winchendon, Mass.

The Hanover church elected Frank L. Smith as delegate to the Congregational council Thursday afternoon to be held at the First church, Norwich, as a farewell service to Rev. Gurdon F. Bailey.

The morning services at the Hanover Congregational church Sunday will be conducted largely by the children.

Two thirds of the area of the city and county of San Francisco is water.

FUNERAL.

David S. Gilmour.

The funeral service of David S. Gilmour, prominent Greeneville resident, was held at his late residence, No. 120 Seventh street Thursday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock with services being conducted by Rev. Charles H. Rickets, pastor of the Greeneville Congregational church. Burial was in the family plot at the Hickory street cemetery and Rev. Mr. Rickotts conducted the committal services. The bearers were James C. Henderson of Norwich, Duncan A. McConnell of Montclair, N. J., David G. McConnell of New York, and James Hill of Providence, nephews of the deceased; Dr. James L. Moriarty of Waterbury, a nephew of Mrs. Gilmour and James Service of this city. In the large attendance were mourners from New York, Providence, Waterbury and Montclair, N. J. There was a profusion of beautiful floral remembrances. Undertaker C. A. Gager had charge of the arrangements.

TAFTVILLE

Mr. and Mrs. Henry Fontaine are moving from North A street to a house on North Third avenue.

Repairs are well underway on the store building of Wilbur E. Baldwin which was partially destroyed by fire some time ago.

Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Durand and family of South Second avenue are moving to the house on North A street vacated by Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Mathieu and family who moved to Holyoke, Mass.

The members of the Basketry club held a meeting Thursday evening in the Red Cross rooms in the Ponemah community building.

The former quarters of the Taftville post office in the Ponemah house building have been remodelled and will be used for a lunchroom in conjunction with the Ponemah house. Clarence J. Nagle will be the manager.

Mr. and Mrs. Henry Thibeault have taken a house on North A street.

Practically all the farmers about town took advantage of the fine weather this week to do their haying.

Local fishermen report that alewives there has not been much du-ing in the sport for several weeks, some good catches were reported during the past few days.

Mr. and Mrs. Napoleon Brochu are moving to a house on North A street.

The committee in charge of the annual picnic of the Taftville Congregational church school have completed their arrangements, and the scholars are looking forward to the event which is always one of the happiest outings of the year. All pupils are to be presented with free tickets which will be distributed at a date to be announced later. The outing is to be held at Ocean Beach and the transportation will be by two special cars.

Cards are being received from John Grieshammer of Baltic, a former Taftville resident, who is spending the summer in Germany.

Miss Leona Dugas of Webster, Mass., is visiting her grand parents, Mr. and Mrs. Primo Dugas.

The old swimming hole on the Lisbon side of the Shetucket river near the Ponemah mills dam is proving a popular place for the youngsters on these hot days. Each afternoon big crowds visit the place for a cooling dip. Some of the men of the village swim there in the evening.

The new residence of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Jodoin of Norwich which is being erected on upper Merchants avenue is rapidly nearing completion and will soon be ready for occupancy.

Mrs. James Sharrock of Holyoke, Mass., is the guest for a few days of Mr. and Mrs. Lewis B. Brand of Versailles.

Miss Hazel Gley of Mystic is spending this week with her grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Adolph Meyer and family of Bilesville.

GROTON PASTOR LEAVES TO LIVE IN MASSACHUSETTS

Rev. Henry W. Hulbert, D. D., pastor of the Groton Congregational church, who announced his retirement from the pastorate of the church March 16, left Groton Thursday for the home in which he will live at Framingham Center, Mass., near Boston. His resignation was presented to the church committee at the annual meeting in April and was accepted at that time. His reason for retirement he stated is because of advanced age and a desire to retire to his suburban homestead in Massachusetts.

Rev. Mr. Hulbert has been pastor of the Groton church for the past 16 years and has made a host of friends of all denominations. He succeeded the late Rev. James R. Danforth, D.D., of New London. He is 73 years of father of Rev. J. Romeyn Danforth, pastor of the First Church of Christ age.

STONINGTON MAN STOLE CHICKENS IN LISBON

Charles King, 36, of Stonington, was presented in the Lisbon town court Wednesday afternoon before Justice Walter Drew on two counts of theft of chickens, to which he pleaded guilty. He was sentenced to 30 days in each count, a total of 60 days, and was later taken to the New London county jail here. On two different occasions in March and April King appropriated about 20 Rhode Island Reds from the hen coops of George Bradlaw in Lisbon. His arrest was made by Officer Scranton of the Danielson barracks.

King is also implicated in the alleged theft of several hundred yards of cloth from the bleachery at Glasgo with Louis Cologne of North Stonington and Frank King, as told in the Danielson column Thursday morning.

STATE'S TAX BILL HAS GROWN TO $140,644,195; GAIN OF $13,332,273

Connecticut's tax bill for the year ended June 30, 1929, was $140,644,195.13, according to information collected by Tax Commissioner William H. Blodgett relative to the assessment and collection of federal, state, county and local levies. This amount is an increase over the previous year of $13,332,273.69, and the new total represents a tax of $87 per capita, or about $10 more for every resident of the state than in 1928, when it was $77.27.

Almost one-half of the amount collected was for local taxes, says Commissioner Blodgett. Of the total, local tax districts had the spending of $68,770,264.26, or 48.90 per cent; the federal government of $42,215,118.85, or 30.01 per cent; the state of $28,774,573.92, or 20.46 per cent, and the counties of $884,248.19, or .63 per cent.

Taxes On Increase

Local tax budgets are still on the increase, the commissioner finds. In 1926 the levies on property and personal taxes by all taxing districts was $56,838,577.34. By 1929 this had grown to $71,177,290.30, an increase of 25.2 per cent.

During the year covered by the report the grand list of the state was increased $147,780,898, or 5.05 per cent. The total is now $3,803,076,794, as compared with $2,655,295,896 in 1928. The average tax rate remained at 24.9 mills, and the grand levy of property taxes increased $3,626,830, or 5.4 per cent. The amounts of taxes annually levied in all municipalities in the state are shown by the report to be increasing at the rate of approximately $5,000,000.

$18,000,000 Back Taxes

On April 1, 1929, the sum of all taxes collectible in the state's 350 towns, boroughs, cities, school, fire and other districts totalled $86,595,226. Of this amount, more than $18,000,000 represented delinquent taxes. It is to this evergrowing item of so-called "back taxes," says Commissioner Blodgett that the serious attention of our municipalities must be directed if justice and equity for all taxpayers is to obtain and the tax burden borne proportionately, as contemplated by the statutes. Delinquent property and personal taxes in all towns have increased practically $1,000,000 in three years.

Preston Per Capita Lowest

The highest per capita tax in the state on local taxes is collected in Darien, where in 1929, it was $107.34 for each resident. Greenwich and Norfolk are second and third with $78.88 and $77.40 respectively. West Hartford is eighth on the list with $59.01, and Hartford is thirteenth, with $54.43. The lowest in the state was at Preston, where it was $7.89, and the average for the state was $43.13.

Hartford led all cities and towns in the amount of grand list with $364,608,479. The next seven in order were: New Haven $321,201,069; Bridgeport, $264,289,069; Waterbury, $167,888,414; Stamford, $120,165,719; New Britain, $116,226,962; Greenwich, $104,144,621; West Hartford, $64,067,586. Voluntown, with $233,454, had the smallest grand list in the state.

Griswold's Rate Highest

Griswold with a tax of 36.3 mills leads other towns of the state in the average tax rate list. The rate for Hartford, including the various districts within the borders of the town, was 24.6 mills. This compares with 23.8 for New Haven, 33.8 for Bridgeport, 32.7 for Waterbury, and 30.7 for Stamford. The lowest rate is in Willington, where it is 8 mills. The town of Morris sets a rate of 10 mills.

Commissioner Blodgett points out that in five years taxable real estate and personal property reached by the assessors under the ad valorem tax laws increased $545,071,667, or 24.1 per cent.

Revaluation Work

"General revaluations are now in progress in a number of towns along approved, scientific lines," he says, "replacing the former inadequate methods of dealing with this important problem. Since publication of the last report, Greenwich, Meriden, New London, Old Saybrook and Windham have revised their assessments with the aid of disinterested tax appraisal organizations.

"In addition, many other towns have adopted improved plans and practices and set up permanent assessing records and adequate maps showing the detail of all parcels of property, where formerly no such data was kept on file. The larger cities of the state, with the exception of Hartford and New Haven, have caused to be made special studies of the administration of the law by the tax assessors.

Becoming "Tax Conscious"

"The facility with which town meetings, common councils, boards of aldermen, and other agencies in recent years have authorized expenditures of constantly growing sums has had the natural effect of focusing attention on the subject of local assessments and taxes. It has brought about a 'tax consciousness' in many towns in Connecticut and given impetus to the need for sound municipal budgeting and adequate assessment and collection practices."

Taxes Summarized

The following table shows the items of federal, state, county and local taxes which make up the total of $140,644,195.13, paid by Connecticut during the twelve months prior to July 1, 1929.

PASSES BILL RETURNING FORT GRISWOLD TRACT

The return of title to the Fort Griswold tract in Groton from the United States to the state of Connecticut is provided in the Bingham bil which was passed by the senate at Washington Wednesday afternoon.

The measure reserves the right for the federal government to resume possession of the tract whenever in the judgment of the president an emergency exists. The federal government owns more than 12 acres in the tract.

In a favorable report on the bill the senate military affairs committee said:

"The Fort Griswold tract is one of the few remaining memories of the Revolutionary period, and for a number of years it has been used by the state of Connecticut as a public park. Situated on the east shore of New London harbor, it contains evidences and mementoes of great historical interest, harking back to the first-line defenses of the state and the Union. It has come to be a sacred shrine of the people of a sovereign state, whose chief battle memorial it is."

When the bill providing for return of title to the old fort tract to the state was before the senate military committee a conference with Governor Trumbull was held and it was decided that the state would agree that the government could use the fort tract in time of war. The commissioners for the care and protection of the fort tract and the attorney general's office were represented at the conference.

Lieutenant Governor Rogers has been especially active in all affairs pertaining to the fort tract and has urged the return of title to the state.

PROSTRATED BY HEAT AND BREAKS HIS WRIST

The first case of heat prostration to be recorded in this city during the current heat wave occurred about 2:10 o'clock Thursday afternoon at Rose Place. Charles McSheffery, 65, of No. 344 Central avenue, was overcome and in falling injured his right wrist. He was taken to the Backus hospital by Dr. David Sussler, who was called.

U. S. 1812 DAUGHTERS MEETING AT OLD LYME

The United States Daughters of 1812 will hold its summer meeting at Old Lyme today (Friday). Mrs. Charles M. Adams and Mrs. Warren B. Burrows of Groton and Mrs. Eliza J. H. Morley and Mrs. O. S. White of Old Lyme, will act as hostesses.

ON MOTOR TRIP FOR THEIR HONEYMOON

Mr. and Mrs. John Middletown Holmes of New London are taking a motor trip through New England to the bay of Fundy, where they will spend a month. After they honeymoon they will live in this city and Mr. Holmes will be associated with the Palmer Bros. mill at Fitchville. Mrs. Holmes was Miss Priscilla Palmer.

Caught Monster Blackfish

A blackfish, 29 1-2 inches long, weighing 14 pounds, and said to have been the largest caught with a rod and casting line in either Rhode Island or Connecticut within the past five years, was recently hooked by Frank M. Lanphear, 62 Gorton street, New London. This unusual catch was made off the breakwater at Point Judith.

The fish was too heavy to lift out of the water by reeling the line on his slender rod, and so Lanphear held the head of the fish out of water for 30 minutes until its life ebbed away.

NORWICH TOWN

Children's Day Concert

The Children's day concert to be given by the Sunday school of the Norwich Town Methodist Episcopal church will be held next Sunday evening at 7 o'clock. Charles Helmboldt of Lisbon a young violinist will assist in the program by playing two solos. The committee in charge are Inez Edmiston, Florence Aldrich, Gertrude Brown, Florence M. Bennett and Effie Ladd.

Dorcas Missionary Society

The June meeting of the Dorcas Home Missionary society of the Methodist Episcopal church was held at the home of Mrs. George Manning at Yantic Thursday afternoon. The vice president, Mrs. Arthur Fulton, presided. The meeting opened with the singing of the hymn "Work For The Night Is Coming." The Scripture lesson, Psalm 147, was read by the chairman, Mrs. Fulton, after which the pastor, Rev. George Warren Potter, offered prayer. "A Charge To Keep I Have" was then sung.

Mrs. Stanton W. Brown, the secretary, then gave her report for the year. This was followed by the treasurer, Mrs. George Manning, reading her report for the past year. Both reports were excellent and showed that much had been accomplished by the small society. Ten regular and three special meetings were held during the year. Among the notable things done during the year were the following: A food sale was held in August with a good sum earned; a dollar social was held; the birthday bag social in February and $50 was the result; this money is to be used for painting the parsonage. The society paid $50 toward the current expenses of the church, and $32 toward missionary work. In June, under the able direction of the vice president, Mrs. Fulton, a dinner was served the district convention which netted the society $47.50. There is a special fund in which the society now has $119 for painting the parsonage this summer. A card signed by all the members was sent to the president of the society, Mrs. William Weaver. Following the business a lunch consisting of sandwiches, cake, cup cakes, fruit, cold tea and lemonade was served by the hostess, Mrs. Manning, assisted by Mrs. William Waters, Mrs. Wellington Miner and the Misses Josephine and Mabel Rogers. The meeting closed with the Mizpah benediction.

Upon invitation of the Young People's Christian Endeavor society of Goshen Congregational church, of which Rev. Howard Bushnell is pastor, the Intermediate C. E. society of the Norwich Town Congregational church paid a return visit Tuesday evening to the Goshen society which was entertained recently at the Norwich Town church. There were seventeen children, who, accompanied by several adults, left the chapel about 5:30, arriving shortly after six at Goshen, where at 6:30, under the auspices of the women of the entertaining church, a delicious supper of salads, sandwiches, cake and lemonade was served on the lawn under the trees.

There were five who contributed cars to transfer the company to Goshen, Rev. Gurdon F Bailey, Mrs. Albert Avery, Theodore Sterry, Reginald Avery and George Durr. After supper, the entire company assembled in the Sunday school room of the church where a C. E. meeting was held, led by Mary Kostowith of the entertaining church. A pleasing programme of music was given during the meeting as follows: Duet, "In the Garden," Doris Seagraves and Betty Browning; cornet solo, Edward Jordan; instrumental trio, violin, Theodore Sterry; cornet, Edward Jordan; piano, Rev. Mr. Bushnell; violin solo, Helen Kostowith, accompanied at the piano by Rev. Mr. Bushnell. The topic of the meeting was "Bluffing and Knocking." Of interest were the inspiring talks by the two pastors, Rev. Mr. Bailey and Rev. Mr. Bushnell also the superintendent of the Intermediate society, Miss Jessie E. Hyde. The most enjoyable time concluded with a game period, the Norwich Town company returning home at 9:30.

The Junior C. E. society of the Norwich Town Congregational church will hold a summer party in the chapel Tuesday afternoon, July 1, from 2:30 o'clock on, under the general supervision of its leader, Mrs. Ernest Washington.

From Norwich Town, Mr. and Mrs. Henry T. Frazier, Mrs. William H. Whiteman and guest, Miss Maria Briggs, Kurt Wilcox and Dr. and Mrs. Charles H. Lamb attended Tuesday evening the strawberry shortcake supper at Leffingwell Baptist church.

Sunday morning Charles P. Learned and Dr. and Mrs. Lamb were included in the congregation at Newent Congregational church where the pastor, Rev. William J. Reynolds' son, Rev. Maurice Reynolds, an army chaplain, gave an inspiring address on "Enthusiasm."

AS SENATE CUTS LAW ENFORCEMENT COM. FUND, HOOVER SAYS THE MONEY WILL BE RAISED BY PRIVATE SUBSCRIPTIONS

Senate Voted 35 to 30 to Cut the Appropriation From $250,000 to $50,000 and Confine the Work to Prohibition—President Hoover Declared That Should Congress Limit the Scope of the Commission the Larger Sphere of the Investigation Would Be Carried On By Private Funds—Asserted That 70 Per Cent of Prison Inmates Are There For Violating Laws Other Than Prohibition.

WASHINGTON, June 27. — (AP) — Striking back at the senate for restricting his law enforcement commission to a study of prohibition laws alone, President Hoover today declared the commission would continue its investigation of general crime conditions with the aid of subscriptions from private sources.

The president acted soon after the senate had defeated, 35 to 30, an amendment to the second deficiency bill to provide another $250,000 for the commission to complete its inquiry into enforcement of all criminal statutes, and approved a provision of only $50,000 with a strict limitation confining the work to the dry laws.

Replying to questions at the White house press conference after he had conferred with five members of the enforcement commission Mr. Hoover said:

"With growing crime of all kinds and with insistent recommendations from every bar association and public body concerned that we should have an accurate study of the reforms necessary in our whole judicial and administrative machinery, that we should have some constructive program for decreased and control of crime as a whole, I cannot abandon the question for one moment or allow the work of this commission to cease."

"I have asked the commission to proceed with its full program of work and it has consented to do so," the president added.

He added he had no doubt there were private citizens sufficiently anxious for the nation to know the "whole truth as to why constructive remedies may be suggested by so eminent a body of men and women as this commission" and that he would be able to obtain from private sources $100,000 to carry the work to completion.

The five members of the commission who conferred with the president after the senate vote were Chairman Wickersham, Dean Roscoe Pound, Henry W. Anderson, Monte L. Lemann, and Miss Ada L. Comstock.

Asked if the commission expected to continue its work, Chairman Wickersham said:

"We are not quitters."

Commenting on the Hoover announcement, Senator Glass, democrat, Virginia, who led the fight for the $50,000 allotment said:

"All I have to say is that if there is anybody simple enough to want to waste their money in this sort of work I certainly shall have no objection."

Senator Jones, republic, Washington, who sponsored the $250,000 amendment with no limitations, said:

"I'm not surprised. I think the senate ought to feel humiliated by the fact that important work like this has to be carried on by private subscription."

Senator Glass, author of the original $250,000 appropriation for the commission, contended in the senate that congress intended the Hoover agency should confine its inquiry to prohibition laws and that appropriation of another quarter of a million dollars would mean that $328,000 would be "wasted." He included in this figure the $88,000 unexpended balance of the first appropriation which the deficiency bill reappropriates.

Senator Jones, who stood alone for the larger and unrestricted item in the appropriations committee he heads, said the law provided specifically for a study of prohibition and other laws. By restricting its work in the future, he said, all of its exhaustive and uncompleted labors in Connecticut with studies of general law enforcement would "go for naught."

Little debate preceded the final vote which came after Jones first had won his amendment, 30 to 29. Glass, however, sought reconsideration through a motion by Senator Overman, democrat, North Carolina, who had not voted on the previous roll call.

On the final vote 27 republicans and three democrats voted for the Jones amendment, while 24 democrats and 11 republicans voted against it.

For: Republicans—Borah, Capper, Couzens, Deneen, Fess, Glenn, Goldsborough, Hale, Hatfield, Hebert, Howell, Jones, Kean, McCulloch, McNary, Norris, Patterson, Pine, Reed, Robinson of Indiana, Robsion of Kentucky, Shortridge, Stemer, Thomas of Idaho, Townsend, Vandenberg, Watson—27.

Democrats—Barkley, Dill and Sheppard—3.

Total—30.

Against:

Republicans: Bingham, Blaine, Brookhart, Cutlin, Dale, Johnson, LaFollette, Metcalf, Moses, Phipps and Sullivan—11.

Total—35.

Mr. Hoover in his statement emphasized that the enforcement of "any one criminal law necessarily involves the machinery by which all criminal laws are enforced, and the country is concerned over the cause of increased crime in general."

Nothing indicated this better, he said, than the fact that "in the last two years there was an increase of persons in federal prisons for serious offense from 8,400 to over 13,000, whereas in the previous two years the increase was from 7,100 to 8,400—in other words an increase of 1,300 in the first period and an increase of 4,600 in the last period."

Seventy per cent of these prisoners were in violation of laws other than the dry statutes, he said, with state prisons showing "about the same story."

The president said there could be no doubt that the more vigorous enforcement of the laws has had something to do with the federal situation."

"What the causes and remedies are in respect to these 70 per cent is of vital importance," he asserted.

Declaring members of the law enforcement commission were "volunteers serving solely out of regard to public interest," he said all funds, whether congressional or otherwise, were "solely for investigation work."

"The commission will, of course," he concluded, need to set up a separate division to take charge of the non-prohibition section of their work and will, of course, preside over it in a separate capacity."

This statement was taken to mean that the federal funds would be used specifically for the prohibition study and those obtained by private subscription for completion of the inquiry into other laws. The text of the Hoover statement follows:

President Hoover's Statement

The president in his statement said:

"I know that the appropriation requested by the law enforcement commission for its work outside of prohibition has failed in the senate. This deleted part of the appropriation is that devoted to investigation into the cause and remedy for crime in general and for the determination of the reforms need in our judicial and administrative machinery.

"As a matter of fact, the enforcement of any one criminal law necessarily involves the machinery by which all criminal laws are enforced, and the country is concerned over the cause of increasing crime in general. Nothing indicates the situation better than the fact that in the last two years there was an increase of persons in federal prisons for serious offenses from 8,400 to over 13,000, whereas in the previous two years the increase was from 7,200 to 8,400—in other words, an increase of 1300 in the first period and an increase of 5,600 in the last period. Seventy per cent of these prisoners are for other crimes than those arising out of prohibition. Our state prisons shows about the same story.

"There can be no doubt that the more vigorous enforcement of the law should have an accurate study of the reforms necessary in our whole judicial and administrative machinery, that we should have some constructive program for decrease and control of crime as a whole. I cannot abandon the question for one moment or allow the work of this commission to cease. I have asked the commission to proceed with its full program of work and it has consented to do so.

"I have no doubt that there are private citizens sufficiently anxious for the nation to know the whole truth as to what constructive remedies may be suggested by so eminent a body of men and women as this commission, that I shall be able to secure from private sources the $100,000 necessary to carry this work forward to completion.

"The commission are volunteers serving solely out of regard to public interest, and all funds, whether congressional or otherwise, are solely for investigation work.

"The commission will of course, need to set up a separate division to take charge of the non-prohibition section of their work, and will, of course, preside over it in a separate capacity."

SECOND DEFICIENCY BILL PASSED BY THE SENATE

WASHINGTON, June 27.—(AP)—The last of the big annual supply measures was passed today by the senate with approval of the second deficiency appropriation bill carrying more than $80,000,000 for various federal projects, including $10,660,000 to start construction of Boulder Dam on the Colorado river.

Before the measure can go to the white house it must be returned to the house for approval of amendments totaling more than $12,000,000, which were added by the senate.

The bill provides $50,000 for continuance of the investigations by the Hoover law enforcement commission but limits future studies by that body to the dry laws. It also re-appropriates the $88,000 unexpended balance of the original $250,000 appropriation for the commission.

In addition the measure carries funds for various federal building projects, including an item of $5,000,000 for a new post office site and $2,450,000 for a new federal court building site in New York city. These two items were added by the senate today on motion of Senator Wagner, democrat, New York.

AIRPLANE CHRISTENED BY MRS. JAMES J. WALKER

ROOSEVELT FIELD, N. Y., June 27—(AP)— While her husband was greeting Squadron Leader Charles Gingsford-Smith and his aides in the westward transatlantic flight, Mrs. James J. Walker, wife of New York city's mayor, today christened the airplane "City of New York" in which John Henry Mears hopes to fly eastward around the world.

After the christening, which took place at Roosevelt Field, N. Y., Mrs. Walker went for an air ride with Fred Melchior, Mears' pilot. Mears chose her to dedicate the plane because, he said, she brought him good luck by christening the machine in which he made a world flight two years ago. He expects to take the plane to Hartford, Conn., for final inspection Monday.

MOSCOW, June 27—(AP)—Coincident with the opening day of the sixteenth congress of the all union communist party, the soviet press prints a long front page review of the achievements of the bolsheviks since the last meeting of the party two years ago.

TREVES, Germany, June 27.—(AP)—The tricolor of France yesterday was lowered from the headquarters of General Putois, commander of the forces of occupation. The general paid his official farewell calls, at the conclusion of which the last French troops in this district entrained for home.

NEW YORK'S RECEPTION TO SOUTHERN CROSS CREW

NEW YORK, June 27—(AP)—Flying across oceans is still something to make ordinary earth-bound folk applaud and speak in glowing terms of heroic courage, but to the crew of the Southern Cross it is just a job of work.

Squadron Leader Charles Kingsford-Smith and the three men with whom he made the perilous westward crossing of the north Atlantic in the same plane in which he flew the Pacific two years ago were welcomed as heroes at city hall today and at a luncheon were presented medals of valor.

"It's awfully nice to get these medals," the Australian flier said. "But I don't know why they should be called medals of valor. There wasn't any valor about what w did. It was just a job of work we had set ourselves and we did it."

Kingsford-Smith then protested against all the credit being showered on him, saying that four men had been in the ship and all had played equally important roles. He then introduced the members of his crew, the bad-weather pilot from the Dutch East Indies Evert Van Dyk whom he called "The Flying Dutchman," Capt. J. Patrick Saul, the Irish navigator, whom he called Paddy; and "Little Johnny Stafinage," the Australian wireless operator.

"Today's reception was somewhat different from the usual welcome in that the fliers were already here and so could not be brought in on the city tug Macom for a procession up Broadway through the financial district to city hall. Instead of that they were taken in a fleet of cars from their hotel in the Grand Central zone down Fifth avenue and Lafayette street to city hall. All traffic was stopped for them and crowds along the curbs cheered as they passed with their escort of motorcycle police.

At city hall, they were greeted by Mayor James J. Walker and presented with scrolls welcoming them to New York and praising them for their achievement. Mayor Walker spoke of them as public benefactors whose flight was a splendid contribution to science and human progress, he said that such pioneering flights were in no way to be confused with "stunt flying."

Kingsford-Smith responded with thanks for the reception and especially for the mayor's remark about stunt flying.

ROTH ELECTED PRESIDENT OF INTERNATIONAL ROTARY

CHICAGO, June 27—(AP)— Orange blossoms will decorate Rotary international's white house in place of the tobacco flowers of the past year, as the result of the election today of Almon E. Roth, Palo Alto, Calif., to the presidency succeeding M. Eugene Ewsom, Durham, N. C.

Hardly had Roth's election over, Raymond J. Knoeppel, of New York city, been announced than the thousands of delegates and visitors from 62 nations began their homeward treks, the silver jubilee anniversary of Rotary having passed.

The gathering heard Sir Henry Worth Thornton, Canadian railway executive; Prince Iyesato Tokugawa, president of the Japanese house of peers and Admiral Mark Kerr, retired, of the Royal British navy.

International directors elected today were: Will Taylor, Springfield, Ill.; Clinton P. Anderson, Albuquerque, N. M.; Claytrook Cottingham, Pineville, La.; Richard C. Hedke, Detroit; Howard W. Selby, West Palm Beach, Fla.; Arthur Shadwick, London; Theodore A. Forgeson, Estavan, Canada; Dr. Luis A. Chevez Velando, Lima, Peru; William De Cook Bunning, The Hague, Netherlands, and Smith L. P. Free, Masterson, New Zealand.

COUNSEL KILLED HIMSELF AT OPENING OF COURT

YOUNGSTOWN, Ohio, June 27—(AP)—L. A. Manchester, chief counsel for the Youngstown Sheet & Tube company, killed himself today at the moment of the opening of court for the third day of trial in the injunction suit to prevent merger of the Youngstown company with Bethlehem Steel corporation.

The suicide caused abrupt adjournment of the trial after a dramatic episode in the Mahoning county common pleas court. July 8 was set as the date for resumption of the hearing.

C. W. BIRLEY NOMINATED AS POSTMASTER OF NEW HAVEN

WASHINGTON, June 27 — (AP) — President Hoover today nominated Charles W. Birley as postmaster of New Haven, Conn.

President Hoover yesterday nominated Everard P. Gove for postmaster at Biddeford, Maine.

Deaths And Damage By Storm At Harbor Grace

Almost a Dozen Persons Killed and 30 Fishing Vessels Were Lost

HARBOR GRACE, N. F., June 27—Almost a dozen persons were killed, 30 fishing vessels were lost and thousands of dollars damage done by a thunder and lightning storm which raged over this place and vicinity last night.

All communications in this vicinity were disrupted and it was not until today that the outside world could be told of the disaster.

Hail stones weighing one pound fell from the sky and did heavy damage to building.

In this place alone, five persons were struck and killed by lighting as they either dashed for cover or sat within their homes. One man was killed while he was telephoning and three fishermen lost their lives when their boat was struck.

Reports Of Fighting In Bolivian Capital

Military Provisional Government Is Confronted With A New Revolt

BUENOS AIRES, June 27—Reports from numerous South American sources today indicated that sanguinary fighting has been going on since Sunday in La Paz, the Bolivian capital, with the administration being turned over to a provisional government which is now fighting a new revolt.

The principal information came from Bautista Saavedra, former vice-president of Bolivia, who reached the frontier from the capital.

Senor Saavedra said the provisional government was a military directorate composed of Colonels Toro, Berzee and Gonzales. Wednesday night cadets and non-commissioned officers of the military academy aided by civil elements and other troops, revolted against the directorate and defeated the Loyal Yngavi regiment sent out against them.

The fighting continued all night Wednesday and all of yesterday, Senor Saavedra added, with great loss of life. He said only two regiments now were loyal to the government, and were fighting the rebels from positions in Murillo Square and Comercio street.

The former vice-president confirmed the stories of heavy fighting in La Paz Sunday, first related by passengers who reached the frontier Wednesday night on an international train.

He said a young Bolivian girl student spoke to a group of demonstrators Sunday concerning the recent resignation of President Hernando Siles, asserting that Dr. Siles was trying to regain the presidency and exhorting her listeners to be men and oppose Siles.

Saavedra said that in the midst of her fiery address the police fired, killing the girl and her companion on the platform, a young man student who had spoken previously.

With that the crowd became enraged and charged the police, who mounted machine guns on trucks and repulsed wave after wave of the demonstrators, Senor Saavedra estimating the dead at 40 or more and the wounded at 60.

The rioters finally withdrew, carrying the bodies of the boy and girl over the city and shouting accusations of an outrage against the police.

Others were said to have been killed Monday when public burial was sought for the slain, police firing to disperse the crowds.

Show Windows of the World

50 DEATHS FROM STORMS IN THE U. S. AND CANADA

NEW YORK, June 27(AP)—Death and destruction rode the wings of storms in parts of the United States and Canada last night and today, taking 50 lives, injuring many persons and causing property damage of hundreds of thousands of dollars.

Thirty persons were killed at Brockville, Ont., in the explosion of a charge of dynamite under the drill boat J. B. King, it was believed the blast may have been caused by lightning. High winds and a swift current balked divers in their search of the sunken boat and only one body had been recovered tonight.

Eleven persons were killed near Caperol, Ont., in the wrecks of a freight train and a passenger train. Both wrecks were caused by spreading rails, loosened by the driving rain and high waters. Six of the dead were tramps, riding the rods of the freight train.

Five persons were known to have been killed and several other unconfirmed deaths were reported at Harbor Grace and St. John's, Newfoundland, where hail stones weighing as much as ten pounds broke windows, caved in roofs and sank small fishing boats.

Two men were drowned at Buffalo when a boat foundered, a farmer was killed by lightning near Carlisle, Pa., and a year old girl at Hackettstown, N. J., met the same fate.

VILLAGERS ON GUARD OVER 17,000 BARRELS OF BURNING OIL

OLEAN, N. Y., June 27.—(AP)— A smoky pall hung over this city and surrounding country tonight while weary fire fighters from nearby villages kept guard over 17,000 barrels of burning oil which already had done more than $150,000 damage and hoped that the leaping flames would die out before another day dawned.

For 24 hours those firemen had fought the blazing liquid which mocked their efforts and in a single rush destroyed 2,000 feet or fire hose laid to meet its onslaught. Ignited yesterday by lightning during a thunderstorm, a 25,000 barrel storage tank of crude oil, owned by the Vacuum Oil company, burst into flames.

Employes of the company began pumping oil from the base of the tank, pumping against time in hope of averting an explosion.

MRS. PAYNE WAS KILLED BY AN INFERNAL MACHINE

AMARILLO, TEX., June 27—What police believe was an iternal machine killed Mrs. A. D. Payne, wife of an Amarillo attorney, and maimed and probably fatally injured her 14 year old son as they were driving in their automobile towards the business part of the city today.

Mrs. Payne's body was blown to pieces, the boy's left side, which was next to his mother, who was driving, was mangled—his left leg and left arm having been almost torn from his body.

Payne could ascribe no motive for the plot although he agreed with police that the explosion must have been caused by an infernal machine. He said he did not know of any enemies who would go to such lengths to wreck vengeance against him.

TRIBUTE TO BOBBY JONES IN CONGRESSIONAL RECORD

A warm tribute to the world's most famous golfer was paid in the house by Representative Ramspeck, the member from Bobby's home district. Ramspeck recalled that "Bobby" had won eeven major golf titles in the past ten years including his recent victories in Great Britain.

"Bobby Jones is admired most and is loved most for his modesty and saneness and the manner in which he wears his fame," the Georgian said.

CHARGE VAUSE DEFRAUDED AN 82-YEAR-OLD WIDOW

NEW YORK, June 27—(AP)—Charges that he took money from an 82-year-old widow here made today against former County Judge W. Bernard Vause at his trial for mail fraud in connection with operations of the Columbia Finance Corp., which failed for $400,000.

Mrs. Caroline Timm, formerly of Brooklyn, but now a resident of Avon Park, Fla., took the stand to testify concerning her estate, which, under the trusteeship of Judge Vause, was alleged to have dwindled from about $50,000 to $46.20.

She said she knew nothing about her signature on a note for $5,000 which Judge Vause put up as collateral for a loan of $2,500 from the finance company.

TREASURE IN TEMPLE OF A THOUSAND GROTTOS

MEXICO CITY, June 27.—(AP)—The newspaper La Prensa says it has learned that a fabulous fortune in gold, silver and antique jewelry has been discovered in the ancient "Tempit of a Thousand Grottos," in the department of Izabel, Guatemala.

Troops have been thrown about the Temple and no one is allowed to approach it without authorization from certain authorities, the paper adds.

The Temple is of Maya origin, it is situated in wil jungle country and only a small portion of it protudes above ground. It is built over a large number of deep crevices, some of which are of undetermined depth.

The fortune was discovered recently hidden away in these crevices, La Prensa says, precious metals and jewelry valued at approximately $5,000,000 already having been extracted.

OBITUARY

Rep. Stephen G. Porter

FESS MAY BECOME HEAD OF REP. NATIONAL COMMITTEE

Claudius Huston, Present Chairman, Has Called For a Conference of Party Leaders In Washington July 7—Call Has Renewed Speculation Over Early Retirement of Huston From the Chairmanship — It Is Believed That Senator Fess Is Regarded Favorably By President Hoover.

WASHINGTON, June 27. —(AP)— A call issued today by Claudius Huston, chairman of the republican national committee, for a conference of party leaders here July 7 revived speculation over his probable early retirement.

The speculation included discussion over a successor to Huston and the name of Senator Fess, of Ohio, came prominently into the talk in the inner circle of republicans.

The announcement by Huston of the call for a party meeting merely read:

"There are some matters of importance concerning the forthcoming campaign to bring up on which I prefer to have your counsel and advice."

It is known that President Hoover has been looking over the field of prospective chairmen in view of the general belief that Huston intends to resign at an early date.

It is believed that Senator Fess is regarded favorably by him although several names are known to be under consideration; including Walter F. Brown, the postmaster general, who is also from Ohio; Walter Head, Chicago banker and formerly of Omaha, and Walter H. Newton of Minnesota, one of the president's secretaries.

If Huston intends to resign at the forthcoming meeting he gave no indication of it in conferences today at the capitol. He called upon Senator Watson, of Indiana, the republican leader, and upon Senator Moses, of New Hampshire, the chairman of the republican senatorial campaign committee. They said the discussions were routine and neither believed that Huston was resigning.

Huston called into the conference the officers of the national committee and the chairmen of the senatorial and congressional campaign committees— Senator Moses and Representative Wood, of Indiana, respectively. He sent the following letter to each of the national officers:

"I am asking the officers of the republican national committee and the chairman of the senatorial and congressional campaign committees to meet me at the office of the committee on Monday, July 7, at 10 a. m., and I hope you will find it convenient to attend.

"There are some matters of importance concerning the forthcoming campaign to bring up on which I prefer to have your counsel and advice."

The national committee has been without a secretary since the retirement of Representative Fort, of New Jersey. However, the executive committee alone is authorized to fill this place.

Senator Fess once served as chairman of the congressional committee when he was a member of the house. He has been one of the consistent administration men in the senate during both the Coolidge and Hoover regimes.

GANDHI BOYCOTT INJURES BRITISH TRADE IN CLOTH

BOMBAY, June 27—(AP)—The Gandhi campaign against the use of British cloth, involving the picketing of shops and the pinning of cotton on small native spinning wheels, today was challenged by authorities in the Madras presidency.

Government agents prohibited the wearing of the Gandhi caps—white cotton head-coverings adopted as the nationalist symbol—and acted against the use of the wheels.

The spinning wheel has been one emblem of the Mahatma Gandhi civil disobedience movement. When the Mahatma was interned in Yeroda prison at Poona he took along his small wheel and thousands of his followers, when balked in a march by the police, have sat down in the road and spun briskly to pass the time.

So industriously have the Gandhists spun that their output for individual use, coupled with their picketing of shops, has seriously injured trade in British cloth.

The boycott of British goods in Madras presidency is said to be increasing, with the Nationalists planning to begin a house-to-house campaign tomorrow.

FED. GOVERNMENT LOOKING UP LINGLE'S INCOME

CHICAGO, June 27—(AP)—The federal government today took a hand in untangling the background to the assassination of Alfred Lingle, $65 a week newspaper reporter who played the stock market with a reputed six digit account, and apparently lost heavily last fall. His murder June 9th by gunmen is still unsolved but possible reasons for his death were apparently nearer discovery.

Interested in the reports of the slain reporter's inflated income, Mrs. Myrtle Tanner Blacklidge, internal revenue collector, sent agents to Chicago banks and brokers today to search for Lingle's assets. She has been unable to find an income tax return by Lingle.

The state's attorney, saying that Lingle's financial status be announced to the public on Monday, indicated he would question every public official and racketeer involved in payments or loans to the reporter.

$5,000,000 TO RELIEVE BANKING SITUATION IN CINCINNATI

CINCINNATI, O., June 27—(AP)—M. J. Fleming, deputy governor of the Federal Reserve bank, Cleveland, said $5,000,000 in currency had been brought here today by airplane from Cleveland and placed in the Federal Reserve branch to add assurance to the banking situation in this city.

He said it was the first time that money ever was sent out of the Cleveland Federal Reserve bank by airplane, and that the step was evidence that the Federal Reserve bank was ready at all times to aid any city.

Six armed guards accompanied the money in the plane.

The currency was brought here following the closing yesterday of the Brotherhood of Railway Clerks National bank and the closing seventeen days ago of the Cosmopolitan Bank and Trust company.

HUNTER BROTHERS ARE ON THEIR 17TH DAY IN THE AIR

CHICAGO, June 27—(AP)— Weary but determined, the Hunter brothers, John and Kenneth, pilots of the "City of Chicago" entered the seventeenth day in the air at 4:40 p. m. (Central daylight time) today, bent on breaking the world's non-stop refueling record.

They had been aloft 384 hours at 4:40 o'clock. To break the record of 420 hours and 21 minutes, now held by the "St. Louis Robin" the Hunters must fly until after sunrise Sunday.

Thus far the Hunters have conquered many difficulties.

JOKES OF HUSBAND'S FRIENDS DISGUSTED WIFE'S BUTLER

She was granted a divorce here yesterday from John Worden Elwood, vice president of the National Broadcasting Company, on grounds of cruelty.

POSSE IS SEARCHING FOR SLAYER OF A SHERIFF

NORTH LIBERTY, Iowa, June 27.—(AP)—A posse of 200 men, including 30 mounted national guardsmen, under the direction of James E. Risdee, chief of the state bureau of criminal investigation, tonight concentrated on the search for the slayer of Sheriff Fred Sweet and Marshall Aaron Bailey, both of Washington, in the woods of the Iowa river valley.

Airplanes flying between Iowa City and Cedar Rapids sought trace of the slayer, who was reported seen in this vicinity last night. The peace officers were slain yesterday morning.

Bloodhounds were brought from Waterloo after searchers found a straw pile on which they believed the killer slept last night after abandoning the automobile in which he escaped.

Rewards totaling $2,000 were offered for the capture of the man. Farmers in the river valley were given the description of the fugitive.

Sheriff Sweet was killed as he searched the man. Suspected of the theft of an automobile. The man wrestled with the officer, fired a bullet through Marshal Bailey's heart, and then shot the sheriff five times in the body.

PREDICTS APPROVAL OF NEW VETS RELIEF BILL

WASHINGTON, June 27. — (AP) — Committee approval of the new house measure authorizing disability pensions for veterans of the World war was confidentially predicted tonight by Senator Watson, of Indiana, the acting chairman of the senate finance committee.

Director Hines of the veterans bureau endorsed the bill before the committee during its day of hearings and his statement was regarded as giving full approval of the Hoover administration.

Director Hines told the committee the measure would involve total expenditure next year of $31,000,000. He estimated that the pension provision would apply to 156,000 veterans now without federal compensation. He estimated the total cost for the first year at $26,281,000.

In addition, he submitted the estimates for the next four years: 1932, 189,000 veterans at a cost of $56,289,000; 1933, 327,000 at $68,609,000; 1934, 254,000 at $74,404,000; 1935, 350,000 at $80,000,000.

WINNERS OF NEW LONDON TO BERMUDA YACHT RACE

HAMILTON, Bermuda, June 27.—(AP)—As the two-score entrants in the New London to Bermuda yacht race drifted in today, winners in the various divisions of competition were decided by race officials.

Figuring all the boats as of one class, the schooner Malay owned by R. W. Ferris of Marblehead, Mass., won first prize with a corrected time of 84 hours, 20 minutes, 19 seconds.

The Class A prize went to the Malabar 10th, a schooner owned by J. G. Alden of Boston, with corrected time of 85:05:18, with the schooner Telegram, owned by G. W. Mixter, of New York, runner-up in 87:25:29.

The Malay also won the Class B first prize with the Yawl Dorade, owned by O. J. Stephens of Scarsdale, N. Y., runner-up in 85:30:46. The Dorade won the prize for the best all-amateur crew.

WILLIMANTIC

DELEGATES TO A. L. STATE CONVENTION ARE NAMED

WILLIMANTIC, June 27—Commander Abraham Sussman, First Vice Commander Arthur W. Swanson, Adjutant Walter W. Taylor and Raymond F. Gates were named as delegates of James J. Shea post, No. 19, American Legion, to the state convention at Bridgeport, July 25, 26, 27. The alternates, selected at the bimonthly meeting of the post held in the Jackson street rooms Thursday night are: Lester H. Blish, Charles S. Cook, George F. Robinson and Albin Swanson.

The committee for attendance at the national convention in Boston, Mass., as appointed, consists of Lester H. Blish, chairman; Edmund J. Peckham, James Litterick, T. Frank Cunningham and Earl Mastin.

During the session 16 new members were voted upon, bringing the total membership to 198. Dr. Charles A. Jenkins and Charles S. Cook were named with authority to select a nonmember of the post to co-operate with them and the post auxiliary in dispensing with the $359.91 realized by the sale of poppies prior to Memorial day, the money to be used among needy ex-service men and their families.

The post voted to create some form of a musical organization and George F. Robinson, Samuel Nield and Stephen Young were appointed to take this matter under advisement. Plans were discussed for a joint picnic this summer with the auxiliary and the following committee was appointed to take charge of this affair, Arthur Swanson, chairman; Engelhard Johnson, George Hicks, Albin Swanson and Earl Mastin. The donation of a three-gallon coffee urn to the post by Ernest Liberty was accepted with a vote of thanks.

Unable to govern the sale and discharge of fireworks on the Fourth by ordinance because only seven of the necessary 10 days for publication remained, the board of aldermen took action on the matter at a special meeting Thursday night by adopting two resolutions.

In the main the resolutions provided that fireworks shall not be sold in the city except between the hours of 9 a. m., July 2 and 11 p. m., July 4, nor shall fireworks be displayed except between these hours. The discharge of fireworks is prohibited in the city except between the hours of 6 a. m. and 11 p. m. on the Fourth, the time stated meaning standard time. A penalty of $7 for violation of either resolution is provided.

The aldermen also adopted a resolution giving the tree warden permission to cut down two dead trees abutting the property of Theodore J. Rivard at 95 Mountain street, the owner having waived all claim for damages. In the past few years the aldermen have adhered strictly to a policy of saving the city's beautiful elm, maple and oak trees whenever possible. This policy came as a check to a wave of wanton tree-cutting that swept the city some four or five years ago when several stately beauties for which the city has been famous went under the axe merely to please a whim of some unappreciative property owner or because of careless damage caused in the construction of sidewalks, a destruction that is now carefully avoided.

COLCHESTER

HARTFORD DRIVER HURT WHEN AUTO SKIDDED

(Special to The Bulletin)

COLCHESTER, June 27.—The wet slippery Clifford hill, a mile and a half south of the village, on the New London turnpike was the scene of another bad automobile accident about 10 o'clock Friday morning. A large Chandler sedan, Connecticut registration No. 24048, driven by H. Powell of Hartford, was traveling down the hill towards Colchester. Upon nearing the foot of the hill the driver, sole occupant of the car, apparently applied his brakes too suddenly, and as a result the car skidded, turned over and slid down the grade, grazing a big elm tree on the shoulder of the road and finally crashed into a telephone pole about 50 feet from the brook bridge at the foot of the incline. The driver was helped from the wrecked car by a passing motorist and rushed to the Van Cleve drug store here, where first aid was administered. Dr. Edward J. Howland was called and cared for numerous bad contusions about Mr. Powell's head, a broken finger and wrenched neck. Relatives came here from Hartford Friday afternoon and carried the injured man to his home in Hartford. It is understood that an x-ray examination is to be made for a possible fractured skull. The car had a twisted frame, bent axles, twisted left running board and fenders and broken windshield and doors and was towed to a local garage where it was said the extent of damage would amount to several hundred dollars.

WESTERLY

SUNDAY SCHOOLS PLAN FOR ANNUAL PICNICS

(Special to The Bulletin.)

WESTERLY, R. I., June 27.—Sunday schools and church schools of Westerly churches are making plans for their annual picnics and outings in a manner similar to past years. The Sunday school of the Pawcatuck Congregational church, of which Alfred Dower is the superintendent and chairman of picnic committee, has fixed upon the date of Friday, July 11, and at Atlantic Beach.

With Christ Episcopal church, of which Rev. G. Edgar Tobin is rector, the committee was named at the last church school session before the summer vacation, but has not met for organization. The date of Wednesday, July 16, was also set at the final meeting of the season, but the place was left undetermined.

Frederick I. Dana, manager of the Shelter Harbor club on the Boston Post road near the eastern boundary of the town of Westerly, returned on Thursday night to Westerly from a business trip to New York city.

Mrs. Franklin Roosevelt, of New York city, is visiting at Watch Hill.

L. S. Cummings, of New York, arrived at his summer cottage at Shelter Harbor, off the Boston Post road, Friday.

Mrs. Gertrude Stralsin, wife of Morris I. Stralsin, following an illness of some duration, is now improving at her home in Pawcatuck.

The waters of the Pawcatuck river have been searched day and night since last Wednesday afternoon when Stuart Smith, aged 8 years, son of Mr. and Mrs. Stephen Smith, of Potter Hill, lost his life by drowning. Officials of the towns of Westerly and Hopkinton have had the assistance of other individuals and the river has been dragged extensively in both directions from the eight-foot depth spot where the body disappeared.

At 2:55 p. m. Friday, when Ernest Thorp, Dennis Green, James Green and Lloyd Peckham, in a boat, equipped with an outboard motor were proceeding down the river near Boom bridge they sighted the body ahead of them, and secured it about 150 yards below the bridge, near the property of George W. Dougherty on the Boom bridge road. The body having been in the river about 48 hours, was cut about the head and face, probably because of contact with jagged rocks in the river. Medical Examiner Dr. Michael H. Scanlon was notified and Police Patrolman Robert Kessell on duty in Dixon square, went to the scene. The medical examiner gave his finding as death due to drowning and permission was given to Undertaker Henry O. Williams to remove it to Westerly.

The place where the body was found was some five or six miles from the scene of the drowning and when the report of the finding reached Potter Hill a crowd of nearly 200 gathered in a short time, many of whom had been engaged in the search.

Thomas J. Burdick, of Norwich, senior warden and acting master of Pawcatuck lodge, No. 90, A. F. and A. M., in the absence of Raymond E. Pendleton, master, who has been a patient for several weeks at the Newport, R. I., United States Navy hospital, under treatment, presided on Thursday evening at a special communication of the lodge held in Masonic hall. Degree work was exemplified by the lodge officers upon a class of candidates.

Among Westerly Shriners in attendance Saturday at the annual June outing of Palestine temple, A. A. O. N. M. S., at the Newport County Fairgrounds on the Portsmouth side of the New Mount Hope bridge, will be D. Everett Hoxie, James H. Blackler, Wilbur G. Cheever, Leon H. York, Fred Holdsworth, Raymond Taber.

Miss Bernice E. Whipple, teacher of Spanish in the public schools of New York city, returned to her home here Friday evening, for the summer vacation, to be the guest of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph H. Whipple.

June 23—Albert L. Saunders and Carrie L. Saunders to Jennie Margravite, a tract of real estate at Misquamicut.

June 26—Carbets M. Quottromani to Francis Rita Quottromani and Salvatore DiFrancesca, tracts of land at Central Park plat, Perpetual right and easement, Margaret A. Pengelley to South County Public Service Co., passway on plat of building sites at Westover Point, near Weekapaug.

Following a short recess of the regular Friday morning session of Third district court with Judge Oliver H. Williams on the bench, John DeSantis, of Oak street, who ran into a hydrant and broke it off on Thursday night, was arraigned charged with drunken driving. Prosecutor Ferguson told the court that Dr. J. Gordon Anderson had examined the accused, following his arrest by Officer Paul McCarthy, and had declared him under the influence of liquor.

On his plea of guilty Judge Williams imposed a fine of $100 and costs, which was paid.

Other court business was disposed of as follows in the regular court session:

Walter D. Fisher, of Norfolk, Mass., was fined $10 and costs, when he pleaded guilty to operating a car on the Nooseneck Hill road, not equipped with proper brakes.

Robert B. Minturne of Beverly, Mass.; William C. Huntoon, of Providence; Nelson Howard, 2d., of West Roxbury, Mass., and Fred A. M. Larson, of Magnolia, Mass., each were fined $25 and costs for speeding in the town of Hopkinton, told the court that all he had on his premises was two bottles of beer.

WEDDING

Loverde—Conti

St. Michael's church, Pawcatuck, on Thursday morning at 9 o'clock, was the scene of a wedding when Miss Anna Marie, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Conti, of Stillman avenue, became the bride of Paul Loverde, son of Mr. and Mrs. Stephano Loverde, of Italy. The wedding ceremony was performed by Rev. J. M. Hennessey. The nuptial mass which followed the ceremony was also celebrated by Father Hennessey.

Miss Mary Zito was bridesmaid and Angelo Congelosi was best man. The wedding marches were played by the church organist, Mrs. Thomas Murray.

FUNERAL

Joseph Rizzo

Friday morning were held funeral services for Joseph Rizzo, 64, at his late home, 168 Central Park. A solemn high mass of requiem was held at 9 o'clock at the Church of the Immaculate Conception with Rev. C. J. Barth celebrant, Rev. Joseph G. Huff, S. M., deacon, and Rev. J. F. Vincent, S. M., sub-deacon.

During the service, Martin H. Spellman sang "Thy Will Be Done." There was a large attendance of relatives and friends, including a delegation from the Hod Carriers' union. There were also many beautiful floral pieces.

Interment was at St. Sebastian cemetery, where the committal service was conducted by Father Vincent. The bearers were: Joseph Vetelino, Louis Reraulo, Peter Chiardio, Santo DeBartolo, Antonio Cofone and Salvatore Alice.

Arguments on the motion of the defendants in the cases of John Crist and Stanley Barasco to quash the search warrants used in a raid conducted by Chief Frank H. Brown, of Hopkinton, on their places a week ago, were made by Attorney M. Walter Flynn for the respondents and Attorney John Ferguson for the state, before Judge Oliver H. Williams in the Third district court this morning.

Request was made by Attorney Flynn that the search warrants be quashed and the liquor seized in the raid be returned on the ground that the warrants did not comply with the general provisions of the law and the defendants' constitutional rights were violated. The attorney claimed that actual sale should be shown and that a receipt for the seized goods should have been left at the places raided.

Judge Williams continued the cases for further consideration. Bolick Pianki, who appeared without counsel, persisted in his former plea of not guilty of unlawful possession of liquor. This case was continued with the other two. All three places were raided by Chief Frank H. Brown and state troopers about ten days ago. Pianki

BLANK CARTRIDGE EXPLODES INJURING SMALL BOY

(Special to The Bulletin)

WESTERLY, June 27. —The first Fourth of July casualty in Westerly occurred tonight when 11-year-old Robert Rae of South Boston, visiting his grandmother, Mrs. Catherine T. Craddock, 29 Stillman avenue, Pawcatuck, suffered painful injuries when a blank cartridge wadding penetrated the palm of his left hand. He was taken to the office of Dr. Michael H. Scanlon, who attended him.

DANIELSON

GIRL HITCH-HIKERS RELATE INTERESTING ADVENTURES

(Special to The Bulletin.)

DANIELSON, June 27.—Radiating health, happiness and good cheer—and causing not the slightest eye strain to look at—Miss Helen (Mickey) McCall, Glendive, Mont., and Esther (Jerry) Wanke, Rochester, Minn., paid their respects to this community this afternoon and Danielson was glad to see them.

The girls, apparently in their early 20's, have been hitch-hiking their way around the United States since they enthusiastically set out from their homes last August. They have been many places and have seen many things during their wanderings of 9,000 miles, and just naturally have a host of newspaper clippings, some with pictures of themselves, from towns and cities in many parts of the country.

Since taking to the long trail that is eventually to lead them around the United States they have engaged in picking apples in the Yakima, Wash., district. They have worked in canning factories near Seattle, have picked oranges in California and cotton in Louisiana, for these capable girls are paying their way. Stenography and hair dressing also offer them means of earning money for their needs.

This week end they are guests at a camp at Old Killingly pond. They are delighted with New England, so decidedly different in many ways than their own far western states, and get a new thrill in one way or another about every hour. Mickey took a spill into the pond yesterday while operating a small outboard motor boat, and today the pair were introduced for the first time in their lives to a quahaug chowder, King George's famous recipe, and allowed that it was a real delight.

Having been in New Orleans for last winter's Mardi Gras celebration and passing on with Florida as their destination they encountered a gracious Providence man who gave them a 300 mile "lift." They promised upon leaving him to call upon him in his home city, and have carried out that pledge. And incidentally it is through that acquaintance that they happen to be in this territory.

They came to Danielson this afternoon to have their shoes soled while they waited, for they do admit that at times they actually do have to hike, though people everywhere have been very kind to them. The road outfit of the girls consists of regulation blue denim overalls and tricky looking straw sombreros, and one may note a red bandana handkerchief in a hip pocket of each girl's overalls.

Neither is of the sophisticated type. They are just two nice, wholesome girls that are a bit different in that they have a wanderlust and the courage to satisfy it. On the road they stay at Y. W. C. A. homes when available and if not in some good hotel. A rule of their's is never to accept a ride only under certain conditions that assures their safety. They have had hundreds of pleasant experiences in the past 11 months and no serious difficulties. Mickey and Jerry are going into Massachusetts for Boston's tercentenary observance, and then it will be homeward bound! Niagara Falls is an objective on the way back west.

Shippee Youth Is Captured.

Ralph E. Shippee's inability to stay away from home, a fact that the officers probably counted on, resulted in his being captured this afternoon and locked up at the state police barracks on North Main street. Shippee, whose home is in Elmville, escaped from the state reformatory at Cheshire late Wednesday afternoon. Thursday afternoon State Officer H. Theodore Strand went to the Shippee home to see if the youth was there, which Shippee was, but he saw the officer coming and made a run for it. Two bullets sent chasing after him from the officer's revolver failed to halt him and he made his way into nearby woods. Hours of search by a group of state officers failed to locate him.

This afternoon County Game Warden Thomas Daniels of Plainfield went to the home. There was no way for Shippee to identify Warden Daniels as a person who might be seeking to arrest him and as a result he was taken and turned in at the barracks. He was to be held there tonight, awaiting officers from Cheshire who will be here for him on Saturday.

As had been suspected, Shippee stole the car that disappeared from a street in Meriden shortly after his escape. The car has been recovered after being abandoned in Providence.

OBITUARY.

Miss Elizabeth Bradford.

A death at the home on Reynolds street at 2 o'clock this morning was that of Miss Elizabeth Bradford, 83, sister of Thomas Bradford. Miss Bradford fell three weeks ago last Wednesday and fractured her hip. Her recovery had been a matter of great doubt since the accident.

Miss Bradford, a resident here upwards of half a century, was born in Canterbury, a daughter of Archibald and Emiline Hyde Bradford, March 31, 1847. She is survived by her brother, Thomas, and by a nephew, L. A. Bradford.

Everett Shepard.

Everett Shepard, 55, a native of the Allen Hill section of the town of Brooklyn, died yesterday at his home in Seekonk, R. I. Mr. Shepard suffered a shock on Memorial day and another one during the present week. He had been employed in Providence as a meat cutter. Mr. Shepard was a son of Mr. and Mrs. Simon Shepard, long residents on Allen hill. He leaves his wife, a son; two brothers, Charles of Providence and John of Washington, D. C., and two sisters, Mrs. Lorina Johnson of Wrentham and Miss Jennie Shepard of Norwich.

Following the semi-annual meeting of the Danielson Trust company Treasurer Clifford H. Starkweather announced today that the usual dividend of three per cent was declared and also an extra dividend of one per cent on the stock of the company.

Business has been good at the bank during the first six months of the year Mr. Starkweather says, and commented that he has been told by many from other sections of New England whose business brings them here that generally speaking Danielson is one of the most fortunate communities in southern New England insofar as being active industrially at the present time is concerned.

Police Dig Up Still.

There's a new supply of white mule at the state police barracks, 75 gallons of the stuff, and one drink of which will blow smoke out of your ears. There is also a 50-gallon still, presumably the one used in manufacturing it.

This morning Thomas McKiernan was in the town court of Plainfield, in connection with the liquor and the still, and pleaded guilty to a charge of manufacturing. Sentence was deferred until William Gaffney of Baltic and Angelo Del Grosso of New London, for whom warrants are out, can be apprehended.

Gaffney took what approximated a nose dive out of a window at the old Robert Forney place in the Bradford hill section of Plainfield and made a getaway yesterday afternoon when a group of officers headed by Sergeant G. L. Gardner of the local barracks swooped down on the place. McKiernan was not so lucky and was placed under arrest. Del Grosso was not on the premises when the raiding squad appeared.

The officers would have appreciated the services of a miniature steam shovel in carrying out their search for what they were after, for they had to dig around and dig around until they uncovered the buried still, and the barrels in which the white mule was contained. The still is he first taken in this area in a considerable time.

There was a crash between a United States mail truck operating through here and a private car operated by Kermit C. Dixon of Plainfield this morning shortly after 10 o'clock in that town. The truck, owned by Adam Rojeski of Jewett City and operated by Frank Zierezewsai, was on its regular run when the accident occurred. The affair was investigated by State Officer Elton Nolan.

Danielson- Torrey Wedding.

At the Congregational parsonage here Wednesday Miss Mildred Sibyl Torrey, a teacher for years in the Israel Putnam school at Putnam, and James A. Danielson of this town were united in marriage by Rev. Harding W. Gaylord. Miss Torrey is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ernest E. Torrey of East Putnam.

After a wedding trip in New Hampshire Mr. and Mrs. Danielson will make their home at Mt. Danielson's pretty farm place on the River road, between Danielson and Goodyear.

Today before Justice Laura Pike in the town of Brooklyn Edgar Blanchette of Danielson was fined $25 and costs for carrying concealed weapons. Blanchette was arrested last night by State Officer H. Theodore Strand after complaint had been made that Blanchette was carrying a gun and flourishing it from time to time over on the West Side. Blanchette had a permit to carry a gun in Killingly, but this was cancelled this morning. He did nothing threatening with the weapon. He explained that he obtained a permit to carry it while he was acting as a taxi driver.

PUTNAM

GIANT ELM STRUCK BY LIGHTNING AT "GWEN CAREG"

(Special to The Bulletin)

PUTNAM, June 27—A bolt of lightning during the electrical storm of Thursday evening smashed into a beautiful elm tree overlooking the recently completed artificial lake on "Gwen Careg" farm, the summer home in Abington of Mrs. T. Morris Murray of Boston. The bolt struck the tree directly in the crotch high above the ground, splitting it open with all the keenness of a sharp knife. The tree was one Mrs. Murray had purchased from a farm in Pomfret. In transplanting it from its original growing spot to "Gwen Careg," she was put to considerable expense. It was said this afternoon that Mrs. Murray was deeply affected when she viewed the damage caused by the storm.

John F. O'Clair, of North Grosvenordale died early today at the Haven home in Abington. He was 76 years of age. Mr. O'Clair had been a patient at the Haven for several months suffering from an infirmity that confined him most of the time. He was a native of St. Asaine, Canada, having been born there on March 21, 1854. He had lived in North Grosvenordale for a number of years before he was taken sick and was an esteemed and highly respected citizen of the town. He is survived by a daughter, Mrs. Margaret Leuth, of Hartford.

William Joseph Myers, a life long resident of Woodstock, died at his home there this morning following a prolonged illness. He was in his 76th year. Mr. Myers was born in Woodstock on July 2, 1854 the son of William H. and Mary (Seamans) Myers. He was educated in the schools of Woodstock and for a number of years conducted a farm in the hill section of the town. Mr. Myers was interested in the affairs of Woodstock. He took an active part in its politics and in the furthering of beneficial community undertakings.

Mr Myers is survived by his wife who resides in Woodstock and a daughter, Mrs. Frederick Tracy of East Haddam.

State Senator Walter A. Brown, of Ashford, was a visitor in Putnam, today.

Patrolman and Mrs. Harry Wallen and Alderman and Mrs. Robert T. Chadwick have returned from a short stay at their cottage at Cape Cod. Officer Wallen returned to duty on the police force, Thursday evening.

Mrs. Alice Beaulac, 43, died yesterday at her home in North Grosvenordale after a long period of illness. Mrs. Beaulac was the wife of Joseph Beaulac of North Grosvenordale and had been a resident of the village for a number of years. She was a communicant at St. Joseph's church, there. Besides her husband she is survived by three children; Irene, Lorraine and Rita.

Deputy Fire Chief Alphonse Dumas was injured Wednesday when a board dropped out of position and struck him in the face while he was making repairs on his property on Mechanics street. The injuries fortunately were slight.

A number of Windham county people interested in the work of the Haven home in Abington, gathered at the home of Dr. Robert S. Southers in Brooklyn, Wednesday for an afternoon of bridge. The proceeds of the party were devoted to the Haven fund and according to Mrs. C. E. Griggs, superintendent of the Haven, the benefit netted a large amount. Mrs. T. Morris Murray of Abington, was present at the entertainment and spoke. The work of the Haven, of which she paid fitting tribute, was the subject of her interesting address.

WAUREGAN

Present indications are that all roads will lead to the field day and outing given by the "Old Wauregan Grays" at Parish grove, Wauregan, July 4. Everything is being done by the committee to make this a day that will always be remembered, not only by the old timers, but by all who attend. It should be some sight to see those two famous old-time ball clubs line up again—the Jewett City team of 1900 and the Wauregan Grays of the same year. What battles these boys used to have, and those famous games will all be played over and over again on the Fourth. There is also to be a fast game immediately after the old timers' game, between this year's Grays and Fitchville. The noted prize-winning Wauregan Girls' drill team will put on a prize drill.

Preliminary work has been done on the new Danielson-Wauregan road and the real job will be begun on July 1. The contractors are allowed 60 days to complete the work.

Engine No. 1 and Chemical No. 1 were called out at 10.40, Thursday evening, for a gasoline fire in the street at the corner of Main street and Slater avenue. A Plainfield car ran out of gas and the tank was being filled from a can. Not being certain that the gasoline was running in properly, the man whose name was not learned, lighted a match to ascertain what was going on. Full information was forthcoming at once. As the blaze flared up the man dropped the can with the result that the street was filled with burning gasoline. A number of passers by within hail, ran to pull the car to one side. The firemen handled the blaze with the chemical tanks from the big truck.

Rev. Albert H. Clement is to live in new quarters at the home of W. B. Montgomery in Pachaug. Harry Remick, who is caring for the aged minister in the absence of his son, has completed the arrangements. Mr. Clement has been staying at the Malek hotel in Jewett City.

Brief Mention

Plans which had been completed for the building of two new houses in Jewett City were held up on account of the shutting down of the Fisk mill.

Dahlia growers all through this section are reporting that the rains which come every other day are very beneficial to their growing plants.

A light Chevrolet owned by a local garage rammed one of M. A. Gammino's big five ton truck at the corner of Green avenue and Mathewson street, Friday morning. The light car was considerably stove forward with the truck showing no damage from the impact.

Mrs. Sarah Payne of Redbank, N. J., is visiting Mrs. W. E. Perry in Lisbon.

Rev. J. D. Waldron of Franklin will occupy the pulpit at the Congregational church, Sunday morning.

The Stewart and Carl and Walter Benjamin families leave today to occupy a cottage at Groton Long Point for a month.

LeRoy Perry and Robert Scates are at Camp Rainbow at East Granby.

Mr. and Mrs. Albert Johnson are preparing their new home which they will occupy in Ashaway, R. I.

Mrs. Everett H. Hiscox will be the organist at the Congregational church during the month of July.

The Pachaug Community club met in the Grange hall, Thursday evening. The attendance was 200. The president, C. Frank Morgan, presided at the business meeting. M. H. Bartlett gave a report of the rural road committee meeting held at Hartford. Everett Thornton, secretary of the Chautauqua at Jewett City, announced the programs which will be featured at Chautauqua.

The program which was in charge of the Misses Lillian Pepin and Ruth Burton, Royal Roode, LeRoy Burton and Romeo Pepin, opened with community singing, "Love's Old Sweet Song", with Mrs. Sarazan at the piano, violin solos by Uncle Joe Shippee accompanied by Mrs. Opperman, clog dance by Miss Grace Gardiner and Miss Janet Konarski of South Coventry, accompanied at the piano by Everett Thornton; comic skit of jokes and jests by Sam Polinsky, piano solo by Miss Irene Dugas of Putnam, vocal solo by Mrs. Sarazan, accompanied by Miss Dugas; a playlet, "Social Difficulties." The cast was Mrs. Lillicraft, Ellen Young, George Lillicraft, Maxim Pepin, Mrs. Joslyn, Mrs. Elwood Newton, Margaret Joslyn, Marie Smith, Constance Winthrop, Stella Babbit. Piano solo by Miss Lucille Holden. Mr. Shippee closed the programme with a group of old-fashioned dances.

Refreshments of cookies, ice cream and lemonade were served by the committee after which there was dancing to music by Mr. Shippee and Mrs. Opperman with Romeo Pepin as prompter.

The executive committee of the Community club will have charge of the July meeting. The August committee comprises Miss Susan Terry, Miss Grace Gardiner Simon Brewster, Marion Brand and Clayton Lewis.

Children's day will be observed at the Methodist church on Sunday. At the morning service there will be a sermon and children's story. Clara Jeffers and Margaret Chase will sing a duet and there will be special decorations. The children's concert will take place during the Sunday school hour with a specially prepared program.

NO. GROSVENORDALE

Stuart Swanson, of Springfield, is at the home of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Emil Swanson.

Mr. and Mrs. Francis Bishop, of Worcester, were guests of Mrs. Eloie Loiselle recently.

Mr. and Mrs. Emil Swanson and family motored to Boston recently.

Mr. and Mrs. Homer Prince entertained a number of relatives Thursday night. Those present were Mr. and Mrs. Adelard Lachapelle and sons, Alvin and Raymond, Mr. and Mrs. George Lachapelle and Miss Georgette Langlois. During the evening cards were played and refreshments were served by Mrs. Prince.

The Grosvenordale Co. baseball team won its first game of the season when it defeated the leaders of the Southern New England Baseball league, the Slater Co. team, of Webster, Thursday evening. Eddy Hebert, crack southpaw, of the Grosvenordale team, did wonderful mound work by striking out 13 men and allowing but five hits. R. Ravenelle, left fielder, did his bit by making three outstanding catches. The line-up: Grosvenordale Co.—Aucoin, 2b; R. Ravenelle, lf; Duslak, cf; Metz, c; Dumchou, ss; Bild, rf; Lafontaine, 1b; Lawrence, 3b; Hebert, p. Slater Co.—Kabala, lf; Forand, 1b; Hart, c; Stefaniak, 1b; Selley, cf; Pouchette, rf; M. Stefaniak, 2b; Pizzette, ss; Breznerski, 3b; Domey, p. Kudzol, p. The score by innings:

Two-base hits—Dumchou, Lafontaine, Pouchette. Hits off Hebert, 5; off Kudzol, 3; off Domey, 3. Base on balls by Hebert, Hart, Selley, Kudzol; off Kudzol, R. Ravenelle, Metz. Struck out by Herbert, 13; by Kudzol, 2; by Domey, 4. Umpires, Henry Coderre and Jim Collins. Attendance 150. Time, 1 hour 45 minutes.

A false burglar alarm aroused the neighborhood around the First National store Thursday night about 10 o'clock. The manager of the store, Ernest Prince, and the police officer, Raoul Blanchette, were called to the scene and when they investigated they found that the disturbance had been caused by the store cat which had climbed onto the shelves and upset some canned goods.

Misses Jeanet and Rita Morin, daughters of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Morin, are spending their summer vacation with their aunt and uncle, Mr. and Mrs. Edmund Durand, of Hartford.

Miss Doris Crandall, of Thompson, visited her sister, Marjorie, at the Baypath Institute in Springfield Thursday.

Mr. and Mrs. W. G. Colby and family are in town for the week-end.

Mrs. Charles Russell, of Sturbridge, is the guest of her sister, Mrs. Fred D. Chandler, this week.

Miss Antoinette Coderre and Miss Priscilla Coderre motored to Hartford Thursday and will spend the week-end with their sisters, Sister Bernadette and Sister Marie, at the Holy Ghost convent in Hartford.

Mrs. Alice (Denis) Beaulac, wife of Joseph Beaulac, of North Grosvenordale, died at her home Thursday afternoon, after a long illness. She was born in Montreal, Canada, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Louis Denis. She was 43 years of age. Mrs. Beaulac was very well known in this town, having lived here most of her life. Besides her husband, she leaves four daughters, Rita, Irene and Loraine Beaulac, and Mrs. Harold Dwyer, of Webster. She also leaves seven brothers and one sister.

John Felix O'Clair, an old resident of this town, died Thursday evening at The Haven in Abington, where he had lived for the past year. He was 76 years of age. Mr. O'Clair lost his wife a few years ago. He is survived by one sister, Mrs. F. D. Beausoleil, of Pawtucket, R. I., and seven children, Joseph Emmett, of New Jersey; Mrs. John B. Thompson, of Webster, Mass.; James Leo, of Boston, Mass.; Mrs. Theodore A. Lueth, of Hartford; John Edward, of Hartford; Mrs. William Daverni and Francis Ulduc O'Clair, both of this town.

Mr. and Mrs. Alvin Lachance, of Providence street, Putnam, were guests of Mr. and Mrs. William Langlois Thursday night.

A NEEDED CUTOFF

Westerly has been engaged in counting the motor vehicle traffic on the bridge between Westerly and Pawcatuck. There have been times when the counters were kept busy and produced results that were possibly surprising to many. It showed that the number using that bridge during certain hours, and on special days, is large. That there was a bottle neck was no secret. The approach from the Connecticut side has always been bad and it is made worse by the increase in the volume of traffic.

Where such conditions exist and where it can be expected that they will grow worse as the years roll by, it is evident that there is need for that distribution of traffic which is favored by the national conference on street and highway safety at Washington.

The through traffic over the Westerly bridge is heavy because there is no other indicated way for it to go. It follows through on route 1 in both directions because much of it originates thereon. If part of that through traffic were diverted to, or had a chance to use, another route, say diagonally across New London county from northeast to southwest, there would be appreciable relief for the congested condition which is now experienced in the streets of Westerly and Pawcatuck. It would take much traffic away from the bad hills and curves on route 1 in the southern end of this county and accomplish a distribution that would be advantageous for highway users and highway conditions. It is such diversion that is being advocated for the relief of bottlenecks, for the reduction of congestion and for the insurance of greater safety.

It isn't pleasure riding in which many of the motorists are engaged. They are headed for a certain point, best upon business, anxious to spend as little time on the highways as possible and desirous of avoiding congested conditions. They will welcome such an alternate route as would reduce mileage and increase safety, and the traffic count on the Westerly-Pawcatuck bridge plainly indicates that there is need for permanent relief at that point. The suggested construction from Preston City through Voluntown to the Rhode Island line and thence to the Nooseneck road would provide just such a cutoff, the highway being in excellent condition for the remainder of the distance to New London.

PUTNAM'S AIRPORT

Putnam is giving serious consideration to the establishment of an airport. There is the belief there that a properly developed landing field would be much used by air traffic between Boston and New York, that city being on a direct line between the two large cities.

This indicates that Putnam is forward looking, that it is giving consideration to the demands of the present day and recognizes the increasing importance that is being attached to aviation. Once a railroad center of greater importance before so many of the trains were taken off, it believes in keeping up with the times and providing the way whereby it can become a larger center in connection with air transportation.

The time is rapidly approaching, if it hasn't already arrived, when the progressive city must be equipped with a landing field, a place where those who fly can get service and to which they can go for the delivery of passengers or freight, or mail for such communities. Airplanes are circling this territory daily. It was but a few years ago when they were as scarce as hen's teeth. We are experiencing changes which give assurance that more flying is going to done with each succeeding year and with more flying there must be adequate accommodations for the fliers, places to land, places to take off, places that correspond to the filling stations and garages for automobiles.

Last year Norwich was displaying considerable interest in the establishment of a landing field or airport. Not much has been heard from that project of late. Certainly it doesn't appear that Norwich has advanced the idea as rapidly or to the point of decision that has been reached in Putnam. Putnam is looking ahead to bigger things and it is to be hoped that it will be eminently successful.

VACATION AND OUTING FUNDS

This is the season of the year when appeals are being made by various organizations for funds which will make possible the provision of outings and vacations for children who will be unable to secure them in any other way. Such appeals have always aroused sympathetic responses in the past and there are equally good reasons why they should this year.

Frequently the statement is heard that certain individuals wished they had known that there was an opportunity to participate in just such plans. They are fond of children, interested in looking out for those who have no reason to anticipate unusual opportunities and eager to have a hand in any good cause. It will be unfortunate if the appeals of organizations which are intended to meet just such conditions do not reach those who are able to respond and anxious to do so.

Getting the children out of the big cities, where they are subject to bad and cramped quarters, stifling heat, and given no chance to know what the delights of the open country are, means much in their young lives. It completely changes their ideas of the rest of the world and with the fresh air and good food means a tonic like nothing else.

Much the same benefit is attached to the outings which are provided for the poor children of smaller cities. Home conditions make it impossible for them to enjoy anything but the humdrum existence of their particular locality. They may be no different in this respect than a large number of others, but a decided change of environment, even though it be only for a day, means much to them and with organizations ready to make the arrangements and conduct the outings, whether it is a day at the shore or in the park, it will be surprising if there are not sufficient desirous of contributing to the expenses of such affairs to insure them and make them a success. And it is not solely the children who can be and are benefitted by just such outings. Neither are they the only ones who are entitled to them. Many there are in every city who are deserving of just such attention. With organizations ready to shoulder the responsibilities of such work there should be enough financial backing provided to make them possible.

ROUND ROBIN INEFFECTIVE

Watch the crocodile tears roll down the cheeks of the United States senators who tell the president through a round robin that they have had a terribly hard session, that they are all worn out, that it is inhuman to keep them in Washington at this season of the year.

A round robin is supposed to indicate the sentiment of those who sign it and to convey the information that they are opposed to contemplated action and hope to have their declaration given such weight as to result in the calling off of the plans.

There is no secret about the fact that the senators would like to go home. The only trouble about that is that if they had made the best use of their time they could be at home now. Nothing has served to keep them in Washington more than their own actions. They have insisted upon wasting time, causing needless delays and creating the exact situation which prevails. For them to ask the president to refrain from calling a special session for the consideration of the London treaty under those circumstances is preposterous.

The president has not been swayed by the round robin. There are 23 senators who have signed it, but out of the 23 there are 14 who are disposed to vote for the treaty. The other nine represent the opponents of the pact, those who are seeking delay in the hopes that they can bolster up the opposition in the months before the next regular session. They are trying to subject the majority of the upper house to the wishes of a mere handful.

With the senate prepared to give its approval to the treaty, the president is correct in his belief that it should be done as quickly as possible. He would be delighted if it were accomplished at the present session. If there is not the willingness to have that done he is prepared to call a special session for next month in order to provide the necessary few days for the debate that will be followed by ratification. We have taken a leading part in bringing about the treaty and the good effect of early action ought not to be lost through the delay in action which is being urged. With the country, the president and the majority of the senate favoring action and ratification, there is no time like the present.

GETTING ANOTHER CONGRESSMAN

Under the new basis of apportionment by which the number of congressmen were fixed for the several states by congress, Connecticut was included in the states which were expected to secure additional representation in the house. This was because it was believed that the population would be sufficiently large to provide for this extra representative.

Thus considerable interest has been centered upon the result of the census in Connecticut. Figures thus far given indicate that Connecticut has a population of 1,602,813. This is an increase of 18.1 per cent over ten years ago and represents the largest percentage gai. in any of the New England states. While revisions may change this somewhat, it will probably not vary greatly in either direction. It will serve as a sufficiently good indication of what the population will be on which representation in congress will be based.

While this indicated figure doesn't coincide with the estimate that had been made, it being something like 100,000 less than anticipated, it will be sufficiently large to provide for five congressmen and such a large fraction of a sixth that it will be accepted under the customary practice as enough to entitle the state to a sixth congressman. That will mean that Connecticut will get this additional representation when it has provided for six congressional districts and held elections in accordance with that new districting. Cutting a state up into congressional districts rests with the general assembly and it is not as easy to do a satisfactory job as might seem. Thus, unless there is resort to a congressman-at-large, no additional congressman may be secured for two years or more.

EDITORIAL NOTES

The man with a garden and a hoe is never out of employment. If it isn't something else, it's weeds.

With a half dozen Chinese coming to this country to study Chicago gangster methods for use at home, the Windy City has more reason for cleaning house.

If the vote of the foreign relations committee in the senate on the London treaty means anything, little time should be required to dispose of it by the senate itself.

THE MAN WHO TALKS

Attention was called in this column last week to the condition of Chelsea parade after the services of Memorial day. The beautiful grounds were left in an untidy state by the useless litter for which there was no reasonable excuse. What was said then will apply to other parts of the city whose unkept condition is utterly without excuse. Too places referred to are repulsive because they are so badly littered. Scraps of old newspapers are lying about loose, blown into corners and crevasses by the action of the wind. Not only this but other refuse matter is scattered about that offends the sense of propriety of any lover of beauty and decency. Now all this is utterly uncalled for and could be easily avoided by the use of a little thoughtfulness. Of course this ought not to be allowed anywhere by strict enforcement of the law.

While this whole subject of public decency is up for discussion, attention ought to be called to other unnecessary conditions that are very painful to all people of good taste and refinement. Why is it in some places the sidealks are so dirty—not in Norwich alone but in many other New England cities—that would put to shame a South African kraal! The very least a householder can do and retain his decency is to sweep his sidewalk occasionally, and keep it free of loose and unsightly material. One little careless schoolboy can spoil the good condition of a street by scattering bits of paper along the sidewalk. Have you ever noticed what a change in the general appearance of a place can be made by the frequent use of a lawn-mower! Also by the use of the clippers on the hedges now and then. Someone has gone so far as to say that a good paint brush is a kind of a community salvation.

Of course it is an utter impossibility to keep any portion of a town or city in a condition that would satisfy the whims and foibles of all the people because of the infinite variety of tastes. And yet there are some fundamental facts that must be admitted by all as necessary, such as healthfulness and cleanliness. There are some diseases that we seldom hear mentioned today, that were once uttered with bated breath and blanched cheek and the reason is that filthy breeding places are not allowed to exist. And they would not have existed formerly had it not been for ignorance and superstition. There can be no reasonable doubt that the lengthening of the average of human life is largely due to eliminating the hidious and the harmful, from the majority of public places.

The writer is not one of those heretics who believe that we of this generation are the sum total of all knowledge, and that all who have gone before should receive our deep sympathy. At the same time it makes him smile to hear people prate about "the good old times" as a disparagement of the present! As a matter of fact, all things considered, the best times are now. The reason of this ought to be apparent to all, for the simple reason that each age of the world makes some distinct contribution to the sum total of human knowledge. It would be a shame to us if we did not know more than they did in the middle ages because we have twice the range of information to draw from than they had then. But the main question is not do we know more than our ancestors did, but are we making as large a use of our bigger field to work in as they did of their more primative conditions?

I suppose it sounds queer to talk about the salvation of the paint brush, but there are situations in life where it is positively correct. The following, I think, establishes the fact beyond all doubt. A real estate man one day saw a piece of property for sale. He was very much taken with the location, as the outlook was beautiful in all directions. The buildings, however, had been so long abandoned that they were unsightly. Something about the whole situation so attracted him that he examined the property very carefully. The owner let him make a tour of inspection. He found the condition of the house to be perfectly sound, but was very badly weather beaten. As the price was reasonable he bought it. The first thing he did was to scrape the outside and give it a fresh coat of white paint. He touched up the shutters with a rich green. Now it was here where the salvation of the paint brush came in. It led to other improvements to correspond. When finished it was one of the most attractive places about.

The week ending last Saturday might well be called graduation week because so many schools of all grades held their closing exercises. The writer was able to attend three and one of them was a college commencement. The day of its exercises was a perfect day and everything along the graduating line was also bright and sunny. One could not help feeling what a wise provision it is on the part of Providence that these young and cheerful graduates cannot look far enough ahead to see all it contains; what unfulfilled anticipations; what failures to come up to their bright hopes; and the expectations that others have of them; what uncertainty as to health; what doubts as to the choice of a life occupation; or to the present indication of success. Is it not after all a kind Providence that closes the future from their sight.

These closing exercises of our schools emphasize another thing most emphatically, and that is every boy and girl in America who have no handicaps that keep them from going to school at all, have an equal chance. It is quite noticable that today the majority of scholars in our public schools are those whose names are not easy to pronounce. Is not that very significant? They are the children of those foreigners who have come to our shores to better their condition and America extends to them the glad hand, and not only gives them a chance to better their condition, but offers to their children the same educational advantages that the children of the native born enjoy. It would be a burning ehame to America if she did otherwise. There is every reason to believe that these children will grow up to be good citizens. Let us think of America as one great homogeneous family.

Is it not true that our lives are to a great extent what we deliberately make them? Of course there are exceptions to this, as there are to every rule. But for the most part we are the architects of our own fate. It is the crowning feature of democracy to give every child, rich or poor, white or black, native or foreign, an equal opportunity in this carving work. America is not asking of her children where they are born, what language do they speak, or what church do they attend, but what are you striving to be? Are you dead in earnest? Are you concentrating all your faculties on some definite pursuit in life? If so every door in America shall be open to you! This is my interpretation of the spirit of America toward her children, and against it even "the gates of hell shall not prevail!"

HOW TO RECOGNIZE THE SUMMER BIRDS THAT VISIT THIS SECTION

The varieties of seasonal bird visitors are most numerous in the summer time. They are so numerous in fact that space requirements compel the discriptive lists of these visitors to be divided into two parts, the first of which is given below, and the second which will appear subsequently. This directory is arranged from Ralph Hoffman's "Guide to the Birds of New England and Eastern New York," published by Houghton Mifflin company, Boston and New York. The book is obtainable at the Otis library.

The figures at the left indicate the length of each bird in inches. A robin is 10.000 inches long; an English sparrow is 6.33 inches;

SECOND LIST

Black

19.30. Entire plumage black.—Crow.

13.50-12.00. In pines, or walking on ground; tail long; head lustrous blue-black.—Crow Blackbird.

WASHINGTON, June 27—With 434 competitors on the house rolls, it's a bit difficult for new members to get anything into their official biographies glying them special distinction. Still, they always try.

And when John Moore, democrat of Kentucky, came back in a special election in 1929, he saw his chance. He set himself down as "the first democrat to be returned to congress after the republican landslide of 1928."

In the hope that they'll repeat, Mr. Moore has prepared a circular for his constituents in which he tells 'em that "the voters of Kentucky for the last 25 years have been exercising good judgment in reelecting members of congress as long as they would serve."

Then he has compiled a list of past and present Kentuckians of long political service.

Long Service

There was Ollie James, now dead, but with ten years in the house and nearly six more in the senate when he died. There is Sen. Alben Barkley with 14 years of house service preceding his senate election.

There is Stanley, who served a dozen years in the house, retired voluntarily, became governor, then came back to the senate. There's Representative Kincheloe, sitting 15 years with more to come, according to Moore, or Thomas of Moore's own third district who had sat 18 years at the time of his death opening the political door for Moore.

There's Ben Johnson of the fourth who sat 20 years, then begged off; Swager Shirley of the fifth who did 16 years on end. Rouse of the eighth with 16 years to voluntary retirement; Cantrill of the seventh who had been in 16 years when he retired to run for governor; Helm of the eighth who had been 14 years in the house when he died; Fields of the ninth with nearly 14 years when elected governor.

Experience

It is a remarkable list of long service from the blue grass constituency. And by adding to it the important committee jobs which came to all of these democratic veterans as a result of years in Washington, Moore completes his argument of the value to the state and its people of trusting to seasoned Washington experience, other things being equal, of course.

Other southern states reveal a similar tendency to "keep the ins in."

The south is well represented in the long service roll, although nobody equals the 18 two-year terms of Cooper of Wisconsin or the 16 of Haugen of Iowa.

Next, however, stand Pou of North Carolina with 15, Jack Garner of Texas with 14, and Bell of Georgia, grouped with Speaker Longworth of Ohio and Rainey of Illinois at 13.

Nearly 200 of the 435 house members of the 71st congress have served ten years or more, and almost half of the mare from southern states.

BURGESS BEDTIME STORY

Jerry Gets His Pride Back

'Tis well for him whose pride is lost
To get it back at any cost.
—Jerry Muskrat.

Can you think of anything more humiliating than for a father to be asked how many children he has and not be able to tell? It was that way with Jerry Muskrat. One of the first questions that Peter Rabbit asked him when he learned that Mrs. Muskrat had a family was, how many babies were in that family. Jerry Muskrat pretended not to hear.

"I say," repeated Peter, "how many babies have you, Jerry Muskrat?"

Jerry could no longer pretend not to hear. "Plenty," said he, remembering what Mrs. Muskrat had said.

"How many is plenty?" demanded Peter.

"Enough," replied Jerry.

Peter looked very hard at Jerry. "And how many are enough?" he asked severely.

"As many as I wanted," said Jerry.

Peter looked at Jerry for a long minute and began to suspect the truth. "Jerry Muskrat," said he, "you don't know how many children you've got. No, sir, you don't know how many babies you've got. The idea! The very idea!"

Jerry squirmed uncomfortably. Finally he admitted it was so. "You see," he explained, "there isn't room in that home of mine for two big people like Mrs. Muskrat and myself and those babies all at the same time. Of course, they have to have their mother and so I keep out of there. I know Mrs. Muskrat would prefer that I should."

"Do you mean to say that you haven't been in there since those babies were born?" Peter demanded.

"Oh, I've been in there!" replied Jerry hastily. "Of course, I've been in there. But it was dark in there and I couldn't stay but just a minute, and those babies squirmed so that I could have counted them if I had plenty of time."

"Hasn't Mrs. Muskrat told you how many babies you have?" inquired Peter.

"No," said Jerry. "All she has said is that there are plenty. Now you know as much about them as I do. Plenty doesn't mean much. It may mean one thing today and another thing tomorrow, depending on just how you are feeling when you say it. If Mrs. Muskrat happened to feel out of sorts, two or three would be plenty. If she happened to be feeling fine, plenty might mean half a dozen."

It was perhaps two weeks later that Peter and Jerry found out just what "plenty" did mean. Peter was sitting on the bank of the Smiling Pool just after jolly, round, red Mr. Sun had gone to bed behind the Purple Hills. Jerry Muskrat was idly floating in the water just below him. Suddenly Mrs. Muskrat appeared. She had come out of the underwater doorway of her home and up to the surface. Then a funny little head popped up just behind her. Peter's eyes popped out and his ears stood up straight. "One," said Peter. Another little head popped up. "Two," said Jerry Muskrat.

A third little head appeared, and another. "Three! Four!" cried Peter. Up popped two more. "Five! Six!" cried Jerry.

Another pair appeared. "Seven! Eight!" shouted Peter, beginning to dance about.

One more popped up "Nine!" said Jerry Muskrat, drawing a long breath.

"Plenty!" said Mrs. Muskrat.

Nursing Of Today

By Nina D. Gage, R. N., New York, N. Y.
(From Gorgas Memorial Institute)

The nursing of today is the result of countless years of growth, which begin in prehistoric ages with the care of sick members of their families by the wives and mothers. As methods of medical treatment came to require hospital care for patients, a special class of caretakers grew up.

In the 19th century Florence Nightingale demonstrated by her work in the Crimea that intelligence and reputable character are the basis on which good nursing can be built. By good nursing alone she reduced the death rate in the Crimean hospitals from nearly 50 per cent to 2 per cent, before the medical men had begun to treat the patients medically. Her method has spread over the world, and there is now an International Council of Nurses composed of affiliating organizations in twenty-three different countries.

Through all this age of science nursing has necessarily broadened its field to avail itself of the new scientific discoveries. It is now busy not only in hospitals, but also in homes, translating the message of the scientist and physician into the everyday language of the people so that everyone may carry out health practices founded on the teachings of these scientists. Nurses are found also in factories and stores, in rural districts, in schools, helping people so to change their habits as to tend toward avoidance of illness. Everywhere the emphasis is on health and prevention, instead of on mere cure.

In order to be able to translate this message of the scientists, the nurse must of course be able to speak both languages, that of the scientist and that of everyday life. Without this ability to teach her usefulness is limited. Therefore schools of nursing are requiring full high school cerdits. With this as a basis, work in the schools of nursing can become more nearly of a college grade, and improved nursing service be given.

Work as director of a school of nursing, as educational director, as superintendent of a hospital, as a supervisor of wards, or a charge nurse, and of direct caring for patients, whether in hospital or in the other fields referred to, today provides innumerable opportunities where the nurse with adequate educational preparation is finding rapid advancement possible. Work with human beings is always fascinating and there are over sixty different kinds of work open to a well prepared nurse.

SUNDAY MORNING TALK

Pure Charity.

Modesty is one of the prime requisites for Christian giving according to the teachings of Jesus. This characteristic was sadly lacking in the case of the Scribes and Pharisees, who made a vain display of their benefactions as they did of all their pretended righteousness. But Jesus teaches us that our giving must be characterized by the spirit of humility, and that instead of ostentatious parade there should be that modest reticence about our charity that will not even let our left hand know what our right hand is doing. Another essential element in Christian giving is sincerity. The gift must be genuine and it much come from hands that are pure and from a heart that is free from guile, else we cannot expect it to receive the divine benediction.

The supreme element in giving is the spirit of love. The most costly gift, if it lack the element of love, becomes as worthless as dross, whereas the simplest token, if it be the offering of a loving heart, is thereby transformed into a jewel of priceless value. Modest charity which makes itself known in humble deeds of love shall not fail of its reward, for Jesus declares that the Father who seeth in secret shall recompense every such deed, and who can measure the value thus assured?

IN THE DAY'S NEWS

Colombo

"Colombo, Ceylon, which was recently threatened by flood water, is the capital city, principal gateway, busiest port, and largest city of the island that lies off India's southern tip," says a bulletin from the Washington, D. C., headquarters of the National Geographic society.

"Colombo is about 7,000 miles from London; it is about 9,000 miles from New York, and lies sweltering under a tropical sun just 550 miles north of the Equator. But there are many reminders of these and other metropolises of the west in the Ceylon capital.

"In the harbor the American flag flies from the masts of ships that a few weeks since nosed their way out of the harbors of New York, Seattle and San Francisco. British, French and Italian flags top the masts of vessels—palatial passenger and dingy tramp—that claim London, Southampton, Liverpool, Marseille and Genoa for their home ports. Many of these boats are in Colombo owing to the fact that the port is the headquarters of tea and rubber companies operating large plantations in Ceylon.

"In Colombo, the traveler sees one of the many cities of Asia where east meets west. Travelers may hail automobiles and street cars at Colombo corners. They may ride through wide modern streets flanked with handsome government, bank and business buildings of western design, and pass parks laid out according to western plans. They see signs running the length of street car roofs advertising a sure cure for asthma in the same language that would be found on London trams, and signs in English over doors of stores and pasted to walls.

"Shops like those of New York and London, selling everything from American toothpastes to quaint old native jewelry, beaten brass, boxes made of porcupine quills, and carved elephants of many sizes and colors, open on to the pavements between attractive display windows that were unknown in Colombo before the British came. The theaters are as inviting as those of the west. Their billboards announce English plays and Hollywood 'movies.'

"With all these western touches, however, the traveler finds it impossible to forget that he is in the Orient. The surface of the water about arriving foreign vessels in the harbor is nearly blotted out by swarms of native boats. 'Skippers' of dugouts vociferously offer a thrilling but safe ride to the shore while others attempt to dispose of a colorful cargo of tropical fruits to passengers and crews.

On a corner where the traveler may hire taxis, he may also hire rickshaws; and the modern western street cars are operated by bronzed orientals. Traffic progress in some portions of the city is slow even for modern vehicles for the native bullock-drawn carts and their masters apparently are unaware of other traffic in the street.

"The wide, western-like streets are shaded by flowering oriental trees. Handsome residences that would not be out of place in any large western city are surrounded by oriental flower gardens and the facades of the modern buildings form backgrounds for an array of bronze-skinned oriental inhabitants—Singhalese, Tamils, Hindus of various castes, Parsis, and Mohammedan Indians. Some of them year only loin cloths, some are naked above the hips, some fully clothed, but nearly all of them barefooted. Colombo has nearly a quarter million inhabitants.

"Colombo's most marked native quarter is the Pettah where visitors find an atmosphere strikingly different from that which exists in the foreign and mixed portions of the city. There truly oriental narrow streets, flanked with windowless and doorless one-story shacks, recall Colombo of the pre-British era. But even in this district, the development of sanitary conditions, including protection of the great rice bins from rats, has improved the health of the inhabitants. Bubonic plague has taken a heavy toll in Ceylon in the past, but today the city, although low lying and humid, is ranked with the healthy cities of its size in the Orient."

A History Of Connecticut Industry

Released by Manufacturers Association of Connecticut

New Haven Gas Light Company, New Haven.

In May 1847 the general assembly of the state of Connecticut granted a charter to Henry Peck, Atwater Treat, Phillip, S. Galpin Benjamin Silliman, Jr., and Lucius G. Peck and the New Haven City Gas Light company was organized with a capital stock of $100,000. In 1854 the name was changed to New Haven Gas Light Co.

The New Haven Gas Light company was the first public utility to do business in New Haven and one of the earliest in the United States.

On January 17, 1848 the first board of directors was elected consisting of: William W. Boardman, Ely W. Blake, Benjamin Silliman, Jr., Henry Peck, Lucius Peck, Nathan B. Ives, John S. Graves, James Battin and Charles B. Dugan. The directors elected William W. Boardman the first president of the company. The first coal gas plant was built on the north side of St. John street between Franklin and Hamilton streets. The contract for the construction of the first plant was made on January 19, 1848 and included four miles of gas main for the supplying of the city, situated almost entirely on St. John street, Fleet and Temple streets.

The first superintendent and secretary of the company was Thomas R. Dutton who was appointed July 23, 1848 at a salary of $25 a month. Toward the end of 1848 gas was first made and distributed through the few miles of gas mains at a price of $4 per thousand cubic feet. During the year 1850 approximately 500,000 cubic feet were sold. In 1853 the sales were 2,548,314,000 cubic feet. There have been many reductions in the price of gas since 1848 and the records of the company show that all reductions in price were made voluntarily by the company.

It was soon realized that the St. John street plant would become inadequate in a few years and steps were taken to acquire a new and better site by the purchase of the Abratz Heaton property on East street in 1853.

In 1861 a new coal gas plant was started on East street and had a daily capacity of 500,000 cubic feet. The company continued to make coal gas exclusively until 1885. In that year a new process for the manufacture of gas was introduced by which carbureted water gas was made and a plant erected having a daily capacity of 250,000 cubic feet. The coal gas plant and the water gas plant were in use a good many years but had to be replaced eventually because of more modern and improved methods of manufacture. A new carbureted water gas plant was built in 1902 and a new coal gas plant was completed in 1906. The coal gas plant continued to operate until September 1928 when it was discontinued and the coal gas purchased from the Connecticut Coke company who had erected a large coke oven plant on the east side of New Haven harbor.

The present officers are: Clarence Blakeslee, president; George D. Watrous, vice president; H. R. Sterrett, vice president and general manager; T. R. Sucher, secretary and treasurer; C. G. Wuestefeld, assistant secretary and assistant treasurer.

OLD PLANTATION HOMES FALL AS LEVEE RISES

NEW ORLEANS — (AP) — Ol' Man River again has taken toll of some of the finest of the old plantation homes as a new levee rises along the Father of Waters in Louisiana.

Chatsworth plantation, 15 miles below Baton Rouge, is being torn down to make way for the new levee. Built nearly a century ago, the house has been pushed closer and closer to the banks of the gnawing river. Chatsworth was first owned by Americamembers of the DuPlantier family, friends of Lafayette, who came to America in 1781.

Uncle Sam, another plantaiton, will lose its long battle with the river along with Chatsworth. It has stood from 1836, peopled by some of the richest planters in the state.

GEORGE CHARBONNEAU CHOSEN WATER DEPT. SUPERVISOR

As a result of an organization meeting of the board of water commissioners, which was held Friday evening at the town hall, the present personnel of the water department, with one exception, will again be in charge for the coming year. The only change is in the office of supervisor of the water works to which George M. Charbonneau, chairman of the republican town committee, was appointed. He succeeds John R. Bowman, Jr., who was recently named a deputy sheriff for New London county. Charles A. Hagberg was re-elected president of the board.

The special meeting was called to order at 7:30 o'clock with Mr. Hagberg, the president of the board, presiding, and with four of the five commissioners present. These were Mr. Hagberg r, John M. Swahn r, John H. Sherman r, and Jeremiah A. Fitzgerald d. The absentee was John P. Corcoran d, who was out of town. The meeting was a harmonious one, in direct contrast to the one held two years ago when John A. Mitchell caused a deadlock to exist in the appointment of supervisor and cashier, and shortly before 8 o'clock it adjourned.

GEORGE M. CHARBONNEAU
Elected Supervisor.

According to the vote of the commissioners, three in favor of appointment and one against, the "nay" vote apparently that of the democratic member, Mr. Fitzgerald, Mr. Hagberg was re-elected president of the board, and George M. Charbonneau supervisor of the water works, with Edmund Hindle re-elected cashier. Miss Mary Maloney assistant cashier and William R. Stevens, re-appointed inspector. The caretakers of reservoirs, also reappointments, were Charles Pierce of Fairview, Hiram Amburn of Stony Brook and Joseph Harsomowitz of Deep River.

The clerk of the meeting was Commissioner Sherman.

The office of president pays a salary of $500, that of supervisor $3,000 and that of cashier $1,800.

CHILDREN WITH MATCHES BLAMED FOR FIRE

Children with matches are blamed for a small fire, which occurred at the residence of Lloyd G. Gilino, owner and occupant, at No. 210 Hickory street, about 10.45 o'clock Friday evening. The blaze was located in a clothes closet in a bed room, where the Gelino children are believed to have gone in looking for matches. It is thought that a match fallen to the floor was stepped upon by them.

A suit of clothes of Mr. Gelino was destroyed in the blaze and damage was done to the woodwork before it was extinguished by the Gelino family, who became aware of the fire by smoke issuing from the bedroom. Several pails of water thrown upon the blaze put it out before the fire department arrived. Squad A, Engine No. 2 and Deputy Chief Dennis Brennan responded.

CAUGHT GASOLINE THIEF AT GROTON LONG POINT

Motorists at Groton Long Point who have been puzzled to know why it took so much gasoline for their cars had the puzzle solved for them when a Noank man was caught about 3 o'clock one morning this week as he was draining the gas from the tank of a machine at the point.

According to a Norwich man who had been one of those to notice that he was using an abnormal supply of gasoline, this Noank man had made a regular practice of visiting Groton Long Point at night and collecting all the gasoline he could from as many cars as he could reach.

COMPENSATION AWARD MADE FOR WORKMAN

Compensation in the amount of $155.18 is ordered paid to Peter Castagna of 49 Prest street, New London, an employe of the Bartlett, Brainard Co., of Hartford, according to a workman's finding and award made by Compensation Commissioner Albert J. FORECLOSURE JUDGMENT ON NORTH STONINGTON PROPERTY

Foreclosure in the sum of $16,433.53 against the Traco Finishing Co., Inc., of Providence was granted in the superior court short calendar session here Friday by Judge Allyn L. Brown in favor of the Knight Finance corporation of Providence. The foreclosure affects a dam and water rights in North Stonington and Stonington.

On a dwelling house and several other buildings in Pawcatuck foreclosure for $3,366.66 was granted in favor of Westerly Savings Fund and Loan association against Thomas F. Furtill and others of Pawcatuck.

Judge Brown accepted the report of Charles Weare as receiver for the Connecticut Braided Cordage Co. of Voluntown, and an order was entered to pay the appraisers Edward L. Hall and Edward Clark, $15 apiece for their services.

In the divorce suit of Eleanor W. Chatterton against George Chatterton, Jr., of this city, he was ordered to pay his wife $25 a week alimony pendente lite.

In the divorce suit brought against Alvin S. Kenyon of New London by Mabel Crandall Kenyon, the former was ordered to pay the latter $15 a week pendente lite.

Judge Brown ordered an interpleader to be filed in the case of Chaffee against Samuel E. Holdridge of Ledyard.

In the case of Haupt against Buksar and others, a foreclosure matter, leave to amend complaint was allowed, while motions citing in other parties and order of notice was granted.

Default for failure to appear against all non-appearing defendants was granted in the case of the Thames Bank and Trust Co. of this city against George C. Butts and others. Hearing on limitation of time for redemption was set for Monday.

The report of the trustees account in the case of Page, et al, trustees against the city of New London and others was approved by the court.

Statutory continuance of three months was granted and default for failure to appear was entered in the foreclosure action brought by Byron against Greene and others.

In the case of the Raymond and Alexander Lumber Co. against DuFranks and others, decision was reserved on the motion of supplemental judgment.

Three hearings in regard to approval of sale and deed of Ocean Beach property, etc., in the cases of Atlas Realty Corp. against Commodore Realty Co. and others were continued until Monday.

Motions in the following cases went off the list:

Grimshaw and others against Muttolland, default for failure to plead; Norman, Admr., against Zenowitcn, default for failure to plead; Noonan against Murray, M. D., default for failure to plead; S. Landow and Co. Inc., against Katz, default for failure to appear and foreclosure.

BAR ASSOCIATION APPROVES WOMAN LAWYER'S APPLICATION

Before a meeting of the New London County Bar association, held in the superior court room here Friday morning with the president, William H. Shields, in the chair, a special committee made favorable report upon the application of Mrs. Mary Wooster Sutton of 95 Starr Hill road, Groton, to be admitted to practice law in this state without taking the bar examinations. This committee consisted of Attorney George H. Gilman of this city, Attorneys Philip Z. Hankey and Charles B. Whittlesey of New London, its special province being to investigate as to moral character and qualifications. Letters from two members of the supreme court bench in New Jersey were read as to Mrs. Sutton's high character and ability as a lawyer, and her application was unanimously endorsed.

The recommendation of the bar association will be presented before Judge Allyn L. Brown in the superior court by Attorney Shields, as president of the association, in order that the judge may formally give his approval. It is expected that this will be done Monday.

In a statement which she made to the association she said that she is a cousin of State Attorney William H. Comly of Bridgeport, that she was first admitted as an attorney in 1913 and has been familiar with court room practice since then.

BOY ON MECHANIC STREET STRUCK BY ANTOMOBILE

John Wlodyka, 3 year old son of Mr. and Mrs. John Wlodyka of No. 42 Thames street, is a patient at the W. W. Backus hospital, suffering from injuries to his head, as the result of an automobile accident on Mechanic street, about 8.45 o'clock Friday evening. The child is said to have run out in front of a machine, driven by Max Wolfman of No. 36 Spring street, which struck him and knocked him down. The machine, a 1922 Dodge touring car, is owned by the operator's wife, Clara Wolfman.

The child, who had gone to Mechanic street with his sister to play, was taken to the W. W. Backus hospital in a machine by Mr. Wolfman and Raymond Benoit. The extent of the injuries sustained by the boy are not known, but hospital authorities do not consider them serious. They will be ascertained today (Saturday), when an X-ray will be taken.

FIREMEN WITH LADDER GET CAT FROM TREE

Firemen from the Central station were called upon at 12:25 o'clock Friday afternoon to rescue a cat from a tree near No. 143 Central avenue. The animal was taken from its perch in the tree by use of a 30-foot extension ladder, after it had been there for several days, according to residents in the vicinity who asked the department to remove it.

FOUR DIVORCES HEARD BEFORE JUDGE BROWN

Four divorces in the uncontested list came up before Judge Allyn L. Brown in the superior court here Friday, the session running over into the late afternoon before court adjourned with one case continued to next Monday morning when more evidence will be presented.

Judge Brown granted one divorce and reserved decision in two cases. The first to be heard was the suit of George A. Surber against Nellie M. Surber, both of Stonington, in which desertion since June 3, 1925, was alleged. The couple was married Jan. 10, 1924.

Besides the petitioner, the witnesses were Charles H. Langworthy, Byron F. Mason and Gladys Mason. Judge Brown reserved decision.

The judge also reserved decision in the petition of Ruth A. Moran against Joseph F. Moran, both of this city. Mrs. Moran alleged intolerable cruelty which began about a year after their marriage in Norwich on Nov. 30, 1916. They have two children. Mrs. Moran testified that her husband never handed his pay over to her and that he had left her at three different times. Judge Thomas J. Kelly was her attorney and after he had finished asking her questions, Judge Brown conducted a lengthy examination in which he had her describe specific acts of cruelty of which she complained. Mrs. Mary Sorson also testified and after she had finished Judge Brown inquired of Mrs. Moran if a man who was sitting in court was her husband. When she had answered "yes," Judge Brown asked Mr. Moran if he wanted to say anything, whereupon the defendant took the stand and Judge Brown questioned him about the acts of cruelty of which Mrs. Moran had complained. Mr. Moran said he couldn't understand why they couldn't get along, but said he was a nervous wreck from it all.

Frances Clayton of New London secured a divorce from Charles A. Clayton of Whitinsville, Mass., on the grounds of desertion since Aug. 3, 1922. They were married in New London May 12, 1922. The petitioner was given the custody of a daughter, now seven years old. She said that her husband left her after the birth of the baby and had never seen the baby. Other witnesses for Mrs. Clayton were Amy Johnson and Doris Pepson Priestly.

The last divorce case heard for the day was Doris Le Count Tebbutt Coates of East Lyme against James Rogers Coates of Stamford, with Attorney Henry Brogan as counsel for the petitioner. They were married Sept. 3, 1912, and she alleged cruelty from that time on. She asks the custody of two sons, ten and seven years old. The cruelty to which she testified arose principally, through drink and her husband's admiration for other women. Other witnesses were her father, Charles S. Tebbutt of Stamford, her sister, Mrs. Margery Murphy, and Mary Sybil Brown.

The case was continued to come up again next Monday morning, to which time court adjourned.

MENTAL HYGIENE INSTITUTE OPENING NEXT WEEK

A mental hygiene institute in Connecticut has been planned for three weeks this summer, lasting from June 30 to July 19.

These plans have developed as a result of the great interest in mental hygiene shown throughout Connecticut, of the fact that many people have expressed their desire to obtain a more thorough knowledge of the subject than can be obtained in one or two lectures, and the need felt by social organizations for workers with insight into the application of the principles of mental hygiene.

The institute will be somewhat in the form of a summer school and during the three weeks' period 65 hours of lectures and seminars will be given. There will be a number of authorities in the field of mental hygiene as speakers. This institute is under the direction of the Connecticut state department of health, and it is felt that the training of such workers will materially advance mental hygiene in this state.

Arrangements have been made to hold this institute at New London. The Connecticut college at New London has invited the state department of health to use their campus for this purpose and arrangements are being made to accommodate those who wish to attend the institute. New London and Connecticut college are ideally located for such a summer institute, as there are many facilities for enjoying recreation while attending the sessions.

The course will be planned so as to interest visiting nurses, teachers, social workers, probation officers, physicians and all socially-minded persons of sufficient educational background so that they can obtain a working knowledge of mental hygiene. There will be no tuition, and expenses connected with the institute will be at a minimum. All persons interested in attending this institute should immediately communicate with the division of mental hygiene, state department of health, Hartford, and further details will be sent on application.

SAW BOBBY JONES WIN GOLF CHAMPIONSHIP

Dr. and Mrs. E. J. Brophy who have been abroad, returned to town Friday and state that they have had an excellent trip both on board ship and in Europe. Among the places they visited was St. Andrews, Scotland, where they were on time to see Bobby Jones play his famous match with Cyril Tolley, British champion, and later witnessed Jones' victory as amateur champion of Great Britain. Most of their time was spent in Paris but trips were made to Rheims and to Lisieux where the famous shrine of St. Therese is.

The cathedral of Rheims is gradually being restored but only a few of the wondrous stained glass windows remain. American generosity has played a great part in the rebuilding of this famous edifice.

While in Glasgow, Dr. and Mrs. Brophy had the pleasure of meeting Mr. and Mrs. Alexander Shaw and family of Providence and formerly of the Greenville section of Norwich.

TWO NORWICH MEN WILL BE IN CITIZENS' TRAINING CAMP

James O'Neil Murphy and John Vincent Mingo, both of this city, leave today (Saturday) for the citizens' military training camp at Burlington, Vt., where they will be attached to the cavalry unit. In 1928 the Norwich men were at Fort Adams, Newport, R. I., and have also been at Fort Ethan Allen, Burlington, Vt., for cavalry training.

OBITUARY

Mrs. Charles D. Gallup

Following an illness of over two years, Grace R. Aldrich, wife of Charles D. Gallup of No. 158 Lauter Hill avenue, died in this city Friday afternoon. She had been seriously ill for only a few days.

Mrs. Gallup was born in Norwich, the daughter of Harrison R. and Mary J. Rogers Aldrich, and received her public school education in the schools of this city. She was prominently identified in musical circles here and was for a time soloist at the Broadway church. Mrs. Gallup also appeared in concert work in this city and elsewhere on many occasions. She possessed an unusually fine voice.

On May 12, 1888, in this city, she was united in marriage with Charles D. Gallup, who survives her with a son, Harry W. Gallup, of Perth Amboy, N. J., and a brother, Frank S. Aldrich, of this city. Her father died at the time of the burning of the steamer City of New London in November, 1871.

Mrs. Gallup was a faithful member of Christ Episcopal church and also took a keen interest in the affairs of the Daughters of the American Revolution, and for years was a member of the national organization. She was a true and loving mother and a warm-hearted friend and took delight in assisting others in need. Her loss will be deeply felt by a wide circle of friends.

Mrs. Lester Green

After an illness of several months' duration, Mrs. Esther Jackson Green, widow of Lester Green, died Friday morning at the home of her sister, Mrs. Clarence Luther of No. 27 Regina street, Norwich Town. She was born in Charlton, Mass., 81 years ago, the daughter of Joseph and Emma Hill Jackson and for the past six years was employed at Arnold's Sea Grill, Putnam. Besides the sister, Mrs. Green is survived by three daughters, Lillian, Muriel and Margaret. Her husband died about three years ago.

Mrs. Daniel H. Foley

The death of Amelia B. Corning, wife of Daniel H. Foley, occurred Thursday afternoon at her home, No. 2 Eastham street, Worcester, where she was resident for several years. Besides her husband she leaves two sons, Daniel F. and Quintin Foley, and four daughters, Mrs. Leo J. Pendergast and the Misses Corinne H., Rita M., and Hazel F. Foley, all of Worcester.

WEDDING

Hetherington—Furniss

The wedding of Miss Geraldine Furniss, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William H. Furniss, and Prof. Stanley Wilmot Hetherington, of Kingston, son of Rev. Wilbur D. Hetherington, of Putnam, Conn., took place Thursday afternoon at 4 o'clock at the home of the bride's parents on Wilcox avenue, Pawtucket. The ceremony was performed by Rev. Arthur M. Alcock, pastor of All Saints Memorial church. Music was furnished by a trio of 'cello, violin and piano and "Because" and "O Perfect Love" were sung by Mrs. Harry G. James, of Central Falls. The Sorority song was sung by the classmates of the bride at Rhode Island State college, who is a member of Sigma Kappa sorority.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, was attended by Miss Kathleen Ince, of Kingston. Mr. Hetherington had for best man, Prof. Herbert M. Emery, of the Rhode Island State college.

Professor Hetherington, who is professor of chemistry at Rhode Island State college, is a graduate of McGill university, class of 1926, and a member of Phi Mu Delta fraternity.

HUNDRED MILLION LOANED FOR U. S. SEA PRESTIAGE

WASHINGTON—(AP)— In two years, the United States has loaned nearly $100,000,000 of its quarter billion dollar revolving fund set aside to attempt to restore the prestige of the American merchant marine.

Loans totalling $32,000,000 have just been granted for eight vessels. That brings to 34 the number of ships contracted for the United States shipping companies under the Jones-White merchant marine act.

Of the 34, there will be 22 modern passenger-cargo vessels and 12 tankers.

CANNON SHOTS 'EXERCISE' TREES AND KILL PESTS

WENATCHEE, Wash.—(AP)— Persistent booming away with a two-foot cannon, an original Wenatchee Valley orchardist claims, is killing codling moths hich infested his apple trees and also is raising the quality of his crop.

The concussion is supposed to knock life out of the moths as well as give the trees beneficent exercise. E. R. Deith, of Monitor, got the idea when he noticed trees were particularly free of worms here his nephew had fired a shotgun frequently.

BOLL WEEVIL'S POSION MADE APHID'S LIFE EASY

WASHINGTON — (AP) — The boll weevil and the cotton aphid had a fine alliance going until entomologists dissolved them.

It was found that wherever calcium arsenate was used to control boll weevils the weevils deserted the field for other parts, leaving the aphids a free hand. The dust killed a number of the aphid's natural enemies besides being quite an attraction for aphids, hich like any white powder.

Now, cotton farmers appy calcium arsenate to kill the weevils and nicotine sulphate to kill the aphids.

DOG-CATCHER'S DOG SIMPLY WON'T QUIT

COUNCIL BLUFFS, Iowa — (AP) — "Pug," the dog-catcher's dog in Council Bluffs, refuses to quit his job despite a change in the town's political regime.

For years Pug's master was the dog-catcher, and Pug rode with him every day.

But there came a day when Pug's boss lost his job through the shifts of municipal politics. He went back to barbering, and arranged a bed for Pug to pass his days of retirement.

Pug, however, had the crusading spirit. He insisted on going with the new dog-catcher, who didn't ant him. Finally Pug triumphed, and so he sits again on the dog-catcher's wagon, refusing to be moved.

W. C. T. U. HONORS MEMORY OF PROHIBITION WORKER

EVANSTON, Ill. — (AP) — The Woman's Christian Temperance union will celebrate, on July 4, the one hundreth anniversary of the birth of Mrs. Mary H. Hunt of Dorchester, Mass., who first fought liquor with physiology textbooks.

Mrs. Hunt, little knon in her generation, was a co-worker of Francis Willard. She died in 1906.

When the W. C. T. U. organized in 1873, part of its program as to educate children against liquor. Mrs. Hunt, an instructor in chemistry, was chosen to organize this work.

She forstered the passage of a law making temperance education compulsory. Such a measure was passed by congress and later by every state legislature.

URGES NATIONAL PARK IN FLORIDA EVERGLADES

MAMI, Fla.—(AP)—Establishment of a national park in the Florida Everglade is advocated by Dr. Howard A. Kelly, of Baltimore, one of the founders of Johns Hopkins medical school, who has made an investigation of the possibilities of the lowland area.

Recommendation has been made that congress set aside two million acres, or about two-thirds of the Everglades, and the project is under consideration by Secretary of the Interior Wilbur and Dr. John Campbell Merriam, president of Carnegie Institute.

"If the land is not set aside by the government," Dr. Kelly declared, "it will soon be ruined by the cutting of trees and by fires, many of which are started for such trivial purposes as chasing rabbits out of underbush."

CIVIL WAR'S 'INCUBATOR' TO CELEBRATE CENTENNIAL

MARSHALL, Mich.—(AP)—This little Michigan city, scene of an anti-slavery event that is credited with having kindled the Civil war, is 100 years old. A civic celebration is set for July 3, 4 and 5.

In 1847 Adam Crosswhite, a Kentucky slave, settled in Marshall. When his master arrived to claim him, the citizens helped Crosswhite to escape into Canada. The report of the incident aroused Henry Clay, who proposed the fugitive slave law of 1850, which crystallized aboulition sentiment.

The panorama of Marshall's 100 years will be told in a parade of floats.

SAYS BON-TONE IS A WONDERFUL SYSTEM REGULATOR

Had Been Ailing Two Years; Six Bottles of Bon-Tone Brought Remarkable Results.

Bon-Tone puts your bodily machinery in motion, and makes you feel wonderful with all your vital organs functioning as Nature intended them to.

Bon-Tone tones up the digestive organs until they give off the required amount of gastric juices to digest your food properly. It wakes up a lazy liver, stimulating it to greater activity, and regulates the flow of bile. It also acts on the kidneys and bowels; in fact, each and every herb in Bon-Tone assists the others and combines to form a tonic, system cleaner, and alterative of the highest type.

Mrs. John Kuster of 53 Madison street, Waterbury, Conn., says: "For the past two years I had been ailing. My stomach became all out of order and after eating, gas would form and crowd around my heart. Sometimes I would wake up in the middle of the night with pains around my heart, due to this gas; and I would not be able to go back to sleep until I took something to relieve me of the gas. My blood circulation was very poor, too; as my hands and feet felt numb all the time. I also had severe attacks of dizzy headaches.

"I read in the paper about others who had gotten such good results from Bon-Tone, that I decided to try it; I have now taken only six bottles of this medicine, and my stomach is better, and the numbness in my hands and feet is fast disappearing, as are the headaches. I think Bon-Tone is a wonderful system regulator, and I will be glad to recommend it to anyone."

There is a Bon-Tone Man in Norwich at Smith's Pharmacy. Stop in and have a talk with him and start on the Bon-Tone treatment today.

Bon-Tone is also for sale by all leading druggists everywhere.

ECZEMA ON ARM
Skin Now Well
GIVES CREDIT TO Resinol

"My daughter suffered from a form of eczema which caused a mass of blisters to form on her arm. As these blisters broke the trouble spread. The doctor was treating her, but she did not seem to be improving very fast. I heard of Resinol Ointment and asked the doctor about it. When he said it was all right, I tried it and want to tell you that after using three small jars, my daughter's arm was quite well."

SIMCOX PITCHES ROYALS INTO FIRST PLACE IN THE LOCAL CITY LEAGUE

A year older, but possessed of as much skill and cunning as he ever had, the "old master," Tommy Simcox, came back once again last night and showed the "young fellers" how they used to do it. Past the two score mark, Tommy hurled the Royals past his former teammates, the Thermos Bottlers, into first place in the City league chase. He allowed 7 scattered hits while his teammates were battering three hurlers for a 10 to 3 victory.

The official records will credit Simmy with allowing 7 bingles but in reality, the Bottlers only got four honest to goodness smashes off his delivery, three being of the scratch variety. In addition, Tommy fanned 6 batters and turned in a hitting average of .500 for the evening. Not half bad for a man who was supposed to have been "all done" when half the present crop were learning the A. B. C.s of the national pastime.

The Royal win, however, was not due entirely to Simmy, the entire team playing an A-1 brand of ball. They worked nicely on the defense and slammed out hits when hits were really needed. The members of the Panek-Oney clan went to work in the very first inning, pasting the joint offerings of Dudek and Kotch for five hits, which, together with a pair of Bottler misplays, gave them an even half dozen scores. The winners continued with their attack on Kotch in the second and third frames, counting twice in each inning.

Finally, Carlie Krauss came in from short and from the third on kept the Royals clear of the scoring station. Carlie, although not a reputed hurler here, turned in a brilliant piece of relief work, allowing but two more bingles during the remainder of the game. He was a little unsteady at times, however, walking four and winging three.

Simmy was forced to share the honors of the evening with a teammate, Shorty Hamil. Shorty turned in a whale of a game both afield and on the offense. He battered for a 1.000, clubbing out a double and two singles in as many official attempts, and scored three runs. Afield he handled five chances without a slip. Mal Cummings also had a big night, gathering a pair of doubles and a single in five licks and handling four chances without a miss. The score:

PIZZO PITCHES H. N. S. TO WIN OVER THE ELKS

(Special to The Bulletin.)

JEWETT CITY, June 27.—Young Walter Pizzo, pitching for the Holy Name society team, won his game from the Norwich Elks by the score of 6 to 3 in a twilight game here tonight. The local team failed to score on Fuller, the Elks relief pitcher. With perfect fielding, however, Pizzo would have blanked the visitors.

Bush made good with a two-bagger to deep center with two men on, both scoring on the hit. Pizzo, who is making his first tryout with the H. N. S., was in no danger at any time.

MONTYVILLE INDIES WIN 9TH STRAIGHT VICTORY

The Montville Independents won their ninth straight game Friday evening at the Gair diamond at Uncasville by trimming the fast New London Colored Giants.

"Cop" Lamphere pitched a no-hit game up to the seventh inning, allowing the visitors two bingles in this frame, which should have been fielded. Out of the 24 men to face him, he struck out 12. McKinney, Lamphere, Paradise and Tisky each collected one of the Indies' four hits. F. Myers and J. Brown got the two visiting safeties.

RED STARS HAVE TWO GAMES OVER WEEK END

The Plainfield Red Stars have two fast games booked for this week end and are hoping to get back into the winning column. After playing loose ball last week they have put in a hard week of practice for these games. The first game, on Saturday, will be with the Ideal Service station team of the Norwich City league at Plainfield. Sunday, they go to New London to battle the Willets A. C., which was taken into camp at Plainfield earlier in the season.

The reports from New London say that they are working hard to reverse the score.

SENATORS RUN WINNING STREAK TO SEVEN GAMES

WASHINGTON, June 27.—(AP)—The Senators ran their winning streak up to seven straight today taking Detroit into camp for the second successive day. The score was 6 to 4.

Alvin Crowder kept the Tigers' seven hits well scattered while his teammates were pounding Desautels and Sullivan for ten hits, Manush got a homer and single batting in four of Washington's runs and Sam Rice collected two doubles and a single.

FITCHVILLE PLAYS POLISH CITIZENS ON SUNDAY

Sunday afternoon at the Fitchville diamond, the Fitchville A. C. will renew the feud that started several years ago with the Polish Citizens. The last game played last year ended in a very unsatisfactory way with one team refusing to continue. The difficulties have been patched up and tomorrow's game is expected to be a hot one. The Fitchville team will line up as follows: Marchand, cf; Gribbon, 2b; Cummings, 3b; Kozersky, 1b; Berkman, ss; Janowitz, lf; Yankiewitz, rf; Rogers, c; Cardin, p. Boots Greene will pitch for the Citizens.

NORWICH TO SEND TEAM OF 25 GOLFERS TO PUTNAM TODAY

The Norwich Golf club will send between 25 and 30 players to Putnam this afternoon to compete in a team match with the Putnam Country club. The members of the Norwich club are anticipating a royal good time, as the Putnam members have always proved to be exceptionally fine hosts.

The Army and Navy club will cross bats this afternoon with the strong "K. of C." of Hartford.

The "K. of C." will have many college boys in their lineup who played against N. F. A. three or four years ago. Their lineup will be headed by none other than Frankie Farrell, who is well known in this section.

Frankie said he would bring down a bunch of ball players who would surely "take home the bacon."

The Army and Navy lineup will be practically the same as last week. Johnny Greene, former Academy slab artist, however, will be on the mound, while Raymond will take position in the outfield and Lamory will do the back stopping. The umpires will be Taft and Labarre.

And he says, "Susie, just put your head back, this wont hurt a bit." Oh, what a fine bunch of salve spreaders these dentists are.

Yes, sir, you guessed it the first time. One of the old molars ain't functioning the way it ought to.

Here I am, a peace-loving girl that tries to do her good turn every day, and what happens. I am visited by a thousand active little devils that make one of my teeth their playground.

There ain't no justice in this life nohow. If you're good, go to bed early, brush your teeth every morning, noon and night, and mind your calories, you run into something that just makes you wanta kick over the traces and cuss like a longshoreman.

That's just the way I feel at the present moment. If I wasn't a God-fearing person and the editor would let it go by I could tell you in real plain language what I think about the well-known bicuspids. They're like husbands, you can't get along without 'em and you have a heck of a time with 'em.

When I tell you that I only slept a coupla hours in the last 24 you know right well that the tooth was kicking up in great shape, 'cause sleeping is one of the few things that I do well and often.

Not being able to get the well-earned, or otherwise, sleep, I takes a trip down to Doc Charlie's office for him to give it the once over. He gives it a few pokes and pushes and says I got a abscess.

Well I agrees with him which makes it unanimous so he goes to work. Like all good dentists he says what he's going to do ain't going to hurt but this time there's a wide difference in opinion. He probably meant it wasn't going to hurt him.

Was you ever used as a human pin cushion? No, well you ain't had no sensations whatsoever. He stuck so many needles into the gum I thought I was making a mean on chestnut burrs.

But when he was all through I had to admit the old tooth felt a whole lot better and in a coupla days I think I'll be able to eat something besides soup.

But the most cheering news of all was the cheerful way in which he says: "Susie, if you'll come in next week some time we'll take that tooth out. And there's a couple more that ought to come out too."

What a happy thought that is.

ATHLETICS GET EVEN BREAK WITH BROWN

PHILADELPHIA, June 27.—(AP)—The Athletics divided a doubleheader with the St. Louis Browns today, winning the second encounter by a score of 8 to 3, after turning in five boots that aided the Missourians to beat Lefty Grove in the first game, 3 to 2.

Dick Coffman kept the Mack hits well scattered in the opener but in the closing affair the world's champions gave Chad Kimsey a sound slugging. Grove, A's pitcher hit a home run in the first game and Quinn, A's hurler in the second game, also hit a homer.

In the second game Jimmy Foxx hit his 20th home run of the season, with two on in the third inning and in the fifth Al Simmons walloped his 16th with one on base.

INDIANS POUND PIPGRAS AND CARROLL FOR ELEVEN RUNS

NEW YORK, June 27.—(AP)—The Cleveland Indians found a favorite relative in "Cousin" George Pipgras today and evened the series by winning the second game from the Yankees today, 11 to 7. They drove Pipgras from the mound in the fifth inning, making the seventh straight time in two seasons they have sent him to the showers.

Cleveland broke its losing streak by piling up 16 hits off Pipgras and Ownie Carroll, including homers by Falk and Averill. Babe Ruth's 27th home run of the year was the one big Yankee clout.

Willis Hudlin, Cleveland's starting pitcher, had to retire in the first inning when he split his finger taking a throw.

Game called at 3:15.

The Elmwood A. C. of Hartford will offer the opposition for the Velvetmakers in their regular week-end attraction at J. B. Martin field Sunday afternoon.

Led by Tommy Sipples, former South Manchester star, the visitors will present an array of ball players that are the "class" of the Dusty loop in the Capitol city, and will without a doubt shape up into the fastest and strongest club that has appeared on the local diamond this season. While Manager Sipples is fully confident that his team will not experience a great deal of difficulty in taking over the locals, he is not taking any chances with the Velvetmen and is sending his best pitching talent to the mound to make good his boast. Lefty Buckland, who a few seasons back, if the fans will recall, did some mighty fine twirling for Taftville A. A., is slated to do the pitching for the Capitol city aggregation. Lefty seems headed for a banner year and should give the local team plenty to ponder about. Barry will be his battery mate. Russ Fisher, formerly of J. B. Martin, will be in reserve.

J. B. Martin has been very successful in their last four starts and are quite sure that they can keep that string of victories intact. Walt Lindner, premier moundsman, will again do the twirling with Eccleston on the receiving end. The remainder of the lineup is unchanged.

Hamil and Flynn are the umpires.

BALTIC PLAY SHYMA CLUB ON SUNDAY

On Sunday at Sayles field, Baltic, the Baltic Social and Athletic team will play the fast Shyma club of Taftville, who have wins over Plainfield, Sterling, U. S. Wilkes. The Baltic team after shutting out the Married Men in a 9 inning game on Wednesday are out for blood so the fans can expect a good game. The game is scheduled to start at 3 o'clock. Manager Coullard will have the following in his lineup: Andrews, 1st Base; Albert Passmore, 2nd Base; Bastien, short stop; Tommie Charron, 3d base; Ernest (Red) Passmore, left field; Art Coullard, center field; Généreoux, right field; Earl Passmore in the box and Crush Provencher behind the plate, for utility Blanchette, Godaire, Bastien, McShane with Petremb and Alex acting as relief pitchers. The Baltic team is looking for an out of town game for the 4th of July and Sunday the 6th. Telephone Norwich 1935 13 between 10 and 11 or 6 to 7 daylight saving time and ask for Manager Coullard.

FITZSIMMONS HOLDS CARDS IN CHECK WHILE GIANTS WIN

ST. LOUIS, June 27.—(AP)—Frankie Frisch hit a home run with two on base in the first inning today, but after that blow, Fred Fitzsimmons held the Cards in check and the New York Giants scored their second straight victory, 9 to 4. The last St. Louis counter did not appear until the eighth inning.

Burleigh Grimes started for the Cardinals but was knocked from the box in the sixth inning after he had yielded ten hits and eight runs. Fred Leach duplicated Frisch's home run hitting feature in the fourth inning to give the Giants the lead.

PIRATES STOP RALLY IN 9TH TO WIN FROM PHILLIES

PITTSBURGH, June 27.—(AP)—The Pittsburgh Pirates staved off a ninth inning rally by the Philadelphia Nationals today to win their third straight from the Phillies, 6 to 4.

It was anybody's contest until the seventh, when the Pirates scored three times while making but one hit. An error and a passed ball gave scoring openings that were seized.

O'Doul, hitting two doubles and two triples, was the batting star of the game.

SINGLES BY MEUSEL AND KELLY IN 9TH WIN FOR REDS

CINCINNATI, O., June 27.—(AP)—A pass to Walker in the ninth inning and singles by Meusel and Kelly, the latter driving in the winning run, today gave the Reds a 7 to 6 victory over Boston. Kelly previously hit a home run in the seventh, scoring a run ahead of him. Bennie Frey pitched a strong game until the eighth when the Braves bunched hits for five runs and tied the score. Larry Benton relieved him and received credit for the victory.

CUBS NOW WITHIN ONE GAME OF THE LEADERS

CHICAGO, June 27.—(AP)—The Cubs again placed themselves only one game behind the league-leading Brooklyn club today by virtue of Kiki Cuyler's home run in the tenth inning which brought a 7 to 5 victory over the Robins. The victory evened the "crucial" series.

A crowd of 50,000 turned out to watch a close battle between Guy Bush of the Cubs and Adolfo Luque and Ray Moss of Brooklyn, which was anybody's game up to the last play. Moss allowed but two hits after he relieved Luque in the sixth but one was Cuyler's homer. Babe Herman of Brooklyn also hit for the circuit.

SOCIAL CORNER POETRY

The Wind Is a Seamstress

The wind is a seamstress
Who carefully patches
The veils of the moon,
And skillfully matches
The colors of clouds
To make of sunsets
Such pageants of beauty
One rarely forgets!

With dusk for a thread,
(Oh, her fingers are nimble!)
With light for a needle,
A star for a thimble,
She stitches the edges
Of daylight to night,
And makes a creation
Of purple twilight!

A Little Parable

I made the cross myself whose weight
Was later laid on me.
This thought is torture as I toil
Up life's steep Calvary.

To think mine own hands drove the nails!
I sang a merry song,
And chose the heaviest wood I had
To build it firm and strong.

If I had guessed—if I had dreamed
Its weight was meant for me,
I should have made a lighter cross
To bear up Calvary!

A Music Teacher's Resolve

Through 1930 I'll be true
To music, as my art;
I'll strive and serve, nor count the cost,
I'll play the noble part.
A student still I will remain;
I'll learn, re-learn, revise;
For music, though a living tongue,
Speaks only to the wise.
The "rut" I'll shun, but not the path
That's beaten—that I'll tread;
For present, future, worlds of sound
From out of the past is fed.
In teaching, too, I'll aim to grasp
Afresh, the student view;
The plodder then will reach a height
Nearer the brilliant few.
With knowledge, patience, purpose fixed,
With strength of mind and frame,
With courage, vision, hope that's high,
With these, I'll fan the flame
And music then will be far more
Than means of livelihood:
A road of joy, a finding,
And passing-on, of good-by.

PRETTY THINGS AT SMALL COST

Dear Social Corner Friends: Here is a hint which may prove helpful to those who like silk lingerie and feel they can not afford to buy it. Take your last year's silk dresses which are too worn under the arms for wear and with a small package of color remover make them white. Then tint them any pastel shade you desire, and cut them into vests; bloomers or step-ins. If there is not enough good material for you, small daughter would love a suit of silk "undies."

To keep the original stiffness of organdie, wash in cold water and iron while still damp.

Hope this will help someone to keep plentiful their supply of pretty things at a very small cost.

I sprinkled cornmeal over the window shades which were laid on the floor and rubbed with a coarse dry cloth. A brush would serve the purpose very well. After a few minutes' rubbing shake the shades thoroughly and they will be cleaned.

Dishes used in the oven sometimes become very brown. One of my friends says that she has found that soaking the browned dishes in borax water will make its removal easy.

FRED'S WIFE

WHEN MAKING FUDGE

Dear Sisters and Editor: The Corner has been of great assistance to me and I hope the following suggestions will help someone.

In making fudge if undiluted evaporated milk is used instead of ordinary milk and if it is scalded before the sugar is stirred in the texture of the resulting product will be exceptionally creamy and the cooking time is considerably lessened. The texture is further improved by melting the chocolate before adding it to the other ingredients. Place the chocolate on a piece of waxed paper before putting in the double boiler to be melted and there will be no kettle to wash.

It is often a problem to keep bathroom cabinet and refrigerator shelves free from rings and marks. This problem can be solved by protecting the shelves with waxed paper, replacing with fresh as it becomes soiled. Waxed paper is also excellent for kitchen cabinet shelves and the kind which comes in rolls without cutting or piecing.

Strawberry Tapioca: 1 quart strawberries, ½ cup sugar, 1-4 teaspoon salt, 4 tablespoons granulated tapioca, 1-4 cup cold water. Wash and hull strawberries. Place in shallow pan. Cover closely. Bring very slowly to boil, using no water. When juice begins to appear, add sugar and boil two minutes. Add tapioca that has been soaked in cold water. Cook, stirring constantly until tapioca is clear. Chill thoroughly. Serve with sweetened whipped cream if desired.

PUSSY WILLOW

FRESH PINEAPPLE BEVERAGE

Dear Cornerites: Occasionally I run across a help which I think worth while to pass on to others.

Now that it is pineapple time would like to send in my suggestion. When canning pineapples I cut out the eyes and hearts and instead of throwing them away I have found a way to make a delightful and different drink for no cost and just a little time.

Cover the eyes and hearts of pineapple with water enough so each particle is floating. Leave stand three or four hours, preferably over night. Drain, put juice in bottles and chill. Serve with cracked ice. A few spoonfuls of sugar may be added but we like ours without as it has a certain tang which we find thirst quenching.

Adding a few red cherries to each glassful of juice makes a tempting and colorful drink which I am sure everyone will enjoy.

I find that a bottle which can be tightly corked, filled with gasoline is a great help in cleaning bathroom fixtures. Dampening a clean cloth with gasoline and rubbed over fixtures cleans them with ease.

Also, putting a few drops of lime water into cream will make it whip. Trouble is sometimes experienced in the summer to make all cream whip.

Grapefruit Salad: 5 grapefruit, 2 teaspoons gelatin, ½ cup water, hot, 1 cup confectioner's sugar, 4 tablespoons blanched almonds. Squeeze the juice from four grapefruit, and remove pulp from the other two. Soak gelatin in cold water and dissolve in hot water. Add the sugar and grapefruit to the gelatin. Put over flame and let it come to a boil. Strain through cheesecloth. Then add the grapefruit pulp and the blanched almonds. Pour into a mold and when cool place on ice to set. Serve garnished with lettuce and mayonnaise.

VEILS, CLOUDS AND SHAWLS

Dear Editor and Social Corner Sisters: As I read Eveline Burr's mention of the long veils that used to be worn as extra protection in cold weather my thoughts wandered back to veils galore of that period and earlier and later, green bange veils, black lace veils, flowered, or dotted with elaborate scalloped borders. These on old ladies' bonnets were sometimes arranged to swing off gracefully at the side of the bonnet when not wanted over the face, as were the long crepe mourning veils, long enough sometimes to reach the hem of the skirt. And skirts were skirts then, reaching to the floor instead of the knee, though I must say they were as much too long then as they have been on the other extreme of late years. We are a nation of extremes, nothing medium about us.

Then there were the short veils, just covering the face, of plain black or white net, and the silk crepe mourning veils of later years of the same pattern, and the bridal veils which still hold their own against all the chances and changes of time and fashion, as do the confirmation veils of the young girls taking their first religious vows, and the long black veils of the good sisters of the convents.

Does Eveline Burr also remember an article, not exactly of dress and certainly not of adornment, as no one in her proper senses could have regarded it as being beautiful although comfortable on a cold day when one had to take a long walk or a ride in an open wagon. It was called familiarly a "cloud" and was a soft, light, fleecy, wool scarf, perhaps a yard and a half or two yards long, machine knitted and gathered up with a large tassel at each end. This was wound around the head and neck and tied at one side, sometimes passed over the hat or bonnet and taken off when one arrived at church or other public gathering. They were of varied colors, but quite apt to be white, though I call to mind red ones, black ones and black with a purple center for old ladies. There are no old ladies now, not like those certainly, and no doubt it is well, but don't we remember some of them lovingly and longingly yet?

And another memory is of the shawls of more different patterns and materials than the veils, when everybody had shawls for winter and summer for "dress up" and for everyday, woolen shawls, plain or of gorgeous plaids, or palm leaf patterns, figured shawls called broche, silk shawls elaborately fringed, black or white lace shawls. I have yet a long white lace shawl that my mother wore probably 75 years ago.

Also, I recall the time when "we girls" all had summer shawls of white, striped with bright colors and fringed, which we thought were about the proper thing. I will say now when shawls are almost a forgotten thing that they were a most convenient wrap, for if you were in a hurry a shawl was almost always handy, and you didn't have to spend time struggling into a coat. And the wind couldn't blow it up over your head like a cape. In stormy times, a heavy woolen shawl was almost equal to a raincoat and not so rattling and slippery. And where there was a baby a shawl was convenient to snatch up and wrap the baby in, the last thing before going out. All honor to the memory of the old time shawls and it may be their day will come back again sometime. Who knows?

"That which hath been is that which shall be and there is no new thing under the sun," says the Good Book. And now I will close by extending my somewhat belated thanks to the editor for the yellow slip of last month, and wishing you all a pleasant time on the great and glorious Fourth, which is the next holiday on the calendar.

BETSY BOBBETT'S GARDEN

Dear Social Corner: Good intentions do not seem to go far, either in letter writing or keeping promises. Probably Canterbury Bell thinks I've forgotten her, but C. B., I still have those seedlings for you and will try to send them soon, if I am not down that way.

Thanks to Sister Rhody for the invitation to stop and see her garden. I'd love to. But I'm wondering what road I'd have to ride on to find it. Nobody ever thinks of calling my garden pretty, whether allowed to or not. The highest praise so far is "that things are looking good."

I see Pernickety keeps a list of the flowers she has, so do I, and also have another of those I want. If one read the list of those I have she would think "what a wonderful garden it must be." Am afraid the reality would be disappointing. Never mind, I get lots of enjoyment out of Green Gate Garden so why care what others think?

Had a bit of bad luck with some of my seedlings. They were growing so slowly I thought to hurry them up by the application of Loma. Used it according to directions, and very sparingly, but it was too much for some of them so I lost all my asters, geums, Jersey Gem violas and most of the snapdragons. And me telling others how to use fertilizers! Well, take my advice and don't do as I did.

See that Woodside wants to know if any are interested in vegetable growing. Well, I am, for one, and they are growing too alongside my flowers. You'd find sweet peas and squashes, pole beans and dahlias all in the same row; a few hills of bush beans down by the iris, onions, tomatoes, radishes, lettuce, beets and carrots on friendly terms with the hardy pinks and Chinese delphiniums, and a row of asparagus next the glade. Am also trying a new strawberry and a raspberry, and think they are as decorative as the flowers growing each side of them.

Don't get the idea I'm raising large quantities of "garden sass." It is all limited (very) by space, strength and time. All I do is to raise a small quantity of the fussy vegetables that the men folks don't like to bother with, also try out varieties that are new to me. So I have three hills of squash all different, and new. Five poles of beans from Oregon for which extravagant claims are made. The bush beans were sports from the ones we raised last year and planted just to see what they would do. So far they look quite promising.

Wonder if any Cornerite has ever had a Peruvian daffodil bloom? I got one this spring. Planted it the same day with the first glads. (May 8.) They are ready to bud, but today, June 28, it was just breaking through the ground. Am afraid it won't grow fast enough to blossom before frost. Have been told it is a very temperamental plant.

I see my dwarf morning glories are budded. Perhaps I'll be able to report on them next time.

VACATIONING AT HOME

Dear Social Corner Friends: Most of us are prone to voice our troubles and to offset that habit it is well at times to proclaim our joys. I have been careful and happy all the week for I have been having a vacation right here at home, the family being away with the exception of three biddies and four cats and they have all been on their best behavior. Nature, too, has been at her best and as the housework is next to nothing now, I have had ample leisure for enjoying the yard and watching my flowers grow.

Monday, I visited the library and after browsing about a bit, I discovered two charming books that I had not noticed before; Gardening With Brains by Henry T. Finck, a close friend of the late Luther Burbank and American Husbands and other alternatives by Alexander Black. I quickly devoured the garden book, thinking as I scanned its pages of The Friendly Voice, Pernickety, G. A. C. K., Elm Tree, Bobbie and others of our ranks, who enjoy gardening with their own hands and brains. This book is really fascinating and very instructive along all points which the amateur gardener should know. There must have been acres in the flower and vegetable gardens Mr. Finck writes of, but never mind, I can apply his lessons to my modest garden patch. His intensive culture can work wonders in my small space, also. I have long been in the habit of using the liquid fertilizer which he recommends to hurry plants along for one gets impatient for early blossoms. Mr. Finck's garden was in Maine, near a mountain, and the growing season was very short so he needed to use all the means possible for forcing. His descriptions of vegetables, delectable high brow vegetables, make one's mouth water and in fancy one feels one's self growing husky on the mineral salts contained in them in such generous quantity. I am so enamored with vegetables as he describes them that I am determined when the goodman returns to go farm hunting at once, so I may have acres of soil in which to delve and experiment. Knowing how widely our page is read, I expect to receive letters galore next week from eager realtors assuring me they can furnish just what I want in a farm whether I want two acres or 200. Please do not hold me responsible for this outburst, I really have not written this letter, the pen has just run along of its own volition, but as it is my pen, I shall sign on the dotted line. The essays by Mr. Black are most readable. His language is as good as Gamaliel Bradford's and from me that is high praise. I jotted down these thought provoking lines from one of the more sedate essays: "The conservative says that human nature is as it is. The liberal says, but human nature grows; let us encourage the growth. The radical who is a liberal in a hurry, says, let us begin now by smashing tradition." As some, like Ann Tenna, drop out from illness, let others fall in line that the page may be filled and its good work go on.

GOOD RECIPES TO TRY

Dear Sisters of the Social Corner: Here are a few good recipes for someone to try:

Baked economy: Into a well-buttered pan put slices of raw peeled potatoes and a little pepper. Then a layer of uncooked, sliced ham. Add another layer of potatoes and ham, and pour on thin cream sauce (one tablespoon of flour, one tablespoon of butter, to one cup of milk). Sprinkle bread crumbs on top, and bake in a moderate oven until brown and potatoes are well done. Serve hot. Just enough ham can be used to give the desired flavor, which has the advantage of making a little ham go a long way. For picnics this can be baked at home in a heavy tin dish with a cover, and reheated over hot water on a camp fire.

Scalloped potatoes: Into a well-buttered baking dish, put a layer of thinly sliced potatoes, salt, pepper, a thin scattering of finely cut cheese and one-half the thin white sauce (one tablespoon of flour, one tablespoon of butter to one cup of milk). Repeat and cover with buttered crumbs. Bake in a moderate oven about an hour, until the white sauce bubbles through and the potatoes are well done and brown on top. If cheese is omitted, add a small piece of butter to each layer of potatoes.

Glazed beets: Cook until tender three large or six small beets in water to which one teaspoonful of sugar has been added. Dip them in cold water, slip off the skins and slice them. Make a sauce of one-quarter of a cup of sugar, one tablespoon of cornstarch, and one-half a cup of vinegar cooked together until thick. Pour it over the beets. Add one tablespoonful of butter, and let them stand over hot water ten minutes.

CARD SHOWER SUGGESTED

Dear Editor and Social Corner Sisters: Just a few lines to let you all know I am still living.

Aunty No. 1 was taken very ill June 3 and has not been able to leave her room but a few times since. I think it would please her to receive cards or letters from the Social Corner sisters. She has been a great help to the Social Corner. Her address is: Mrs. William Weaver, No. 6 Huntington avenue, Norwich Town, Conn. Best wishes from

SUGGESTIONS ON WRITING LETTERS

Dear Editor and Social Corner Members: Everyone of us have occasion to write letters at sometime or another. To some its a pleasure, to others a duty that must be performed. Not all of us are "born letter writers," and use other means of communication when possible to get out of a job we detest. But we all like to receive letters. And at times we find it necessary to write them. Here are a few simple rules on the subject: We are known through the mails by the letter we write. The stranger who receives our letter forms his first impression of us and first impressions are apt to be lasting. We are often careless in our letters, where we would not think of being so personally. Not one of us would think of presenting ourselves to strangers in shabby clothes or soiled gloves. Yet we often write a letter in a hurry or thoughtlessly that is unworthy of us. Any letter that is worth the postage is worth the paina! Remember, a letter is a bit of yourself sent by post. First use good taste in the selection of your stationery. Avoid the gaudy, highly colored, gilded kind. White is always in perfect taste. If you prefer color, choose buff, gray or some soft tint. Good letter paper need not be expensive to be good, it need only be chosen with an eye to the conservative instead of the bizarre.

Address your envelope correctly. Don't use abbreviations in the address, write out in full the words, avenue, boulevard and street. Also city and state. It takes only a little more time and looks so much better. Today we use no punctuation on the envelope except the period after Mr. or Mrs. All letters, either business or social, should be dated and do not abbreviate the date.

A word here about the salutation. To intimate and close friends, Dear Miss So and So, but to strangers and casual acquaintances, My Dear Miss So and So. Follow the salutation by a comma. Even in strictly business letters the comma is rapidly replacing the colon or colon and dash of former days.

In closing your letter, business letters are usually signed "Yours truly" or "Truly yours." In social letters, "Sincerely yours" is correct. Of course when writing to relatives or intimate friends you can be just as loving, affectionate or devoted as you wish. Never be "Hastily yours." It's too hurried to be polite. A married woman signs her Christian name and married name when writing to friends. When its someone who may not be familiar with her husband's first name its (Mrs. John) Margaret Smith.

An unmarried woman never signs herself Miss, nor does a man sign Mr to his name. The best advice when writing a letter is to imagine you are talking to the person. This gives the personal, chatty style we all enjoy. It is to only a few of us the gift to be witty and sparkling on paper, but we can all conform to the rules that govern letter writing.

Address your letter clearly, legibly and accurately. This helps prompt and correct delivery. Don't write in pencil or fancy colored ink. Don't use a typewriter for social correspondence. It takes away the personal touch. Be brief. A letter that rambles bores. If you aren't sure, use a dictionary. Misspelled words can ruin an otherwise good letter. Never write a letter in anger. If you do, tear it up instead of mailing it. Avoid apologies. When they are necessary, make them brief. None of us like a letter that is one long apology for not having written before. Read your letter over before sending it. Any letter worth sending deserves a final critical glance. But do not let the feeling that you are not a good letter writer keep you from writing letters. Many real and worthwhile friendships have been broken, yes, and many a heart break caused by the lack of a letter. "Too busy to write," often means we just wont take the time.

Success and happiness to all the Cornerites and sympathy to the suffering, is the wish of

SASSY.

GARDEN DISAPPOINTMENTS

Dear Social Corner: On one page of my garden record book I have entered a list of plants that failed to grow for me. Some of these failures I can explain but there are others that puzzle me. Perhaps some of the other gardeners will offer some helpful suggestions. We may at least compare experiences and draw on our own conclusions from them.

Last spring I ordered seven kinds of plants from a reliable nursery in Philadelphia. Not one of these came up to my expectations for them. I wrote the firm about my lack of success and told them that either I was a poor gardener or that their plants were not suited to our harsher climate.

The first to fail was a clematis vine of the well known variety called paniculate. I set it by my porch and it never even tried to grow. At the end of the porch I set a silver lace vine and that grew very well. I had a trellis built and the vine covered it. But it did not bloom and when spring came I looked in vain for it to show signs of life. This vine is said to be extremely hardy even in severe climates, so I cannot understand why mine died.

How many of you are acquainted with the buddleia, or butterfly shrub? It is also called the summer lilac. The violet mauve flowers are borne in dense cylindrical spikes from July until frost. My plant started well for it grew over four feet tall and had many branches with long sprays of bloom. Florists say that it dies down to the ground in winter and starts up again in the spring. Mine died in spite of the fact that I covered it for the winter, I have since learned that buddleias should be cut down in the fall. How about it, sister gardeners?

Then I set out another shrub called vitex macrophylla. This has aromatic foliage and the lavender blue flowers come from July until frost. Some nurserymen call this shrub superior to the buddleia but I don't agree with them. Mine seemed to be dead this spring but now I find that new growth has started from the roots. Let us hope that it will get large enough to bloom this year.

Another shrub that I wanted to try raising was the double yellow kerria or globe flower. This has green branches that are supposed to show color all winter and I planned to set mine near my red twigged dogwood. Now I wonder if it will ever amount to anything. It didn't bloom last year and had to be cut back to the ground this spring. It should bloom continuously from June to October. Perhaps mine would do better in a more sheltered location, so I shall move it this fall.

The next on my list was a white phlox called Miss Lingard. I ordered this because it starts blooming in May and continues to flower until October. The plant sent was small and although it had a few blooms, it finally disappeared. I was quite ashamed of it after I had seen the fine large clumps of this variety blooming in my aunt's garden.

Now we will leave the flowers and visit the vegetable garden. I wanted to start an asparagus bed so I bought a dozen roots. Half of them survived that summer's drought and the cold of winter. However, I have over 100 nice plants that I raised from seed so in a year or two we shall have plenty of asparagus to eat.

Now what am I going to do about the plants that failed? Why, order some more next spring from a different nursery and hope for a more favorable season. Isn't that what you would do?

THREE LITTLE STORIES.

Dear Editor and Social Corner Members: I want to express my pleasure and surprise on receiving a yellow slip. I thank Iola for a pleasant picture which will linger a long time in my mind—waving faces inside the church and waving elms looking down on the scene from the open window; and indeed, every letter has something to give pleasant thoughts.

I am going to tell two little stories which I feel sure will interest those who have never heard them. The two stories have no connection except that I came on them both in the English literature course in high school many years ago. It would almost appear that they made more of an impression than anything else as seemingly small things do sometimes, for they are always popping up to the surface of my mind, although I made no effort to learn them.

The first, aside from the beautiful way the idea is expressed, is certainly an excellent example of "multum in parvo."

One of the great English universities offered a prize for a poem or prose writing which best expressed Christ's first miracle, the changing of the water into wine. The prize was won by the writer of the following sentence, "The conscious water saw its God and blushed."

The other story is about a man who was very desirous of joining a society, the number of whose members was strictly limited. At a meeting of the society, their way of showing him that they could not grant his request was to fill a glass so full of water that it could not hold another drop without overflowing.

It happened that this man wore a rose in his buttonhole. He pulled a petal from the rose and gently floated it on the surface of the water without a drop spilling. This so pleased the members of the society that they made an exception in his case and admitted him to their number.

I am going to close my letter with another little story which will amuse some, as it has me, and may be one more warning to others not to eat too many sweets, etc., as also it is to me.

A woman said to a conductor on a car, "Conductor, will you help me off this car?" "Sure," said he, obligingly. The woman explained, "You see, I'm stout and I have to go down the stairs backwards, and the porter sees me and thinks I'm getting on and gives a shove, and I'm three stations beyond my destination now."

Speaking of mind pictures, can't you just see that poor woman carefully backing down the steps and the helpful porter coming along and giving her a gentle boost?

Good wishes to all from

SEAL DOORS TIGHTER THAN EVER

Dear Sisters of the Social Corner: One of the most prominent subjects before the public at the present time is the controversy between the "wets" and the "drys." It is nothing new, however, but perhaps now in a little different form. In years gone by, we listened to temperance lectures, had numerous organizations of total abstinence, and many efforts were made to abolish the liquor traffic and the saloon. Now that prohibition has become a law and been in force several years, there are those who would like to see this law removed.

I am often reminded of an incident that took place between two men, a "wet" and a "dry" in my old home town, where I spent the greater part of my younger life. The wet man to whom I refer was a saloon keeper, being granted a license once a year to conduct his business. It was necessary in his application to obtain the signatures of three tax payers of his town, to certify he was a suitable man to sell intoxicating liquors, also that his place of business was located a certain distance from a school house, church, public building or cemetery. This application was published in the local newspaper a certain time before the license could be granted and become legal.

Mr. "Wet" as I will call this man, was about to renew his application and in seeking his endorsers, he approached the milkman, who was supplying his household use. It so happened the milkman was of different opinions and refused the use of his name. Mr. "Wet" became quite indignant and accused "Mr. Dry" as being unfair, by saying, "I am one of your customers (and a liberal one) helping you to be successful with your business, now why should you not help me in return for my business?" Mr. "Dry" offered his reasons in a most gentlemanly manner, direct to the point as follows: "It is true I have milk to sell to any and all customers, who care to deal with me, for so much a quart, but my principles are not for sale at any price." Thereupon, Mr. "Wet" recided he would employ another dairyman and the "dry" milkman was perfectly satisfied to be dismissed; he was doing his "bit" to help the temperance cause.

I hope the doors of the saloon may be sealed stronger than ever, from year to year, that the young generation may never know what we older ones have seen in days gone by.

Best wishes to all.

INTERESTED IN GARDENING

Dear Corner Friends: For many weeks I have seen the need of brushing the cobwebs off my brain and getting in line with a letter to our Corner page. I have deplored the lack of letters, but glad to see there are a faithful few that still keep the page in evidence, whose letters I have read with keen interest.

I see that others beside myself know what that tired feeling is that Pen and Ink mention in her letter, which expresses my thoughts, too. Pernickety's letters are always interesting about her flowers, as my own interest is centered in them, also. I would like to see her flower garden also Sister Rhody's. In the list of blue flowers you did not mention gilia. I had it last year for the first time and it was satisfactory; it is in blossom now from self sowed seed, the plants of which I transplanted. I have a corner in my flower garden in which I have transplanted a few wild flowers. I began with violets and last year had a fine blue patch of them. This year only a few, also Jack-in-the-pulpit, which increases, wild geranium, solomons seal, columbine, maiden hair ferns, etc. I also have a bed of herbs, sage, rosemary, fennel, dill, etc. It is so nice to have your own sage for seasoning. I cut the you[illegible] and spread the leaves out on a paper to dry, when thoroughly dry, store for future use. I sift the leaves through a fine sieve. A drink made of sage is also good when one has a cold and our grandmothers said it was good for worms in children.

Have any of the sisters made dill pickles? I would like to know how they are made, as we like them and have dill enough to make as many as we want.

If Artificial Flowers will get some bisulphide of carbon or another name is fuma and saturate a roll of rags with it and put it in the woodchuck holes and tightly close every outlet, the fumes will kill the woodchuck, or set the cloth on fire after it is in the hole and that will make a smoke which will kill the chuck, I use it for ground moles. The directions will come on the can about using it and the precautions to take.

Our sympathy goes out to our dear Social Corner sister, Aunty No. 1, who is very ill. Let's send her a card.

THEODA.

THE MOUNTAIN LAKE SANCTUARY.

Dear Editor and Cornerites: As this is a beauteous spot and compares so well with the beautiful tower, I want to tell you about it. Except the original pines, nearly all the planting I understand has been done since 1924, which includes about 1000 oakes, thousands of azaleas, indica, a large number of sabel palms, hundreds of magnolias, thousands of Boston and sword ferns. Half of the plants have been gathered from the wilds within a radius of 25 miles of the sanctuary. There are several varieties of acacia, quara, duranta, flame vine, primrose, jasmine, terrestrial orchids, natives of Asia. There are calla lilies by the thousands, gladiolus as well as quantities of other plants we grow in the north in summer. There are wrought iron crosses placed throughout the sanctuary to indicate its distance, 67 miles from the ocean, 74 miles from the gulf, 163 miles from Jacksonville, 225 miles from Key West. Also in a foot path is a board on which is printed, "I come here to find myself. It is so easy to get lost in the world." —John Burroughs.

There is a beautiful stream flowing through the sanctuary in which live the scarlet flamingoes and some snowy white ones. At the top of the stream is a moat (which surrounds the tower) about 12 feet wide with three bridges across the moat at different corners. The bridges have a high iron fence with a gate padlocked. It is claimed the sanctuary more than doubles its numbers of wild birds each year. For varied foliage which offers shelter to birds of differing needs thousands of bushes have been planted to supply berry food, also many bird baths give the shallow drinking places necessary to migratory birds. The nightingales are very beautiful singers. I heard one and there are a good number of them in the sanctuary which means they are well cared for and pleased. They are in full song there from February to May. I was there the first of April. The Easter glade is a beautiful spot for an Easter sunrise service.

"Moreover I will make a covenant of peace with them—and will set my sanctuary in the midst of them forevermore." Ezek 37-26.

Well, I guess I have said enough this time, with best wishes to the sick ones. I will add that if nothing happens I will invite all the members to my home on July 16 and will write again later on my garden.

Pernickety: I would love to see your garden, also Sister Rhody's.

I. J. B.: How are you and why don't you write. We want to hear from you.

My garden is blue and gold now, mostly.

CANTERBURY BELL.

GARDEN DEVELOPMENTS

Dear Social Corner: These thunder storms can certainly make any garden look sick. I suppose the best way to do is to be ready by having all the tall things staked. The best thing I've found to tie with is raffia as it is not as conspicuous as old cloth rags nor does it cut the plant as string is so apt to do. There are always suitable stakes in the wild cherry thickets if one takes the trouble to get them. Or there are bamboo stakes in some stores especially for this purpose. And then when one has tied all the plants which one thinks may be beaten down by the wind and rain there are sure to be some which looked stocky enough to stand anything, beaten down. There are some things which can be left to luck, even yet.

I have set out all my annuals now except the Chinese forget-me-nots and the zinnias. The bed of butterfly flowers was a nice muddy mess after last night's storm with every plant beaten into the mud. That seemed to have suffered worse than anything else though the dianthus looked rather bedraggled. I set the browallias close to the wall and the wind didn't touch them at all. The primroses were bent flat.

Here is a joke. I paid a visit to the pond this morning and brought back a nice bouquet of water lilies. The large flat bowl we usually put them in was being used for something else so I put them in the pool in my garden. And one of my visitors told me how nice the lilies looked! I didn't enlighten her. One calla is in bloom out there now. The other came out and went to school with some pink roses to be used in decorating.

Who said that peonies wouldn't bloom the first year after being set out? Mine were only year old plants and I had 15 of them and they have all bloomed except two. Some of the plants had three fine blooms on them. I identified Felix Crousse, a large very double dark red, August Crousse, shell pink and also very double, Festiva Maxima which everyone knows and another yellow and white which Sister Rhody says may be Baroness Schroeder. All the blooms have lasted well in the house.

My Shirley foxgloves are the prettiest ever. One or two of the plants seem to be diseased but the others are blooming splendidly. They are nice enough so I am going to save some seed from them. Most things get thrown over the wall when they are through blooming, you know. I am also going to save some of the long-spurred columbine seed. Sister Rhody says she prefers the old-fashioned double ones, but I like these because they stay in bloom for so long a time. I have a number of aquilega alpina seedlings. They are supposed to be a rich blue and to stay in bloom for a long period of time.

Clock is striking and I must go to bed if I am to get those other plants out before the sun is up.

PERNICKETY.

GREETINGS FROM ARIES

Dear Social Corner: How wonderful it seemed to see so many flags displayed on our streets, June 14th. Am wondering how many of our readers have seen or heard of the beautiful flag crocheted by Mrs. Josephine Foster of New York city? The flag is seven by ten feet. There are more than three million stitches in it and took her six years to crochet it. The flag is perfect in proportion, the white stars showing distinctly on the blue field. The white stripes and red stripes have a handsome design of crochet which gives a lacy effect as well as strength to the whole.

Balm of Gilead: Glad to read your letter in Sunday paper.

Viola: Your lovely card received.

Jennie: Thank you for picture. It will have place of honor in my Social Corner book.

Violet: So many birthday parties all in one week.

Minia: The shrub is in blossom. Small, brown star-shaped wonders.

Pernickety: May I suggest a name for your garden? Tryphosa, meaning "luxurious;" or Rebekah, meaning "of enchanting beauty;" or Olympus, meaning "heavenly;" or Hortensia, meaning "a lady gardener."

Artificial Flowers: We think that was kind of you to offer to let anyone rest under your beautiful trees.

Turquoise: Your letter was interesting. My bird book describes one called "winter wren," very much like your bird.

L. T. H.: The hydrangea slip you sent me two years ago is in bloom, a pale pink.

B. True: My century plant is thriving and the zealanica is alive but grows slowly. Has anyone tried "incarvillea" as a garden plant? A friend owned a cactus that did not seem to grow, so her husband took the plant down to his office. A bat had a nest and roosting place in the loft of his large warehouse. He mixed the bat manure with the soil in which the plant grew and in three months that cactus was five times as large as it was at the beginning of treatment. So I say to all plant lovers, use bat manure and see 'em grow.

Mrs. M.: Don't faint when you see this. I told you I would send it to the Social Corner. Has the cactus blossomed yet?

Where do we go from here to the first Social Corner picnic? Hope it's by the sad sea waves.

SOMETHING WRONG SOMEWHERE

Dear Social Corner Sisters: Here I am again. Felt I wanted to keep our page alive. Just stop and think nearly a thousand members, and less than a dozen letters in a week. Something wrong somewhere! Hope some of the old members will awaken and answer the call.

I have been waiting for some member of Club 2 to send in a report of the June dinner. The hostess, one of our younger members, (who has plenty of home duties), gave us an appetizing dinner, fine in quality and plenty in quantity. When we entered the dining room, the tables looked so inviting. At each plate was a pretty yellow bordered napkin, on which was placed a tiny black turtle which our hostess had made. Just consider the time and work it required. I wish you could have seen those dainty little souvenirs. I still have mine, a reminder of a very pleasant occasion. I also enjoyed the social time after dinner. Then, too, I have passed another milestone of life. They seem to come very fast now. I wish to thank the sisters who sent me cards and gifts: Rebe, Skipper, Red Rose, Debbie, Mrs. W., Retta, Stub and Eca. How kind you all were.

Stub invited my sisters and brother and myself to her home the eve of my birthday and served us a delicious dinner. After dessert had been eaten, she brought in a lovely birthday cake with candles. (I won't tell you how many), and I cut it and we all enjoyed it. It was such a dear surprise and I thank her again.

Lo: I have thought of you so often since your dear mother passed away. I can sympathize with you.

River View: When I read of your father's death, I thought of you and was sorry you had to lose him.

E. L. M.: Had intended to be present at your last meeting. Daughter was going to motor us down, but in the morning when I awoke with one of my bad headaches, I knew the trip was off. Well, better luck next time.

How I wish I could see all the lovely gardens the sisters write about. Flowers are so beautiful and make the world so much brighter a place to live in. Good-night.

MILEAGE AND POUNDAGE OF AIRMAIL SHOWS GAIN

WASHINGTON—(AP)—Airmail pilots flew 1,253,377 miles more in the first quarter of 1930 than in the same period a year ago, and carried 420,686 pounds more mail.

The growth to a total mileage of 4,760,150 and dispatching of 2,376,740 pounds of mail is noted in records kept by the postoffice department.

By June there were in operation 40 domestic and 23 foreign mail routes with a daily average of 50,433 airplane-miles scheduled with government contract mail.

Air Line To Belgian Congo

BRUSSELS— (AP) —Belgium and France have reached an agreement for an air mail line from those countries to the Belgian Congo in Africa. It will start operation in the fall with one trip weekly to carry mail.

Six potatoes weighing a pound each were grown in a home garden cultivated by L. E. Ivey of Chanute, Kas.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Broadway Theatre.

Paralleling the rapid rise of Buddy Rogers to screen stardom is the quick ascent of Jack Oakie, whose first portrayal as a stellar luminary is that of Marco "Soldier" Perkins in "The Social Lion" which opens a four day engagement at the Broadway today.

Jack Oakie started as a featured player in Clara Bow's "The Fleet's In," That was in July 1928. Then he appeared in "Someone to Love." He was loaned to RKO for "Street Girl" and "Hit the Deck." After that his general popularity brought him a much-deserved elevation to the position of a star in the ranks of Paramount actors.

"The Social Lion" is based on Octavus Roy Cohen's story, "Marco Himself." It has to do with the fortunes of a young garage mechanic who plays polo so well that he gains a place on the polo team of a wealthy country club in this town. But he makes the mistake of thinking that he can become number 399 in "the 400" and that's where all the riotous fun begins.

The bill at the Broadway is replete with Broadway names, including as it does such favorites as Van and Schenck, Rude Vallee, Louise Fazenda and others. Paramount Sound News rounds out a perfectly balanced program which should find high favor in the eyes of local theatregoers.

Palace Theatre.

"The Sea Bat," a thrilling marine drama starring Raquel Torres, Charles Bickford, Nils Asther and John Miljan, opens today at the Palace theatre, where it will be shown through Tuesday of next week. "The Sea Bat" was filmed on the southern coast of Mexico in a sea port called "Mazatlan." This is a sponge diving center and was chosen as the locale for the production because it is the home of a strange sea ray or bat which forms an important part in this narrative. The town is a place of rare beauty and the natives greatly resemble the inhabitants of remote African villages. They wear none of the traditional clothing, and their sun-blackened bodies together with their fantastic Voodoo worship make them more unreal than their queer habits.

The sponge diving industry was necessary in the picture and the filming of this was very hazardous. This is the first time that the conversations of people submerged so deeply in the water have been recorded and while they can not be heard talking to each other, there were special telephonic equipments installed for the proper relaying of sound and individual comments are reproduced.

There are only a few more days left for the supporters of the popularity contest to get in the remaining votes which may make or break the final score for the leaders. If you have a favorite in this little struggle make sure that you vote for her as often as possible in these closing days.

Christian Science Services.

Wednesday evening meeting 7:45. The reading room, 40 Main street is open every day except Sundays and legal holidays from 3 to 4:30 p. m.

MARKING OF MAIN ROADS SOON WILL BE COMPLETED

WASHINGTON— (AP) — Designated as the main streets of the nation, 97,000 miles of the leading highways in the country will be marked with numbers by the end of the year.

Uniform markers, erected at one-mile intervals and designating the route and the state, will be in place throughout the country. The number system was adopted four years ago.

Ten main east and west routes, denominated by multiples of ten, and 11 north and south routes, numbered 1, 11, 21, and up to 101, form the backbone of the system.

The crossover or branch lines are indicated by three digits. All east and west highways, as well as their branches, have even numbers; all north and south lines have odd numbers.

AIRWAY OVER MOUNTAINS TO SAVE FLIERS 62 MILES

RENO, Nev.— (AP) —A kink in the transcontinental airway through here will be straightened by a cut-off which will hurdle mountains for a saving of 62 miles.

The circuitous route from Elko by way of Winnemucca will be eliminated by a 130-mile direct airway from Beowawe to Parran to be constructed by the department of commerce at a cost of $35,000.

Radio-beacon service, beacon lights on four high points far from civilization where even water will be trucked to the keepers, and two new air fields will be provided.

WEATHER DATA NET WILL BE EXTENDED

WASHINGTON— (AP) —New circuits to be added during the summer will extend by 8,500 miles the automatic telegraph typewriter net operated by the government for collecting airways weather data.

Lines will be run between Los Angeles and Salt Lake City, Chicago and Forth Worth by way of Kansas City, Chicago and Atlanta, and Richmond and Birmingham.

"Drops" will be placed at intervals for points not on the main lines. The service will be in charge of the aeronautics branch of the department of commerce.

"SAY, you don't have to tell me—I know it's the easiest thing in the world to forget all about those tires until they start kicking over the traces."

And the awful, the really disgusting part about the whole business is that they usually act up and let go just at the wrong time.

Either you are on your way to church with your best suit on, are hurrying for a business appointment, are late to work, or have kept your best girl waiting thirty minutes when the thing happens.

When you get right down to brass tacks, though, I guess we could control the situation. In any case, we could put up a pretty good front line attack.

Here's my suggestion—

I've got a pretty good proposition on new Brunswicks. You know Brunswicks have been my strong bet for —— years around here.

Just drop in. I'll fix you up with a a new set of Brunswick Tires

Or as someone has said: "Blow in before you blow-out!"

POETRY

To Many Writers Of The Present Day

I wish you wouldn't say "Colorful";
I wish you wouldn't say "Lure"
I am so tired of those two words,
My patience can scarce endure.

Our language is a noble one,
Its riches have no end,
You may take your choice of lovely words,
And spend, and spend, and spend

But now and then a word appears
That strikes the writer's eye,
He springs on it, and soon the pack
Is following full in cry.

They use it, they abuse it,
In sense and eke in none;
They chew, and shake, and chew again,
Like puppy with a bone.

You're young, I know, and I am old,
And crotchety, no doubt;
And many words appeal to you
That I could do without.

But—I wish you wouldn't say "Colorful"!
I wish you wouldn't say "Lure"!
Find something else—you really can—
To make your meaning sure!

—Laura E. Richards, in Boston Transcript.

Wakefulness

In woon of restful sleep denied,
You restless toss from side to side,
Vainly exerting all your will
To keep from twisting, and lie still.
Meanwhile endeavoring to find Something to occupy your mind.

You count imaginary sheep
As over a stone wall they leap,
Until before your task is done
You hear the tower clock strike one
Then balmy sleep you try to woo,
Only to hear the clock strike two,
And then you count the sheep some more,
And hear the clock strike three and four.

Upon one side a while you lie,
Then nervously the other try,
And then you take another tack
And lie a while upon your back;
But every attitude you take
You seem to be more wide awake.

Then scorning thoughts of cold and cough,
You reckless kick the bed-clothes off,
And lie there, all uncovered, till,
In order not to get a chill,
You pull the clothes up round your chin
And counting sheep again begin.
Then with a sour, disgusted frown
You turn your pillow upside down,
And sick and tired of counting sheep,
Stretch out your legs and go to sleep.

—Somerville Journal.

HUMOR OF THE DAY

Bill—On what grounds does your father object to me?

Jenny—On the grounds about the house.—Detroit News.

"My man, can you drive a car?"
"Not me, boss. Sorry."
"Good. Will you watch mine for a few minutes?"—Boston Transcript.

She—Why don't you like girls?
He—They're too biased.
She—Biased?
He—Yes, bias this, and bias that, until I'm broke.—The Shoreline.

Sunday School Teacher—My word, doesn't that little boy swear terribly?

Back Slider—Yes'm, he sure do. He may know the words, but he don't put no expression in them."—Pa. National Guardsman.

A woman census enumerator listed only one family the first day. She was asked to explain.

"What happened?"

"This mother had seven children. I asked her how they were."

"Well?"

"She told me."—Portland Express.

History Professor—And when Lord Chesterfield saw that death was near he called his friends around him, and just before he breathed his last, he uttered those immortal words. Who can tell me what those words were?

Class (in unison)—"They satisfy."—Fo'c'sle Banter.

"Does your son ever come back to visit you since he got in the movies at Hollywood?"

"Every summer," answered Ma, proudly; "every summer of the five years he's been gone."

"And did he bring his wife with him each time?"

"Yes," she replied. "And they was five as pretty girls as you ever laid eyes on."—The Pathfinder.

The St. Louis fire department is considerate. Answering an alarm at a hospital, fire trucks did not sound their sirens and sleeping patients were not aroused although chemicals were used in combating the blaze. Many of the patients did not know of the flames until the following morning.

Even federal prohibition agents were surprised here when Peter J. Cuccatto, of Oxnard, Cal., requested that they destroy 700-gallons of pre-war wine and thirty-nine cases of pre-Volstead beer which he had stored in his cellar since before prohibition. His explanation of the act was that "he had no further use for the liquors."

Impressed with stories of the painless death of a number of students frozen while on a skiing expedition in the mountains, S. Nishida, twenty-three, of Tokio, climbed a snowy peak and lay down in a drift to die. Mountaineers rescued him, carried him to a hot spring, and revived him.

The French Touring club organized a national competition to find a way to end the noise of hotel corridors. The winner of the prize, a 500-mile railroad pass, Miss Madeleine Ladeuil, suggested a simple, printed card for posting in all hotels: "Silence by each one assures the rest of all."

After an absence of fifteen years, most of which time he spent in Russian prison camps as an unexchanged prisoner of war, Johann Varga, formerly a soldier in the Austro-Hungarian Imperial army, returned home to Ada, Jugoslavia, by covering almost 2,000 miles on foot without a card of identification in his possession.

QUALITY standards that assure good service for each purchase are fully maintained.

PRICES are kept as low as is consistent with quality.

PRICES CLOSED LOWER IN A RATHER QUIET SESSION OF THE STOCK MARKET

NEW YORK, June 27.—(AP)— The bears were back on the job in the stock market today. Perhaps it was too much to expect that prices could close higher three days in succession these days; at any rate, they did not and the index, which had established the record on advancing on two successive days—Wednesday and Thursday—for the first time this month, finished the dull session a point and a half lower.

Rallying tendencies at the opening quickly gave way to another decline. The familiar tactics of hammering two or three stocks were employed and as usual the weakness spread throughout the list. Although the market was extremely dull, an afternoon upturn eliminated most of the losses, but pressure was again applied in the final dealings and prominent issues were down one to three points.

The quietness of the trading was the day's chief feature. Sales aggregated only a little more than 2,000,000 shares, the smallest in some time, but the market's dullness, coupled with the success of bearish operations, indicated rather forcefully that important support was absent. The late rally was almost entirely on covering, for the short interest in these days of uncertainty, is taking its profits as it goes.

Commodities were irregular. The grains made a fair showing, both wheat and corn closing fractionally higher while cotton eased 10 to 18 points. Sugar made narrow advances and there was some improvement in silver.

Call money was steady at 2 per cent, the renewal rate, for the banks were withdrawing funds in preparation for the heavy month-end dividend and interest disbursements by corporations. Other forms of credit were likewise stationary.

Bonds were irregular. The best showing was made by the United States governments and the highest grade corporation issues, but secondary listings eased.

North American and Southern railway were among the day's most vulnerable stocks, each breaking about 7 points to establish new lows for the year, the former at 89 1-4 and the latter at 90 1-4, and closing 3 and 5 points lower, respectively. The short interest also devoted considerable attention to stocks like U. S. Steel, American Can, Johns Manville and General Motors, but the selling attracted limited offerings. Numerous rails, notably New York Central, Atchison, New Haven and St. Louis-San Francisco, sold off sharply, making incomplete recoveries. The day's reports of railroad earnings last month continued unfavorable. Stocks losing one to three points net included American Can, American Telephone, General Motors, General Electric, Consolidated Gas, Radio, Westinghouse Electric, New Haven, Atchison and Union Pacific. U. S. Steel, after selling nearly 3 points lower to 153 1-2, closed at 155 3-8, off 7-8 on the day and about 2 below the high of the morning rally, which ranged roughly between one and three points in miscellaneous leading shares.

The day was virtually devoid of news, nor were the week end business reviews able to shed any light on the situation. Dun's said that experienced observers did not look for "changes of deep significance" at this season. Bradstreet's reported "a further quieting of trade distribution," especially in retail in the foreign exchange markets, which on the whole, were steady, the Spanish peseta made another new low. The Canadian dollar rounded par on a small rally.

NEW YORK, June 27.—(AP)— Commercial failures in the United States for the week, totaled 490, compared with 487 last week and 435 for the corresponding week last year, R. G. Dun and company reports. Compared with returns for a year ago, this week's insolvencies showed a particularly large increase in the east, while the south alone showed a decrease.

Cotton exports for the week were 47,103 bales, against 25,234 last week and 80,148 in the like week last year. So far this year exports totaled 6,624,681 bales, compared with 7,952,119 in the corresponding period last year.

W. B. Storey, president of the Atchison, Topeka and Santa Fe railroad, said that the road's June expenses will show a material decrease from a year ago as a result of a retrenchment program announced June 1. The mechanical department is working only five days a week, he said, and track forces have been cut down. He added that the net for the balance of the year should be considerably nearer normal than it has been, though "at present I do not see how it can attain or exceed the figures for the corresponding period of 1929, which were exceptionally good."

Directors of the New York Telephone company have authorized an expenditure of $11,637,280 for new construction throughout the state, J. S. McCullon, president, announced. This figure brings the total appropriations since the beginning of the year to $61,858,095.

International Paper company has increased the price of its southern kraft company to $75 a ton from $70. The five southern kraft paper mills of the company now are operating at capacity.

United Gas corporation, directly and also through its subsidiary, United Gas company, has acquired control of the Northern Texas Utilities company, which owns natural gas rights on a large acreage in the Amarillo field, Texas.

BACTERIA TO TAKE PLACE OF FERTILIZER MACHINES

NEW BERN, N. C. (AP)—Bacteria, once feared mainly as disease germs, have been harnessed by science and are replacing many machines in the manufacturing of fertilizer.

Dr. C. T. Mueller, German bacteriologist, here making experiments with bacterial solvents and plant foods, has a formula providing for pre-digestion of plant food by bacteria, thus reducing the manufacturing cost to a minimum, because little machinery is required.

Three tracts of marl and peat lands in this section, or more than 14,000 acres, have been acquired by Science and Soils, Inc., an organization headed by W. F. Therkildson of Detroit, and having as directors leading agriculturists of the nation.

Faulty Separators Costly.

AMES, Iowa (AP)—Butterfat left in skim milk because of faulty separators is estimated to have represented a loss of $2,000 to Iowa farmers in the last year.

National Forest Roads.

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Colton bill making $5,000,000 available after July 1 for national forest highways is ready for the president's signature.

Left Penniless

Mrs. Harold Russell Ryder, above, has promised to do everything she can to aid creditors of her husband, young New York broker, known in Wall Street for his financial sagacity and on Broadway for his lavish spending, whose firm has failed. Mrs. Ryder has been left penniless. Authorities are seeking the disappearance of between $5,000,000 and $7,000,000 after Ryder was found distracted on Poughkeepsie, N. Y., street corner.

One Minute After Midnight

By MARY CASE

A YOUNG ATTACHE OF THE FOREIGN OFFICE FINDS ROMANCE AND ADVENTURE ON MANHATTAN'S EAST SIDE

AS THE Congressional Limited pulled out of Washington, Peter Swift looked out the window and scowled. Though now and again he read his book, he was still absent-minded and scowling when the flier arrived in New York City. He should have looked gay and excited and stimulated by the bustle and snap of an October day in New York; he looked nothing of the kind. He looked, in fact, crosser than ever.

He felt abused. It takes quite a lot to ruffle one of the polished young attaches in the Foreign Office, but Peter felt that quite a lot had been done to ruffle him. Here he was, starting off on a Friday afternoon to spend a week end on Long Island and forget the business of passports, visiting notables, diamond and opium smuggling, emigrants who wanted to get into the United States and all the rest of the complicated tangle of official business. But would Washington let him forget it? Not at all. Just as he left his office that noon the chief had called him.

"Swift, just a moment, please. Going up to New York this afternoon, aren't you?"

"Yes, sir. On leave."

"Well—ah—sorry to bother you, but there's a little matter up there that I'd like to have you take charge of for me. Overstayed passport. Visitor's leave. Got to be cleared up."

"Yes, sir," said Peter again, with a sinking feeling that the little matter was going to cut into his three days more than a little. The chief's words confirmed his suspicions.

Through his correct pince nez the chief consulted a typed page in his hand.

"English woman. Miss Cynthia Bromley. Came into the country in February on a six months' visitor's passport. Still in New York in June. Warned to leave. Reported that she would do so. In July asked for an extension of privilege, which we couldn't give her because the English quota is full. And, by George, she hasn't answered anything from this office since then. Changed her address and we didn't locate her till last week. Now we find her booked to sail at one minute after midnight Saturday morning. And I intend to see that she does sail. Here, you take the papers, Swift, and see to this thing for me. Good practice for you. Don't need to handle it with gloves, either. Tell her straight that six months doesn't mean eight. Thank you, Swift. Report on it Monday."

That was like the chief. Make a good long speech, destroying all one's private plans for days to come, and then turn on his heel.

HE CHECKED his bags in the station and hailed a taxi on 39th street.

"Go to," consulting the paper the chief had given him, "—East 4th street."

If the taxi driver was surprised to have so well dressed a young man order himself driven to one of the dingiest and most out-of-the-way parts of the town, he didn't show it. Taxi drivers get used to anything after a while.

Paying off the cab, Peter turned and surveyed the grim and uninviting building in front of him. Once a residence and now the darkest, shabbiest and sootiest of "walk-up" apartments. The old girl didn't go in for being swell, evidently. But then, if she was hiding, this was a good place. No sane man—no one but a slave in the Foreign Office—would ever come down here to spy on her! Maybe he could make it snappy enough to catch the 8 o'clock. He consulted his watch. Six ten. Yes, there was a chance.

"Miss Cynthia Bromley live here, sonny?"

"Yessir, third floor. I'll show you up."

Almost as though he had been waiting to do just that, the urchin clattered up the stairs at breakneck speed and Peter's highly polished shoes tapped along after him. A pale gas flare on the third-floor landing showed a couple of doors, on one of which the boy knocked lustily.

"Miss Bromley!" he called. "Here's yer gent to call, Miss Bromley!"

"So!" thought Peter. "Expecting some one, was she? Well, that makes it easier for me to get in without fuss." So she wouldn't notice he wasn't the "gent" she expected, he took pains to stand very close to the door and to slip through to the inner hall the moment it was opened.

Brushing by the woman, he heard the door close behind him and then a faintly gasped:

"Oh! You aren't * * * Who are you? What do you want?"

The voice, soft and frightened, surprised Peter. He turned to face the woman and was more surprised. For in the half light of the little hallway he saw some one who was certainly not the woman he had visualized. English, yes, from her voice. But old? Well, hardly older than 20 at first glance. A face of oval whiteness in which blazed eyes of the deepest blue he had ever seen, and above the white brow swept a mass of black hair. She gazed at him in such evident fright and confusion that Peter, snatching off his hat, felt a red wave of embarrassment at his rude entrance.

"I—forgive me," he stammered. "Are you—? I was looking for Miss Bromley."

She put a hand against the wall as if to steady herself. Very slender, she was, and Peter sensed in her tenseness a panic he could not account for, out of all proportion to any fright she might have felt at his sudden appearance.

"I am Miss Bromley. But I don't understand. Have you—did Evans send you here? What do you want?"

"Evans? I don't know Evans. I am—I'm sorry, but I'm from the Foreign Office at Washington. You've overstayed your passport privilege rather badly, Miss Bromley. I was told to see that you take the boat tonight. I believe you're booked to sail then. Probably some misunderstanding. You see, the government can't allow—"

Peter was actually stammering. The chief would hardly call this apologetic delivery of Uncle Sam's message "not handling it with gloves?"

"The—my passport?" And then, without warning, the girl burst into tears. A quiet, desperate sobbing, which shook her slender black-clad shoulders and seemed to burst against her will into little gasps of grief.

Poor Peter! He stood aghast, hating himself, not wanting to look at her, not able to take his eyes away, from the place on her neck where a stray black curl fell against the ivory of her skin. Nice business this! Harrying a woman in her own house! But what was this girl doing in this house? And how was it that so small, so gentle a thing was defying the law, anyway? Didn't she have any one to look after her?

With an effort, the girl spoke. Though she still had the catch of tears in her voice, she assumed a pretty dignity.

"I—you must forgive me, please. I have had—I was surprised. I think I shall be able to leave tonight. Tell me, did any one see you come up here? I'm sorry to ask. I—I was expecting some one."

"See me? I don't think so. Didn't notice, as a matter of fact. I'm afraid I'll have to ask you to sign a formal receipt of my having delivered the passport message to you. A form, you know, in the office. I'll go at once then. I'm afraid I've disturbed you."

"Sign? Surely. Will you come in here?"

She led the way into a small room, evidently used as a combination living and bed room, which showed signs of having been fixed and ordered so that the dingy place had some homelike charm, though now it was in the disorder of packing. There were clothes and papers piled on a chair and a half-filled box and suitcase on the floor.

Peter drew from his wallet the formal paper which would attest that Miss Cynthia Bromley had received due warning that unless she left the United States by midnight she would be subject to arrest and imprisonment. He was acutely uncomfortable.

"Just here, please. Your name in full. I'm afraid I'll have to ask you to give me your personal word of honor that you will sail on that boat. It's rather a serious matter, you know."

Before she could answer there came a knock at the door and the voice of the same small boy.

"Oh," she said, and sped to the door.

"Thank you, Johnnie."

Peter saw her fingers tremble as she tore open an envelope and, conscious that he was spying, he walked over and looked out the solitary window. A view of back yards, roofs, fire-escapes. What a place to live! A gasp made him turn quickly around.

The girl stood as if frozen in the room, a look of fright and horror such as Peter had never seen before.

"What is it?" he asked, involuntarily. "Can I help you?"

"Oh, no. Just go, will you please? I—you mustn't be here. If you are here—You see, he saw you coming in and he thinks it's a plot to trap him. It will ruin everything. And now he wants—"

Again that look of fright and a sort of desperate appeal, which Peter sensed, even while she was telling him that he must go. It was not for nothing that Washington spoke of Peter Swift's cool head and courage and his uncanny way with people. All at once Peter found himself thinking that this one girl, out of the whole world, was the person he wanted most to serve. She was in some trouble and he was going to find out then and there what it was all about. Long Island and tennis were as far from his mind as algebra.

"Look here, Miss Bromley," he said, "this—I don't want to presume. But it looks to me as if you were frightened—in some sort of trouble. I—I wish you'd forget that I came officially and let me help you. I'm sure I could."

There was a pause, while the girl regarded Peter gravely, as if to judge him for herself. What she saw, a tall, lean, blond young man, with a firm mouth which spoke of strength and a pair of smiling brown eyes which spoke of kindness, seemed to reassure her. She took a long breath, as if nerving herself for an effort.

"I think you could, too," she said simply, "but it's a good deal to ask of a stranger. It's rather a dreadful mess." But, and her voice broke a little again, "I don't seem to have done very well, after all. I'm so tired and a little frightened I guess. It's hard all alone."

Something in her voice made Peter take a quick step toward her and lay one hand on her shoulder.

"If," he said, "you'll count on me and trust me with whatever it is, I think you'll find I won't disappoint you."

AMAZINGLY, for fifteen minutes before they had never seen each other, they smiled into each other's eyes.

"Let's sit down," she said. "It's a long story. I'll tell you the best I can."

She was 21 and, save for her brother Godfrey, alone in the world. Her mother had died when she was born and her father, Geoffrey Bromley, of Harford's Abbey, in Hampshire, had died two years ago. And old and broken man whose mind, during the last years of his life, was quite gone His fortune, a considerable one, had been swept away, like many English fortunes, during the war. His eldest son had been killed at Vimy and Godfrey was the last of an old and honorable line. His sister adored him and he had proved worthy of that adoration. For, when the new cabinet had been formed in Great Britain last year, he had been made secretary to one of the ministers, with the promise of a brilliant political career. The labor party believed in him, he was one of the coming men of his time.

But there hung over him and the career he had fought for a cloud which he didn't dream of—which only Cynthia knew. That cloud went under the name of Harry Evans, and for the last year and a half she had fought, alone, to keep it from her brother. Evans had been her father's valet. During the last years, when the old man's mind was growing more and more clouded and dim, Evans had developed a great power over him. transacted all his business for him. The old man trusted him, would have no one else around him, signed checks and papers drawn by Evans without so muchas reading them over. It was one of those papers which had made life hideous for Cynthia

"Go on," said Peter. "Tell me. What paper is it?"

During the last months of the war, while Godfrey had been home on leave, a most atrocious murder had been done in the little village near Hartford's Abbey. A country girl betrayed and killed under shocking circumstances. The village was excited to fever pitch over it and the murderer was finally discovered in the person of Evans' brother, a man who had been a laborer on the Bromley estate and was then an enlisted man in the army. Military justice, aided by testimony of Godfrey and old Geoffrey as to the man's previous bad character, had moved swiftly to its end, and the man had been executed after speedy trial by court-martial.

An incident unpleasant enough, but forgotten in the armistice, the death of old Geoffrey and the brilliant and honorable public career of Godfrey.

Forgotten, that is, by all but Harry Evans. The man had turned up one day at Cynthia's little flat in London. He had a paper—she had seen it—signed by her father. A paper which pretended to be the old man's eleventh-hour confession about that murder. A paper in which, he swore that it was his son, Godfrey, and not the brother of Evans, who had murdered the girl. The old man was made to state that he had cast suspicion on Evans' brother to save his son. A paper, of course, prepared by Evans and signed by the childish old man without his knowing what it was he put his name to. But a damning paper, nevertheless, one that might cost Godfrey his life, if Evans made it public, and one that would certainly create a scandal which would break him as far as a public life was concerned.

Cynthia was determined, at any cost, that Godfrey should not hear of the thing. Then had started a long period of blackmail. Hounded by Evans, full of protective and passionate loyalty for her brother, she had paid the man increasingly large sums. Then, when he had bled her purse nearly empty, he had gone to New York and written her from here. And she, on the excuse of wanting to see America and trying her hand at a job there, had followed him, planning to get the paper at any sacrifice.

"Last May I found him. He wouldn't give it up. Then he began to scare me about having to go back to England without it, and so. I came down here to live because I thought they wouldn't find me so easily. Finally, he said he would come here this afternoon and give it to me in exchange for my mother's emerald, which is all I have left."

"But, good heavens, child," exclaimed Peter, "why didn't you have him arrested for blackmail months ago?"

"Because," she said patiently, "that would do just the harm I have tried to keep from Godfrey. He would show the paper. And it is my father's signature. It would ruin Godfrey, no matter how it turned out."

"Why isn't he here now? Because he saw me come in? What's in the letter you got?"

Without a word she handed it to him.

"Miss Cynthia," he read, "get rid of that young gentleman. If you think you can catch me some way, you are wrong. And this is your last chance. I will give you the paper this evening if you behave yourself, but I have raised my price. You tried to fool me. So now, when I come, and I won't come till I know that man has left your room, I want the emerald and—something more. Don't try to bargain. This is your last chance. If you won't pay my price now, the police and the American papers will have a pretty story to read in the morning."

Price? Something more? Peter looked up and met Cynthia's eyes. A fiery blush passed over her face.

A grim look came around his handsome mouth. No smile now. He laid his hand on hers and she looked at him with the trusting relief of a child who has had too hard a task to do and found a grown person who promises to make it come out all right.

"Look here, my dear. You do as I say and this thing will end here and now. Will you trust me?"

"Oh, yes," she said. It was as if they were the oldest friends in the world.

He rose and looked speculatively out the window, then at his watch. Seven-thirty.

"Now, Miss Cynthia Bromley, listen. Do as I tell you and don't be afraid. Nothing is going to happen to you. I'm in charge. We'll attend to Mr. Harry Evans."

For five minutes he spoke rapidly and earnestly. Then he left her, resisting his impulse to kiss the pretty, courageous face as he went. As he swung carelessly out of the street door, hailed a taxi and and to the driver gave, a trifle loudly, an address on upper 5th avenue, he saw the figure of a man in the shadow of an arch across the street.

"Mr. Evans! See you later!" he murmured to himself, and smiled a little as the taxi drove off.

But it didn't drive far. Once around the corner, he halted it sharply, gave the chauffeur a generous tip and got out. The following minutes were busy ones. The pawnshops on 3d avenue stay open late and a special Government Secret Service card will do wonders toward getting swift service in them. Also, that same card, plus a little money, will make the surliest janitors and night watchmen unlock doors and supply ladders.

Thus it was that, half an hour later, the shadow of a tall thin man could have been seen crouching on the fire-escape behind the third-floor rear of —East 4th street.

Inside the room was a curious pair. Harry Evans, sly, fat and red-faced from whisky and elation at his power over one of these aristocrats for whom he had worked so humbly all his life. A slender, white-faced girl, who was able to play for time and fight down the nausea of her fear because of her faith in a certain brown-eyed young man who had dropped down from heaven that evening at 6.10.

"Well, my dearie," said Evans. "It's getting pretty late. Want to get yer boat, don't you? Better be nice to Evans for a bit, then."

"I—let me see the paper, Evans."

"And if I do?"

"Then—then I'll pay you for it."

A chuckle escaped him. He put his hand out to touch the shrinking girl.

"Not so much fight in you now, is there?" he said. "Well, here's your paper."

From his pocket he drew a closely written sheet and held it so she could see the well-known signature—"Geoffrey Bromley"—along the bottom.

"But mustn't touch, dearie. Mustn't touch till—"

The sentence was interrupted by the sudden crash of broken glass. Evans whirled to face a hand thrust through the small window. A hand which held, with unpleasant steadiness, a revolver, pointed unwaveringly at his chest.

"Better not touch it yourself, Evans," said a cheerful voice behind the gun. "Nor move, either. It wouldn't be at all healthy for you. Miss Bromley, just come over here and raise this window. I'm going to join the party."

CYNTHIA moved quickly and the paralyzed Evans saw a tall young man, whose blond hair was rather absurdly mussed and whose revolver was ominously steady, swing over the ledge.

"Now, hand that paper to Miss Bromley. Quick! I haven't much time to waste."

The red was quite from the fat face, the swagger from his manner. Evans looked very nasty indeed, but he handed the paper to Cynthia.

"Look it over. Right? That's the one you want?"

"Yes, this is it."

"Good. That's that. Now, Evans, get out of here. And let me just tell you that New York isn't big enough to hold you. We are rather fussy here about undesirables. I have an idea you and I will meet again. I'm rather well fixed to make it unpleasant for you. But right at the moment, get out. And while you are leaving, remember that if at any time Miss Bromley has cause to complain of you this gun of mine isn't always as well controlled as it is now. Get!"

The speech didn't have a very elegant ending, perhaps but Harry Evans understood. He "got." They could hear his feet clattering down the stairs.

Peter dropped the revolver into his pocket and turned to face Cynthia, who, with the paper in her hand, swayed a little from the strain and excitement of the last hours.

"How can I thank you? I don't know. To think of having this thing in my hand after all the months it has given me nightmares! I wish Godfrey—"

Peter spoke quickly and cheerfully.

"Tear the thing up at once, why don't you? It'll make a nice bonfire. Here, shove it in the fireplace and we'll watch it go up in smoke."

She tore the paper across and knelt by Peter in front of the small fireplace while he set a match to it. The flames licked up and cast rosy lights on her face in the dim room. How pretty she was! How plucky! How altogether dear!

"Do you know," she said, "I haven't even an idea what your name is?"

"Peter Swift. At your service. Very much," he repeated, his voice deepening with emotion, "at your service."

"You've been so good. What service could you do me more than this? It seems like a fairy tale—as though I'd wake up and find it hadn't happened after all. That man!"

SHE shivered and he put his arm around her.

"Don't. You need a lot of care, even though you are the bravest and most loyal girl I ever saw."

"Taking care—goodness, I'd forgotten. What time is it? I have to leave right now, don't I, to catch the boat?"

Peter didn't take his arm away.

"I don't think you really need to hurry," he said.

"But—my passport?"

"Well, there is a way of arranging that. I've got a revolver and a couple of skeleton keys on my Secret Service card already this evening. And I'm pretty sure that I could get a marriage license. If—Cynthia, if you married me you wouldn't need to worry about the English passport."

There was a pause, and Peter was frightened. What nerve! The idea of asking this lovely girl—almost a stranger. Of course, she would only think him an impertinent, coarse beast. Of course * * *.

"Forgive me," he said stiffly, and rose to his feet. "I shouldn't have said it. Of course, you must go. I'll drive you over, if I may. Your boat sail sat one minute after midnight."

He walked over and looked out the broken window, down into the dark yard. But he was not happy. He had blundered in the thing which he knew was going to mean more to him than anything else in life.

Behind him there was a rustle and a hand was laid on his arm. He smelled the faint sweet perfume which, he all at once realized, he already associated with Cynthia.

"Peter," said a soft English voice, "Peter, I don't have to go if I'd rather stay, do I? I—I think I'd like having an American passport."

AGRICULTURAL INTERESTS

CASEIN EXCELLENT AS SPREADER IN SPRAY

A mixture of lead arsenate and water, when sprayed on the fruit and foliage of a tree, does not spread as evenly over the surface as is desirable. The liquid tends to collect in drops and much of it rolls off. To overcome this certain materials known as spreaders are used.

The use of spreaders in codling-moth sprays is comparatively new, says the Bureau of Entomology, United States department of agriculture. So far as is known at present, a spreader is a desirable addition to a lead-arsenate spray. It is possible to control the insect just as thoroughly without the spreader as with it. It is somewhat easier, however, to give the fruit a complete coat of poison when a spreader is included. The spreader can not be depended on to make the spray go farther, except that without it there is a tendency to overspray, until the material collects in relatively large drops. The spreader added to lead arsenate has the advantage of eliminating the conspicuous white blotches that usually appear on fruit sprayed with the arsenical alone. Chemical analyses show that there is just as much poison on an apple when a spreader has been used as when it has not. The difference is that the poison is more evenly distributed.

Among the best spreaders are soap, certain oil emulsions, glue, and casein. Casein is by far the most satisfactory spreader obtainable at present. In its pure form it does not mix with water, and it must be combined with an alkali before it can be put into the spray tank. The manufacturer generally does this, but any grower can mix his own spreader by directions the department of agriculture will furnish upon application.

PLANT SOME OF THE SMALL SQUASHES

Miniature squash for early fall use have displaced the heavier and better known winter types to a great extent both for their convenience in handling ease of growth and productivity. This is the season to put in the squash. They may be planted among the corn as a convenience and to save room.

The favorites among these small squash are the banana, of sweet potato squash, a long round striped squash with a thin skin which can be cut in half easily and baked with a strip of bacon in each half to make a dish fit for a king, and the Table Queen, Des Moines or Acorn squash a newer comer, as it is variously known. It is sometimes known in the market merely as the nut squash from its general resemblance to an acorn in shape. It is of much heavier skin, approaching the late Hubbards in this regard but it can be split with a heavy knife and many cooks boil it whole until softened, then split it and bake after removing the seeds.

The squashes like warm weather. It is their growing period. They will not thrive in the colder earlier spring days so now is an excellent time to start them. Plant at least eight seed to a hill to guard against the depredations of the various races of bugs that delight in squash and its relatives. When they have survived the attack, pull out all but two or three of the strongest plants to a hill. Give the squash a good rich soil. It likes much the same treatment as the cucumber.

The borer is a pest that often plays havoc with the squash, puncturing the stem. Cover each joint as the vine goes along in its early stages. New roots will be formed at the joints and the vine will keep on going even though the borer has injured the stem between some of the joints.

The small squashes bear much more numerously than the bigger winter types, the sweet potato squash rivaling a cucumber in productivity. Do not let the vine form too many squashes. Limit the number and you will have better quality and more certainty of maturing.

TOMATOES FOR SEPTEMBER

Late tomato plants give a fine September crop. They may be bought from dealers or may be started from seed in the open ground.

The earliest plantings now need care and training. They should be grown upright to stakes or on trellises for the greatest yield and finest quality fruit. The old style of letting them sprawl over the ground has been demonstrated frequently as a waste of material. A large portion of the tomatoes are marred by rot which attacks them where they are in contact with the soil, particularly in wet weather.

Also in a tangle on the ground, the tomato worm can carry on his work of destruction to much better advantage and escape detection much more easily than when the vines are trained upright and readily open to inspection.

Six foot stakes are the best, stout canes that will not blow over sunk into the ground sufficiently to anchor them safely. Train the main trunk of the vine to this stake, pinching out all side branches but two or three of the lower ones to be carried up with the leader. Trained in this manner the fruit is exposed evenly to the ripening influence of the sun, develops more uniform and finely formed fruits, and gives a better crop.

One of the chief advantages to the housewife in the well trained tomato is the saving of time and trouble in gathering the ripe fruit. It may be picked with no trouble at all by merely walking along the row of upright plants. Treading among the vines to find the ripened fruit when allowed to sprawl over the ground not only destroys a considerable portion of the vines but many of the tomatoes ready to be picked are overlooked.

This is the season to see that the little tomatoes expand into luscious tomato is started right in life. Train it and cultivate and watch the green red ones.

BRITTON REPORTS SPREAD OF PESTS IN CONECTICUT

Four of the five insect pests in which Connecticut maintains quarantine spread farther over the state in 1929, Dr. W. E. Britton, state entomologist, declares in his 29th annual report, which has just been published by the Connecticut Agricultural Experiment Station.

The European corn borer penetrated the farthest. Scouts found it in 24 towns not previously known to be infested. All of these except Suffield have the more dangerous two-generation strain. The corn borer is now present in every county of the state.

The Japanese beetle jumped to Willimantic. Previously it was known only in Hartford, New London and a strip on Long Island Sound from Greenwich to New Haven.

The Asiatic beetle, which has destroyed grass on many lawns in New Haven and West Haven, was discovered on a small lawn in Bridgeport. Also the pest has pushed deeper within the quarantined area.

The satin moth was found in Burlington, Farmington, New Britain, Newington and West Hartford, in addition to the quarantined area, which includes Hartford, Suffield and all towns east of the Connecticut river. This pest feeds chiefly upon willows, but it also attacks poplars and sometimes defoliates them. The quarantine really amounts to an embargo on these two trees.

Defoliation by the gypsy moth was prevented in Conecticut, although it occurred in Massachusetts, New Hampshire, and Maine. Scouting revealed no spread of the pest beyond the quarantined territory in eastern and central Connecticut.

Dr. Britton warns gardeners of a new insect pest, the Mexican bean beetle. It was found for the first time last summer in Connecticut. Observers reported it only in Fairfield, New Haven, Litchfield and Hartford counties.

To kill the insect Dr. Britton recommends spraying or dusting. Calcium or magnesium arsenate may be used for dusting. He advises magnesium arsenate as a spray, or if the bean pods are to be eaten, a pyrethrum-soap preparation

After the annual inspection of nurseries, 266 were granted certificates, a gain of 38 more than the preceding year. The number of nurseries in Connecticut increases yearly, Dr. Britton reports.

Almost 10,000 colonies of bees were examined in the annual inspection, a larger number than any in the last 20 years.

Gangster is Sought

Frank Foster, well known Chicago gangster, has been sought by police for questioning in connection with the murder of "Jake" Lingle, Chicago newspaper reporter. Police say the gun used in killing Lingle belonged to Foster, though they do not believe he did the slaying.

LEGAL NOTICE.

AT A COURT OF PROBATE HELD at Plainfield, within and for the District of Plainfield, on the 17th day of June, A. D. 1930.
Present, JOSEPH P. SMITH, Judge.
Willis H. Stond of said Plainfield having made written application to the Court, praying for the reasons therein set forth that his estate be restored to him, it is Ordered, That said application be heard and determined at a Court of Probate to be held at the Probate Court Room in said Plainfield on the 5th day of July, A. D. 1930, at 10 o'clock in forenoon, and that public notice of the pendency of said application and of the time and place of said hearing thereon be given by publication of this order once in a newspaper having a circulation in said District.
JOSEPH P. SMITH, Judge.

AT A COURT OF PROBATE HELD at Norwich, within and for the District of Norwich, on the 27th day of June, A. D. 1930.
Present, NELSON J. AYLING, Judge.
Estate of Lulu M. Browning, late of Norwich, in said District, deceased.
Irving E. Browning, of Norwich, Conn., appeared in Court and filed a petition praying, for the reasons therein set forth, that administration be granted upon the estate of said deceased, alleged to be intestate.
Whereupon, it is Ordered, That said petition be heard and determined at the Probate Court Room in the City of Norwich, in said District, on the 2nd day of July, A. D. 1930, at 10 o'clock in the forenoon, and that notice of the pendency of said petition, and of said hearing thereon, be given by the publication of his order one time in some newspaper having a circulation in said District at least three days prior to the date of said hearing, and that return be made to this Court.
NELSON J. AYLING, Judge.
The above and foregoing is a true copy of record.
Attest, HELEN M. DRESCHER, Clerk.

DISTRICT OF COLCHESTER ss, Probate Court, June 26, 1930.
Estate of Edwin L. Brown late of Colchester in said District, deceased.
The Court of Probate for the District of Colchester hath limited and allowed six months from date hereof, for the creditors of said Estate to exhibit their claims for settlement. Those who neglect to present their accounts, properly attested, within said time, will be debarred a recovery. All persons indebted to said Estate are requested to make immediate payment to Frank S. Rathbun, 1697 Boulevard, W. Hartford, Conn.
ALLEN H. BROWN,
Colchester, Conn.

NOTICE!
This is to advise owner of automobile which collided with car Registration No. N1096 (Arthur J. Sylvia, 248 Main St.) to adjust matters with him as the person is known who is responsible for this collision, and thus avoid further trouble.

NEW LONDON CLUB PROPRIETOR FINED ON LIQUOR CHARGES

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, June 27.—J. Nicholas Danz, proprietor of a club room in the Garde theatre building, State street, was presented in the police court this morning, charged with violation of the liquor law on two counts, keeping with intent to sell and possession, and violation of the gaming law. On each of the two liquor counts, Danz, who pleaded guilty, was fined $200 and costs and on the gambling charge a fine of $25 and costs was imposed. The club room, which is patronized almost exclusively by business men, was raided last evening by Sergeant John Courtney, Automobile Patrol Officer Clarence Martin and Patrolman Frank Philopena. A large quantity of liquor, probably worth $500, was seized, while a slot machine of the 25-cent type was seized. The liquor is stored in a cell at police headquarters and the gaming device will be destroyed. The club room was raided about six months ago and at that time Charles Danz, brother of the proprietor, was fined $400 and costs.

Matthew Piasecik, 185 North Bank street, where he is the proprietor of a small restaurant, was also charged with violation of the liquor law, on two counts, keeping with intent to sell and possession. Piasecik also pleaded guilty and was fined $200 on each count. The police, armed with a search warrant, swooped down on the restaurant, which has been the rendezvous of many drinkers and where booze of the 25-cent quality is served. A search of the building revealed but two pints, but this amount was sufficient to result in it being apparent that Piasecik kept the liquor for sale. The place has long been known to be a dispensary and patronized by unemployed and laborers.

Patrick Lowney, Fishers Island; Wolch Ustach, 47 John street; Matthew Gill, Fall River, Mass., and Patrick Donovan, Bridgeport, were charged with vagrancy. Ustach was sentenced to 30 days in jail, Lowney was sentenced to 20 days in jail, but the execution of the sentence was suspended. McGill was given suspension of judgment. Donovan was adjudged not guilty. The arrests were made yesterday afternoon and last night in an effort of the police to rid the streets of a gang who refuse to work, but who are able to obtain liquor.

Peter Morse, 107 Washington street, was charged with failing to stop at an automatic danger signal, having been arrested by Motorcycle Officer George Cockell, but he was discharged.

Mrs. Samuel Miller and infant son, 952 Bank street; Miss Dorothy Carpenter, Wakefield, R. I., and Miss Irma Zabarsky, Old Mystic, patients at Lawrence-Memorial Associated hospital, were discharged today.

The condition of Edward Bennett, 55, of Mystic, who was struck by an automobile driven by Howard Carney, this city, in Stonington Wednesday and who sustained a fractured skull, was reported today at Lawrence-Memorial Associated hospital as being slightly more comfortable, but the victim is still on the critical list. Carney was arrested on a technical charge of reckless driving.

Carlo Valentine, 3 State street, reported to the police this afternoon that he had lost his roll of $165. Valentine said that he had the money when he departed from a restaurant on Atlantic street, but when he arrived at the corner of State and Atlantic streets, two blocks away, he discovered that his money was not in his pocket. Valentine retraced his steps, but obtained no trace of the cash.

Mrs. Emma Decker, 38, residing in Waterford, was injured this morning in a strange manner, for she was crushed between an automobile and a garage, sustaining an extensive laceration of the leg. She is now a patient at Lawrence-Memorial Associated hospital. Mrs. Decker was arranging to drive her car into the garage in the rear of the Decker home. She alighted, but did not apply the brakes. The auto became in motion and, before Mrs Decker was aware of her danger, the car jammed her between the machine and the side of the garage entrance.

Henry Russell, formerly of New London and Waterford, who was arrested here by State Police Officer Donald Brown Wednesday, charged with taking an automobile without permission of the owner, the car being owned by the Red Wing Auto corporation, of Hartford, has plenty of trouble awaiting him when the theft charge is disposed of, for since Russell's arrest it has become known that he is wanted for having negotiated fraudulent checks, one or more of which were passed in this city. One check was given in payment of clothing and he is also known to have issued worthless checks to the New Haven railroad. When the charge against Russell is disposed of in Hartford, he will be brought to New London for trial for issuing the worthless paper.

Commissioner of Motor Vehicles Robbins B. Stoeckel today ordered the suspension of the drivers' licenses of Walter Peterson, 17 Ocean avenue, and Harry W. Strout, 26 Hope street. Commissioner Stoeckel also denied the right to drive to Linton Jerrett, submarine base.

her daughter, Mrs. Reynolds is survived by Miss Gertrude Reynolds, 38 Mercer street, with whom the former resided for 12 years and since she removed to New London from Mystic 12 years ago, and Mrs. Charles Stanton, Mystic. Mrs. Reynolds was a member of the First Baptist church. She was born in Petersham, Mass., the daughter of the late Lawriston and Nancy Amsden.

Several girls in the employ of the Southern New England Telephone Co. have leased Zuyder Zee cottage at Ocean Beach for the remainder of the season and it is planned to conduct numerous social events monthly.

Mr. and Mrs. Albert H. Daly, Providence, R. I., formerly of New London, and their five children, are residing at Neptune Park for the balance of the summer. Mr. Daly was formerly employed by the Mohican Co. in this city.

The Alumni association of Williams Memorial institute held a dance on the roof garden of the Hotel Mohican tonight, the event starting at 9 o'clock and being concluded at 1 o'clock. Miss Rose Ganey was chairman of the committee of arrangements.

Ann Rogers Tent, Daughters of Union Veterans of the Civil war, at the Second Congregational church, tonight, presented Troop No. 3, New London Boy Scouts of the church with a flag. The presentation was made by Mrs. Alice Fall.

Mr. and Mrs. John F. Moran, 58 Faire Harbour place, have moved to their cottage, Ocean Beach for the balance of the summer.

Mrs. Charles Cooper, Lincoln avenue, is entertaining Mrs. C. W. Peck, East Orange, N. J.

Dr. Thomas A. Woodruff, 44 Mott avenue, has returned to New London after having attended a meeting of the American Medical association at Detroit, Mich.

Alfred B. Forbes, cashier of the New London City National bank, resumed his duties today after having been confined to his home, 9 Gorton street, a week, by illness.

The 17th annual convention of the New England Bankers' association opened a two days' convention at the Hotel Griswold today and it is being attended by about 500 members. Early in the day the members enjoyed golf on the links of the Shenecossett club and a business session was held. Tonight a banquet was held in the main dining room, which was presided over by Earle W. Stanton, vice president and cashier of the National Bank of Commerce. Lieut. Gov. Ernest E. Rogers was toastmaster. Among the speakers to hold the attention of the banqueters were Arthur H. Titus, president of the Bank of Manhattan, New York, whose topic was Banking and Bankers, Wise and Otherwise, and William Kelgard, New York, whose subject was What I Know About Banking. Tomorrow there will be a joint meeting of all the associations in the hotel ball room and Frederick H. Curtis, chairman of the Federal Reserve bank of Boston will address the gathering, speaking on Facts and Factors in Bank Management. Dr. Harold Stonier, New York, will be another speaker. In the afternoon the bankers will enjoy a boat ride to Fishers Island and at Fort Wright will review the 245 Coast Artillery, New York National Guard, which is in training there.

The property, corner of Pearl and Union streets which was acquired by the Savings Bank of New London recently by foreclosure of mortgage and which was formerly owned by Abraham Bronstein, now of New York, is being improved for the bank, which is to have a large addition, work on which has already been started.

The police continued their efforts to enforce the parking laws today and as a result several arrests were made. James Dallas, 15 Pearl street, is charged with parking overtime on Meridian street; Theodore J. Murray, South Shaftsburg, Vt., parking overtime on State street; Mildred H. Sackett, of Cleveland, Ohio, blocking traffic at the Union station; Rudolph Picka, submarine base, parking in restricted area on Atlantic street; Alfred L. Moudy, Waterloo, Ind., parking overtime on Meridian street; George V. Dearborn, 295 Willetts avenue, parking overtime on Union street and Laurence B. McEwen, 732 Montauk avenue, parking overtime on State street. All posted $2 for their presentation in the police court tomorrow.

FUNERAL
Samuel D. Barnes

The funeral of Samuel D. Barnes, late of 15 Lincoln avenue, and for many years employed by merchants in the business district as watchman, was held this afternoon at 2:30 o'clock at 43 Shapley street, and was attended by a large gathering of mourners. The services were conducted by Rev. Elmer Page, assistant pastor of the First Baptist church. Burial was in Jordan cemetery.

Mrs. Maria Reynolds, 80, died while in slumber early today at the residence of her daughter, Mrs. Floyd Fuller, 7 Lincoln court, where she had made her home about a month, death being caused by heart disease. Besides

DOCTOR FARMS AS HOBBY; RAISES PUREBRED CATTLE

LAUREL, Miss. (AP)—Farming for the joy he gets out of it and practicing medicine simply as a profession, Dr. J. F. Scarborough has turned his farm into one of the show places of south Mississippi.

He is developing his own breed of cattle, through the use of purebred sire, with native cows, which he says will have all the hardy qualities of the native, resisting the tick and climatic conditions which might be against imported stock. Similar methods are used in sheep raising.

The farm is not without hogs and chickens. Vegetables of every kind are grown as are hay and grain crops to provide feed for the livestock.

PORK DEMAND FADES OUT ALONG WITH HARD WORK

ST. PAUL, Minn. (AP)—Part of the economic troubles of a farmer and his hog lot are due to the decline of hard work in the world, Prof. E. F. Ferrin of Minnesota state college believes.

In the days before there were so many machines to do the jobs of the world, Prof. Ferrin says, people had to work harder and harder work meant heavier meat diets.

The present hog production of the country, he said, is too high, which gives rise to periodical oversupplies and low prices. "People," he said, "are likely to eat less meat in the future, rather than more."

ALABAMA RE-ESTABLISHES RUINED OYSTER INDUSTRY

MONTGOMERY, Ala. (AP)—Alabama's oyster industry, paralyzed as a result of the spring floods in 1929, has started a comeback.

Efforts toward restocking oyster beds have been successful and prospects are good for next season, says I. T. Quinn, state commissioner of game and fisheries.

He favors legislation to develop the state's 200,000 acres of oyster bottoms. Most of the packing plants at Mobile, Bayou LaBatre and Dauphin Island were idle last season.

ATLANTIC CITY MUSIC TO BE HEARD ON CHAIN

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J. (AP)—Station WPG here is to be the originating point of a number of CBS programs during the summer.

The local station has microphones installed at 16 points of interest about the city, including one at the seaside over which is broadcast the swish waves breaking on the beach.

The summer broadcasts will consist of grand opera in English, local minstrel shows and the numerous dance orchestras which play at the seaside resort. There also will be organ recitals from the huge organ in the new Civic auditorium.

TREES PLANTED TO HIDE SCAR ON MOUNTAINSIDE

BURNSVILLE, N. C. (AP)—Mount Mitchell highest peak east of the Mississippi river, one side of which was robbed of its growth of trees by a forest fire four years ago, is having its coat of green restored.

Trees are being planted each spring under the direction of the state department of conservation and development. This year 15,000 balsam seedlings will be added to the 50,000 previously set out, some of which are more than four feet tall.

Officials say reforestation of the scar left by the fire will require several years.

Commutes From Massachusetts.

COCHITUATE, Mass. (AP)—Edith Thayer, who is Jane McGrew in Hank Simmons Showboat, CBS Saturday nights, commutes from here to New York, a train ride of six hours, each week to appear in the broadcast.

Tube Research Continues.

NEW YORK (AP)— Despite the fact that radio tubes today are considered nearly ideal, research goes on in an effort to find something a little better.

ECHOES FROM THE LODGE ROOM

EIGHT AND FORTY

La Petite salon, No. 144, Eight and Forty, was entertained Tuesday evening by Mrs. W. R. Denison at the Denison bungalow at Gardner lake.

An interesting meeting that combined business and pleasure was held and the menu served comprised clam chowder, hard tack, pickles, olives, watermelon, jello, fancy cake and coffee.

DAUGHTERS OF UNION VETERANS

Thursday was the annual Daughters' day at Fitch's Soldiers' home at Noroton Heights, and members of Clara Barton tent, No. 7, of this city, visited the home. The department president presented a very fine programme for the entertainment of the soldiers, two members of Clara Barton tent contributing in ways that were very much appreciated by their audience. These were: Mrs. Grace Manning who gave several readings and Miss Florence Hoffman, department musician, who rendered a number of piano solos. There were 15 present from Norwich.

DEGREE OF POCAHONTAS

At the meeting of Sebequonash council, No. 11, held Wednesday evening with Wenonah Rose Carter presiding, it was announced that the 56th anniversary of the council will be celebrated at the next session. The installation of officers, who were named at this meeting, will take place at that time, when it is expected the exercises will be viewed by representatives of four visiting councils. An appropriate program has been planned for that event.

At the meeting Wednesday evening there was a large attendance including visitors from New London. It was reported that reservations have been received for the big celebration in Franklin, Mass., on Labor day. The meeting closed with the salute to the flag.

JUNIOR SONS OF HERMANN

Junior branch, No. 11, held its semi-annual election of officers Thursday evening at the rooms on Market street.

The following were elected: Chris Liepold, president; Charles Hamblen, vice-president; Harry Wischnewski, recording secretary; Francis McGrath, financial secretary; Wallace Atterbury voluntary sick benefit collector; Henry Shaeffer, treasurer; first trustee, Edsworth Cramer; second trustee, Linus V. Charnetski; third trustee, Frank Suntheimer.

Appointive officers will be named at the meeting in July. At the business session the members accepted an invitation from the guards of Immergruen lodge, which is the ladies' auxiliary of the branch, to attend their fifth anniversary. This is to be on the evening of July 1 at Germania hall.

Harry Wischnewski made a report on the recent trip to Hartford where the Singfriest was attended. The guards of Immergruen lodge marched in a body and were the only ones to drill, Mr. Wischnewski stated in his report.

MOOSEHEART LEGION

Women of Mooseheart Legion, No. 124, held their regular meeting Thursday evening with Senior Regent Margaret Comire presiding Past Regent Teresa Watters, who was sent as delegate to Middletown with the senior regent, read her report of the state meeting. It was voted to accept it and to extend a rising vote of thanks to the past regent for her report. Under good of the chapter, Brothers Hupner and Blaidsall from Middletown were present and Brother Heebner, chairman of the state convention presented to the Jean Davis degree team two cups, one for the nicest appearing degree team in the line of march and also a beautiful cup as first prize for drilling. He presented a cup to Norwich chapter for selling the most tickets, and he also presented to the governess of the Junior Legion, No. 92, a cup for appearance of the Junior Legion, and a $5 gold piece for selling the most tickets. In the drilling he said Norwich Junior Legion received honorable mention. This was very good as the children had only drilled three times. The auditing committee will meet after the next regular meeting.

WOMAN'S RELIEF CORPS

The regular meeting of Sedgwick Woman's Relief corps, No. 16, was held in Buckingham Memorial at 3 o'clock Friday afternoon, with the president, Mrs. Iola Bjurstrom, in the chair. Two members were reported ill. It was voted to have two meetings during the summer, July 11 and Aug. 22. The meeting closed with the salute to the flag.

RADIO PUTS SHIPS ASEA AS NEAR AS TELEPHONE

BERLIN—(AP)—Telephone subscribers in Germany soon may be able to sit at home and talk with friends aboard ships in the Atlantic or the Pacific.

Already it is possible to talk with ships in the North sea via the German postoffice radio station at Cuxhaven, while at Norddeich there is a project afoot to build a short wave station with world-wide range.

World-wide telephone connections with liners at sea will be limited at first to the large ships carrying radiotelephone equipment. In the North sea, however, many small steamers, including a number of fishing vessels, already have such equipment. Ships as far away as 750 miles have been connected regularly with telephone subscribers in the interior of Germany.

FISH TRAP WITHOUT AIR FOUND IN INDIANA LAKE

BLOOMINGTON, Ind. (AP)—The reason why the small fish in Snow lake, Indiana, come to the top gasping early in September is reported to the American Association for the Advancement of Science by Will Scott of the University of Indiana.

He says that for thirty years this annual fall phenomenon has been going on. Last fall he analyzed the water.

He found a layer of water between top and bottom in which the oxygen was much reduced and that this layer acted like a trap to small fish. They could get neither above nor below it, until so nearly asphyxiated that they floated to the top.

The extreme reduction of oxygen appears confined to a short period of time.

SCARECROWS FOR DEER GUARD MELON FIELDS

MONTICELLO, Fla. (AP)—Scarecrows are thick in Jefferson county.

No, it isn't the crows.

They keep the deer out of the watermelon fields. The horned marauders, fond of melons, sneered at stone-throwing plowmen. But the scarecrows turned the trick.

Urges Special SOS Wave.

NEW YORK (AP)—Suggestion that a new alarm channel be set aside for the exclusive use of vessels to wireless SOS signals has been made by O. H. Caldwell, former member of the federal radio commission. The present distress wave is 600 meters, close enough to the broadcast band to encounter interference. He suggested 750 meters or some other remote channel.

Many Schools Broadcast.

To Handle 1930 Wheat.

CHICAGO (AP)—Officers of the Farmers National Grain corporation expect to handle approximately 400,000,000 bushels of the 1930 crop.

Cut In Spring Wheat Acres.

ST. PAUL (AP)—With virtually all the spring wheat seeded, the Farmers' Union terminal association reports an acreage reduction estimated at 15 to 20 per cent.

First Pro Player

When the Niagaras of Buffalo, N. Y., made their debut as the first professional baseball team, Major A. M. Wheeler, above, of Baltimore, Md., was on their roster. At 89 he is its oldest survivor. He played before and after the Civil war.

GREENEVILLE

The Bright Jewels circle of King's Daughters of the Greeneville Congregational church held their second annual picnic at Ocean Beach. The members and friends, about 60 in all, left the church in a special trolley at 9:30 and returned at 5:15. After a basket lunch at noon, bathing and the different amusements at the beach were enjoyed. The affair was in charge of Mrs. James P. Service.

FUNERALS

Miss Nora E. Collins

The funeral of Miss Nora E. Collins was held from her late residence, No. 20 Curtis street, Friday morning at 8:15 o'clock, which was followed by a requiem mass at St. Mary's Memorial church at 9 o'clock, with Rev. Arthur B. Sullivan celebrant of the mass. During the mass, Rev. J. D. Enright, O. P., of Jersey City, was seated in the sanctuary. The music was in charge of Mrs. Michael J. Farrell, the church organist. At the offertory, she rendered Pie Jesu and as a waiting hymn she sang Lead Kindly Light. Chopin's Funeral March was played at the recessional. Burial was in the family plot in St. Mary's cemetery and Rev. Father Enright was in charge of the committal. The bearers were: George Maloney, John McGuire, Dennis Campion, George Neibert, Maynard Sullivan and Bernard Enright. The floral tributes were both numerous and beautiful. Among the large attendance present at the services were mourners from New Jersey, New York, Baltic and other places. Undertakers Cummings and Ring were in charge of the funeral arrangements.

Mrs. Margaret Burton

The funeral of Mrs. Margaret Burton, a well-known resident of Greeneville, was held at her late home, No. 147 Prospect street, at 2:15 o'clock Friday afternoon, followed by services at the Greeneville Congregational church at 2:30 o'clock, which were conducted by Rev. Charles H. Ricketts, the pastor, with a large number of family friends and relatives present. Burial was in the family plot at Yantic cemetery, where Rev. Mr. Ricketts conducted the committal service. Grandsons of the deceased acted as bearers: William, John and Alex Shaw, Jr., William Burton, Henry Williamson and Norman Passche. Among the large attendance were mourners from Providence, Lawrence and Methuen, Mass., New London, New York and Pawtucket, R. I. There were many beautiful floral remembrances. Undertaker C. A. Gager had charge of the funeral arrangements.

TAFTVILLE

Dr. Hartwell Thompson of Hartford has been the guest this week of his parents, Dr. and Mrs. George M. Thompson and his sister, Miss Helen S. Thompson, of North Second avenue.

Mr. and Mrs. Louis Wohlleben who were married this week in Baltic, are in a two weeks' motor wedding trip to Canada.

The feast of the Sacred Heart, patronal festival of Sacred Heart church, was observed Friday at the local church when a large congregation was present at the high mass celebrated at 7.30 a. m. In the evening there were devotions in honor of the Sacred Heart of Jesus, closing with benediction of the Blessed Sacrament.

A summer school of religious education is being held at the Taftville Congregational church school, and sessions are to be each day for two weeks. The pupils, besides receiving religious instruction, have a period during which they fashion toys which are to be sent to missionaries in the foreign field. A large number of the church school pupils are enrolled and the school is proving very successful as it was last year.

Mrs. John C. Atterbury, Jr., and Patrick McCann of Jewett City road, and the Misses Catherine and Mildred McCann of Norwich are spending a few days in Pawtucket, R. I.

Advertised letters at the local post-office this week are for Marie Libuha, Regina Fedus (foreign) and Mrs. Bernice Loverich.

The members of the Wequonnoc school orchestra met Friday at the school for rehearsal and instruction.

Men employed by the state highway department have been busy during the past few days, touching up the rough spots and spreading tarvia on the Old Canterbury turnpike.

Charles Adams, Jr., of Danielson, has been spending a short time this week with his parents, Mr and Mrs. Charles R. Adams and family of North Third avenue.

The many friends of Paul Verville of South Fifth avenue are glad to see him about again after a long and serious illness.

Theodore Benac, a student at St. Michael's college, Burlington, Vermont, and Miss Lvonne Benac, a student at the Academy of the Holy Family, Baltic, are at the home of their father, Joseph E. Benac, of Pratte avenue, for the summer.

Alfred Mathieu, who attends Assumption college, in Worcester, Mass., is at the home of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Mathieu of Pratte avenue for the summer vacation.

Mrs. Henry Banker, of Occum road, and Mrs. Thumm of Norwich have returned from a trip to California. They left several weeks ago by boat from New York, stopping at Havana, Cuba, and Panama, making the trip through the canal and up the Pacific coast to San Francisco. After a visit with their brother, they returned by train.

A meeting of the standing committee of the Taftville Congregational church was held Friday evening at the church.

Rev. William Penner and Allan Bogle represented the Taftville Congregational church at the meeting of the New London county association called to consider the resignation of Rev. Gurdon F. Bailey pastor of the First Congregational church at Norwich Town and held at that church, Thursday.

Ponemah Lunch will open Saturday, June 28. Hours 6 a. m. until midnight. —adv.

Eighty-five babies were present at the monthly Recknook Well Childs' conference held under the auspices of the United Workers of Norwich, Friday afternoon at the Red Cross rooms in the Ponemah building. Several nurses were in attendance and Dr. George M. Thompson was the physician in charge. Forty-one children were examined, weighed and measured and forty-five others were treated with toxin-anti-toxin for the prevention of diphtheria.

40TH WEDDING ANNIVERSARY FOR FRANKLIN COUPLE

Friends of Mr. and Mrs. Frederick Race gathered at their home in Franklin last Wednesday evening to celebrate with them the 40th anniversary of their marriage. There were guests from New York, Norwich and Lebanon besides most of the town people, and the occasion was one of happiness and cordiality. The day had been oppressively warm, but the night was cool and the air balmy. The planet Venus was resplendent in the west, and the Aurora Borealis flickered in the north. The grand old "lonesome pine" which is so distinguished a feature of the lawn, looked more Japanesque than ever. With such out door attractions, people were delighted to remain until a late hour. Rev. John D. Waldron pastor of the Franklin church, made a few appropriate remarks, and afterward delicious refreshments were served on the lawn.

Mr. and Mrs. Race are among the best known and most popular of the townspeople of Franklin, and any gathering at their house is a social event. They were the recipients of many gifts, both of money and other valuable articles. All present congratulated most warmly their host and hostess and departed hoping that they all present could be with them on their 50th anniversary.

FORGE SPARKS STARTED FIRE IN WOODWORK

A small fire in the brazing room of the Crescent Fire Arms Co., on Falls avenue, called out the fire department at 11:49 o'clock Friday morning with little damage resulting. The blaze caused from sparks from a forge set fire to the woodwork around the forge and was extinguished with a 2 1-2 inch line of water hose. Two hundred and fifty feet were laid. The room is part of a one-story metal and frame building situated in the rear of the main structure. Engines 5 and 6, Squad A and Deputy Chief Dennis Brennan responded.

ENTERTAINED BRIDGE CLUB AT GARDNER LAKE BUNGALOW

The Thursday afternoon bridge club was delightfully entertained this week by Mrs. W. R. Denison at the Denison bungalow at Gardner lake. Besides the card play at which the prizes were taken by Mrs. Emeline Prothero and Mrs. Rose Edwards, there were outdoor pleasures which included swimming in the lake. The luncheon menu comprised fruit salad, bread and butter sandwiches, sardines, ice cream, fancy cake and punch.

The members of the club are: Mrs. Lila Oat, Mrs. Ida Fletcher, Mrs. Mae Gregson, Mrs. Emeline Prothero, Mrs. Mary Carpenter, Mrs. Janice Joslyn, Mrs. Rose Edwards, Mrs. Charlotte Denison and the visiting guests were Mrs. Arthur Blaisdell of Montville, Mrs. Persis Hourigan of this city and Mrs. Ethel Nickerson of Portland, Me.

WILL ATTEND WEDDING IN NEW HAVEN TODAY

Samuel Johnson, with Mr. and Mrs. Henry D. Johnson and family, of Lincoln avenue, will motor to New Haven today (Saturday) to attend the marriage of Mr. Johnson's granddaughter, Miss Harriette Augusta Johnson, to Charles Gordon Lynn of New York. The marriage will take place in Dwight Place Congregational church, followed by a reception at the home of the bride's mother, Mrs. Edward Crandall Johnson, 785 Forest road.

Attachment In Suit.

On a claimed debt for $4,405, suit has been brought against Joseph Nelime of this city by the Radio-Keith-Orpheum Distributing Co., and the lease on the Breed theater has been attached.

NORWICH TOWN

John Mason Troop 2, Boy Scouts, connected with the Methodist Episcopal church held a meeting Thursday night in charge of the scoutmaster, Rev. George Warren Potter. The troop was inspected by Senior Patrol Leader Donald Olsen. The troop voted to elect Frederick Ross as librarian. The troop voted to change the meeting time during the summer months and begin the meetings at 8 instead of 7:15. The meetings are to last one hour or less. There will be the opening ceremony and roll call. Each meeting will have some special feature to make it attractive and interesting.

The various meetings will include an evening of swimming, an over night hike, a troop contest on making fire by friction, an evening of Semaphore with a talk by an expert, several short hikes and dog roasts an evening of first aid by those who know, an evening with the Connecticut Indians and an evening of scout stunts.

A contribution of about 20 books was recently made to the troop by Mrs. May Rollins, matron of the Johnson Home. These books will be a part of the library being arranged by the new librarian, Frederick Ross.

BOYS DEMONSTRATE LESSONS GIVEN IN LEARN TO SWIM WEEK AT Y

What the Y. M. C. A. "learn to swim week" has done for them was demonstrated Friday evening in the Osgood memorial swimming pool at the association building by a big proportion of the 144 boy swimmers and near-swimmers, when they gave an exhibition of what they had been taught and what they had learned. A good sized audience of interested parents viewed the exhibition with satisfaction and the assurance that their boys were better qualified to take care of themselves in the water than they had been before they entered the classes this week.

The "learn to swim week" has been carried out by Physical Director J. H. Demarest, with the assistance of William M. Wyman, Edward Fedell, Charles Pallocha, Howard Ludlow, Frank Hargraves, Millard Mulkins, Theodore Kennedy, George Baker, Davis Parsons, William Hill and Joseph Avans.

The boys given instruction this week have numbered 144, of whom 17 have been from the county home, and 40 of the boys have graduated from the "greenhorn" class into swimmers, while many were already able to swim a little and have gone on to learn diving, and all who did not actually qualify as swimmers received such ground-work instruction that they will readily learn to swim in a short time.

The exhibition Friday night began with a demonstration of the regular class instruction and this was followed by a group of the beginners showing how they had learned to swim. The next was an interesting diving demonstration and this was followed by an exhibition by the junior class with races. The programme concluded with a demonstration of life saving by the senior life savings corps.

The following are the boys who have been enrolled in the classes, except for those from the county home the starred names indicating beginners who learned to swim:

41-YEAR OLD PRESCRIPTION TAKES DRUG STORE PRIZE

During the recent ten weeks Norwich broadcasting campaign, the Lee & Osgood company offered a prize of $10 in gold to the person bringing in to have refilled, on any Friday during the broadcast, the oldest prescription.

Mrs. Carrie Kingsley of 80 1-2 Mapple street was the winner of this prize. Of more than one hundred very old prescriptions brought in, the one she had refilled, antedated all the others. It was originally filled September 14, 1889, and was written by Dr. F. LeRoy Satterlee.

Mrs. Kingsley is a native of Norwich, having been born here June 4, 1849. She celebrated her 81st birthday three weeks ago and to all appearances will celebrate many more. Her father was Joseph Lucas, who owned the farm which is the location of the new Norwich Inn, and he purchased this farm in 1825.

Mrs. Kingsley taught school in Norwich in her younger days and has many pleasant memories and souvenirs of the time. Among her most treasured possesions is a gold chain and pendant presented by the parents of her scholars through the earnest efforts of the late Joseph T. Fanning.

RECKLES DRIVING CHARGE NOLLED; PAYS FINE

Antonio Longo, Jr., 23, of 57 Boswell avenue, was arraigned in the city court Friday morning on charges of reckless driving and operating a machine without having his license with him. The first count was nolled and a fine of $3 was meted out on the other. A machine driven by Longo was in collision with another operated by C. A. Gager Thursday evening near Park Congregational church. The arrest was made by Officer William Ryan.

CHRIST CHURCH TO HAVE SPECIAL MUSICAL SERVICE

There will be a special musical service at Christ Episcopal church on Sunday evening at 7:45. The boys' choir will sing the evensong service after which the organist, Mr. Hall, will give an organ recital.

The program of recital will be as follows: Adagio from Vierne 1st organ Symphony; Andante from Haydn "Surprise" Symphony; D. Major prelude, J. S. Bach. During the offertory George Gulle will play a violin solo.

FLYING SQUADRON SPEAKERS FOR CHURCH SERVICE

A meeting in the interest of prohibition and law enforcement will be held in the Central Baptist church, Sunday, at 7:30 p. m. Hon. Oliver W. Stewart of Chicago, president of the Flying Squadron Foundation, will make a short talk at the opening of the meeting. Miss Norma C. Brown, vice-president of the Flying Squadron and associate editor of the National Enquirer, will deliver the main address of the evening.

Passes Common Stock Dividend

Notice as follows has been issued to stockholders of the United States Finishing company by Treasurer A. S. Imbrie:

The directors, at their meeting June 26, 1930, declared the usual quarterly dividend of $1.75 per share upon the preferred stock, payable July 1, 1930, to stockholders of record June 28. The directors declared no dividend upon the common stock, believing it wiser, in the present dull period in the textile trade, to conserve the company's cash.

Lorenz-Lewis Engagement

Mr. and Mrs. Ralph G. Lewis of Hamden have announced the engagement of their daughter, Miss Annette Lewis, to Lieut. Commander William J. Lorenz, U. S. N.

Miss Lewis was graduated from the New Haven Normal school in 1928 and has been teaching in Waterford and Montville. Commander Lorenz was graduated from the United States Naval academy at Annapolis in 1915. He is now with the submarine division in New London.

Fined in City Court.

Found guilty of driving a machine without a license Herman Johnson, 19, of this city, was given a fine of $3 in the city court Friday morning. He was summoned into court Thursday evening by Officer Michael Pouch.

Cotton burrs are used successfully as fertilizer in Texas.

FINAL WITNESSES HEARD IN LISBON BRIDGE SUIT

Judge Allyn L. Brown in the superior court here Friday afternoon heard the final witnesses in the suit of Emelin J. Dufresne of Jewett City against J. S. White Co., of Providence which was partially heard here about two weeks ago and continued in order that the defense might produce these two witnesses.

The suit was brought because of a collision between two trucks on Feb. 28, 1929, on the Lisbon bridge, Dufresne claiming $2,500 damages and the White company making a counter-claim of $2,000.

John Hollis, 21, of Riverside, R. I., who was the driver of the White company truck, testified that the truck was two-thirds across the bridge when he saw the Dufresne truck coming on the bridge from the Taftville side and that the Dufresne truck was on the Hillis side of the highway. The witness said he put on his brakes and then came the crash. His truck was forced backward into a girder of the bridge and he was pinned fast under the steering wheel until he was pried loose with a crowbar.

Albert W. Hopkins of Johnson, R. I., an automobile dealer, testified that he sold the truck to the White company in 1928, and said that the damage after the accident, from what could be readily seen, was $998.23. He offered a salvage value of $176 for the car after the accident. In his opinion the truck was beyond repairs and it was not repaired. He estimated its fair market value before the accident at $1,376.

The attorneys are to submit briefs.

CONGREGATIONAL CONFERENCE HAS 300 AT STORRS

(Special to The Bulletin)

STORRS, June 27.—The scholastic and recreational programmes of the seventh annual Congregational young people's conference, which is now being conducted at Connecticut Agricultural college, are well under way. The 300 delegates at the conference have been divided into four groups which are engaged in baseball, basketball, swimming and other athletic tournaments. The conference, which is under the direction of Dean Harold B. Hunting, pastor of the United Congregational church, New Haven, and Registrar Richard T. Elliott, pastor of the Saugatuck Congregational church, Westport, is one of the largest in recent years and presents an unusually full schedule of class and leadership work.

POLICE SEIZE WHISKEY AND WINE IN RAID

(Special to The Bulletin.)

NEW LONDON, June 27—The police tonight staged two liquor raids but in only one case were they successful in obtaining evidence. A raiding squad in charge of Sergeant John Courtney conducted the raids. The drinking resort where evidence was obtained was at the home of Aroldo Secchiaroli, 58 Goshen street. A small quantity of whiskey and wine was revealed in a search of the premises and was seized as evidence against Secchiaroli. He was held in bail of $1,000 for presentation in the police court tomorrow morning.

An automobile owned by Ellis M. Watrous, 8 Granite street, was stolen from its parking place on Meridian street tonight. The police throughout the state and the state police have been notified.

HENRY S. HASKELL GOING ABROAD WITH EDITORS

Henry S. Haskell, of New York, assistant director under Nicholas Murray Butler of the Carnegie Fund for International Peace, and his wife, Juliana Shields Haskell, a dean in Columbia university, are visitors over Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. William H. Shields, Jr., on Church street. Mr. Haskell in a few weeks is to sail for Europe on official business in company with the group of editors from many foreign nations who will soon complete their tour of this country under the patronage of the Carnegie Fund in broad investigations and research work studying America's outstanding leadership in finance and mammoth industrial exportations in world-wide business.

KILLED IN FALL FROM CLIFF IN NEW YORK

Mrs. Laura Birdsey Renshaw, 52, wife of Prof. Raemer R. Renshaw of New York city and a niece of Albert H. Chase of Sachem street, this city, fell from a cliff and was fatally injured Wednesday, at Bash Bish Falls, Taconic Park, in the Catskills, N. Y. A son, Birdsey Renshaw and Miss Raine Renshaw survive her besides her husband. Her parents were the late Judge Eldon B. and Mrs. Birdsey of Middletown.

Funeral services were held Friday afternoon at Middletown with Rev. Marion J. Creeger officiating and burial in New Farm Hill cemetery.

Mrs. Renshaw with her husband and 14-year-old daughter were picnicking near the falls. She approached the edge of the bank, when her foot slipped and she plunged to the rocks below.

She was picked up and carried to the Renshaw automobile and medical aid summoned, but she died before the doctor arrived.

Professor Renshaw had just completed his university work and the family had started out on their summer vacation.

Attended Fire Chiefs' Convention

Chief Henry R. Taft of the local fire department, with ex-Chief Rose of New London and Chief Main of Stonington, have returned home from attending the eighth annual convention of the New England Fire Chiefs association, which was held June 24-27 at Rutland, Vt.

For Two Months Tour Abroad

Miss Nellie A. Loring of 37 Lincoln avenue, a teacher in the Norwich art school, is to sail from New York today (Saturday) on the steamship [illegible] to spend two months in a [illegible] tour abroad. Mr. and Mrs. Raymond B. Sherman and Bennett Gaines are in New York to see her off.

Automobile Stolen

At 10:30 o'clock Friday evening, Capt. Thomas P. Murphy of the local police department was advised by the New London authorities that a Maxwell coupe, painted green and blue, was stolen there that evening. The machine carries registration No. N—8604, Conn.

Automobile Killed Dog

An automobile driven by Robert R. Devore, 24, of 624 Montauk avenue, New London, ran into and killed a dog in front of No. 168 West Thames street about 8 o'clock Friday evening. The machine is owned by Alfonso Erce of the submarine base, Groton.

BENCH WARRANT ISSUED FOR MAN AND WOMAN

Brought into the superior court on a bench warrant in which they were charged with adultery, Harry Gidley of Jewett City and Mrs. Mary McGovern, also of that place, pleaded not guilty before Judge Allyn L. Brown in the superior court here Friday morning. The bench warrants were served by County Detective William Lewis, with the assistance of Officer Veglard. Gidley was found working on a truck of the Gammino Construction company and Mrs. McGovern at her home.

Judge Brown set the bond in each case at $1,500 and declined to decrease this to $1,000 at the request of Attorney G. C. Morgan, who appeared for both the man and the woman.

According to the information drawn up by the state attorney, Mrs. McGovern and Gidley have been living together since Oct. 1, most of the time in New London where Gidley was a former taxicab driver.

The state attorney stated to the court that in view of the fact that there was no jury in session at this time it would be inadvisable to try the cases and he asked that they be put over until September. The court so decreed.

The state attorney informed the court that a baby had been born to the couple. Mrs. McGovern's husband now has a petition for a divorce pending. Mrs. McGovern was formerly Mary Niskewitz, otherwise known as Nuffley, and her parents reside in Jewett City.

THIEVES GET $3 AT FARM BUREAU OFFICE

Between 5 and 8 o'clock Thursday afternoon a thief got into the office of the New London County Farm bureau in the Shannon building and stole $3 in cash, while everything else remained intact. The break was discovered by County Club Agent Randolph Whaples upon entering the office Thursday evening. He found the office door open, the drawers in the desks pulled out and $3 missing from one of the desks.

The police were notified of the break and an investigation was conducted. It is thought that boys were responsible for the pilfering, and that entrance was made by use of a skeleton key, as there was nothing to show that the door was forced open.

Picnic For Sales Force.

Members of the sales force of the city gas and electric department are to be entertained at a picnic this Saturday afternoon at the summer place of Earl G. Taggart in North Stonington.

St. Theresa Hospital Dismissals.

Patients dismissed this week at St. Theresa's hospital were Mrs. Peter Ballaro and infant daughter, Versailles; Mrs. Robert Carr and infant daughter, Occum.

The "metropolitan area" of Boston includes 14 cities and 26 towns.

IN NORWICH FIFTY YEARS AGO

Nothing out of the ordinary occurred in Norich fifty years ago according to the files of the Norwich Morning Bulletin of that week. Interesting items taken therefrom include the following:

Monday, June 21, 1930—The wreck of the Steamer Narragansett was sold in New York, Saturday noon, at auction, her engines, tackle, apparel and furniture as it lies off Cornfield light ship, Long Island sound, the purchaser being C. P. Dixon. The price paid was $10,000.

Chocolate Nut Bisque and Toasted Almond

MENTION a CHOCOLATE NUT bar and you get a nod of approval from any jury of sweet-lovers. Rich chocolate with full-bodied walnuts should rank high in popularity. But whip them together with golden cream, eggs and sugar—and freeze. Well, there's only one possible verdict—everyone agrees its "immense."

No, that isn't the whole story—that's only the bisque . . . There's toasted almonds, too. Know the smell of roasting almonds—the aroma of pure vanilla? How they blend! Now, put them all together, and what's the jury's finding? Guilty! —of a new taste-sensation that ought to make the front page in big headlines.

EARLY PASSAGE VETS RELIEF BILL DECLARED CERTAIN

Senate Will Take Up Today Substitute Measure For That Vetoed By President Hoover—Few Changes Made In Modified Bill As It Was Passed By the House—House Leaders Will Seek to Increse the $50,000 Voted By the Senate For the Hoover Law Enforcement Commission—Congress May Adjourn Wednesday.

WASHINGTON, June 29.—(AP)—Determined to bring the long session of congress to an end by Wednesday, leaders in the senate and house today gathered their forces for the final drive of several unfinished pieces of legislation.

The senate will take up the substitute veterans' relief measure for that vetoed by President Hoover tomorrow. Few changes have been made in this modified bill as it was passed by the house and early enactment is declared certain.

The second deficiency appropriation bill, including the funds for the Hoover law enforcement commission, is the other measure standing in the way of adjournment. House leaders are preparing to seek to increase the $50,000 voted by the senate for the commission and to wipe out the senate's restriction that the inquiry must be confined hereafter to prohibition alone.

Some difficult parliamentary maneuvers will be necessary to bring about any revision of the senate's restriction on the commission and the apparent decision of the house leaders to undertake the move argurs some fireworks in the closing hours. Regardless of the decision of congress, President Hoover is determined to finish the general investigation of law enforcement undertaken by the commission a year ago—with provate funds if necessary.

The nearness of the adjournment date to the Fourth of July is complicating President Hoover's program to call the senate back at once for a special session to consider the London naval treaty. Some advocates of the treaty would have Mr. Hoover call the senate back on the Fourth of July if the congressional adjournment is taken just the day before.

There was still more hope tonight that the house could take action on two of the unemployment measures of Senator Wagner, democrat, New York, which were passed some time ago by the senate.

However, there was little prospect for final action at this session on either the long standing controversy over disposition of the gigantic Muscle Shoales, Alabama, power and nitrate plant or on the house bill to regulate motor bus transportation.

Senator Couzens, republican, Michigan, will make a final effort on the motor bus bill, which is the pending business in the senate, but he will give way first to the veterans' bill which Senator Watson, of Indiana, the republican leader, is ready to call up in the senate tomorrow.

A contest is in sight in the senate over the veterans' relief bill. The administration is backing the measure as it was passed by the house providing disability pensions to World war veterans with a maximum allowance of $40 a month. The senate finance committee approved this bill.

Senators Walsh of Massachusetts, and Connally of Texas, democrats, have pending an amendment to increase the pension figures, allowing a maximum of $60 a month. The debate will give the senate its first opportunity to discuss the presidential veto of the first veterans' measure.

Representative Patman, democrat, Texas, issued a statement today calling the new measure "the Mellon bill" and asserting that the World war veterans "will never get a square deal as long as Andrew Mellon is secretary of the treasury." He said the "profits of war profiteers should be utilized to compensate adequately World war veterans."

The house will try to finish work tomorrow on the copyright bill of Representative Vestal, republican, Indiana. It will then tackle the border patrol unification measure of Representative Hudson, republican, Michigan, which the administration has requested.

STALIN STRONGEST POLITICAL FIGURE SOVIET RUSSIA

MOSCOW, June 29—(AP)— Joseph Stalin's record breaking seven-hour speech before the communist party congress, occupying thirty seven solid columns of newspaper print today, has made him more than ever the strongest political figure in soviet Russia.

The speech, as printed, touched upon three questions of vital international importance which previous summaries had failed to reveal. These are czarist debts, bolshevist propaganda abroad, and the soviet policy respecting minority races within the Union. Stalin, who never before had spoken publicly on this question, declared the soviet government ready to pay part of the czarist debts if the powers holding such claims are willing to advance credits to the bolsheviets, the government regarding such partial payments of czarist obligations as extra interest upon such credits.

Stalin doubtless had in mind the claims of foreign corporations for property confiscated during the revolution rather than the claims of foreign governments for unpaid loans.

The American General Electric company, for example, some time ago concluded an agreement with the soviet whereby in return for $25,000,000 credit advanced to the soviets that corporation receives in return, in addition to the regular interest, partial payment of its claim against the bolsheviets for factories and other property confiscated during the Revolution.

Russia's "Iron Man" also made a notable utterance respecting bolshevist propaganda, which is being considered abroad as a barrier against the establishment of normal relations between soviet Russian and "capitalistic countries."

He made it clear that however much the United States and other countries dislike the soviet system of agricultural collectivization, extermination of kulaks and religious propaganda, and the battle against counter-revolutionists and sabotagers, the bolsheviks would continue their activities unabated because "they represent the inalienable right of the Russian workers and peasants as embodied in the soviet constitution."

SEARCH WISCONSIN WOODS FOR LINGLE'S SLAYER

CHICAGO, June 29.—(AP)—A handpicked detective squad swept into the Wisconsin woods today in an effort to capture James B. "Red" Forsythe, wanted as the slayer of Alfred Lingle.

Although the officers broke into several alleged boodlum hideouts in the vicinity of Burlington, the fugitive could not be found.

A dozen officers, under the command of George E. Lavin, assistant United States attorney, participated in the raids which were prompted by information that Forsythe and two companions wanted in connection with the murder—Simon Gorman and Frank Noonan—were harbored there.

Meanwhile the official commission investigating the murder strove to ascertain the source of the reporter's income. Their work was based in part on a bundle of cancelled checks and bank records, which revealed he deposited $63,000 in the Lake Shore & Savings bank during the 30 months preceding his death.

The investigation has spread to many strata of society and has brought three dozen persons—public office holders, police officials, business men and gangsters—under scrutiny.

STUDENT PILOT KILLED MAKING PARACHUTE JUMP

BUFFALO, N. Y., June 29—(AP)—Spencer Brown, 27, of Cheektowaga, a student pilot and a member of the Eagle Rock Flying club, lost his life tonight in making his first parachute jump. At 2,500 feet, he leaped from a plane piloted by George Terrill of Kenmore. The parachute opened, but Brown landed in a large tree and his neck was broken.

JESUIT MARTYRS CANONIZED AT VATICAN CITY

VATICAN CITY, June 29—(AP)—The first saints ever named from the North American continent were canonized today with Pope Pius XI presiding over the solemnities.

Blessed Jean De Brebeut and his seven companions, who suffered martydom at the hands of Indians in Canada and northern New York in the first half of the 17th century, were those honored. Among them was Father Isaac Joques, the first Catholic priest ever to set foot on Manhattan Island.

Pope Pius sang the mass in the presence of many North Americans, including a group of the most prominent jesuits in the United States, who had special places of honor because the martyrs belonged to that order. Many Canadians were present, including W. T. Kernahan, representing the Knights of Columbus of Canada and New Foundland, and Mrs. Kernahan, representing the Catholic Women's league.

Among the Jesuit priests at the ceremony were Fathers Edmond Walsh, president of the Catholic Near East Relief association; Edward Coffey, representing Georgetown university at Washington, D. C., John J. Wynne, historian of the North American martyrs and compiler of the Catholic encyclopedia; Thomas White, of the Jesuit House at Shadowbrook, Mass.; and Francis Xavier Talbot, literary editor of "America."

Bishop Thomas J. Walsh, of Newark, N. J., and Monsignor Edward Mooney, American, who is apostolic delegate to India also represented the United States.

The Canadians included 350 Pilgrims who had an audience with Pope Pius yesterday, and 150 Canadian priests studying in the seminaries here, or engaged by other duties in Rome or Vatican city.

NON-STOP, ROUND TRIP FLIGHT TO BERMUDA

VALLEY STREAM, N. Y., June 29—(AP)—The battered old monoplane Columbia, which Clarence Chamberlin frew from New York to Germany in 1927, after he and Bert Acosta had established a world duration record with her, tonight completed another pioneering flight.

Piloted by Roger G. Williams, himself a veteran of a trans-Atlantic flight from Maine to Rome, the old ship came to earth here at 9:03 (EST) tonight after a non-stop, round-trip flight of 1600 miles between New York and Bermuda.

With Williams were Harry E. Connor, a navy-trained navigator, who achieved the difficult feat of guiding the plane to the coralreef speck that is Bermuda; and Errol Boyd, former Royal Air force aviator. They made the 1600-miles air jaunt in 17 hours and two minutes.

Circling over Bermuda they looked for a place to land, because the rain had caused one magneto to cut out.

"There's wasn't a place to land," Williams said, "so we decided to come home, figuring that as soon as we reached dry weather the magneto would be all right. It was."

So they headed homeward, soaring over the Long Island air fields at 8:55 (EST). They reached Roosevelt field but decided it was unsafe because of a haze to land there, and so came to Curtis field, where they landed at 9:03 p. m.

MAKES MOVE FOR PEACE BETWEEN WARRING CHINESE

SHANGHAI, China, June 29.—(AP)—Japanese reports from Nanking today said that Marshal Chang Hsueh-Liang, Manchurian war lord, had made a move for peace between the warring nationalists and the northern leaders.

He was said to have telegraphed President Chiang Kai-Shek suggesting that a Chinese peace conference be convened at Mukden and hostilities suspended in the meantime. No date for the conference was reported.

BOMBAY, June 29—(AP)—American trade with India has been hard hit by the business slump brought about by the swaraj, or independence movement, and the subsequent boycotts. The chief sufferers have been the automobile industry and shippers of various kinds of machinery.

PARIS, June 29—(AP)—Big business in Europe is eagerly watching developments in the negotiations between American and German moving picture interests. Many observers believe success of the negotiations, in which Will H. Hays is playing a notable part, will point the way to settlement of serious economic world problems, and prove the value and necessity of international trade understandings based upon good will and equity.

ISTANBUL, Turkey, June 29—(AP)—The Detroit Negro, Mehmet Ali, a stranded Moslem Moses, who came here to seek a "promised land" for American Negroes, today presented to Mustapha Kemal Pasha his petition for permission to found a colony in Turkey.

"In the name of 28,000 Moslem Negroes suffering from racial prejudices in America, I petition you to accord land on the shores of the Bosphorus where we may create a flourishing American town and enjoy Turkey's traditional impartiality to Negroes," he said.

WILLIMANTIC SHERIFF "JAILED" TO SECURE MURDER EVIDENCE

(By a Staff Correspondent)

WORCESTER, June 29—A strategy planned by County Detective Rowe H. Wheeler of the office of State's Attorney Howard C. Bradford of Windham county and executed by Ernest A. Holland of Willimantic, assistant to Investigator Wheeler provided the material for a series of bombshells exploded at the trial of Leon Trudeau, 23, of Webster, at superior criminal court here yesterday.

The legal coup, which revealed telling evidence in the chain of testimony against Trudeau, who is charged with having choked to death his wife, Celia, on the night of February 22, was mapped out by the Windham county state's attorney and his chief investigator with the assistance of Chief of Police Thomas A. Mitchell of Gilbertville, who is also deputy sheriff of Worcester county.

Assistant Investigator Holland's testimony, which revealed for the first time an important part which the Connecticut authorities have taken in the trial placed Trudeau in the role of a wife-beater, if not a murderer, and disclosed his intention of marrying Lena Wieczek the girl in the triangle, as soon as he was acquitted or had completed serving sentence.

These and other startling disclosures were secured from the alleged murderer by Holland, during a four-day confinement in a cell adjacent to that occupied by Trudeau at the Worcester county jail during the early part of March. In accordance with the plan the Connecticut sheriff was incarcerated at the jail apparently under all legal procedure leaving no loophole for Trudeau or other convicts to subject that the man in cell No. 90, that adjoining Trudeau's, was occupied by a "dummy."

Holland occupied the witness stand Saturday for about one hour and a half and under direct examination by District Attorney Norman told of entering into numerous conversations with the Webster man.

To a question by Attorney Norman, "Did he (Trudeau) say anything about being interested in a girl in Worcester?" the "dummy" prisoner replied, "Yes. He said he had a girl and she was in jail. He said the girl's name was Wieczek. He said if he got out he would marry her and if he didn't get out he would marry her after he was sentenced and she would live with his mother."

Asked what Trudeau had said about the ride with his wife on the night she was killed, Holland caused a stir among the spectators with his answer. "Trudeau said that the last time he saw her was Feb. 22. He said she wanted to go to the Wieczek farm that night, but he got stuck on the road. He said that she insisted on going. He then told me the police had found her pocketbook and some beads there. He said they had an argument there (at the farm) and he choked her and got her by the throat! "He said you had to show a woman you were boss."

The prosecution again scored heavily in the Connecticut "prisoner's" reply to the request of Attorney Norman that the witness proceed with the story of other things Trudeau had disclosed to him concerning their activities of himself and his wife on the fatal night. Holland continued, "He told me that he stopped at a watering trough and washed up. He said his wife was with him then. After that they drove on and she said she would jump. He said, "Go ahead." She tried to jump and he tried to grab her Trudeau said. He said he pulled the car off to one side of the road and nearly hit a tree during the struggle. After she had jumped, Trudeau said he went to Worcester where he bought some new pants, because his others were dirty and torn. He said he went to his girl's house."

On the matter of a gun or revolver which might have been involved in the case Holland testified that Trudeau had told him in the jail that he had told the police about a gun, but that there wasn't any and he wanted to make the police work a lot for nothing.

A battering cross-examination by Attorney Cronin, counsel for the defense, failed to shake Holland's testimony, but the questions assisted the witness in bringing out additional evidences against the accused. Holland said that after the conversation in which Trudeau had told of choking his wife to show her who was boss, he taunted Trudeau with a remark what he was not a strong man, to which Trudeau retaliated with the boast that he could tear a deck of cards with his hands.

Trudeau revealed his plans for the future to Holland during their conversations. It appeared that one of his first ambitions was to destroy all memory of the woman who refused to divorce him that he might marry the "other girl." Trudeau told Holland according to the testimony of the latter, that he had told his mother to put her fist through his wife's picture when she got home. Trudeau said that after "he got through" he would write a story and go into the movies.

Trudeau's statement to the police that his wife must have met her death when she jumped out of his car on the Putnam-Webster road was countered with the testimony of two prominent physicians that the woman died of strangulation, as revealed in an autopsy, and that the numerous bruises which she bore on her body were not of a nature sufficient to cause serious results.

Air Pilots Set New Endurance Record

"City of Chicago" [illegible] Previous 420 Hou[illegible] Yesterday Mo[illegible] To Remain Alof[illegible] July 4.

CHICAGO, [illegible]—(AP)—Two Illinois farm[illegible] in a second-hand monoplane soa[illegible]ut of the dawn today with a new world record for refuelling endurance flying.

The brothers Hunter—John and Kenneth—who turned coal miners to buy their first ship six years ago, bested the previous 420-hour record by an hour at 5:01 a. m. (CST) and flew on, determined, they said, to remain aloft until July 4.

Warned by the men they supplanted—Dale Jackson and Forest O'Brine of St. Louis—that their record would be promptly assaulted, the new champions fought the temptation of much-wanted rest because they aspired to a mark that might stand a while.

Their elderly mother, however, gave way to the exhaustion which nearly resulted in her collapse just before the triumph came.

The victory achieved, she slept. But not her two other sons, Albert and Walter. Theirs was, and had been through the long 18-day test of man and machine, the task of refuelling the sturdy ship—"City of Chicago"—and of taking food, fruit juice and clean clothes to their brothers. And not her daughter, Irene. She it was who had supervised the preparation of food, and she was too happy to think of rest—yet.

Even the crowd which stayed up all night with no interest save curiosity, seemed reluctant to go home. When the black sky began to melt into a heavy gray and the first pale light of morning sifted through the clouds, nervous suspense seemed everywhere. Necks bent backward. Little groups laughed—but there was nothing that especially amused them: now there was less than a minute. The radio announcer—and then Bedlam. Automobile horns, sirens, shouting, clapping of hands, beating of pans, roaring of motors.

The crowd was alive with a new kind of excitement. The record had been tied, only another hour. They must make it...they must. A few more sandwiches, some more coffee, the plane droned away.

The crowd pressed close to the hangar where the radio announcer keeps check on his watch. He raises his hand for silence. He speaks.

The fliers can't help but hear the noise. They are speeding up. Now they are stunting and the crowd is thrilled. Then they are back in their monotonous pace again, droning around.

Sleepy faces turn toward home. New ones take their places. Cars pull up in droves bringing fresh greeters of the new champions. The refuelling ship goes up again.

The brothers keep going, counting new fortune for every hour they stay up. The extent of their earnings is still uncertain. Before the flight, they had estimated they might make a total of about $200,000.

ST. LOUIS FLIERS PLAN TO BEAT NEW RECORD

ST LOUIS, June 29—(AP)—The "St. Louis Robin" team, Dale Jackson and Forest O'Brine, whose refueling endurance record was beaten today by the Hunter brothers at Chicago, plan to take the air again "to bring the record back to St. Louis."

Immediately after telegraphing their congratulations to the new champions, John and Kenneth Hunter, Jackson and O'Brine announced they plan to go aloft July 13, the anniversary of the start of their "St. Louis Robin" flight, for another gruelling test

The flight is to be a civic affair and is contingent upon raising $30,000 to $35,000 by public subscription to finance it. Jackson and O'Brine own two planes and they expect to equip them for the flight, naming the endurance ship the "Greater St. Louis."

MAY BE FORCED TO DESCEND EARLY TODAY

Two Army Airmen Killed In Crash

Reserve Fliers Met Death When Training Plane Fell On Golf Course In Sight of Hundreds of Persons.

GARDEN CITY, N. J. June 29—(AP)—Lieut. Benjamin Berkowitz and Capt. Albert E. Flood, army reserve airmen, were killed late today when their training plane from Mitchel field crashed on a golf course here.

The two men had been in the air a half hour on a training flight. Witnesses said they came down in a long spiral to a height of about 100 feet, after which the plane seemed to get out of control.

The road across which the plane cartwheeled after hitting the first fence is congested with traffic on Sunday and it was considered almost a miracle the ship did not strike an automobile. Hundreds of golfers and motorists saw the accident.

The plane, which was believed to have developed motor trouble, struck a steel fence and hedge on the edge of the Meadowbrook Country club, crashed across a road, carried away a 12-foot iron fence of the Salisbury Country club and came to a stop on the latter course, a tangled mass of wreckage.

Both men died instantly and their bodies were taken to Mitchel field immediately. A cordon of soldiers, surrounded the wreckage preventing news photographers from taking pictures. Some newspapermen were beaten when they attempted to obtain pictures and information.

THREE HARTFORD YOUTHS RESCUED FROM DROWNING

EAST HAMPTON, June 29.—(AP)—Three Hartford youths who admitted, police said, that they had been drinking, nearly lost their lives in Lake Pocotopaug, late last night, when their canoe capsized.

Joseph Archerle, one of the youths, was taken to Middlesex hospital in a serious condition, suffering from submersion. His companions, Salvatore Santoro and Mike Civileto were able to return to Hartford.

The accident occurred near a dance pavilion and was witnessed by hundreds of persons. The youths were rescued by Paul Walsted, Elmer Erlandson and Evelyn Rogers.

WORLD WAR VETERAN KILLED NEAR WINSTED

WINSTED, June 29—(AP)—Samuel Bradley, 33, a World war veteran of this city, was killed today in an automobile accident on the Norfolk highway, near here.

He suffered a fractured skull when a car in which he was a passenger crashed into a highway fence. One of the rails went through the windshield and struck Bradley in the head.

Coulter Fritz, also of this city, driver of the car received minor injuries. Bradley is survived by his mother, three sisters and a brother.

BOLIVIAN GENERAL REFUGEE IN GERMAN LEGATION

LA PAZ, Bolivia, June 29—(AP)—General Hans Kundt, German chief of staff of the Bolivian army under the government of former President Silles, today was a refugee in the German legation here. Reports that he was dead were spread yesterday.

He refused to discuss the successful military coup of General Carlos Blanco Gaidint, whose forces control the capital. Dr. Silles resigned the presidency last month, and it was charged then that his resignation was a subterfuge to enable him to capture the presidency later in violation of the constitution.

TEXAN KILLED BY U. S. BORDER PATROL

LAREDO, Tex., June 29—(AP)—Juan Espinosa, 35, of Laredo, was shot and killed early today by United States border patrolmen as he and four companions were attempting to cross the Rio Grande into the United States with sacks of liquor.

Mexican customs officers captured three of Espinosa's companions. Two of them were wounded and one, Jesus Cantu, died afterward, Mexican authorities reported. The fourth was escaped.

Espinosa had a loaded pistol in his hand when he fell mortally wounded by the charges from the sawed-off shotguns of the border patrolmen, who fired at close range.

MARTIAL LAW TO STOP COMMUNISTIC DISTURBANCES

TEGUCIGALPA, Honduras, June 29—(AP)—The Honduran government today declared martial law in four departments forming the Atlantic Coast region to prevent communistic disturbances.

Forty foreigners said to be agitators were deported, and others were arrested, among those arrested was the Nicaraguan leader, Toribio Tejerino. The press, all labor associations, and public opinion seemed today to be supporting President Mejia Colindre in the emergency. Officials believed all danger had been forestalled.

AIR PILOT INJURED AND PASSENGER KILLED

COLLEGE PARK, Md., June 29—(AP)—A pilot who received his license last Monday, was injured and his passenger killed today. Their plane capsized at an altitude of 250 feet by a sudden cross wind.

The pilot, Edward Yeatman, 21, of Clarendon, Va., was pinned in the wreckage and one leg was so badly mangled that amputation was necessary.

TREASURY ENDS FISCAL YEAR WITH $200,000,000 SURPLUS

But Is Faced With Problem of Providing Funds For Four and a Half Billions Appropriated By Congress In View of Prospective Dwindling Revenue—Part of This Year's Surplus Due To Foreign Debtor Nations Making June Payments on War Debts In Cash Instead of In U. S. Securities—Appropriation Bills Call For More Than Estimated Revenue.

WASHINGTON, June 29.(AP)—Huge tax payments from income derived in 1929 will enable the Treasury tomorrow to complete the 1930 fiscal year with a surplus of approximately $200,000,000, but it will find itself faced with the problem of providing adequate funds to pay the $4,500,000,000 appropriated by congress for next year in view of prospective dwindling revenue.

The treasury's last statement issued for the close of business last Thursday showed the government had collected $212,520,000 more than it had spent since last July 1. With no large payments to be made before the end of the year tomorrow night, it appeared certain that the surplus would be in the neighborhood of the Thursday figure. The surplus for 1929 was $185,000,000.

The Wall street collapse last October, which for a while had been expected to reduce income tax collections, was shown in the payments to have affected comparatively few of the millions of taxpayers. Before the collapse the treasury had estimated income tax for the 1930 fiscal year would amount to $2,480,000,000 but this figure was reduced by $80,000,000 through the one per cent reduction granted on normal and corporation incomes for 1929.

Despite this reduction the collections on Thursday had reached $2,404,000,000 or $78,000,000 more than was collected in the same period of the previous twelve months.

On that day the government had collected a total of $4,151,057,206 since last July 1 and had spent $3,835,536,837. In addition to the income tax, customs receipts also spurted upward in the last month. Those collections, which had dropped off $40,000,000 in comparison with the previous year, took an upward bound just before the new tariff law went into effect so that on Thursday the total of such revenue for the year aggregated $583,275,000, which was $13,000,000 less than collected in the same period in 1929.

Part of the surplus this year was due to foreign debtor nations making their June 15 payments on war debts in cash instead of in United States securities as had been the practice. This added $100,000,000 to the surplus, but Secretary Mellon in opposing the passage of the original world war veterans relief act, said the government was faced with a deficit next year due to increased appropriations for public buildings to help relieve unemployment. He pointed out the government expected less revenue next year because of the 1930 business depression.

Appropriation bills enacted at the present session of congress which are to be paid in the 1931 fiscal year starting Tuesday, amount to approximately $4,500,000,000, which is more than the revenue the government is expected to collect next year.

LONE SHERIFF BROKE UP LYNCHING PARTY

BEAUMONT, Tex., June 29—(AP)—A hefty slap on the jaw, delivered by a robust and stout-hearted sheriff broke up an embryo lynching party here early today.

appointed himself leader of about 40

The swallop was landed by Sheriff W. W Covington on a sailor who had men, remnant of a mob of 200 which had milled about the Jefferson county jail during this morning. The blow sent the sailor and his "moosmen" retreating in confusion, abandoning their attempt to remove from the jail a Negro accused of attacking a white woman.

Tonight all was quiet and authorities did not anticipate additional trouble.

The Negro, Rainey Williams, was rushed to the jail here yesterday from Port Arthur, 28 miles south, where the alleged attack took place.

WOMAN KILLED WHEN AUTO STRUCK TREE

WILTON, June 29—(AP)—Mrs. Lina Natale, 40, of South Norwalk, a passenger in an automobile which police charge had been taken by her son without the owner's permission, was instantly killed today when the machine crashed into a tree and overturned on the Norwalk-Danbury highway.

Her son, Domenick Natale, 16, who was driving the car, was held without bonds by state police on a charge of driving a car so as to cause death to a person. Norwalk police said the boy will also be charged with taking a car without the owner's permission.

CRITICIZED SENATES' ACTION ON LAW ENFORCEMENT

NEW YORK, June 29—(AP)—The senate's action in confining use of the appropriation for President Hoover's law enforcement commission to investigation of prohibition enforcement was criticized today by Henry W. Taft, brother of the late chief justice, and Charles C. Burlingham, president of the Association of the Bar of the City of New York.

Both declared such limitation would be unfortunate because court procedure and law administration needed improvement which the commission could suggest. Taft said these problems are of greater importance than prohibition enforcement.

SIX DEATHS IN STATE FROM AUTO ACCIDENTS

HARTFORD, June 29—(AP)—Six deaths resulted from automobile accidents in Connecticut, during the week of June 15 to 21, according to statistics made public by the state department of motor vehicles recently. The total killed to the latter date this year was 155, as compared with 171 to the same date last year.

The total number of accidents reported to the department during that week was 399 as compared with 456 last year, of which 217 occurred in cities this year as compared with 275 last year.

Mills and three other men were returning from a swimming party and a rear tire blew out, throwing the machine into the ditch and turning it over.

The other three men were unhurt.

WILL REPORT DISAGREEMENT ON SENATE AMENDMENT

WASHINGTON, June 29— (AP) — Opportunity to vote on whether it desires to appropriate $250,000,000 and the unexpended balance of $88,000 for continuation of investigations by President Hoover's law enforcement commission probably will be given the house Tuesday under a plan of administration forces.

The controversy over the item has caused President Hoover to threaten to procure funds from private sources for the inquiry if congress does not provide them, and is before the house and senate conferees on the second deficiency bill.

Under the law and its rules, the house conference committee cannot accept the senate amendment to the last of the big supply bills of this session, providing $50,000 for the commission to use exclusively for inquiry into prohibition enforcement.

The house conferees will report disagreement to this amendment and Chairman Wood of the house appropriations committee will submit to the house the proposition of appropriating the funds recommended for the commission by the budget bureau and President Hoover.

Representative Cramton, republican, Michigan, dry leader and an important member of the appropriations committee, is confident the house will act favorably on the item.

The item originally was stricken from the bill in the house on a point of order made by Representative LaGuardia, republican, New York, on the ground that there was no existing law authorizing the commission for a second year.

Last year, the commission was authorized by the senate and $250,000 was appropriated. Of this $88,000 is unexpended, and would have been reappropriated. The senate amended the deficiency bill, carrying about $80,000,000 for contingencies in government operation, in which it allowed the commission only $50,000 with a reappropriation of the unexpended balance for prohibition inquiry.

Appearing before the house appropriations committee in support of the item, George W. Wickersham, chairman of the commission, said the group had about half completed its work of studying all law enforcement, and had discovered a woeful need for revision of many of the criminal laws as well as a lack of statistical information regarding law enforcement.

Asserting the senate had initiated the commission, Cramton said today it should allow it to complete its work.

"The matter is not a wet or dry issue," he said. "Prohibition is only one phase of law enforcement to be considered."

GERMAN RHINELAND ON THRESHOLD OF FREEDOM

MAYENCE, Germany, June 29—(AP)—The German Rhineland tonight stands on the threshold of freedom.

Tomorrow afternoon the last trainload of French troops will steam out of the third occupied zone, and at the stroke of midnight the pealing of church bells and the flare of bonfires up and down the Rhine will herald the official termination of eleven and a half years of allied occupation.

The achievement of the goal toward which the reich's foreign policy has been striving for ten years will be formally and elaborately celebrated in the middle of July, but the populace is not content to wait for the official rejoicing. A spontaneous celebration of regained liberty, unique in the history of the fatherland, is expected to break loose when the midnight bells and bonfires and the broadcasting stations tell 60,000,000 Germans that the French army has finally moved out.

WILLIMANTIC TO HAVE PARADE ON THE FOURTH

(Special to The Bulletin.)

WILLIMANTIC, June 29.—Willimantic is promised a bang-up Fourth of July with a long and colorful parade of ancients and horribles in the forenoon and a brilliant display of fireworks in the evening. Today plans had been completed with all agencies to make these events a revival of the old-time Fourth that will long be remembered. Only the weather man has been left out of consultation on the arrangements for the day.

The big parade in the forenoon, while featuring the old horribles, will in many respects be a most novel and pleasing display of home industries. Fred Leclaire, who is the promoter of the parade and general revival, stated today that to date 56 auto trucks had been engaged to participate. The parade will be about one mile and one-half in length and will follow a line of march making it possible for residents of all main districts in the city to witness the procession.

The blacksmiths, coal dealers, furniture stores, grain dealers, laundries and wet washes, garages, hardware stores and others are arranging trucks into unique exhibits of their respective industries and merchandise. The Willimantic State Trade school will have two trucks, one each for the painting and carpentry departments. The Willimantic Metal Screen, Inc., will demonstrate how window screens were made 50 years ago. K. N. Trombley, local manager, is endeavoring to secure a "house-on-wheels" from New York and many other unusual features are being arranged for, including a float depicting the signing of the Declaration of Independence by high school boys.

Several of the trucks will carry vocalists and musicians. It is expected that the Knights of Columbus Boys' Scout and Italian Citizens' bands will also ride on decorated trucks, while a full orchestra is expected to occupy another.

Lieutenant James J. Lee has been secured to act as marshal of the parade with power to name his aides. In the vanguard will be Chairman Leclaire, Mayor Walter R. King and members of the board of aldermen, invitations having also been extended Sherig Charles A. Gates and ex-Mayor Oscar Tanner to ride with the group of officials. The parade is to form on Valley street at 8:30 o'clock so as to get underway promptly at 9 o'clock. The line of march will be west on Valley to Mansfield avenue, down the avenue to Main, up Main to the junction of Columbia avenue, countermarch down Main, the entire length of the thoroughfare to Ash street junction, countermarch up Main to Thread Mill square, up Jillson hill to Pleasant, west on Pleasant, down Mountain and Bridge streets to Main, across Main to Windham, up Windham to Prospect, east on Prospect to Jackson, north on Jackson to Ash, down Ash, up Main and back to Valley street at Soldiers' Memorial field for dismissal. All participants will ride in trucks or pleasure cars.

During the afternoon the public will be left to its own choice of enjoyment but in the evening community activities will be resumed at Soldiers' field on upper Main street where a fireworks display that is expected to excel anything of the kind ever seen here will be staged by Gold Star post No. 1724, Veterans of Foreign Wars.

STEALS POCKETBOOKS AS VICTIMS VIEW ACCIDENT

(Special to The Bulletin.)

WILLIMANTIC, June 29.—While a crowd gathered about the scene of an automobile accident at the junction of Ash and Main street about 7:30 o'clock Saturday night a pickpocket, with an interest other than mere curiosity, "lifted" two pocketbooks. He was detected in the act of taking the wallet of John Mitcher of 9 Lafayette street, however, and as the thief ran to his automobile to drive away, Mitcher gave chase. The local man jumped on the running board and succeeded in snatching his pocketbook away before the thief drove off. Andrew Piese of 3 1-2 Brook street then discovered the loss of three dollars but by this time the crook had sped away. The registration number of his automobile was secured, however, and a police alarm was immediately sent out to all points. Up to this afternoon the thief had succeeded, however, in escaping arrest.

The accident which was the scene of the pickpocketing activities was one in which an automobile driven by Frank Lis of 81 Ives street collided with a car driven by Edward Andrews of 123 Oakland Terrace, Hartford. Lis turned around the traffic signal at the junction, crashed into the Hartford machine and then mounted the sidewalk in front of the Garadowski property where he ran into a fence. Both machines were damaged. Lis, whose driving license is under suspension by the state motor vehicle department, disappeared from the scene but was arrested later and will be presented in police court Monday morning for violation of the vehicle laws. Officer William Hurley investigated the accident.

The third district census offices conducted in the Capitol Theatre building here during the 1930 census, were closed Saturday afternoon. The district staff, under Supervisor Otto E. Robinson, had checked over the completed census return schedules and folios which have been arranged in packing cases for shipment to national headquarters at Washington, D. C., this work being under the direction of Chief Clerk Edward L. Dennis of Scotland.

About a half dozen farm schedules for which the enumerators could not get the individuals to answer all of the questions are all that remain incompleted. These lists will be sent to Washington and the government officials will take steps to have them completed. The district census covered a total population of 250,035, in the counties of Tolland, Middlesex, New London and Windham.

With preliminary work done by District Supervisor Robinson from a temporary office at his home, the census offices were opened here on March 26 and the actual census work started April 2. A total of 173 enumeration districts were established and the work was completed in good time.

EXPENSIVE FISHING ON PRIVATE PROPERTY

(Special to The Bulletin)

STAFFORD SPRINGS, June 29.—Roland Day, of Springfield, and Edward E. Parkman, of Monson, were crossing land owned by Spencer Bradway near the Devil's Hopyard, Friday afternoon, when apprehended by the owner of the land. The trespassers had fishing tackle and were making a bee line for Bradway pond. As Mr. Bradway had not given the strangers permission to fish in his pond, he got in touch with the state police office and Trooper Buckley placed the two men under arrest. They were presented in the borough court Saturday morning, Day, charged with trespassing on the land of another without permission for the purpose of fishing, was fined $2 and costs, Parkman paid $2 and costs on a similar charge and an additional $2 for being intoxicated.

Louis Kaplan, of Brookline, Mass., who was doing between 55 and 60 miles an hour on the Union road on the afternoon of June 21, pleaded guilty to the charge of speeding and paid a fine and costs amounting to $21.35.

Premature Celebrating

Although the law prohibits the use of firecrackers except on the Fourth of July, many of the youngsters have already begun to celebrate, as there is no restriction locally on the sale of the explosives. The practice is being discouraged by the police.

Miss Lois Burnham, teacher in the local grammar school, is at her home in Ware, Mass., for the summer.

John Hunziker, of New York, has been spending a few days with his mother in West Stafford.

Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Gilligan, of New York, former residents of Stafford, were recent visitors in town.

Miss Edith Braun has been spending several days in New York.

Mrs. Joseph O'Coin, of South Manchester, was a recent visitor with her mother, Mrs. G. Netto.

Andrew Burlick, of Hartford, spent the week-end at home.

Miss Florence Pinney is spending the summer in Winsted.

Mr. and Mrs. Israel Rabinovitz, recently married in Rockville, have returned from their wedding trip and will reside in Stafford Springs.

Mrs. Christopher G. Gilligan and daughters, Josephine and Corinne, are spending several weeks at Pleasant View Beach, Westerly.

Members of Baker chapter, Order of Eastern Star, and their families, held a picnic at the George Frazier cottage at Crystal Lake Saturday afternoon. They met at the railroad station just after noon and went to the lake in automobiles.

Several Stafford people attended the bi-centennial celebration of the town of Enfield.

Misses Lottie and Dorothy Shepherd are spending the summer with their parents, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur B. Shepherd, of Prospect street.

Mrs. Florence Day, of Springfield, called on friends in the borough Saturday.

BALTIC

Miss Bertha Froemel, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Octavian Froemel, of Little Flats, and Fred Wohleben, son of Fred Wohleben, of Taftville, were united in marriage Monday afternoon at 2 o'clock, at the home of the bride's parents. Under a beautiful arch of palms, mountain laurel and roses, the ceremony was performed by Rev. J Manley Shaw, pastor of the M. E church, of which the bride is an active member. The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, wore gowned in white chiffon and georgette, cut princess style. She wore a long veil of tulle caught with orange blossoms, and carried bridal roses and lilies of the valley. The bridesmaid Miss Emma Froemel, was attired in nile green chiffon and georgette, with picture hat to match, and carried pink roses and baby's breath. The best man was Charles Adams, of Taftville. The bride's gift to the bridesmaid was a pearl necklace. The groom presented the best man gold cuff links. Following the ceremony, dinner was served to a The dining room was artistically decorated. The dinnig room was artistically decorated with red roses and laurel. Mr. and Mrs. Wohleben left by automobile to tour New Hampshire, Vermont and Canada. For her traveling, the bride wore a tan ensemble with hat of corresponding tint. After two weeks honeymoon, they will make their home in Taftville.

A farewell surprise party was given Mrs. S. Barlowe, Wednesday evening, at the home of Mrs. Martha Houghton of Depot Hill. Mrs. Barlowe, who has made many friends since coming to Baltic, is to leave soon to make her home in New Bedford, Mass. With regret, friends and neighbors bade her farewell. A pleasant evening was spent, with vocal and instrumental music. Ice cream and cake were served and candy and peanuts were distributed. Mrs. Cranshaw, in behalf of the assemblage, presented Mrs. Barlowe a beautiful leather handbag. Mrs. Barlowe expressed her gratitude for and appreciation of the handsome gift. Those in attendance were: Mrs. Joseph Ashworth, Mrs. Jones, Mrs. William Cranshaw, Mrs. Leonard Firth, Mrs. William Baldwin, Mrs. Samuel Stafford, Mrs. John Hinchcliffe, Mrs. Ainsworth, Mrs. James Hallas, Mrs. Edward Robinson, Mrs. Joshua Heap, Mrs. J. In a workman it's Skill in a cigarette it's Taste

BACK OF TRUE CRAFTSMANSHIP—patient training, painstaking pride. Back of Chesterfield's popularity — years of experience in the buying and blending of fine tobaccos and one unchanging standard of excellence.

UNFAILING GOOD TASTE, the result of quality tobaccos, skilful blending, endless care—that's what wins smokers to Chesterfield—and holds them.

LIGHT A CHESTERFIELD for the first time or the fifty-first, and enjoy afresh the discovery that here, at last, is a cigarette made to your own liking . . . mild, rich, fragrant—first in the one thing you want most . . . "TASTE above everything".

We state it as our honest belief that the tobaccos used in Chesterfield cigarettes are of finer quality and hence of better taste than in any other cigarette at the price.

DANIELSON

POLICE FAIL TO FIND LIQUOR AT NEAL PLACE

(Special to The Bulletin)

DANIELSON, June 29—Not all the lance places hereabouts advertise in the papers. And as to that, this little yarn isn't intended as soliciting business. It rates just a matter of record. Getting down to cases, State Officers Elton Nolan, George Martin and Lionel Poirier, stepped into the home of Russell Neal, colored, up in the Pineville section of the town, where people do not live in great numbers, late Saturday night to make a raid for liquors.

About twenty people, black and white, were there and a banjo and violin with persons who could play the instruments also figured in the party. There was a neighborly dance on, it seems.

The officers went to work in their systematic manner to search for liquors. They did find a gallon of wine and a bottle or two of home brew, but there was no evidence of any selling or any intent to sell, so the officers stepped out and there was nothing to impede the edict of "on with the dance."

King George Jacques, who has done as much as any man in his time to put East Killingly on the map, is having a birthday next week. The King insists that he personally arranged to be born on July 4, but be that as it may, it so happened, and next Friday he is celebrating his 79th anniversary quietly this year, because he is lamed from a fall from a step ladder while at work a time ago.

Hordes of people who know the great old-timer are going to make a point of remembering him on the Fourth—his birthday—with a card or some other remembrance.

At the week end Mr. and Mrs. John C. Bassett and their daughter of Aberdeen, S. D., were guests of Luther Pilling and his sister, Miss Emma F. Pilling, of North Main street. Mr. Bassett is known only to a few of the present generation of Danielson people, yet his youth was spent here and he went forth, many years ago with the dream of carving an eminent place in life for himself in the then undeveloped great northwest. And during his earlier years in that section of the country Mr. Pilling was associated with him in his business enterprises.

Mr. Bassett has realized his dream of achievement. Today he is one of the richest men in the northwest, and never mentions it. Having attained prominence in the banking field in his adopted state, he is now, following a banking merger of the past year, a director of a half a billion dollar giant in the banking field, and also a member of the Federal Reserve board for the district in which he lives.

More than two score years have slipped by since he was a resident of Danielson, living at the parental home on Maple street, but he is one of those valiant and efficient souls who have stepped forth and ventured into unknown places to do credit to his native heath.

An old-timer that many of his friends here would have been glad to greet, had they opportunity, came back to town Saturday to spend a fleeting hour with some of those who were close to him and the members of his family when he was manager of the Danielson division of the Southern New England Telephone company, something like 25 years ago. William ("Bill") Bennett is retired from active service today, pensioned by the New England Telephone company. His home is in Taunton. With him on his visit here yesterday were his wife, their son, and their son's wife. Today their son, on his honeymoon, and with his bride with him, by the way, is Dr William Bennett, a graduate of Tufts and health officer of the city of Taunton. Dr. "Bill" is best remembered by his Danielson acquaintances as a kid playing around the telephone office grounds. He's just all different now.

Young as he is, Dr. Bennett rates a high place in the affections of the people of the city of Taunton, for in a smallpox epidemic there, two or three years ago, he ventured in among the afflicted daily, until he was stricken with the disease.

As to his father, the original "Bill", he was the sponsor of a basketball team that just about brought a world's championship to Danielson. It all happened when the famous New England Basketball league was disbanding in the midst of a season when the revenue was not too good. Bill Bennett went out and picked out the shining lights of teams in the Lowell-Lawrence district, and they just about stood the opposition, representing Putnam, Webster, Willimantic, Norwich and Mystic, on its ears, and the old-timers never will forget him for that.

FUNERAL

Miss Elizabeth Bradford

This afternoon at 2 o'clock at the home of her nephew, L. A. Bradford, on Reynolds street, funeral services for Miss Elizabeth Bradford were conducted by Rev. Harding W. Gaylord of the Westfield Congregational church, of which Miss Bradford had been a member since 1874. Burial was in Westfield cemetery, the committal service by Rev. Mr. Gaylord. The bearers were Alfred Ennis, Kenneth Filkins, Winslow Gallup, John Williams, Pearl Chamberlin, A. T. J. Clark, Everett Hyde and J. F. Lewis. A. F. Wood was in charge of the arrangement.

Joseph Hazelton, apparently just to show the boys who think they know how to fish that they actually know little or nothing about it, stepped out at the week end and enticed a 2 3-4 pound trout out of Snake Meadow brook, and, as reported, garnered the prize catch of the season nerebouts just where the brook flows into the upper pond of the Snake Meadow club. And herewith Joseph has the congratulations of all of those who love the great spring sport, and it also again writes into the record that other than club members get some wonderful fish over there.

Chief John McFarland of the Danielson police department was at Mystic today and returned here this evening with Mrs. McFarland and their granddaughter, Lillian, who have been visiting in Mystic the past week.

Monday, June 30, the end of the trout fishing season for 1930. Not so much information for the average person who does not go fishing. On the other hand, a warning for those who would illegally take fish out of season.

Members of the Sunday school of the Congregational church at South Killingly, oldest established religious organization in the town of Killingly, had their annual outing Saturday, with adult members of the church and their friends.

Special Officer Hosea Greene was on duty today in the absence of from duty—a rare occurence—of Chief John McFarland.

Mrs. Joseph Farron, who died the past week, was one of the older members of the Westfield Congregational church, having joined in 1884.

Tonight Hon. Oliver W. Stewart of Chicago, a leader in advocating the enforcement of prohibition, and recognized as a nation-wide leader in this field, was the speaker at the Westfield Congregational church at a meeting under the auspices of Danielson Federation of Churches.

Chief A. P. Woodard of the Danielson fire department and Lieut. Ira A. Warren, superintendent of the local fire alarm telegraph system, returned here at the week end after having been at Rutland, Vt., for the annual New England Fire Chief's convention.

Following this Sunday the primary and junior and the intermediate-senior departments of the Congregational church school will be closed for the summer. The next meetings of the group are scheduled for the first Sunday in September

Saturday evening at a dance arranged by the Jolly Social club at East Killingly "Mickey" McCall and "Jerry" Wanke, the two girl hikers out of Montana and Minnesota were guests of honor. After this week end at Old Killingly pond and a side trip on Saturday to old Bunker Hill they are on their way back to their far western homes.

John M. Dowe, Henry Gilbert and Earl Whipple, who as members of the 103rd field artillery saw plenty of action overseas during the World war, and know what it is to see companions killed beside them while shells whistled and burst all about, were at Manton, just outside of Providence, today for the twelfth annual reunion of their outfit. Members of the old battery came from as far away as Georgia and Chicago to attend the reunion. Their battery was part of the famed Yankee division.

JEWETT CITY

NINE YOUNG RED FOXES ON VIEW AT RUNDELL'S

Many are stopping at the "Shovel-in-the-Tree" station, at the upper end of Tadpole pond, to see Al Rundell's foxes. In a cage, 12x8, he has nine red foxes, part of a litter of 14, which he dug from a burrow in the big woods off to the east of Mount Misery. Heretofore no litter has even been known to number above ten. The other five are being kept by a trapper friend in Voluntown. The true red fox is slowly but surely being supplanted all through this section, by the gray fox, which breed has not only lost in cunning, but in fur value as well. These sharp-eyed kittens suggesting the call of the wild are unusual here. Last year Mr. Rundell dug out a litter of six, up near Stone Hill. These he raised to maturity, at his home, and when their fur was prime last winter, in addition to the town bounty, he received $20 each for the pelts. Al knows all the woods in this big trapping section, and is well acquainted with the old vixen, mother of the first litter. Sometime during her wanderings she had evidently been pinched in a steel trap, for her right forefoot is bent to one side in a peculiar manner, doubtless done when she pulled clear from the jaws of the trap. All last winter, during the times of the light snowfalls, Mr. Rundell with his dog, tramped the woods and mountain sides, till one day, many miles from Stone Hill, he picked up the peculiar track near the brook below the eastern slope of Mt. Misery. During the first part of April, the burrow of the fox dam was finally located, under a cleft in the ledge where digging was out of the question. Old hunters and trappers come to know the ways of the wood folks. They know that if a mother fox notes anything out of the ordinary, that, like tabby in the home, she will promptly remove her family to other quarters. Watching one day from a tree top, when Mrs. Reynard was away foraging for food, the hunter sat on a rock near the mouth of the den. Soon he saw the mother return with a chicken in her mouth, she saw the intruder, which was sufficient. Ten days later the burrow was deserted. The next day by means of careful spying with a glass from different points of vantage, the new home was discovered in a deserted woodchuck hole under a rick of old tree tops. That same night, two hours smart digging unearthed the whole litter, fourteen of them. Although the place where the baby foxes were carried is 10 miles from Mount Misery, yet for more than a month, every night, the mother came and prowled around the cage, calling with a peculiar short bark which the baby foxes instantly recognized and answered in their native tongue. Mr. Rundell says he could have shot her a dozen times, adding, "But I wouldn't do it for a hundred dollars. She's too valuable."

Blamed It On the Elephant

A couple of hundred local people were all cocked and primed Saturday to attend Hunt's great 3-ring circus, due to show in Lisbon. The treasury of the local advisory engineers had been rifled to provide tickets for the board. Tom Broome, Fred Gilbert, Evie Hiscox, John Glynn, Dennie Barnett and Frank Ray had pooled their funds to secure front seats. Several who had no children to take to see the animals, had made arrangements to borrow the necessary kids. All the morning the anxious small fry haunted the lot, but alas, no circus came! A deep gloom seemed to settle over the town, while the wailings of the juniors who had been promised a visit to the greatest show on earth were pitiful. It was rumored that the elephant had been attached in a distant town for his unpaid hay bill—hence the circus couldn't move.

NO. GROSVENORDALE

Misses Laura and Jeanne Martel, of New Haven, are spending three weeks vacation with their grandparents, Mr and Mrs. Napoleon Martel, of Cottage street.

Mr. and Mrs. Josephat Blanchette, who were recently married in St. Joseph's church, have returned from their wedding trip to Boston and Revere and are making their home in their newly-furnished apartment in Mr. Bonin's house on Main street.

Miss Priscilla Coderre, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Napoleon Coderre, a student at the Catholic academy of Putnam, is spending the summer holidays at her parents' home.

The St. Joseph's parochial school baseball team will meet the Danielson Convent team Monday evening on the Grosvenordale Co. athletic grounds.

PUTNAM

ARRESTED FOR CRASHING INTO STATE POLICE CAR

(Special to The Bulletin.)

PUTNAM, June 29—Richard Murdock of Pomfret will appear in justice court in Pomfret Tuesday to answer to a charge of reckless driving. Murdock's arrest was brought about late Saturday evening after he had driven his Ford coupe headlong into a roadster in the service of the state police department and had narrowly missed injuring State Officers John T. Murphy and Royal V. Scranton of the Danielson barracks.

Only presence of mind spared the officers from serious injury as they escaped from the path of the speeding, uncontrolled car by scaling an embankment on the side of the road. The officers were posted at the intersecting roads at the Gary school house on the state highway between Putnam and Pomfret and were stopping all incoming traffic, searching for a car which was reported to have evaded responsibility in Willimantic. When the traffic temporarily cleared, officers Murphy and Scranton retired to their automobile, which was parked south of the school house and well off the road. Their attention was suddenly attracted to the oncoming Ford being driven by Murdock.

State officers of Danielson barracks were patrolling the roads in this section and in Danielson today in search of a car thought to be a Buick sedan, which is alleged to have sideswiped a Plymouth sedan owned by the Tatem taxi service of this city and driven by Leodore Labonte of Putnam. The accident occurred Saturday evening at about eight o'clock in the village of Attawaugan. Labonte, was driving in the direction of Putnam. A car approaching, forced him to the side of the road, followed up its work by smashing broadsides into the public service vehicle, and continuing on its way at a steadily increasing rate of speed.

The Tatem owned car was not disabled by the crash. Labonte turned about and made an attempt to overtake the Buick. He followed the car to Dayville where he lost the trail. The incident was reported to the state police and an immediate search for the driver began. Lieut. R. V. Urquhart said this afternoon that the vague description of the car furnished by the taxi driver made it almost impossible for the police to track the hit and run driver.

Archille Bourdia of North Grosvenordale was arrested Sunday morning by State Officer H. Theodore Strand of the Danielson barracks on a charge of operating a motor vehicle while under the influence of liquor. Bourdia was the driver of a Ford touring car which crashed into a roadster owned and operated by Rudolph Nelson of Pomfret a few minutes before two o'clock this morning. Considerable damage was done to the Nelson car. Officear Strand in investigating the accident found Bourdia to be intoxicated. He was taken into custody after admitting to the officer that he was the driver of the Ford.

The funeral of Mrs. Martha Jane Converse, wife of James H. Converse of Thompson was held this afternoon at the home of her son on the Quadic road at 1:30 o'clock. Rev. Henry H. Hodge, pastor of the First Baptist church of this city officiated, assisted by Rev. Mr. Lyons of the Congregational church in Thompson. The service was attended by a large number of friends and relatives. The bearers were Henry L. Converse and Louis Converse, sons of the deceased, Dyer S. Elliott of Thompson and Alex McCleod of Manchester, N. H. Burial was in the family lot in the Grove street cemetery. A committal service at the grave was in charge of Rev. Mr. Hodge.

Two boys residing in the South Main street section of the city on Saturday morning reported to their parents that they had seen two men dragging a woman who was bound and gagged, down the railroad tracks in the general direction of the city dumping grounds. The youths stated that one of the men was carrying what appeared to be a revolver. The boys were playing in the Culvert woods on lower South Main street when their attention was attracted to the railroad embankment by the loud talking of the men whom they described as "foreigners." Frightened by the sight, the youngsters mounted their bicycles and rode breathlessly to their homes to reveal what they had witnessed. The incident was reported to the police and Captain A. J. Dubreuil made a hurried visit to the scene to investigate what has thus far proved to be nothing but a hoax. The Culvert is a lonely patch of woods in the south end of the city, where anything could happen and where plenty has happened. The area was named for a railroad culvert under which passes a swift brook.

Captain Dubreuil and others made a thorough investigation of the report but found nothing to substantiate the hair-raising sight reported to have been seen by the boys.

Mrs. Edmund Keane and daughter of Daniels street, left today for a two weeks stay at Hampton Beach, N. H.

Officer Joseph Page was transferred to day patrol duty when the monthly shifting of beats became effective in the police department today. Officer Harry Wallen is patrolling the north end and Officer Benoni Durand has been assigned to night patrol duty in the business section and south end of the city.

A double coat of iron red, rust resisting paint is being applied to the million gallon standpipe on Oak hill, which was completed last month.

WESTERLY

ROBT. L. SPARGO CATCHES AN 11-POUND BLACKFISH

(Special to The Bulletin)

WESTERLY, R. I., June 29—A well-conditioned 11-pound blackfish caught Sunday morning about 8.30 off The Naps, Watch Hill, attests the fishing ability of Robert L. Spargo of 14 Chestnut street, who is with the sales department of the South County Public Service company. Spargo was one of a crew of three who manned the power boat Alletta III, of Allen C. Whitford, the other two members being the sons of the owner, Allen O. and Kenneth C. Whitford. An early Sunday morning get-away was made to be on the fishing grounds off the Hill when the tide was right. Shortly after the tide turned Spargo felt a pull on his line, something like a hundred cunners with which the party up to that time had dealt. Then began the successful battle and the fish was hauled safely aboard and was soon on its way to Westerly to be admired and photographed with its captors. Heavy Sunday dates in Westerly was the only thing that prevented the boys from remaining longer on the fishing grounds and catching more and even larger fish.

Chief of Police Thomas E. Brown and Lieut. George H. Champlin have returned from attending a meeting of police and other officials in nearly every town of the state held at the State office building in Providence. The meeting was in the interests of the "Save-a-Life" campaign soon to be inaugurated in the six New England states and already showing results in eleven other states of the Union. The meeting was addressed by John J. Hall, of the National Bureau of Casualty Insurance Underwriters and precedes a formal proclamation about July 22nd by the New England governors of state-wide campaigns to be inaugurated August 1st.

The exceptionall pleasant weather Saturday and Sunday caused large numbers to visit the Westerly beaches, Watch Hill, Misquamicut, Atlantic Beach and Weekapaug. The Westerly police reported heavy through automobile traffic without serious accidents. This week end with the Fourth of July holiday coming Friday is expected to break all existing records and the police forces of the town and state look forward to an extremely busy week end.

NARRAGANSETT INDIAN KILLED BY N. H. EXPRESS

Horatio Seymour Stanton, a Charlestown, R. I., Narragansett Indian, and nearly the last of his tribe, father of the noted Westerly Indian Marathon runner, Horatio Seymour Stanton, "Chief Stanton," was struck and almost instantly killed by a New Haven road express Saturday afternoon about a half-mile west of the Wood River station. Mr. Stanton, who was employed by the N. H. railroad, was a member of the section gang of which James P. Tua is foreman. Working on the track the gang had tampers going. These are run by compressed air and make considerable noise. Stanton had been across the tracks to a nearby well to get water for the gang and was coming back when the express, which is due to pass Wood River at 3:18, caught him. His body was carried a mile and a quarter before the train was brought to a stop. An attempt was made to get Dr. Frances Kenyons, medical examiner for the town of Richmand, but she was away and Dr. M. H. Scanlon, medical examiner for Westerly, was called. Dr. Scanlon found that Mr. Stanton had a fracture of the skull, crushed brain, both legs cut off, his left arm nearly pulled off and multiple other bruises and fractures. Permission was given for the removal of the body to an undertaking parlor at Hope Valley. Mr. Stanton was born in Charlestown, the son of Joseph and Patience Dodge Stanton, and married Miss Cora Daisy Thomas who survives him with the following children: Horatio Seymour Stanton of Westerly, Cortland of Alton, Albert L., Tuckertown, Miss Emeline G. Stanton, Wood River Junction, Mrs. Elsie Fairweather, Providence, Miss Beatrice L. Stanton and Mrs. Reginalt C. Hazard of Wakefield. He is also survived by a sister Mrs. Hannah M. Hazard of Charlestown and a brother, Jeremiah Stanton of Kinbston, and leaves 12 grandchildren.

RHEUMATISM PAIN NEEDLESS

Relief in 7 to 10 minutes

A Good Recommendation

I have been suffering with a stiff back and pains in my feet for some time. At times, I could hardly get up from a chair. I tried several remedies and finally heard about your MUSLETONE. The relief I received from it has been wonderful. The pain has left me completely and I am able to walk much better now. Nothing else seemed to help me until I started to use your MUSCLETONE and you may feel sure that I will recommend it to my many friends. Mrs. Emma Zahn, 120 Fourth St., Norwich, Conn.

Wonderful Remedy for Rheumatism

I think MUSCLETONE the most wonderful remedy for rheumatism I ever used. I have had rheumatism for a good many years. My limbs and ankles were swollen and the muscles were very sore. I used many kinds of liniments and medicines with but little relief. Your MUSCLETONE was being advertised in our paper so I bought a bottle and after a few applications, the swelling has gone down and the pain is almost entirely gone. I can say it has helped me more than anything I ever used—and it is so pleasant to use. I have also used MUSCLETONE for a lame side and received wonderful rel

THE PLAYGROUND SEASON

Today marks the opening of the playground season in Norwich, which means that places are provided, supervisors are in attendance and certain forms of entertainment are furnished for those who are in need of them.

The problem of keeping the children out of mischief during the long vacation and providing wholesome recreation has led to the establishment of playgrounds. The movement has been underway for years. There were the days when it was established and maintained by special organizations or private funds. That has, for the most part, been succeeded by playgrounds maintained as a part of municipal undertakings. Last year there were 134 cities where the recreation activities were supported by private funds, 168 cities by a combination of public and private funds and 629 cities by public funds entirely. The total expenditure for public recreation last year was $33,520,000, while in 1909 the total spent for such purposes in the country was about $1,500,000. Thus there is seen the increased attention and support given to recreational activities in the last two decades.

In connection with playgrounds, it is impossible to overlook the protection that is furnished thereby. In these days, when the streets are filled with fast-traveling automobiles, the importance of keeping the children off the streets cannot fail to be recognized. Some are furnished with ample yards in which to entertain themselves and their friends. Others are not. In years past they have gravitated to the streets. There they have established their playgrounds, and with a reasonable degree of safety. The automobile removed the probability of safety and now much reliance is placed upon the playgrounds. Some place for the children to play must be expected. They need a proper amount of recreation and when they are on the playgrounds under the eye of instructors they are not going to be included in the auto casualty list, and there is a reasonable degree of certainty that they will not be engaged in mischief or something worse.

In the years they have been serving the children, the playgrounds have done much for the very ones who needed that oversight. It is to be expected that the good work will be continued.

A REASONABLE PLEA

In many cities there are public parks which never fail to attract large numbers of people during the day and also many during the evening. They go there for rest and for pleasure. They appreciate the benches that are provided or they like to recline on the grass when permitted. There they can enjoy the shade, the cool breezes, and get away from the hot streets.

It is more or less of a common practice for park visitors to carry papers with them and spread them out on the grass to sit upon. In some city parks a whole hillside may be seen dotted with persons sitting or lying on newspapers during an afternoon, out of the sun and in the fresh air. They enjoy the privilege, but when they get ready to go home it is too often the case that they leave the papers where they spread them. That means a disgraceful appearance of such places and much work for those who are charged with the responsibility of keeping the parks clean.

Everything considered, it is a reasonable plea which is made in communities which experience such conditions day after day that the individuals should give a bit of thought to this work which they are imposing upon others. Some going to the parks carry blankets or mats on which they sit or recline. When they return home they fold these up and carry them with them. They don't expect the park attendants to do this for them. If the newspapers were of as much value as the blankets or mats, it is probable they would be all carried away by those who bring them, but they are without value any longer and plenty more are to be had. The easiest way is simply to leave them where they are abandoned.

But the easiest way isn't always the best way. The heedless way doesn't contribute to good appearances. It would require so little time and effort to roll up the papers and take them away to some rubbish can that all could do it without loss of energy or dignity and in the doing they would be contributing to the good appearance of the park and eliminate a lot of needless work and expense. Such would, in fact, be only the kind of decent treatment of public property which one person should expect of another. It would be a small expression of gratitude for just such open places.

TIME FOR SETTLEMENT

The league of nations has been called upon to adjust certain differences that have developed in Europe. It has had better success with some than with others. Still, with the season in existence, it is to be expected that it will be employed when it is believed that its services will be effective.

Some time has passed since the trouble between the Arabs and Jews in Jerusalem broke out. The trouble has been quieted but there continues to be friction because of the "wailing wall" which the Jews believe they should not be driven from because of old traditions, but which the Arabs lay claim to and insist the right of the Jews to it is no different than anyone else.

This, of course, raises the question again as to control and, in an effort to reach an understanding and peaceful adjustment, an international commission has been named by the council of the league to hear the parties in interest and effect a settlement. This commission has set about its task and is hearing the arguments as to what the respective sides claim in the expectation that after the facts are submitted it will be possible to reach an impartial adjustment of the difficulty.

It has been made quite evident that as long as this question remains unsettled there will be strife. It may be ended temporarily only to break out later, all of which would keep the Holy Land in an unsettled state and quite the contrary to what should exist. With the commission going at its problem by getting the views of the Jews first and arranging to have this followed by the contentions of the Moslems, there should be before it an array of facts that should be helpful if not confusing. It is, nevertheless, the proper method of procedure.

While this state of affairs and conflict of claims is not a new one in the Holy Land, it is not improving by lack of action. Whether the commission can effect a settlement that will be satisfactory to all concerned is a question. It is not an easy task, but it is time it was found out what can be done. It was the league that mandated the territory involved and while the British were vested with the mandate responsibility the international committee named by the league should give assurance of an impartial adjustment if such can be accomplished.

SWIMMING LESSONS

Some learn to swim as readily as ducks. They grasp the fundamentals quickly, apply them with little practice and, once they have gotten the confidence and knack, they have acquired something which isn't going to be forgotten. It will, on the other hand, show constant improvement with consistent use.

On the other hand, there are those who require more time. They do not make as fast headway, but it is vital in their cases esppecially that they should get a thorough understanding of how to do it. With that impressed upon them, they will acquire the confidence and the control that makes it possible for them to take care of themselves in the water.

The disclosure that 144 boys have been given the benefit of instructions in the Y. M. C. A. gym indicates that they have been provided with varying degrees of safeguards when in the water. That doesn't mean that they can throw care to the winds and take all kinds of chances. Some of the best swimmers are caught in conditions which take their lives, but the knowledge of swimming is beneficial. Those who go into the water should know how to swim.

Those who can swim are able to participate in a delightful and wholesome exercise and, on the other hand, they are prepared against emergencies in many instances. Those who have received instructions have gotten an understanding which never existed before and through practice they will make perfect. They will not be justified in taking chances in deep water, but they will be able to make the most of their lessons and develop into swimmers even though their progress is less swift than some of their contemporaries.

The service that has been rendered the boys through these instructions is most valuable and it is to be sincerely hoped that it will mean the prevention of needless additions to the drowning accidents.

CONGRESSMAN PORTER

In the course of a year, many vacancies in the membership of congress are caused by death. This year includes in its list Congressman S. G. Porter of Pennsylvania, elected for ten terms from the city of Pittsburgh and for the last six years chairman of the important house committee on foreign relations.

Congressman Porter's duties took him to various parts of the world, so much so that he not only was held in the highest esteem in congress but gained an extensive and equally high regard abroad. He was a national legislator of whom the country, as well as Pittsburgh and Pennsylvania, had reason to be proud. His labors were constant and far-reaching. He was one of those who promoted the present foreign service of this country and he has given much time and attention to the carrying out the congressional provisions for government-owned buildings for our diplomats and consular officers.

He had a strong grasp of foreign problems and an influence in dealing with foreign problems that was most valuable. Not the least of his service has been in connection with the fight against the opium traffic. He has represented this country repeatedly at foreign conferences dealing with this subject and the influence he wielded there was always constructive. Nothing would have pleased him more than to have lived to see the day when complete control of opium production and distribution is effected.

The loss of such a man means much to congress. It deprives his district of most valuable representation and the country at large knows the difficulty in filling the place of such experienced and deeply interested legislators.

EDITORIAL NOTES

The man on the corner says: Some people can never learn from others how to live right.

A Belgian balloonist is going to try to reach an altitude of 50,000 feet. If he approaches that height he'll find no congestion of the airways.

Norwich would look no more beautiful than it should if it had a thousand times as many roses as are blooming just now.

The offer of swimming instructions and a pool by the Y. M. C. A. for the boys who cannot swim means a golden opportunity which should be improved by all eligible.

A BUSINESS LETTER.

"Have to wait while you sharpen your pencil, I suppose," grunted old man Hutchins.

"Oh, no," said Peggy Long, sweetly, "I have three here, all sharp."

"Hrmf! Then there'll be something else. Take this and try to make it look like a business letter and not a spelling exercise."

"Yes, Mr Hutchins."

"'Mister—got that?—'Mr. Walter Wood, Peoria.' What's the matter now?"

"My—er—ah—my throat tickles," was how Peggy explained the blush which rosed her cheeks at the name of Walter Wood.

"Throat, hey? Sure theres nothing wrong with your heart? Ought to see a specialist. Looks like a dangerous symptom to me."

"Hrmf! Try a cough drop. Ready? 'DearMr.Wood'—too fast? All right, then—'I sent you from this office to Peoria to get business, nottolookatthescenery'—what? —'not-to-look-at-the-scenery, I said. You say you have a stack of prospects, but I can't run a bo xfactory on prospects. Get orders or get out. Yoursverytruly, John-JHutchins.' Got it?"

Peggy nodded.

"That ought to make the young pup's throat tickle. Prospects! Hrmf!"

Peggy was about to seal the signed letter, when she took it from the envelope and beneath the big scrawled John J. Hutchins she penciled: 'Don't take the old bear too seriously. He's a lamb, really. P. L."

"There," she thought, "Walter's working his head off, and that'll keep him from being discouraged."

"To Mr. Walter Wood," said old man Hutchins a few days later. "Hrmf! Smith&Brown's order for 150,000 boxes received. Don't you know that boxes 11 by 8 will require special machines? You say it will grow into one of our biggest lines—it might if I don't go broke trying to fill the order. Do nothing till I fly over tomorrow."

"P. S.," penciled Peggy under the John J. Hutchins, "don't worry. The old bear is a bull on this line. I heard him growling it over with the factory supe. P. L. x x x."

"Hrmf! Mr.WalterWood,Peoria," dictated old man Hutchins on his return. "By the way, Miss Long," he broke off, "that young pup knows how to run an office. Everything properly filed. I went over the letters we sent him—what's the matter?—throat tickling again? Sure it's not your heart?"

"It's nothing," choked Peggy, fervently hoping Walter hadn't filed his correspondence without rubbing off all pencil marks.

"DearMrWood,'" resumed the old man, "'the cashier is readjusting your salary in a way which I think you will find satisfactory. Yoursverytruly, JohnJHutchins.'"

Peggy breathed a sigh of relief and was closing her notebook when "Hrmf!" went her employer.

"Hrmf! 'P. S.,'" he dictated. "'The Old Bear'—what's the matter, throat tickling again? Hrmf! 'The Old Bear intends this boost as a combined Christmas.' Got that?"

Peggy nodded feebly.

"'Combined Christmas and wedding present. And we'd better take him seriously this time. JohnJ.Hutchins—I should say P. L.' Got it?"

Peggy nodded even more dazedly than before.

"Hrmf! And under that," continued the old man, "to make it look like a regular business letter, put a row of x's."—Chicago News.

A Washington Bystander

By KIRKE L. SIMPSON
Associated Press Staff Writer

WASHINGTON, June 29—Those two big, genial political gladiators, Jim Watson of Indiana and Dave Walsh of Massachusetts, have this in common—they both can get a lot of fun out of the game as they go along.

And they are alike, also, in that both have a feeling for occasional expansive gestures across the political partisanship deadline.

Due to this, with Watson leading the way, the last day of the 18 months of tariff battle in the senate took an odd turn.

It could have been expected that senatorial nerves would have been frayed and senatorial tempers on edge after such a siege. On the contrary, everybody had a good time.

The last half hour, with Watson doing a regular, old fashion tariff stump speech, but illuminating it with repartee and a great deal of humor, was as pleasant as a basket of ships.

Senate Fun

"We always have a good time when I make a speech," Watson once said in the senate.

And he's right about it. He always yields to interruptions cheerfully and is quick and witty in his answers.

He was drawn off the track so much by Harrison of Mississippi, the democratic "tariff orator deluxe" as Watson called him, or by Brookhart of Iowa that the republican leader probably said very few of the things he started to say.

"If you gentlemen will let me alone, I shall be happy," Watson said at one point.

And then he added, in typically Watson fashion:

"And if you do not, I shall probably be happier."

Appreciation

But for the Watson effort, which wound the affair up with floor and crowded galleries chuckling over the final good-natured give-and-take of debate, Dave Walsh might not have thought to pay his highly unusual tribute from across the no-man's land of the center aisle to that granddaddy of the tariff, Smoot of Utah.

He did it right after the vote, expressing for his democratic brethren amazement at the unfailing industry of the finance committee chairman, appreciation of the spirit of fairness in which he had filled the difficult role, and the hope that the Utahan would take at once the rest he had earned.

And Simmons of North Carolina, ranking democrat of the committee, and Swanson of Virginia, joined in the tribute.

The sheer physical strain must have been terrific on a man of Smoot's age. Reed of Pennsylvania had been counted on to aid him, but the London naval conference removed him from the scene.

Smoot never weakened. And he looked as chipper as a youngster at the end.

Stories That Recall Others

All Alone.

Wayne age six was fond of wandering. He was picked up by a neighbor on the road and given a ride toward home. As they approached Wayne's home he asked the neighbor to drive on.

"Don't stop," he said, "I'm going on into town. They're all gone from home. There is no one there today except Edna and Lucille, Tom and Onie and Bud and Norma Jean. I'm lonesome and I'm going to town."

Synthetic.

A small child of doting parents developed a cough. It grew worse and the little frame seemed utterly racked with the effort.

The anxious mother took the baby to their family physician. Before the mother could finish explaining, the child was seized with another paroxysm of coughing. The doctor threw back his head and laughted heartily:

"Why," exclaimed, "that isn't a cough at all. She heard some one cough and it just imitating."

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Norwich's First Burying Ground.

Mr. Editor: It is two years today since I sent you my first communication about the First Burying Ground of Norwich. I am thus precise about the date for I notice a growing tendency to minimize the length of time which has passed since the first alarm was given when, by the merest chance I was made aware of the proposed desecration and hastened to lay the matter before the first selectman. Permit me to reiterate, weary as I am of doing so, that this graveyard is town property and as such can not be acquired by use or occupation or lost by neglect.

Town property is inalienable. Let me say also that private ownership has only very recently been claimed by persons who less than five years ago made no pretention to ownership and who were well informed about the cemetery. We are still being told we do not know where this graveyard is located in spite of the map of 1854 (which hangs in the Otis Library) in spite of Miss Caulkins' history, in spite of speeches made at the celebration of the 200th anniversary of the founding of Norwich and of the letter of Mrs. Woodworth, niece of Mrs. Barrett, which we find in the jubilee book of the celebration of the 250th anniversary and in spite of the town records, etc...etc...etc. As for landmarks we have the group of old fence poles, which have stood just where they are since before the memory of men and have always been considered to indicate the heart or nucleus of the plot and we have the old oak tree which has always been believed to stand near one of its boundary lines. Then we have the Mason monument described as "adjacent" to the cemetery and which was so very "adjacent" that it was at first thought to be on the cemetery and it was not until some time after its erection that Lyman Lee was able to convince, or persuade, those who put it up that it was just off the cemetery and on his land and obtain a price for 15 feet square.

We are also told that we, who are defending this historical spot, do not know how much ground we claim. Consulting the absolutely reliable history of Frances Mainwaring Caulkins we answer 77 square rods at least.

BURGESS BEDTIME STORY

Jerry Is Introduced

'Tis well that seldom may we know
To what our little folks may grow.
—Jerry Muskrat.

Peter Rabbit sat on the bank of the Smiling Pool and chuckled. He just couldn't help chuckling. Just one look at Jerry Muskrat's face was enough to make any one chuckle. "You have quite a family," said Peter politely.

Jerry Muskrat looked at the nine babies swimming around their mother and replied in a rather faint voice, "Yes, I certainly have plenty." At that, Peter laughed right out.

Mrs. Muskrat came ashore where it was low and the nine babies came after her. "Why don't you come over and meet your children?" she squeaked rather sharply.

Then Jerry began to swim in that direction. "I'm coming, my dear," said he, "I'm coming."

He swam over and went ashore beside Mrs. Muskrat. "Are—are you sure those are all ours?" he asked in a rather faint voice.

"Certainly, I'm sure!" squeaker Mrs. Muskrat, for her voice is inclined to be squeaky. "I guess I ought to know! I've fed them and taken care of them long enough. Come here, children, and meet your father. Perhaps some day you'll grow to be as good-looking as he is."

At that, Jerry Muskrat puffed himself up and tried to look important. But it was very difficult to feel as important as he tried to look, when he realized that all these youngsters running around were his and yet they were perfect strangers. One by one they were introduced, but for the life of him Jerry couldn't tell which ones he had met and which he hadn't before half of them had been introduced.

"They all look alike, don't they?" he ventured.

"Nothing of the kind!" retorted Mrs. Muskrat sharply. "How can you say such a thing, Jerry Muskrat? Some look like you and some look like me and some don't look like either of us."

"They don't any of them look like either of us, so far as I can see," ventured Jerry.

"Are you sure those are all ours?" he asked in a rather faint voice

"What do you mean?" snapped Mrs. Muskrat.

"Well, their coats are not the same color as ours," replied Jerry. "They're not brown like ours. They look to me gray. By the way, that reminds me. When I saw them last they didn't have any fur coats."

Mrs. Muskrat whirled like a flash. "When did you see them?" she demanded.

"Well, I didn't exactly see them," explained Jerry, "but I touched them. And they certainly didn't have any again."

"Oh, a long time ago," replied Jerry. "When they were very little, I went into the house when you were out, but I didn't stay a minute."

It is just as well you didn't," retorted Mrs. Muskrat. "I'll have to admit that their coats are somewhat gray now, but they'll turn brown soon enough. Jerry Muskrat, you ought to be proud of such a family. Yes, sir, you ought to be proud of such a family. I'm proud of them, if you're not."

"But I am," protested Jerry. "Truly, I am. You're used to them, but you know it is all very new and surprising to me. You certainly told the truth when you said we had plenty. If we had any more I don't know what we should do with them."

"Just what we shall do with these," replied Mrs. Muskrat. "A few more or less don't make much difference. They are all darlings, anyway."

CHILD TRAINING

Developing Integrity

Lelia Munsell

When I was just a little girl I remember going with my mother to a store to pay a bill. The clerk made a mistake in her favor of almost two dollars. She called his attention to it. He looked at her gratefully. "It is not everyone who would correct a mistake like that," he said.

In spite of the old saying that anyone who lies will steal, there are many persons who would not knowingly defraud another yet whose word is not altogether dependable. Mother was as honest in word as in act. She did not even tell "white lies." Such an example in any home would help to make truthfulness the habit.

Why do children ever lie? So far as my observation goes there are in general three contributing factors. You will probably think of others.

First, fear; very often the lie is an instinctive gesture to shield oneself from the consequences of a mistake or of some wrong-doing.

Second, example; sometimes the child's environment includes those who seem to benefit from falsehoods.

Third, ignorance of standards; the very little child knows little of standards; he is not immoral but unmoral. His recognition and choice of standards will be determined by his experiences.

Here are incidents to illustrate the first and second factors:

Fear: I kept a drinking glass in the bathroom. One day my daughter discovered a white powder in this glass. "I didn't notice it till I had taken a drink," she said. "What do you suppose it is?" I had a suspicion that my little son Max was the culprit. I asked him if he had put anything in that glass. He denied having done so. He had always been quite truthful so I said nothing more. An hour later he came to me and asked, "You won't punish me if I tell you about the glass?" I assured him I would not. "Well, I wanted to see how Louise's new tooth powder would taste so I put some in the glass and put some water on it." "What made you think I would punish you if you told the truth?" I asked, in turn. "Well, you looked awful cross about it."

Example: I was visiting with the same lad, and doing some pressing. In some way I awkwardly knocked the iron to the floor. It struck on a corner and made a deep dent in the hardwood floor. I suppose my face must have betrayed me, for I remember that my first thought was to say nothing about it. Max said, "We won't tell her who did it, will we?" I could better have afforded to put in a new floor than to have let pass that opportunity to teach my boy to be courageously truthful, so I replied, "Of course we'll tell her."

A neighbor had a small boy whom we saw take some straps from our garage. The next day he denied it. When urged to tell the truth, he said, "Ma made me promise not to tell if you asked me. She said it would disgrace her. Don't let her know I told, will you?" At fourteen that boy found his way to the reform school.

With regard to standards: This factor played an important part for the child in each of the incidents. The reader, interested in the subject of child development, might find it quite worth while to consider the probable effect of each of these experiences on the child's recognition of standards, his comprehension of their meanings and his reaction, also to note the direction of the slight inclination towards either higher or lower ideals which finally remained

Rupture

By Frank D. Jennings, M. D., Brooklyn

(From Gorgas Memorial Institute)

A rupture is one of the commonest defects in the human machine and is an example of how even as perfect a mechanism as ourse has defects. The technical name for a rupture is hernia. This is a much better title, because the word "rupture" denotes a tearing or breaking process, and we now know that no such thing occurs. In fact, most hernias are the direct result of a defect which existed at birth.

There are many kinds of hernias. Some of them are on the inside of the abdomen. Others, and these are the most common, show themselves on the surface of the body.

The abdominal cavity is like a house, the walls of which have certain openings. It is the existence of these apertures that leads to development of hernia. They are of different sizes, and through them go blood vessels, nerves and other important structures. But if a hole is a little too large for its special purpose, a defect is created through which any of the contents of the abdomen may slip out. When such a slip happens, then and there a hernia ocurs, or begins.

A hernia is a bag, or sac, made of peritoneum, the smooth, shiny membrane which lines the abdominal cavity. This sac may be as small as an olive or large enough to reach to the knees. It may be empty or may contain almost any of the viscera. Large sacs may get through small openings, but large openings always mean large hernias.

The contents of the sac may slip in and out of the abdomen easily. If so, the hernia is called reducible. If the contents cannot be returned to the cavity, it is called irreducible. If it is irreducible and contains intestine, thus shutting off the current of the bowel, it is termed incarcerated. And if, in addition, its blood supply is cut off, it is called strangulated.

The chief dangers associated with a rupture are those of incarceration and strangulation for these conditions mean that the contents of the sac are trapped and literally strangulated. Strangulation may occur in any hernia, at any time, at any age. When it occurs there is pain at the site of the hernia, with vomiting, prostration and inability of the bowels to act. It is a very serious condition for which the only relief is prompt operation. The danger increases with every hour that operation is delayed.

While surgical operation is the accepted method of treatment for the relief of hernia, many individuals thus afflicted wear a truss. The use of a truss is beneficial in navel rupture in the new born, in certain hernias in children, and in those patients who, for one reason or another, cannot be operated on. In adults a well applied truss will keep the sac empty but will not cure the rupture. It is a good precaution against strangulation.

Increased knowledge of the mechanics of hernia and improved methods of operating enable the surgical profession to cope with this problem more successfully all the time. The mortality of the operation is almost negligible. The increase in comfort of living and in the ability to enjoy activities, unrestricted by hernia or by hernia and truss, the freedom from risk of strangulation, the added earning capacity ensured by cure of a rupture, are all reasons why anyone possessing a hernia would do well to be operated on and be rid of it.

Little Talks on Thrift

Well Ordered Vacation A Good Type Of Health Insurance

A well-ordered vacation is by no means a waste of time. It is a good example of thrift. For it is just as thrifty to conserve one's health and energies as it is to save and conserve one's material resources.

These thoughts are appropriate at this time as the summer vacation period is now at hand. There is a very close connection between the vacation problem and the health problem because in the final analysis a vacation has come to be considered a necessity in these days of strenuous activity.

Recently there was completed a remarkable survey of health conditions in the city of New York. The health facts discovered there may, with more or less accuracy, be recorded as typical of the entire country and are, therefore, of general public value. Here are some of the facts regarding health conditions in the nation's largest city:—From 125,000 to 200,000 persons are continually sick in bed and from 250,000 to 800,000 more are constantly ill, of the 70,000 deaths per year, a very large percentage are from sickness that might have been prevented or postponed; the total annual outlay for the care of disease is $150,000,000; the annual loss in wages due to illness is $75,000,000; amount spent annually in the prevention of ill-health, $8,500,000.

We hear much about losses incurred by the public through fraudulent or unsound investments. Needless and preventable losses of time and money through ill-health constitute an even heavier economic drain on the country.

Health thrift is more important than money thrift because without money we still can work and win, but without health we are helpless and advancement is practically impossible.

Fortunately, more thought constantly is being given to thrift of health. It was recently announced that the Rockefeller Foundation last year spent more than $21,000,000 in practical and experimental medical work while within recent years it has spent $144,000,000 for the same noble purpose.

Vacations are taken for the purpose of conserving one's health. When they are so planned and carried out as to be helpful along these lines they are by no means a waste of time—they are, quite to the contrary, a good example of thrift.—By S. W. Straus, President American Society for Thrift.

Black Lace and Crystal

WASHINGTON, June 29 — (AP) — Black lace continues in high favor for afternoon and evening wear.

Miss Helen Carr, daughter of Colonel and Mrs. Daniel Carr, is wearing a striking afternoon outfit of black lace with crystal accessories. The long dress of black lace has a matching wide brimmed hat.

Her long necklace and ear-rings are of crystal and her initials in crystal adorn her black hand bag.

Own Several Homes

WASHINGTON, June 29—(AP)—Home that see their mistresses only a few months in the year are common in the capital. With leisure and means to travel, many women prefer their own homes, wherever they may be. They furnish homes in Washington, but close them six or eight months of the year.

Janitors of North Carolina public buildings go to school at a summer session for them at the state college.

A HISTORY OF CONNECTICUT INDUSTRY

Released by Manufacturers Association of Connecticut

New York Insulated Wire Company, Wallingford.

An industrial history of Connecticut would be incomplete without reference to The New York Insulated Wire company, located on North Cherry street, Wallingford.

This company, the second oldest in the country in its line, was originally located at Reading, Mass., having been established there in 1884. Outgrowing its quarters there, it came to Wallingford in April 1889 and has occupied the present location since that time.

Two important building additions have been made to the plant and during the entire life of the company, the plant has been under the direct supervision of Mr. William Pole to whom is largely due the credit for the very important position it occupies in the electrical trade. The motto of the company is today and always has been "quality first."

This company produces a complete line of rubber insulated wire and cable, friction tape, splicing compounds of copper wire and immense pounds and lightning gasket packing. They consume annually thousands of quantities of rubber, cotton yarns, saturating and finishing compounds and other items.

The finished products of this company are well and favorably known the world over.

Offices are maintained in Boston and New York with distributors at advantageous points.

The officers of the company are: Wilmont R. Evans, Boston, president; Ferdinand Wilcox, New York, secretary; Robert F. Herrick, Boston, treasurer; Oliver P. Greenwood, Wallingford, vice president and general manager; Louis O. Brewster, New York, vice president in charge of sales.

Plant operations are in charge of William Poole, general superintendent; G. A. Trowbridge, assistant to general superintendent; and William McLaughlin master mechanic.

Never Had a Good Appetite

"I was very nervous and weak and never had a good appetite. Almost every day I would have to lie down. My aunt used Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and so did other women. I often wondered if it would help me but I hesitated to try it. After the first bottle I felt better, so I kept on. I have already taken five bottles and feel as strong as can be."—Jane Witek, 263 Lawrie Street, Perth Amboy, N. J.

NORWICH BEATS PUTNAM 56 TO 52 IN GOLF MATCH

Mashie wielders from the Norwich Golf club invaded the Putnam Country club links at Putnam Saturday afternoon and after the divots had fallen the Norwich boys were victorious by a 56 to 52 score. Norwich sent up a team of 26 players who upheld the honor of the local club. As Putnam had a team of 27 players some of the Norwich men were forced to play two Putnam opponents.

One of the high spots in the day's play was the eagle two on the sixth hole turned in by Noble C. Miller of the Norwich aggregation. Miller had a long drive from the pulpit tee, the ball sailing out over the trees to the fairway. Miller on his second took a full mashie-niblick shot and the ball fell dead to the pin, rolled a few feet and trickled into the cup.

The Norwich team was royally entertained at dinner by their Putnam foes, and, as they say, a good time was had by all. The scores:

CHARGED WITH FAIRURE TO GRANT RIGHT OF WAY

At the corner of Hamilton and Smith avenues about 8.30 o'clock Sunday evening two cars crashed together, resulting in damage to both machines. Herbert Palmer of Middletown, driver of one of them, which is owned by Henry K. Deslinger of Connecticut Agricultural college, Storrs, was summoned into court on a charge of failure to grant the right of way.

The other machine involved in the crash was operated by Christopher Troeger of 26 North A street, Taftville, and is owned by Henry Troeger of P. O. Box 143, Taftville. After striking the Troeger machine Palmer is alleged to have driven his car for 50 feet before coming to a stop against a bank.

The Troeger car had its front axle, left front fender and headlight bent, a broken spring and a damaged steering rod. The other car suffered a bent right front spring, two right fenders badly bent and the radiator damaged. The crash was investigated by Officers Shahan and Dunion.

Observing the 50th anniversary of their wedding, Mr. and Mrs. August Block of Jennings, Mo., took their first airplane trip.

FLAG PRESENTATION MADE TO C. E. SOCIETY AT CONGREGATIONAL CHURCH

There was a good sized attendance at the First Congregational church, Norwich Town, Sunday evening when special patriotic services were held in place of the usual Christian Endeavor service. The noteworthy feature was the presentation of a United States flag to the C. E. society by the Daughters of Union Veterans of the Civil War, Clara Barton tent, No. 7. The program opened with organ prelude by Herbert L. Yerrington, followed by the Star Spangled Banner. As Organist Yerrington played Onward Christian Soldiers, Rev. G. F. Bailey, the speakers of the evening and members of the C. E. society marched into the church and took seats on the platform. A trio, Theodore Sterry, violin, Edward Jordan, cornet, and Mr. Yerrington at the organ, played a very fine instrumental number. Reginald Avery read the Scripture from the 12th chapter of Romans. After the hymn, The Land We Love Is Calling, prayer was offered by Rev. Mr. Bailey.

This was followed by the presentation of the flag by Mrs. William F. Bogue, president of the Daughters of Union Veterans, who said in part:

"I consider it a great honor to be with you tonight on this splendid occasion. The date of this beautiful flag which I shall present to you tonight, as you know, was June 14, 1777. Next to the love of mother in every human heart comes the love that is born in the heart of every native American for the flag of our country. These two loves are different from any other; they never flicker or die out. Under this dear old flag every man is free to think, labor and worship his God as his conscience dictates, and no power on earth can molest or prevent him. And now in the name of Clara Barton tent, No. 7, Daughters of Union Veterans of the Civil War, I present to your Christian Endeavor society this flag and may it ever be an inspiration to you in your noble work."

In accepting the flag, Miss Eleanor Smith, the C. E. president, said:

"In behalf of the Young People's Society of Christian Endeavor I wish to express our sincere thanks and appreciation for this generous gift of your organization, the Daughters of Union Veterans. You may be assured it will be prized by us and our successors not only on it's own account, but also for the splendid, patriotic spirit of the donors."

After a cornet solo by Edward Jordan, a brief period was devoted to patriotic exercises with salute to the flag and several five minute addresses. Rev. Walter Vey, of Lebanon, spoke on Our Flag, Its Symbolic Meaning; Rev. John Waldron of Franklin, spoke on The Loyalty to the Flag; Miss Gertrude Avery's topic was, Why Does India Want a Fourth of July? Christ For the World We Sing was the closing hymn, with benediction by Rev. Mr. Bailey.

Rev. Mr. Vey spoke in part as follows:

As our flag floats in the breeze let us never forget that it is the symbol of our freedom, a freedom secured at an awful cost in suffering and blood and tears. It is not only the symbol of an institution but of a struggle, of deovtion to the right, and of a great love of freedom.

It was courage and devotion that put it where it is, and it is courage and devotion that has kept it there. It has never been pulled down and never shall while courage and devotion burn in the hearts of our free-born citizens.

All that the flag symbolizes exists in the hearts of men and women. Courage and devotion, justice and mercy do not grow out of the ground but exist in your heart and mine. If those great virtues are not found in us the flag is meaningless. In the last analysis the individual is the measure and justification of the flag. The flag is a reflection of men's hearts. Whether it will command the respect of men depends on us. The flag has never been pulled down by an enemy, but it is pulled down and trampled in the dust as far as I am concerned when I fail to do justly, love mercy and to walk humbly with God. When I give to others or demand of others an abject servility. I must want democracy for myself but I want to be democratic to others.

Rev. Mr. Waldron emphasized the fact that "loyalty to the flag was loyalty to country." No person is what he should be without loyalty to the country. Loyalty to the flag is strengthened by a higher loyalty to God. Render to Caesar the things that are Caesar's and to God the things that are God's. Rev. Mr. Waldron quoted many statesmen in the course of his inspiring talk. During the service he also made mention of Old Home Day at Franklin Congregational church Sunday, August 3rd. There will be special music and Lieutenant Governor Rogers of Connecticut is to be the special speaker.

Miss Avery, who returned recently from India, was the closing speaker. She mentioned how truly thrilled she was when hearing a familiar patriotic tune in Bombay. Miss Avery said "I became conscious that I was an American and was very proud to be. So with all people, Indians are no exception."

THREE NORWICH THEATERS UNDER WARNER CONTROL

The expected control of the three active theaters in Norwich by Warner Bros. corporation, was accomplished Friday, when the corporation took over the lease of the Breed theater, formerly operated by Paul and Joseph Nejime. The lease has two years to run to September, 1931, at an annual rental of $2,340, payable $45 weekly in advance.

Already operating the Palace theater, where S. B. Hamilton is manager, the Warner Bros recently took over the Broadway theater, which is now in charge of James W. Wiest, formerly in charge of the Newark, N. J., territory for Warner Bros.

Norman Fitz, who has been at the Broadway theater for a year, for the previous owners, concluded his services there Saturday night and is considering other business connections.

BOUND OVER FOR SUPERIOR COURT TRIAL

Probable cause being found Allen G. Gordon, 42, of 57 Twelfth street, blind piano tuner, who was before the city court on a charge of rape Saturday morning, was bound over to the next criminal term of the superior court. He was released under bonds of $2,500 furnished by his sister. The accused, arrested last Wednesday on complaint of the parents of a 13-year-old Greeneville girl whom he is alleged to have assaulted, was tried the following morning in court. At the request of City Attorney Charles W. Cassidy the case was continued to Saturday.

MEMBERSHIP MEETING TO HAVE GOOD ATTENDANCE

An attendance of about 100 is promised for the Norwich chamber of commerce membership banquet which is to be held this (Monday) evening at 7 o'clock at Norwich inn. During the banquet hour, Joseph C. Worth and William G. Park will be the leaders for community singing and Waldo Newbury is to be at the piano. Violin numbers will be given by Henry Brynan.

The speakers are to be President Aurin O. Payson of the American Thermos Bottle company and John Richardson, secretary of the chamber of commerce. President Frank R. Murdy will preside at the opening of the programme and will introduce State Attorney Arthur M. Brown, who is to be toastmaster.

After the speaking programme there will be dancing for which Thumm's orchestra will play.

FOUND CARRYING BOTTLE OF STRONG SMELLING LIQUID

After a breach of the peace complaint had been made Sunday against John Williams, 31, a Porto Rican, said to be proprietor of a club on Thames street, Officer Albert Lamphere arrested the man late in the afternoon as he met him coming around the Thames square corner.

At the time Williams was carrying something in a paper bag under his arm, which he said was a bottle of water, but one whiff was enough to convince the policeman that it was something far different. When Williams was brought to police headquarters he was locked up on two charges, breach of the peace and selling intoxicating liquor.

WORK SOON TO BEGIN ON THAMES CHANNEL CONTRACT

Word has been received by the Norwich chamber of commerce that the contract for the completion of the work of dredging the Thames river channel as far as this city had been forwarded by the army engineers department to the Morris and Cumming Dredging company on June 24.

This, according to the information received here, makes the limit date for the beginning the work July 28. When finished this will complete the deepening of the channel all the way into Norwich harbor.

Nine hundred ninety-nine persons died from accidents that occurred in their homes during 1929 in Missouri, while 939 were killed in traffic accidents.

ARTIST STUDENTS RENDER PIANO RECITAL PROGRAMME

New Haven and Norwich artist students of Professor Frank Farrell of Bridgeport were heard in an informal piano recital Saturday afternoon at 4:30 o'clock at Slater hall annex with a programme which was heard with warm appreciation by an audience of music-lovers, who found much to praise and enjoy in the work of the student players.

The following was the programme given:

Sonata in C 1st movement (Mozart), Frantaisie Impromptu (Chopin), Miss Florence Paul, New Haven; Auf Flugelen Des Gesanges (Mendelssohn-Heller), Etude D flat (Liszt), John Cavallaro, Jr., New Haven; Aufschwung op. 12, No. 2 (Schumann), Cracovienne Fantastique (Paderewski), Miss Stella Glowacki, Norwich; Die Forgelle (Schubert-Heller), Miss Elizabth Lyman, Norwich; Romance—Violin solo (Svendsen), Miss Beatrice Lamothe, Plainfield, student of Herbert Rich; Novelette (Schumann), Rene Dugas, Norwich; Clair de Lune (Debussy), Esther Bixby Godson, Norwich; Concerto G minor (Mendelssohn), Miss Alma Boutilier, soloist, Norwich, Mr. Olson at 2nd piano; Concerto B flat minor (Tschaikowsky), James Olson, soloist, Norwich, Miss Boutilier at 2nd piano.

The two closing numbers were brilliant contributions to the recital. In the Mendelssohn concerto, Miss Boutilier displayed the clear-cut technical equipment with which she is endowed and in the Tschaikowsky concerto Mr. Olson's work was noteworthy for its fine tonal effects and artistic execution. One of the features was the fine performance of John Cavallaro, Jr., of New Haven, who is only 12 years old, and an interesting innovation was the violin solo by Miss Beatrice Lamothe of Plainfield, a talented pupil of Herbert Rich.

Miss Mary Stewart, Miss Vivian Moreau and Miss May Patten were the ushers.

CORONER MAKES FINDING IN MOTORCYCLE FATALITY

Coroner Edward G. McKay has made a finding that there is not sufficient evidence to determine whether there was criminal negligence on the part of anyone in the death on June 7 of Haakon Garman, 25, late of Killingworth, when his motorcycle was in collision with an automobile operated by a hit-and-run driver.

In his finding, the coroner says:

The above mentioned collision occurred on the Norwich-New London highway in the town of Waterford in the vicinity of a curve known as Fitzgerald's curve. The highway runs generally north and south and is a winding road. There is a grade to the road extending from the Connecticut college on the south to Quaker Hill on the north. The highway is surfaced with concrete and is about eight feet wide. The collision occurred on the northerly end of a curve just south of the Kelly residence. On the night in question the surface of the highway was wet and there was a light fog and heavy mist. It was raining at the time of the collision. Philip Orenstein was driving his Ford truck southerly on the said highway from Montville toward New London. He was accompanied by his wife and children. His wife with one child sat in the front seat with him and one of his boys was sitting near the back of the body of the truck. As they came in the vicinity of the scene of the collision the occupants of the Orenstein truck stated that a large sedan automobile overtook and passed them. Just as this later car was passing them the motorcycle that the said Garman was operating approached from the opposite direction. The Orensteins claim that the sedan was operating without lights and gave no signal as it passed them. When the sedan passed they claim that it proceeded on the east side of the highway and that the motorcycle was in collision with this car.

When the state police arrived shortly after the collision occurred they found the Orenstein automobile partly on the west shoulder of the road and partly in the deep brush west of the highway. The motorcycle that the said Garman was operating was partly on the concrete surface and partly on the shoulder of the road. The front wheel of the motorcycle was near the left front wheel of the truck. The said deceased was lying on the westerly edge of the concrete about 7½ feet to the rear of the Orenstein truck. His injuries indicated that death must have been instantaneous.

There were no indications on the Orenstein truck that the motorcycle had collided with the Orenstein truck. It would seem that the deceased had probably slid along the highway underneath the Orenstein truck. After examining the motorcycle it was found that there was a dent in the left side of the gasoline tank underneath the driver's seat, the left handle bar was bent out of position and away from the frame of the motorcycle.

There are two theories that may be advanced for the cause of the death; one is that the motorcycle skidded along the highway and the deceased received his injuries by striking the highway and the second explanation is that he was struck by another motorcycle. The latter theory would explain the damage on the motorcycle and might explain the several injuries that the deceased received. However, there was no other vehicle found or identified except by the Orensteins. Their identification was naturally very meager.

I am satisfied and find that the death of Haakon Garman was caused by the collision of the motorcycle on which the said Garman was riding and an unidentified automobile but whether or not there was criminal negligence on the part of any person there is not sufficient evidence to determine.

CHARGED WITH DRIVING UNDER LIQUOR INFLUENCE

Nichol Vitiaz, 39, of Scotland, was arrested Sunday evening on a charge of driving an automobile while under the influence of liquor, as the result of the erratic course followed by his machine. John C. Atterbury, Jr., of Blissville, noticed the car and complained to Officer Wojtkiewicz, who was near the Tannery on North Main street. The officer jumped upon the running board of the Atterbury machine and put chase after the Vitiaz car, overhauling it at Tafts station. Vitiaz was brought to the station by Sergeant Matthew Delaney and Officer Wojtkiewicz and was booked for appearance in the city court this (Monday) morning.

NORWICH SMALL BOYS FOUND AT OCEAN BEACH

Two small boys, Sam Grillo, 13, of Spring street, and William Thomas, 9, of Fountain street, were picked up at Ocean Beach, New London, late Sunday evening and taken to the New London police station. The Norwich police were notified and they in turn acquainted the parents of the youths of their whereabouts. An uncle of one of the boys and the father of the other went to New London Sunday evening for them.

WEDDINGS

Amburn-Krug.

Miss Alice Krug, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frank A. Krug of Preston City, was united in marriage with Fred V. Amburn, youngest son of Mr. and Mrs. Hiram Amburn of Montville, Saturday afternoon, at an attractive June wedding on the lawn of the home of the bride's parents. The ceremony, which took place before a bank of June roses, was performed by Rev. George W. Clarke, pastor of the Preston City Congregational church. The couple was unattended.

The bride, who was charming in a gown of white georgette over white silk, carried a shower bouquet of bridal roses, and she wore a diamond platinum pendant, the gift of the bridegroom. A buffet lunch was served to members of the immediate families after the wedding ceremony.

Mr. and Mrs. Amburn left on a wedding trip through the New England states to Niagara Falls, Canada and Detroit, Mich., and other points of interest. For traveling the bride wore a King blue flat crepe ensemble. Upon their return they will be at home to their many friends about August 1 in their own newly furnished home on the Gardner Lake road in the town of Montville.

The bride, who received numerous gifts of dishes, linen, silverware and money, has been employed for the past four years at the Thermos Co., while the bridegroom is employed at the cutlery in Thamesville.

Smith-Warfield

The marriage of Miss Grace Beatrice Rose, daughter of Mrs. George F. Warfield of Collins street, Hartford, to Dallas Forbes Smith, son of the Rev. Charles Smith of South Harwick, Mass., retired pastor of the Uncasville Methodist Episcopal church, took place Saturday at 1 o'clock at the home of the bride's mother, Rev. John F. Johnstone, pastor of the First Presbyterian church, performed the ceremony. The bride was given in marriage by her mother. There were no attendants. The bride wore a pale pink chiffon gown and carried a bouquet of yellow daisies and white sweet peas. A reception followed the ceremony, the house being decorated with ferns, gladiolus and delphinium. Mr. and Mrs. Smith left for an extended motor trip. They will be at home after August 1 at the Westminster school, Simsbury. Mr. Smith attended Dartmouth college. The guests at the wedding included the father of the bridegroom and his sisters, Miss Susan G. Smith of Norwich and Mrs. Perry E. Howe of Worcester.

Berkman-Golub.

A very pretty wedding was solemnized at the Prospect House, Fitchville, Saturday evening when Miss Ruth Golub, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Sander Golub of Preston, became the bride of Isadore Berkman, son of Mr. and Mrs. Nathan Berkman of Yantic. Rabbi M. A. Tarkel of Norwich officiated.

The bride was very charming in a gown of ivory satin and carried a bouquet of roses and lilies of the valley. She had as her maid of honor her sister, Miss Sylvia Golub. Samuel Berkman, brother of the bridegroom, was best man. The couple were also attended by six ushers and six bridesmaids. The bride was given in marriage by her father.

After the ceremony, covers for 200 were laid, these being close friends and relatives, both local and from Pittsburgh, Chicago and New York, and New Jersey.

Music was furnished by two orchestras and dancing was enjoyed by all.

The bride and groom have left on a wedding trip which includes New York city, Niagara Falls and Canada and will be at home to their many friends at their newly furnished home in Yantic after June 7.

SPEEDBOAT CHICKEY SEIZED WITH 500 SACKS OF LIQUOR

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, June 29—A United States Coast Guard patrol boat, one of the 125-foot type, brought to this port early today with some 300 sacks of liquor, the speedboat Chickey, of New York. The rum-runner was captured near Little Gull Island after a hot chase and after a one-pounder from a machine gun of the patrol boat had rattled a tattoo against the fleeing craft. The speedboat was capable of making 18 knots an hour and hit that pace when pursued. The coast guard patrol boat could make but 14 knots, so to overhaul the rum-runner, the machine gun was resorted to.

The Chickey covered a distance of but a few miles in seeking to escape and was in the race when her captain decided to avoid the experience of the crew of The Wild Duck, when several of the latter were shot, three being killed.

The Chickey was brought in here about two weeks ago as a suspect but was released when her captain, Reeves, was put under bonds, for future appearance. Reeves was not aboard the Chickey when it was seized today. The seizure was made in waters of New York state, so she was taken in tow late today for New York.

Sailor Got Away in Cab

Henry A. Schooley, sailor, was arrested Saturday night by State Police Officers Eric Swanson and William E. MacKenzie charged with driving while under the influence of liquor. He was locked up and will be in Waterford town court Monday. Schooley was driving his car in Waterford about 10 o'clock and when it collided with another auto, it overturned. Schooley left his car in the highway and hired a cab, which conveyed him to 1 Mitchell court, where he was arrested an hour later.

A section of West street was disturbed early Sunday morning when a housekeeper for a Washington, D. C., woman manifested signs of mental derangement, due, it was claimed, to mania on the subject of Christian Science. Her ravings on that theme aroused the neighborhood and when friends and relatives endeavored to quiet her she became even more violent and a Christian Science healer who was called in met the same noisy and repellant treatment. When the woman rose from her bed and began wrecking the furniture and ornaments her relatives were notified by members of the household, also a message telephoned to police headquarters. As she has had similar mental stress in other years, her relatives consented to have her committed to Norwich State hospital for observation and treatment.

Detective Sergeant John Cavanaugh and Patrolman Cornelius Moriarty were sent to the house and with great effort placed the afflicted woman under restraint. She was brought to headquarters and was examined by Drs. George P. Cheney and Thomas J. Murray.

MRS. GEORGE WHITTLESEY FINDS HOME ENTERED

Mrs. George Whittlesey, Nathan Hale street, but who is now residing at the Crocker house, informed the police this evening that her home had been broken into, but so far as it was possible to determine nothing had been removed. Mrs. Whittlesey discovered the break this afternoon when she went to the house and found windows and entrances open. She said that entrance had been obtained during the past 48 hours.

CARELESS WOMAN SHOPPER HAS HER $85 STOLEN

Thomas Smith, who spends much of the time loafing and at times resides at 25 Shapley street, was arrested Saturday night charged with theft, having stolen $85 from Mrs. George Chapman, 11 Colman street. The money was found on him when he was searched at police headquarters. Mrs. Chapman went to a store at 32 Main street and while she made a purchase, carelessly left her purse on a counter. Smith, who was in the store, observed the wallet and stole it, successfully covering his movements and leaving the store. Smith went to a building in the rear of the Firemen's lunch room, 231 Bank street and was observed as he entered. He was also observed to remove money from the pocket book, which later he left in the building. He was known to his observer, who notified the police. Automobile Patrol Officer Clarence Martin and Patrolman Frank Philopena went to a North Bank street restaurant where Smith was found and arrested. He stoutly denied his guilt, but he had no denial to offer when the money was found on his person.

Several violators of the city's traffic ordinances were arrested this afternoon and included Frank Camarada, 24 Elizabeth street, Norwich, apprehended by Patrolman Lawrence Fardy charged with parking overtime on State street; Frank H. Adams, Groton Long Point, another parker and Irving W. Gadbois, 115 Truman street, also an overtime parker. Lawrence E. Olsen, 110 Willetts avenue is charged with passing an automobile traffic signal, at Bank and Shaw street, having been arrested by Patrolman Henry Sylvia. William P. Hoffman, New York ignored an automotic traffic signal on Ocean avenue, corner of Glenwood and was arrested by Automobile Patrol Officer William Corcoran.

A Ford sedan owned by Ernest Byron, 42 West Pleasant street, was stolen in East Lyme this afternoon. The car carries Connecticut markers, 2188.

The New London police tonight were requested by the police of Meriden to be on the lookout for a car carrying New York markers and containing three young men. The occupants of the auto are suspected of having stolen a wallet belonging to another autoist while all were using a lavatory of a service station in the latter city.

POWERS AND DUEVEL TIE IN WEEK-END TOURNAMENT

In the week-end selected-best-nine-holes tournament at the Norwich Golf club, Jack Powers and Cy Duevel tied for first place with net scores of 24. Powers had best nine-hole score of 39, which with a 15 handicap, gave him a 24. Duevel having a gross score of 36 with a 12 handicap. A. H. Payson won second place with a net score of 25. Those who turned in cards were:

ROYALS TOP CITY LEAGUE WITH TWO WINS; CITS VS. IDEALS TONIGHT

The Royals, under the joint management of Mike Panek and John Oney, lead the City league as it swings into its second full week of play at the campus tonight. The Royals won both starts last week, upsetting the Ideals on Tuesday and the Thermos Friday. The Polish Citizens still enjoy the distinction of being undefeated but they have only shown once, to date.

Team	W.	L.	Pct.
Royals	2	0	1.000
Citizens	1	0	1.000
Thermos	2	1	.667
Smoke Shop	1	2	.333
Italians	1	2	.333
Ideals	0	2	.000

Inasmuch as Friday is a holiday, the schedule for this week shows but four games, with the Citizens and Ideals opening tonight. The Italian club and league-leading Royals work Tuesday evening, and on Wednesday the champion Smoke Shop team meets Tony Bernard's Ideals. The Bottlers and Polish Citizens wind up the week on Thursday.

With the "feeling-out" formalities over, the six competing clubs this week will settle down to business and without doubt play a much steadier brand of ball than they have. They have all had an opportunity to look over each other's style of play and both hurlers and stickers have to some extent learned the other's weaknesses. There is little doubt but that by the end of this week there will be some changes in the league standing and it wouldn't be a bit surprising to find the Smoke Shop a bit closer to the top in the check-up of the week's work, Thursday night.

The Citizens, by winning tonight, will move into a temporary tie with the Royals for first place. They have won their only start and will knot the Oney-Panek combine with a second win. On the other hand, the Ideals may climb out of the cellar into a three-cornered tie with the Smokers and Italians by winning.

Pepin will probably start on the hill for the service men, with either Boots Greene or Pete Finn the probable Citizen starting pitcher.

CUBS GO INTO FIRST PLACE BY BEATING ROBINS

CHICAGO, June 29—(AP)—The Cubs took undisputed possession of first place in the hot National league race today by defeating Brooklyn, 5 to 1. The victory was the third out of four in the series and gave the Champions the lead by one full game.

Charlie Root pitched superbly after a shaky start to win the game today. He permitted but seven well scattered blows while the Cubs pounded Thurston and Moss for 11.

Forty-seven thousand fans watched the game, bringing the total attendance for the four game series to approximately 140,000, a new National league attendance record for a series.

FITCHVILLE NOSES OUT POLISH A. C. IN TWELFTH

Two hits and an error in the 12th inning gave the Fitchville A. C. a 5 to 4 victory over the Polish A. C. of Norwich Sunday afternoon at the Fitchville diamond. The game was one of the tightest played at the Fitchville lot in recent years. Fitchville took the lead in the third inning by scoring one run to which they added another in the fourth. In the eixth the Polish club evened the score with two runs, only to have Fitchville go ahead by a run in the eighth. The Citizens tie the score again in the ninth at three all. Both teams went scoreless in the tenth and eleventh but the Citizens broke the deadlock by scoring a single run. In their half of the twelfth, Tolson, first man up singled and when Labenski mussed up Berkman's grounder both were safe. Yankowitz then pounded out a double which scored the tying and winning runs. ERRORS AND GREENE'S WILDNESS LOSE GAME FOR A-N CLUB

The Army and Navy club lost its second game of the season to the fast Hartford K. of C., 9 to 7, Saturday afternoon at the Providence street grounds. The locals made five errors and this, coupled with the unsteadiness of Johnny Greene, were largely responsible for the defeat of the Army and Navy.

The Hartford boys played without an error and collected nine safe singles against 11 for the locals.

The best features of the game were the hitting of Finn of the locals and Campion of the visitors, the former collecting a home run and two singles, while the latter collected a three-bagger and two singles. The score:

ATHLETICS-TIGERS GAME ENDS IN NEAR RIOT

DETROIT, June 29—(AP)—The Philadelphia Athletics defeated Detroit, 6 to 5, in their one day stand here.

The game ended in a near riot with police reserves escorting Umpire William Guthrie from the field. The Tigers staged a rally in the ninth, which fell one run short of a tie. Jimmy Shevlin, Detroit rookie, was the third out when he tried to score from first on Stone's single. It was a close decision and the crowd disagreed with Umpire Guthrie.

Joe Hacker's Dream

Joe Hacker was one of those men who take their golf even more seriously than they do their business. He absorbed every bit of literature that was ever written on the royal and ancient pastime. As each new champion was crowned he worshipped at his shrine. Golf was preeminent in his life. He never broke a hundred yet he was always trying; he cursed his caddy for not finding a ball sliced into the rough; he invoked all the malidictions of Hades on the head of the greenskeeper for having rough on the course. Nothing was right with him.

Joe Hacker had a dream. He dreamed that he had departed this earthly sphere and strange as it might seem Joe's ticket read "One way to Hell, no return trip." In due course Joe arrived at the flaming gates of his eternal abode where he was met by his satanic majesty.

"Ah, we were expecting you," said his majesty, "your fame precedes you. You are Joe Hacker, the golfer, are you not?"

Joe smiled. Ah, here they recognized him as a golfer while on earth he had been referred to simply as 'that dub, Joe Hacker." Hell might not be such a bad place after all.

"Do you play golf, Mr. Satan," asked Joe. "To be sure I do and we have a course here that is finer than the St. Andrews course on earth," returned his majesty. "Then we may have a match sometime?" and there was real expectancy in Joe's voice. "Immediately, if you wish, Mr. Hacker," said his majesty.

So they went to the course. As he gazed upon it Joe Hacker's eyes brightened. All he could see was a broad expense of beautiful velvet fairway gently sloping away from the tee. Three hundred yards away was a green fully two hundred feet across and of the finest texture. No chance of missing that green on his second shot. Why he might even roll onto it with a putter if his drive was straight and far. And best of all there was no rough. Such a course to break that hundred on he never saw before.

His satanic opponent appeared with two caddies and a bag of clubs for Joe. "What's par on this hole?" asked Joe indicating the first hole. "Oh, par is very flexible here," said the devil, "it's anything you want to make it." "Glory be!" chuckled Joe, "here's where I break that hundred and shoot par golf. Hell ain't such a bad place after all. My only regret is that the boys at the club won't hear about it."

Feeling confident that he was going to have a good time he graciously offered the honor to his satanic host. His majesty teed a ball and sent it singing down the fairway a good 250 yards.

"Ah, a mighty fine drive, your majesty, but watch this one," beamed Joe. "My driver and a ball, caddy," he ordered. His majesty smiled sardonically. Joe reached for a nice new shiny white ball that the caddy passed to him. As he grasped it it was nothing but a white bubble of soap and his driver had no more torsion than an eel. Joe was puzzled. Somebody was putting something over on him. He looked at his host and angrily demanded, "What's the idea of this? How do you expect me to play with balls and clubs like these?"

"Oh," smiled Satan, "that's the Hell of it."

Joe awoke from his nightmare and today he's the pleasantest man on the course and his hundred has been broken many, many times.

CARDS TAKE BOTH GAMES OF DOUBLEHEADER

ST. LOUIS, June 29.—(AP)—Behind the excellent pitching of Sylvester Johnson and Bill Hallahan, the St. Louis Cardinals took both ends of a doubleheader from the New York Giants today, 3 to 2 and 5 to 4. The victories gave the Cards three out of the five-game series.

In the first game, Walker, young Giant hurler, held the Cards scoreless and allowed only five hits until the seventh when Bottomley hit a homer to tie the score. Walker then pulled a charleyhorse and had to retire. The Cards nicked Heving for four hits and two runs in the last two frames. Johnson held the slugging Giants to five hits.

Hallahan recovered after a bad first inning and let the Giants down with six hits to win the nightcap. He weakened slightly in the ninth but a Giant rally fell short.

HARRISVILLE BEATS PACO WITH 5-RUN RALLY

(Special to The Bulletin)

DANIELSON, June 29.—Scoring five runs in the ninth, the Harrisville team was able to nose out the P. and A. team here this afternoon. After being held in subjection for eight innings and on the short end of a 2 to 0 score, the visitors suddenly came to life and tallied five times. Paco made a gallant attempt to at least tie the score in the last half of the ninth, scoring twice and having the tying counter left on third base.

VELVETMEN WIN FREE-HITTING GAME FROM FAST HARTFORD ELMWOOD TEAM

The J. B. Martin baseball team ran their string of victories to five by barely nosing out the Elmwood A. C. of Hartford in a free hitting and loosely played contest by the score of 9 to 7 at Martin field Sunday afternoon.

Walter Lindner, local mound ace, got off to a shaky start and in the very first inning the visitors converted three singles and a double into two runs. they added another in the third and in the sixth and seventh; aided materially by several costly misplays, ran their total to eight for the day.

Russ Fisher started to pitch for the visitors, but was driven from the mound in the third inning and Lefty Buckland took up the pitching duties. Lefty proved to be no puzzle for the Velvet men, who proceeded to pound his offerings quite freely for two innings with the result that they scored four more runs in the 4th and 5th innings to bring their day's scoring to nine. During the remainder of the game Buckland settled down and prevented further scoring.

The local team played ragged baseball making six errors, several of which figured greatly in the scoring.

Sipples of Elmwood and Murphy and Eccleston for J. B. Martin divided the hitting honors.

Next Friday afternoon the Velvetmen journey to New London to play the Kaceys at Mercue Field.

BRAVES TURN BACK REDS IN DOUBLEHEADER

CINCINNATI, June 29—(AP)—The Boston Braves took both ends of a doubleheader from the Reds here today, winning the first game, 4 to 3, and the second, 10 to 3.

The Braves massed their attack in the first two innings of the first game to score all their runs off Red Lucas, who held them safely for the remainder of the fray. In the second encounter, attacks on three Red hurlers netted the Braves four runs in the first off Jakie May, three off Benton in the seventh and three off Campbell in the ninth.

LOOK FOR IMPROVEMENT IN BUSINESS COMING SIX MONTHS

NEW YORK, June 29—(AP)—The second round in the great bout between business and depression seems to have been a draw. This round, or quarter, has come to a close during the past week in a manner distinctly disappointing to the more enthusiastic of the prosperity fans.

Nevertheless, business has shown evidence of a reserve of strength which leads most observers with ringside seats to look for a knockout within the next two to four rounds.

Steel mill operations have held up rather better than expected during the past week, Iron Age estimating operations at 64 per cent of capacity, against 65 the previous week. Large structural steel orders have been a sustaining factor, but several motors manufacturers plan to close down their plants entirely for two weeks during July.

Finished steel prices have been shaded further, the Iron Age composite showing a reduction for the first time in five weeks. Industrials showing decided seasonal slackening of activity include cotton mills, lumber mills, hosiery and furniture factories.

President Crowley of the New York Central stated that railway executives now believe business has "turned the corner," and look for improvement in the last half of the year. Building contracts as reported for the latest week showed a moderate gain, and the volume for the first three weeks of June is but 7 per cent under June of 1929, but that was also a bad building year. Census figures from about one quarter of the country's population showed that unemployment amounted to only about 3 per cent of the population.

LEGAL NOTICES

ERNESTINA HAUBT VS. ANDREW BUKSAR, EVA BUKSAR, Et Al. Superior Court, New London County, June 27th, 1930.

ORDER FOR CITING IN CO-DEFENDANTS AND ORDER OF NOTICE

It appearing to the Court that the heirs, representatives and creditors of the defendants Andrew Buksar and Eva Buksar ought to be joined as co-defendants in the above entitled cause, claiming for the reasons therein set forth a foreclosure and the possession of certain mortgaged premises, now pending before this Court, having been returned thereto on the first Tuesday of May, 1930, it is hereby:

Ordered, that the plaintiff amend her writ and complaint by adding the heirs, representatives and creditors of either or both said defendants Andrew Buksar and Eva Buksar as co-defendants, and summon them to appear before this Court on or before the 2nd day of September, 1930, then and there to answer to said complaint and it is further:

Ordered, that notice of the pendency of said complaint be given said heirs, representatives and creditors of either or both the said defendants Andrew Buksar and Eva Buksar, by publishing this order in the Norwich Bulletin, a newspaper printed in said Norwich, one time on or before the 3rd day of July, 1930.

By order of Court,
WILLIAM H. SHIELDS, JR.
Assistant Clerk of the Superior Court for New London County.

ERNESTINA HAUBT VS. ANDREW BUKSAR, EVA BUKSAR, Et Al. Superior Court, New London County, June 27th, 1930.

ORDER OF CONTINUANCE AND SECOND ORDER OF NOTICE

Upon the complaint of the said Ernestina Haubt claiming for the reasons therein set forth a foreclosure and the possession of certain mortgaged premises, now pending before this Court, having been returned thereto on the first Tuesday of May, 1930:

It appearing to and being found by this Court that the said Defendants, Andrew Buksar and Eva Buksar, if living, are absent from this State and gone to parts unknown and that notice of the pendency of the complaint was given as required by order of notice heretofore issued, and now the Plaintiff asks for an Order of Continuance for a period of three months and a further order of notice in the premises.

Therefore ordered, that said action be continued for a period of three months from June 27th, 1930, and that further notice of the institution and pendency of said complaint be given by publishing this order in the Norwich Bulletin, a newspaper published in Norwich, once on or before the 3rd day of July, 1930.

By order of Court,
WILLIAM H. SHIELDS, JR.
Assistant Clerk of the Superior Court for New London County.

AT A COURT OF PROBATE HELD at Norwich, within and for the District of Norwich, on the 27th day of June, A. D. 1930.

Present, NELSON J. AYLING, Judge.

Estate of Alexander Kumorowski, alias Aleksanda Komarski, late of Norwich, in said District, deceased.

Gilbert S. Raymond, of Norwich, Conn., appeared in Court and filed a petition alleging that he is the Administrator of the estate of said decedent, and praying for the reasons therein set forth, that he, as such Administrator, be authorized and directed to compromise, compound and settle a disputed claim against said estate, as on file more fully appears.

Whereupon, it is Ordered, That said petition be heard and determined at the Probate Court Room in the City of Norwich, in said District, on the 3rd day of July, A. D. 1930, at 10 o'clock in the forenoon, and that notice of the pendency of said petition, and of said hearing thereon, be given by the publication of this order one time in some newspaper having a circulation in said District at least three days prior to the date of said hearing, and that return be made to this Court.

NELSON J. AYLING, Judge.

Attest, HELEN M. DRESCHER, Clerk.

MRS. MORRISON FLIRTS WITH COOKE---THEY END IN NEW LONDON LOCK-UP

(Special to The Bulletin.)

NEW LONDON, June 29.—Mrs. Helen Morrison, 22, wife of Donald A. Morrison, a member of the crew of U. S. S-3, stationed at the submarine base, and William A. Cooke, 22, a member of the crew of U. S. S. Lansdale, also at the base, were arrested this morning charged with lascivious carriage, upon complaint of the woman's husband. Both Mrs. Morrison, and Cooke, who are locked up at police headquarters in default of bail, will be in the police court Monday. Mrs. Morrison and Cooke were arrested by Patrolmen William Riordan and Geo. Perkins in the room of the former and in which they had spent the night. Morrison, who has been estranged from his wife several weeks, because, he says, that while he was at sea he ascertained that she was consorting with other men and that when he upbraided her for her conduct, he decided to leave her, especially as Mrs. Morrison did not desire to change her mode of living. When he was informed that his wife and Cooke had occupied the room in the Green street house Saturday night, Morrison made his complaint. When arrested Cooke said that he was a passenger on a Ocean Beach trolley car Saturday evening and by flirtation, became acquainted with the young woman. She invited him to her room and he accepted the invitation, although he declared that he was not aware that the women was married. Morrison was living at the submarine base about seven months ago with the woman as man and wife, when the house was raided by state police and he had the alternative of merrying the woman or going to jail and he accepted the former. He said that he and his wife resided together happily until he was ordered to sea. When he returned he was informed by his buddies of the conduct of his wife during his absence and the estrangement followed.

Bootlegger Fined $400.

Aroldo Secchiaroli, 58 Goshen street, was in the police court Saturday charged with violation of the liquor law on two counts, keeping with intent to sell and possession. He entered a demurrer but was fined $200 and costs on each count. Secchiaroli, who has been arrested before on the same counts, was taken into custody Friday night when the raiding force seized a quantity of wine and whiskey, together with several cases of home-brew beer.

William Metzermacher, 19, Summer street, who was found in the drinking resort when the raiders appeared there and who was wanted on a charge of non-support, was also presented in court. His case was continued to July 12. Metzermacher had been sought by the police over two weeks.

Charles Waterman and William Reynolds were charged with breach of the peace. Their cases were continued until July 5. The young men were walking through Potter street Friday midnight when one of them smashed a window in a residence. Patrolmen Louis Pine and Lawrence Pardy arrested the pair. Neither was intoxicated and apparently smashed the window through sheer maliciousness.

George Kelly, of Waterbury, charged with vagrancy and intoxication, was given a sentence of 30 days in jail but execution of the sentence was suspended.

Stole With Little Result.

Joseph Sammataro, 13, of 121 Shaw street and Joseph Vocolina, 18, of 58 Prest street, charged with theft, had their cases continued to July 3. Sammatro and Vocolina stole the tender of the power yacht "Sally Ann," which was moored at the pier of the Hotel Griswold the night before the Yale-Harvard race. The tender, which was equipped with an outboard motor, was rowed to a point near the Atlantic Fisheries, was taken to the shore and remained there the balance of the night. The following night, Sammataro went there and entering the boat rowed it to Shaw's cove where the motor and other equipment was taken from it and carried to the cellar of Sammataro's home. Practically all of the loot taken from the boat has been recovered.

Edward Klimmick, a youth with a police record for thieving, was charged with the same offense, but on continuance. His case was continued to July 26. Klimmick and three other boys were arrested several months ago when they forced entrance to a storehouse of the Jeremiah F. Fitzgerald estate, corner of Belden court and Belden street, the youths sealing plunder of the estimated value of $500, most of which was recovered. The cases of the other youths have been disposed of, the accused having been committed to the reformatory at Cheshire or placed on probation.

FIREMEN CALLED OUT AS FAMILY ROAST BURNS

A careless member of the household of Joseph Bray, 714 Ocean avenue, was responsible for the fire department being called needlessly Saturday afternoon. A piece of meat had been placed on a kitchen stove and left, with the result that the grease and meat became ablaze, causing the house to fill with smoke. An excited person sent in an alarm from Box 314, corner of Ocean avenue and School street. Chief Thomas Shipman and four pieces of apparatus responded. Before the arrival of the firemen the blaze of the meat and grease had been extinguished. There was no damage.

Going To Europe.

Miss Annie M. Crofton, supervising principal of the 22 teachers of the Winthrop school, is to sail for Europe this week on the Cunarger Caronia with relatives, for five weeks' tour of the British Isles and on the continent.

Several indifferent automobile drivers were charged in the police court Saturday with various violations of the city's automobile laws, but as none of the drivers appeared, their respective bonds of $2 were forfeited. The drivers were Josiah Dallas, 15 Pearl street; Thomas J. Murray, South Shaftsburg, Vt.; Mildred H. Sacket, Wade Park Manor, Cleveland, Ohio; Rudolph Picka, submarine base; Alfred L. Moundy, Waterloo, Ind.; George V. Dearborn, 205 Willetta avenue, Lawrence B. McEwen, 722 Ocean avenue.

Machine Abandoned.

A Nash automobile, owned by Everett R. Conklin, 114 Allen street, Groton, was wrecked early today and was abandoned. The car was being operated on Pequot avenue when it crashed against a telephone pole, near Green's Harbor Beach, which wrecked a wheel, although the driver continued to operate the car until it reached Trumbull street where it was left beside the highway. This forenoon Automobile Patrol Officer William Corcoran found the disabled car and the state police were requested to arrest Conklin, but he could not be found.

Mrs. Irving Thomas, of 80 Williams street; Miss Claire Brooks, Greene, R. I.; Miss Martha Neumann, 484 Pequot avenue; Dr. Edward Robinson, Lyme; Miss Madeline Stanners, 43 Granite street; Joseph Shea, 55 Coit street; Angelo Ficarra, 5 Grand street; Mrs. Gerald Deering and infant daughter, 90 Thames street; Mrs. Lester Eldridge and infant son, 10 Bulkeley place; Miss Helen Ely, Hamburg, patients at Lawrence-Memorial hospital, were discharged Saturday.

Lena Trotter, 17, taken into custody at East Lyme Friday by State Police Officer Frederick Johnson at the request of the police of Milford as a runaway, was returned to her home Saturday. The girl was detained at police headquarters over night.

Louis Siff, 37 North Bank street, arrested in Groton Friday night by State Police Officer Peter Busch charged with reckless driving, will be in Groton town court Monday.

Mrs. F. A. Miller, 47 Ocean avenue, made complaint to the police that while her automobile was parked in front of her home, it was struck Friday night by a car and the driver speeded away. Mrs. Miller hastened to the street when she heard the crash and discovered that her car had been damaged and that the colliding auto lost a hub-cap, for the latter from a Chevrolet car was found in the highway.

Bernard Kirschbaum, New York, was in New London Saturday and requested the aid of the police in finding his brother, L. Kirschbaum, who, the former said, was known to be in New London.

An automobile owned by Mrs. Ellen N. Watrous, stolen from its parking place on Meridian street Friday night, was found several hours later on Bingham street, abandoned.

City Manager William A. Holt has ordered that in the future parking of automobiles will not be permitted on the east side of Pequot avenue and in front of Green's Harbor beach. The restriction, however, is effective only until Oct. 1.

The police have been requested to maintain a lookout for Lottie Bradlaw, 18, and large for her age, who escaped yesterday from Long Lane farm, Middletown. The girl has a married sister in this city.

Patrolman George Goldberg reported at police headquarters this morning the existence of a defective sidewalk at 579 Main street.

MISSING TAFTVILLE CAR WAS FOUND ABANDONED

George A. Doni, Taftville, drove his Maxwell roadster to New London Saturday evening and at night he went to Ocean Beach. He parked his car there and about 9:30 o'clock when he returned, discovered it missing. The theft was reported to the police and a request was made of the police departments throughout the state to be on the lookout for the auto. Automobile Patrol Officer Elwood Bailey in passing through Division street at 5:30 this morning discovered the car abandoned and the owner was notified. Doni came to New London today and took charge of the car.

The police in making their rounds Saturday night discovered several business houses not properly protected, either windows or entrance were found unlocked. In each case the owners were notified.

Two chief petty officers went to Ocean Beach last night and as they had been drinking freely, their conduct soon became such that they were remonstrated with by the police. When the officers continued their misconduct they were arrested by Sergeants William Babcock, John Courtney and Patrolman John Sullivan. The two blue jackets were held for trial in the police court Monday.

Committed to Norwich

Mrs. Stella Boloblowski, formerly of 55 North Bank street, wife of Stephen Boloblowski, was arrested on State street at 12:30 this morning by Patrolman Frank Linehan and it developed with her arrest that Mrs. Boloblowski is mentally unsound. This noon she was committed to Norwich State hospital. Mrs. Boloblowski was observed by the officer loitering and when questioned the woman admitted that she was without funds nor did she have a place of shelter. She was taken to police headquarters. Mrs. Boloblowski was arrested here a few days ago when she was acting queerly in the Union Bank & Trust company. Detective Sergeant Nelson Smith arrested the woman and it developed that she was a patient at Uncas-on-Thames, Norwich. She was returned to the sanatorium by attendants, but yesterday she was discharged and finally reached New London where she was roaming about until arrested. This afternoon Mrs. Boloblowski was taken to the asylum by Automobile Patrol Officer William Corcoran and Captain Charles A. P. Pinney. Mrs. Boloblowski husband is serving a sentence in state's prison on a charge of counterfeiting, the husband having raised bills of the denomination of $10 to $50 and attempted their negotiation at the Whelan Drug company and at the Hotel Mohican.

A resident of Lyme came to New London Saturday night and as a result of his numerous visits to drinking resorts became intoxicated. At 11:30 he was found drunk on Colman street and was arrested by Acting Lieutenant James Gaffney and Automobile Patrol Officer Elwood Bailey. He will be in the police court Monday.

Beef and Potato Cakes

One cup chopped, cooked beef, 1 cup mashed potatoes, 1 tablespoon gravy, 1-4 teaspoon salt, 1-4 teaspoon pepper, 1 tablespoon finely chopped onions, 1 tablespoon chopped parsley, 5 tablespoons flour, 4 tablespoons bacon fat.

Mix beef, potatoes, gravy, salt, pepper, onions and parsley Shape into cakes, 1-2 inch thick. Roll in flour. Heat fat in frying pan and add potatoes and brown well on both sides.

Other leftover meats may be substituted for the beef.

Vegetable Salad

One cup cooked peas, 1-2 cup diced cooked carrots, 1-2 cup sliced cucumber, 2 tablespoons chopped green peppers, 1-2 teaspoon salt, 1-4 teaspoon paprika, 1-3 cup salad dressing.

Mix and chill ingredients. Serve on lettuce leaves.

Rhubarb Conserve

Four cups diced peeled rhubarb, 1 cup cherries, seeded, 1 cup diced pineapple, 3 tablespoons lemon juice, 4 tablespoons orange juice, 4 cups sugar.

Mix ingredients and cook slowly and stir frequently until conserve becomes thick. Pour into sterilized jars and when cool, seal.

Gold Cake

Four tablespoons butter, 1-2 cup sugar, 1 teaspoon lemon extract, 4 egg yolks, 1-8 teaspoon salt, 4 tablespoons milk, 1 cup flour, 1 1-4 teaspoons baking powder.

Cream butter and sugar. Add rest of ingredients and beat 3 minutes. Pour into small greased loaf pan. Bake 20 minutes in moderately slow oven.

SANTO DOMINGO GIRLS LIKE AMERICAN HUSBANDS

SANTO DOMINGO, Dominican Republic, June 29—(AP)—Wanted: An American husband, blue-eyed one preferred. Apply to unengaged Dominican senorita.

For the dark-eyed daughters of this little Latin land, while occasionally expressing some dislike for Americans collectively, frankly admit they would have no difficulty in learning to love one Americano individually.

The Dominican girls explain their preference for American husbands by saying:

"American men are so thoughtful of their wives."

Bandeaux Return

PARIS, June 29—(AP)—Silk Bandeaux on sailor hats are one milliner's first move toward pushing hats upward on the head.

The bandeau of taffeta or black satin, ending in a bow or row of flowers above one ear is the newest note in millinery and threatens to have a strong influence on autumn hats.

WOMAN'S GIFT PROVIDES LEGAL BUREAU FOR POOR

CHICAGO, June 29—(AP)—A gift of $200,000 by Mrs. Anna L. Raymond of Chicago to Northwestern university has served to establish a foundation for the support of a legal "clinic" in the university law school, the services of which are free to the poor in criminal, industrial and civil cases.

Mrs. Raymond donated an additional $15,000 to establish a fellowship in the graduate law school, the holder of which contributes his services to the clinic.

The work was considered so valuable that Cook county has furnished the clinic's attorney and his clerical force.

Spiral Fastening

PARIS, June 29—(AP)—The latest beach dress is a take-off which wraps around the body twice in a long spiral. Large bone buttons fasten the garment along the line of the spiral.

Underneath is a one-piece bathing suit.

Rubber And Cork Jewelry

PARIS, June 29—(AP)—Multiple strands of shredded rubber of bright color interspersed with an occasional large cork bead are the season's offering to beach jewelry.

The rubber jewelry comes in brilliant colors like emerald, electric blue and coral. The cork beads are left in their natural shade.

MRS. HOOVER DESIGNS ROCK GARDEN FOR GIRL SCOUTS

WASHINGTON, June 29—(AP)—Rock gardens, made with sunken pools, hardy perennials and vines, a hobby of Mrs. Herbert Hoover, are being installed under her direction in several places in and around Washington.

One is being built at the president's camp on the Rapidan and another has just been finished at the National Girl Scouts' "Little House."

Mrs. George Akerson, wife of the president's secretary, superintended the building of the latter during Mrs. Hoover's enforced confinement in the white house after an injury to her back.

Virginia creeper and ivy, which Mrs. Hoover brought from her S street home, make a thick green curtain.

Bird baths, sunken pools, potted plants and a variety of flowers have transformed the small space between high buildings into a place of summer beauty.

Deep pots of clay and rock which hold hardy perennials.

An old sycamore tree adds a picturesque touch and was left there at the request of Mrs. Hoover when she had the Little House moved to its present location from Sherman square.

FALL FROCKS WILL FEATURE ROUGH EDGES

PARIS, June 29—(AP)—The rick-rack racket is having considerable influence on advance autumn styles, or rather the edges of them.

The dressmakers, one and all, have come to the opinion that there are other ways of finishing an edge than with a fine seam or a bias binding.

For instance there is stagger edging, which the knowing ones here call "staggering." Staggering is a modern tattered rendition of what once was called pinking.

Some people can stagger edges "saw-tooth trimming," and still others call it snip-finish.

In addition to the jagged, unseamed edges, leading dressmakers are using scallops and honest-to-goodness rick-rack. They employ these trims for lightweight tweeds and plain materials, on both coats and dresses.

The fine handkerchief linen blouses of midsummer are notably partial to rick-rack edged collars and armholes.

Even chiffon evening dresses have frayed edges with never a stitch of finish on hemlines and loose godets.

LADY ASTOR MAY ATTEND MINNESOTA LEGION MEET

CROOKSTON, Minn., June 29—(AP)—Lady Astor may attend the convention of the Minnesota department of the American Legion in August.

A friend of her girlhood days in Virginia, Mrs. A. E. Amundsen of Little Falls is president of the Minnesota Legion auxiliary. She has received assurances from Lady Astor that she will attend if she comes to this country this summer.

If she does come to Minnesota she will make a trip to Winnipeg with other members of the legion during the convention.

YOUNG DUTCH PRINCESS MASTERS CULINARY ART

THE HAGUE, June 29—(AP)—Princess Juliana of Holland, who is just 21, now is a fully qualified cook as well as the holder of a doctor's degree from Leyden university.

Two expert cooks, one a French chef and the other a Dutch housewife, have found the princess an apt pupil. For four days a week she has devoted her forenoons, under their direction, to practical culinary experience. Now she cooks both plain and fancy dishes with success.

Testimony to her new skill was given at a dinner, prepared entirely by herself, with members of the royal family as guests.

White, Tight Gown

WASHINGTON, June 29—(AP)—Miss Loranda Prochnik, the tall, slender daughter of the minister from Austria, wears a striking evening gown of white crepe cut out under the arms and down to the waste in the back.

Narrow straps of the material hold it in place over the shoulders.

LONDON HOSTESSES USE PORTRAIT TABLECLOTHS

LONDON, June 29—(AP)—Portrait tablecloths are the latest linen novelty adopted by London hostesses.

The fine linen cloths are specially woven with a portrait in the center, either of the hostess herself if she chooses or of some celebrity.

The Duchess of York, whose linens are the envy of half of London, was one of the first to adopt the new idea.

Success In Kitchen

DERITA, N. C., June 29—(AP)—From an original capital of a dollar, Mrs L. M. Flowe in six years has built up a business which brings in $12,000 a year. She makes bread biscuits and cake in her own kitchen for Carolina grocery stores.

WOMAN IN LIFE AND IN THE KITCHEN

SUGGESTIONS FOR THE HOUSEWIFE

If the refrigerator lining leaks, pour hot paraffin over the holes.

Canned fruits are often improved in flavor if turned into a kettle and boiled for a few minutes.

A lightweight rubber bathing cap worn while cooking over the stove protects the hair from cooking odors.

In serving fancy drinks of any kind, it is most essential to garnish them with slices of fruit that are in season.

Sugar sprinkled over the tops of cookies before putting them into the oven forms a sweet crust, and makes a richer cookie.

Always serve eggs cooked lightly and slowly. They lose part of their nutritive value and are harder to digest when the albumin is hardened by too much and too rapid cooking.

If a rocking chair creeps across the room while rocking, glue the wrong side of strips of velvet on the bottom of the chair rockers and the annoyance will stop.

When there is difficulty in opening fruit jars, use a strip of emery board, about one inch wide and eight inches long. Place the strip around the edge of the top and twist it.

An excellent furniture polish is made by melting 1-2 pound of beeswax over hot water. When melted, remove the beeswax from fire and stir in turpentine until the mixture is like a thick batter.

If you have left-over chicken, beef or ham, chop, season well and spread it on three-inch squares of pastry. Moisten with a little gravy or milk, roll up like a jelly roll, pressing the ends together tightly, bake in a quick oven and serve hot for luncheon.

Sponge cakes, after removal from the oven, should be inverted and allowed to hang in the pan for one hour or until cold. The cell walls of sponge cakes are so delicate that they shrink slightly if cake is removed while still warm.

ICE IMPLEMENTS

When serving iced beverages to many guests, be sure to have handy implements. A sharp pick, an ice bag to crack it in, an ice cracker and hammer are all necessary. A small expenditure of money saves much time and temper.

TO PRESERVE COLOR ON FLOORS

If your floors are stained dark, you can help to preserve the original stain by coloring the wax with which you polish them. Put some wax in a can, add a little oil aniline dye, and heat only enough to mix well. Cool to its original consistency before using. You may purchase stain at any paint store.

STEM STRAWBERRIES

The easiest way to stem strawberries is to use a teaspoon. Insert the end of the spoon under the stem and lift it out with the spoon pressed up against the thumb. Slight bruises or spots on the fruit may be removed in the same way. This method saves the fingers from getting sore when many berries are to be stemmed.

HEALTH AND BEAUTY

When the fingernail's break easily, a good remedy is to massage them every night with olive oil.

After washing the hair, try adding a half cup of vinegar to the rinsing water. It will soften the hair and give it a pretty sheen.

For hair that has become dried out as the result of a permanent wave, grease the scalp lightly with vaseline, olive oil or sweet almond oil and brush vigorously for five minutes every day.

Cleanliness is the most important feature in the care of perspiring feet. Stockings should be changed daily, also the shoes. Dust the feet with powdered alum or baking soda, putting some into the shoes.

INDIGESTION

Where there is indigestion you will generally find constipation, and often overcoming the constipation will relieve the indigestion and restore the stomach to a healthy condition. Be careful about the food you eat, and have a regular time for your meals. Drink freely of water.

POWDER PUFF

There is nothing so detrimental to the appearance of a well-groomed woman as to see her bring out a soiled, gray-looking powder puff when she applies that needed touch of powder. A puff can be washed perfectly in very soapy water and, if rinsed in more of the soapy water, will remain soft and fluffy.

MONEY BAG

For the European traveler, department stores now carry smart little moire money and jewel bags, with two compartments, each of which closes with zippers with narrow belts to attach them.

FRINGED CHIC

A white crepe roma frock has a deep fringe winding about its irregular yoke, starting at the waistline, and swinging clear to the floor all around.

COOL DRINKS

If you keep ice tea in the refrigerator, you can make up a cool beverage at a moment's notice. It is an excellent base for many drinks, and all you have to do is to add fruit juice or chopped fruit.

RE-MAKING HATS

By this time, your spring hats all really need a new banding. You can quite dress up a plain blue hat by using some of the new polka dotted blue and white ribbon instead of plain blue.

BLUE AND BLUE

DICTATES OF FASHION

Whether your sleeves are long, short or non-existent it is well to wear a bracelet or two.

Moderate size bags of felt in all the colors to match spring costumes are among the new and smart accessories shown by exclusive shops.

A shade of yellow that is distinctly mustard in tone, is enjoying a revival for evening wear, and some of the smartest of the imported frocks come in this unusual color.

A white organdie blouse, for suit wear, has cute wings of pleated organdie over the elbow sleeves and a distinct sunback V, just like the front.

Wonderfully becoming to the feminine type of woman is a large hat made of lacehair of black over a foundation of the same straw in delicate pink. Grosgrain ribbon is tied about the crown.

TIERED SKIRT FORMS DRAPERY

Whether you go in for bouffant effects or drapery for your evening frock you will be interested in the spiral skirt that drapes itself in graceful tiers from slightly flaring hem to high-placed belt. This spiral effect is especially effective in satins and soft fabrics.

PAJAMAS IN GUISE OF FROCK

Whether or not it is the influence of the ever-increasing trend toward femininity the pajama now adopts the guise of a frock. The beach pajama with trou that resembles the masquerading culotte looks exactly like a full-skirted frock with tuck-in blouse. With it is worn a coat of toweling patterned in the same design as the cretonne pajama dress.

SLEEVES SLASHED SHORT

It is obvious when viewing apparel that the short and the three-quarter sleeves in coats and jackets are the hallmark of 1930 chic. Generally speaking, the slightly shortened sleeve of the dress or blouse shows below the more abbreviated sleeve of the coat or jacket.

A youthful costume is a suit of black jersey, its gently flaring jacket tucked for a nipped-in waistline and its sleeves slashed off severely at the elbow. The white or pastel pique blouse with ragged-edged peta. trim shows its ruffled sleeves below while the similarly ruffled collar softens the harsh neckline of the jacket.

LAUNDRY HINTS

Black felt can be cleaned by using a half cup of cold tea mixed with a teaspoonful of ammonia.

Add a few drops of vinegar to the rinsing water on washday to prevent the hands from becoming rough.

To prevent silk from cracking or becoming hard, always press it under a piece of damp muslin using a moderately hot iron, until the muslin is quite dry.

If you wish for white clothes add cream of tartar to the water and bring it to a boil—a tablespoon to two quarts of water. Or slice a lemon, peel and all, very thin and add this to a gallon of water, then let them scald a while.

SUMMER PICTURES

For summer take down the heavy paintings and too-colorful paintings and too-colorful pictures, when you take down the winter drapes. For very little money you can put up pretty prints, framed in narrow silver frames or narrow frames painted to match your woodwork or your modernistic furniture.

CLEAN HATS

Most women do not realize that good straw hats can be cleaned with a brushing and cleaning fluid and, when dry, can be pressed with an ordinary iron on the ironing board, if done very carefully. A new ribbon and a clean lining then make the hat like new.

LAUNDERING SUMMER FABRICS

Almost every type of summer fabric can now be laundered provided one realizes its limitations and makes proper allowances for them. Cotton usually shrinks, but if it is within the recognized limits of one inch to a yard, it is a normal condition due to wetting cotton yarns. In cutting, allowance can be made for this, the extra amount being cared for in the hems, tucks or other camouflage. Most yarns have a tendency to stretch when they are wet; especially is this true of synthetic ones. These have not a great amount of elasticity, and so do not snap back to their original length as they dry. This situation makes it necessary to guard against stretching from weight or strain when washing materials made from synthetic yarns.

The most serious effect fabrics suffer while wet is the loss of strength in the yarns. Synthetic textiles suffer more than silk and wool. Cotton and linen do not lose strength. Tight wringing, hard rubbing, whipping in the wind and severe stretching will break weakened yarns. The tensile strength becomes normal when the fabric dries, so it is only a short time that this care is necessary. Heating with an extremely hot iron will weaken the material even to the breaking point.

CONCERNING WOMEN

Twenty-three per cent of the passengers on American air lines are women.

Madame Teifren Leila Haroum, native-born East Indian, of Rumanian and Hindu ancestry, is said to be the only woman to attain the distinction of a priest of Brahma.

For the first time in its history, the Union League club of New York is including a lounge and dining room for the women of the members' families in its new club house.

The government of Norway is preparing a law giving women admission to all offices of state which have hitherto been reserved for men only.

Women magistrates now take charge of cases of young offenders in London, England. The feminine judges conduct informal proceedings as little like a courtroom as possible.

Mrs. Feng Yu-hsiang, wife of the "Christian General," takes an exceptionally active part in improving the condition of the women of China, her particular work being to foster education and hygiene among the peasants.

ECRU TABLECOTH

A NEW NOTE IN BRIDAL VEILS

A charming arrangement for the bridal veil consists of a veil entirely of tulle that is caught with a cluster of silver lilies over the right ear.

MARTHA WASHINGTON USED 40 EGGS FOR 'GREAT CAKE'

MT. VERNON, June 29—(AP)—Here is Martha Washington's recipe for "great cake," the manuscript for which has been presented to the George Washington museum at Mt. Vernon:

"Take 40 eggs and divide the whites from the yolks. Beat them to a froth, then work four pounds of butter to a cream and put the whites of eggs to it a spoonful at a time till it is well worked, then put four pounds of sugar finely powdered to it in the same manner, then put in the yolks of eggs and five pounds of flour and five pounds of fruit. Two hours will bake it, add to it half an ounce of mace and nutmeg, half a pint of wine and some French brandy."

The recipe is in the original manuscript written by Martha Parke Custis for her grandmother, Martha Washington.

Trim White Frocks

WASHINGTON, June 29—(AP)—Suits of white basket-weave trimmed with flowered materials and matched with hats and pocket books are seen in the capital.

The vogue for gay flowered cloths adapts itself to summer sports. Bathing caps and huge bags covered with poppies, tulips and other flowers will be seen at the beaches this summer.

BOUDOIR PRESENTS FASCINATING PROBLEM

By Elsie Drew Kennedy

For the sophisticated modern woman who knows the true value of beauty in herself and her surroundings, the boudoir presents a fascinating problem in decoration.

Not only must it be lovely to look upon, but it must be efficiently furnished with all the equipment necessary to perfecting her toilet.

This alluring boudoir group, which combines luxury with utility, was built about a lovely walnut poudreuse of eighteenth century inspiration. Its legs are exquisitely curved and tapered and its feet and drawers are finished with touches of gleaming brass.

The top, cleverly partitioned to hold all the little aids to beauty, is equally practical for the modern make-up.

But its mirror, however decorative, is hopelessly inadequate. And so the little table was placed before a long, gilt-framed mirror that reflects its glowing surface and glittering bottles.

The practical and convenient arrangement of the compartments in the poudreuse recommends itself to the woman who makes a business-like affair of the art of beauty culture.

The recess section formed by lifting up the small square mirror allows ample room for lotion bottles and the usual dressing accessories, while the empty compartment to the right is for creams, lotions and other toilet requirements that have the distressing habit of spilling their contents over a polished surface.

The fact that each of these compartments is glass-lined makes it appeal to the woman who delights in perfect order and neatness.

With the addition of a curved bench of walnut the group needed only the colorful little accessories to express its owner's personality and individuality. It is a simple matter to decide on the charming lamps with creamy enamel bases reminiscent of Ionic columns.

The discriminating woman would delight in this group.

Their dainty pleated shades of white georgette, edged with net, permit a cold, clear light that is essential to a flawless make-up. The squat, crystal bottles are finished with the same creamy enamel and decorated with a floral motif in black. A matching dresser set adds a distinctive note.

Formal, dignified balance is carried out by the arrangement of the two flower prints on either side of the mirror in delicate colors, with antique gilt frames that glow softly against the misty violet of the walls.

The hooked rug, in shades of rose and violet, is accented by touches of deep, vivid blue, and these colors are repeated in the flower motif embroidered in needle point on the creamy cushion of the bench.

Guiding Your Child

By Mrs. Agnes Lynn

Making Choices

There is perhaps no attribute of personality so helpful through life as that of being able to make a choice and stick to it.

The world is full of people who are presented with alternatives and who insist upon trying to choose both. The ability to make a choice and accept it without grumbling is something which is learned early in life or not at all.

It is a trait which must be developed in the day-to-day situations which seem so insignificant at the time.

Does Johnny want an ice cream cone or some candy? He wants both, of course, but here and now is the time to teach him to decide which he wants most and to enjoy it without a look at what he can't have.

Mary may want to spend part of her weekly allowance on a pair of particularly beautiful silk stockings, and she also may want to spend the money on an excursion with her friends.

Only a thoughtless parent would make it possible for her to have both on that particular occasion, or would tolerate sulking because she couldn't have her cake and eat it, too.

The art of living is in part at least that of being able to make choices and, having made them, of permitting oneself no wishing for the impossible.

It is a simple lesson to learn, but a difficult one for parents to teach because it is so often in their power to remove the necessity for choice.

It is not, of course, necessary to create those situations which force the child to choose, but it is wise to allow him no escape from the problem when it occurs in the natural course of events.

TRAINED SOCIAL WORKERS TOO FEW TO FILL DEMAND

NEW YORK, June 29—(AP)—There is an acute shortage of well-trained family social workers, says Ruth Hill, personnel director of the Family Welfare association.

Approximately 1,250 will be needed next year and 6,000 in the next four years, but the available supply is inadequate to fill the demand, Miss Hill says.

Social work is now a specialized profession, says Miss Hill, and the worker must be trained to deal with problems of physical and mental health, education, vocational training, legal aid, dietetics, and have ability to teach household or business management.

INDIAN GIRL DEFIES TRIBE TO GET GOVERNMENT JOB

WASHINGTON, June 29—(AP)—Against opposition of her tribe, Juanita Crispin, full blood Pueblo Indians girl, has worked her way to a government post which pays $1,080 a year.

Juanita, who is 20, has passed a civil service examination for matron and seamstress and has been appointed to a position.

Hex examination papers, on file at the department of the interior, are written in a tiny, copperplate hand which would do credit to a college graduate. She discourses learnedly on the care of living quarters, sanitation and diet.

'THREE BEARS' TO TEACH BRAZIL CHILDREN HEALTH

WASHINGTON, June 29—(AP)—Children of Brazil soon will become acquainted with three bears of "Goldilocks" fame.

The bears are used as medals in a child welfare exhibit, prepared by the U. S. Children's bureau, soon to be sent to Pernambuco, Brazil. They will illustrate proper health habits.

The exhibit also includes miniature models of American city playgrounds, baseball diamonds and football fields.

The league against infant mortality in Pernambuco requested the preparation of the exhibit and provided funds for it. Texts used on the charts were translated into Portuguese.

WIFE AIDS HUSBAND IN TRAPPING TRADE

BIG SPRINGS, Tex., June 29—(AP)—Housekeeping isn't the only occupation of Mrs. Roy Moreman of Big Springs. Trapping wolves is her principal activity.

She and her husband make a living by catching wolves. If a wolf is wanted for the hide, the animal is killed, but if someone wants a live wolf, then the Moremans capture it.

Moreman says his wife's proficiency in trapping equals his. Their returns total about $2,000 a year.

MOUNTED PIANO TEACHER RECALLS PIONEER RIGORS

COUNCIL BLUFFS, Iowa—(AP)—Mar Bouricius recalls the days when he fought through blizzards and a temperance of 20 below zero to give music lessons in pioneer farm parlors of western Iowa.

Bouricius recently celebrated the forty-fifth anniversary of his career as a circuit-riding piano teacher.

He made trips, in 1885, to the homes of 41 widely-scattered pupils twice a week, traveling on horseback.

Lace Trimmed Hats

PARIS, June 29—(AP)—Large hats with real lace on the under brim are a midseason vogue for formal afternoon wear.

The hats are dark colored and meant for wear with dark costumes. Navy blue and black georgette ensembles are the usual accompaniment of the lace-trimmed hat.

English Girl Engineers To Honor Amy Johnson On Return To London

LONDON, June 29—(AP)—When Amy Johnson comes home, decorated with one of the highest honors the British government can give a woman, she will find a warm welcome awaiting her by some fellow engineers.

They are members of the Women's Engineering society, of which Amy became a member when she secured her ground engineer's license.

While women of London society are asking Amy to garden parties, and while the man on the streets is acclaiming her flight, members of the Women's Engineering society will be asking Amy all about how her plane behaved during her long flight to Australia.

The society is planning to do honor to its member who has winged herself into fame. Nobody quite knows what to do for her, since the King already has given her a title, and the prime minister has sent his personal congratulations.

Some of the girl engineers think a pair of overalls with an oil-proof pocket in which to store a powder puff might be suitable for a good engineer who is also feminine and pretty.

Miss Amy Johnson as she landed at Brisbane, Australia

Most of the members of the society, which is the only organization for women engineers in the world, are doing work just as unusual, if not as spectacular, as that of a ground engineer.

OPIUM IS CHIEF TARGET OF W. C. T. U. IN CHINA

SHANGHAI, June 29—(AP)—Opium, rather than alcohol, is the chief object of attack for the Women's Christian Temperance Union in China.

A Chinese woman, Mrs. C. E. Liu, is its leader, and she has built up an organization determined to help eliminate opium and liquor from the country.

Settlement houses in which beggars are taught trades and assisted in obtaining employment also have been set up by the union.

GREENEVILLE

Frederick Haslam of Worcester, Mass., is spending a few days at the home of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Haslam of Prospect street.

Miss Della Shea and John O. Shea have returned to their home at Jewett City after spending the week end with their cousin, Mrs. Michael Shea at 478 North Main street.

The Bowen's Newsies baseball team was defeated Saturday afternoon on the Shetucket campus by the Preston Highlanders by the score of 11 to 6. The features of the game were the heavy hitting of Red Cimlewski getting four hits out of five trips to the plate and the fine fielding of Johnny Constitution, who made three double plays unassisted. The lineup for the Newsies was as follows: Edward Quinn, c; Lawrence Welland, p; Johnny Constitution, 1b; Harold Monstick, 2b; Samuel Rapurt, 3b; Pinno Quinn, ss; Joseph Quinn, rf; John Kilcollum, cf; Richard McNeal, lf.

Mrs. Eugene McCarthy of New York city is at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Peter Gadle on Seventh street for a few days.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry Delaney of Providence spent the week end at the home of Mr. Delaney's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Delaney on Eighth street.

Richard Seed has returned to his home on Baker avenue after spending the week end as guest of relatives at Providence.

Charles Perr of New York city has returned after spending a few days with relatives on Seventh street.

KNOCKS DOWN WALL AFTER WASHINGTON ST. COLLISION

Automobiles driven by Herbert Burdick of 84 River avenue and Albert Bruso of 51 Thames street collided on Washington street about 10:45 Saturday night and the car driven by Bruso crashed into the stone wall at the old Blackstone place near the corner of Tantic street. About 10 feet of the wall was knocked down. The machines were going in opposite directions when they collided.

Bruso was driving a car belonging to Peter Brostik of Mt. Pleasant street. It was badly damaged by hitting the stone wall, having left fender and running board smashed, headlight, frame and front axle bent and tire torn off. The Burdick machine was only slightly damaged.

To Spend Summer in Europe

Miss Sadie M. Mahoney, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James O. Mahoney of 5 Falls avenue, with Miss Josephine P. Breen of the faculty of Albertus Magnus college and Miss Margaret Farrell, a teacher at Pawcatuck high school, left Saturday from New York on the steamer Baltic for the summer in Europe. Miss Mahoney was accompanied to New York by her father and sister, Miss Jane D. Mahoney. She will return in September. Miss Mahoney is a teacher at Bulkeley high school, Hartford.

Four Women Injured.

Four women residents of Chicopee Falls and Holyoke, Mass., sustained minor cuts and bruises in an automobile collision at Salem Four Corners Sunday afternoon. They were taken to Lawrence Memorial hospital at New London and left for their homes in the evening. The patients were Mrs. Ruth Quinn, Mrs. Grace Senay, Mrs. Adeline Cohn and Mrs. Katherine Houlihan.

"Burton's Agency Sells Another."

Mrs. Leona Bowers of this city has sold to Austin Avery a five room bungalow containing all improvements and located on the New London Turnpike at East Great Plain.

The sale was negotiated through the real estate agency of Mrs. Rosa E. Burton.

TAKES HER LIFE IN WARREN STREET APARTMENT BY GAS ASPHYXIATION

Believed to have been despondent because of failing health, Miss Male C. Richmond, about 58, a corsetier, took her life Sunday by asphyxiation with gas in her two-room apartment in the upper part of the house No. 11 Warren street.

About 10 o'clock Sunday morning the odor of gas was noticed by the family of Mr. and Mrs. John O. Johnson, who occupy the rest of the house, and word was telephoned to police headquarters. Chief George Linton sent Sergeant Myron Morgan to the Warren street house, where Miss Richmond was found dead and Medical Examiner C. C. Gildersleeve was notified. Later the body was taken in charge by Undertakers Corcoran and Lyons, after the medical examiner had completed his investigation.

The body of Miss Richmond was found sitting in one chair with her feet in another and over her head was thrown a bedspread, which covered her almost entirely. A rubber tube which led from a burner on the gas stove was held to her mouth by one hand and the other grasped a string which was attached to the electric light cord and the light was out. The room was a small one, used as a combination kitchen and pantry and one window in it was partly open.

Several notes left in the apartment indicated Miss Richmond's intention to end her life, one being dated "late Saturday night." Others designated to whom she wished several articles of clothing to be given.

Miss Richmond has relatives in Baltimore and Boston, but none in this city.

During the world war she was the victim of an unfortunate shooting affair at Fairview reservoir, when she was shot by a guard there as she was riding in the vicinity of the reservoir in an automobile. The bullet penetrated her leg which later had to be amputated and she sued the city of Norwich for damages, securing a verdict for $25,000, which was later compromised for $14,500 and paid to her by the city.

RHODE ISLAND REDS LED IN 34TH WEEK

Egg production in the thirty-fourth week of the Storrs contest totalled 4,481 or a yield of 64.0 per cent. This is 174 eggs under the previous week but 54 eggs more than for the thirty-fourth last year.

The average individual production for each of the 1,000 birds now stands at 149 1-4 eggs as compared with 147 eggs per hen in the previous contest. The contest totals for the first eight months are not a bad average flock record for the entire year.

Homestead Farms at Newtown, Conn. with its pen of Rhode Island Reds led all comers last week—a score of 64 eggs. Although this pen has been plugging along in fifth place in its class its condition and stamina and general all around fitness is such that the leading pens of Reds may well take notice.

Pratt Experiment Farm at Morton, Pa., and R. C. Cobb of Littleton, Mass., both backing Barred Rocks, tied for second place with 63 eggs each. Three pens of White Leghorns entered by Alfred J. O'Donovan of Katonah, New York, Toivonen Leghorn Farm of Girard, Pa., and Hollywood Poultry farm from Woodinville, Wash., all tied for third with 62 eggs each. West Neck Farms pen of Reds from Huntington, Long Island finished fourth for the week with a tally of 61 eggs.

White Wyandottes—The Locusts, West Cornwall, 1717; Jack Wrenna, Barton, Nr. Preston, Eng., 1512.

Barred Rocks—R. C. Cobb, Littleton, Mass. 1784; R. Walter Bishop, Guilford, 1684; Pratt Experiment Farm, Morton, Pa., 1647.

White Rocks—E. H. Rucker, Ottumwa, Iowa, 1600; Adam F. Polti, Hartford, Wis., 1460; Kalerok Farm, Westford, Mass., 1407.

Rhode Island Reds—Edw. N. Larrabee, Peterboro, N. H., 1875; F. S. Chapin, Longmeadow, Mass., 1869; F. S. Chapin, Longmeadow, Mass., 1814; W. Otis Day, Westford, Mass., 1788.

FIVE ARRESTED ON PEACE BREACH CHARGE

Upon a complaint received from the Sachem terrace neighborhood Saturday night, Captain Thomas Murphy dispatched Officer Crary to the George C. Butts house at 4 Sachem Terrace, where five Norwich men were arrested on a breach of the peace charge. According to the police record two women who had been at the house escaped before the police arrived and the men had been engaged in a drunken fight. They claimed they had been given the key to the house by Mr. Butts' son.

Those arrested were Ralph Tomaino, 22, Arthur Baribeault, 25, Edward Joubert, 21, who had his straw hat broken, Walter Corcoran, 21, who had a cut near his left ear, and Matthew Morrell, 23, who had a cut over his right eye for which he had the attention of Dr. Louis T. Cassidy.

Joseph Tomaino, the father of the first named, gave bonds for three of them, and Mrs. Stevens gave bonds for Joubert.

Workmen's Compensation Agreements

Workmen's compensation agreements as follows have been approved by Commissioner A. J. Bailey:

Merritt-Chapman and Scott Corp. employer and J. A. Pahlberg, 80, 30 Spring street, New London, employe, eye injury on April 9, at rate of $10.96.

M. A. Gammino Construction company, employer and Rocco Calabrese, 33, Jewett City, employe, bruises on chest and sprain of left wrist on June 5, at rate of $18.

Worcester Woman Arrested

As an aftermath of an automobile collision on the Military highway in the town of Ledyard at 8:30 o'clock Friday evening Mrs. Jennie Gourcourts of Worcester was arrested by State Policeman Peter Busch on a charge of failure to grant the right of way. The other driver involved in the collision was Walter Kurvawa of the submarine base, Groton. Both cars were badly damaged, but no one was hurt.

FEATURES NORWICH PAPER OVER 150 YEARS OLD

A recent issue of the Christian Science Monitor made a feature story, with a picture of a copy of the Norwich Packet, and Weekly Advertiser, published here in December, 1773.

Under the heading, Newspaper of Colonial Period Tells How Tea Ships Were Held, the Monitor says:

Probably the oldest copy in existence of the Norwich Packet, a weekly newspaper published during the Revolutionary period by Alexander Robertson, James Robertson and John Trumbull, printers, of Norwich, Conn. is the prized possession of John W. Eby of Salina, Kan.

The issue, dated Dec. 1773, furnishes advertisers, newsreaders and publishers with a colorful illustration of "how they used to do it" in the news game. It is an heirloom in the Eby family, its original owner, Capt. James Hall, of His Majesty's service, being the father of Mr. Eby's grandmother. The subscription price was 6s. 8d a year.

Publication of the Norwich Packet, according to library officials in Boston, started in October, 1773, and continued until 1802. The Boston Public Library's oldest copy was printed in 1776. Authorities declared that Mr. Eby's paper must be the oldest Packet in existence. About 12 inches by eight inches, the paper is a marked contrast to present-day newspapers, which measure about 25 by 20 inches. The publisher's place of business in Norwich was "just across the street from the Court Houfe."

The "detettable tea" problem was hovering like a cloud over the colonies when Mr. Eby's issue was printed as shown by two items, one dated Boston, Dec. 6, which reads, "On Friday arrived Captain Bruce from London, having on board a quantity of the detettable article of tea, his ship lays at the fame wharf with Capt. Hall's that fo the persons who watch the one may the more eaffly take care of the other alfo."

A unique lost and found advertisement reads, "Broke out of the subfcriber's inclofure about three weeks ago, a white barrow fhote, of about 100lb. weight, no mark artificial or natural, only a short tail and a ring in his fnout; any person that can give intelligence of the faid fhote shall be handfomely rewarded by their humble fervant."

This ought to have brought results —"Stolen from the subfcriber, the 12th infant, a forrel coloured mare with a white fpot on the left side of her neck; carries her mane foftly on the right fide, and generally paces. Six dollars will be paid for the thief and mare, or three dollars for the mare."

The leading editorial was on Happiness. Another advertisement showed that the saddling industry was at its height, and a news item disclosed that burglary at that period was considered an offense meriting a 10-year imprisonment sentence.

TAFTVILLE

To visit Mr. and Mrs. Wilfred Smith and Miss Lillian Laramie of North B street, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Laramie of Plainfield were in town over the week end.

Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Blanchard of South C street and Harold Blanchard of Jewett City road were at Misquamicut and Ocean Beach, over the week end, guests of Mr. and Mrs. Rene Rouleau.

After a stay of several days at their camp at Old Killingly Pond, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph E Heselton and their children Kendall and Revena have returned to their home on North B street.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Linderson and family of New Bedford, Mass., have been recent guests of Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Linderson of North Third avenue.

Cards are being received from Mr. and Mrs. Louis Wohleben, who are spending their honeymoon visiting interesting places in the province of Quebec. Mrs. Wohleben was before her marriage last week, Miss Bertha Froemel of Baltic.

Mrs. Treckmann of Baltic road has left to spend the summer in Germany. She sailed from New York on the S. S. Dresden for Bremen.

Huckleberries and blueberries have begun to ripen and enterprising youngsters are earning spending money by peddling them from door to door.

One of the beautiful displays of rambler roses of various colors is to be seen along the iron fence of the Wequonnoc school grounds on Merchants avenue.

Mr. and Mrs. Napoleon T. Parent and family, of Hartford, formerly of Taftville, spent Sunday with the former's father, Treffle Parent and his sister Miss Georgianna Parent of Merchants avenue.

Stanley Scraba of Putnam and Daniel Perkins of Central Falls, R. I., were Sunday visitors in town.

When the grass in the big lot north of North B street was mowed this past week, several young rabbits were discovered in the field. When chased by children they ran into the woods. It is unusual for rabbits to come so near the village where there are plenty of hunting dogs, but these were of such small size that it is believed they had been born in a burrow in the field.

Leonard Pingree of North C street is spending a few days in Bridgeport with Wilfred Linderson.

At a meeting held Friday night by the Taftville Fourth of July association the different committees reported that everything was progressing rapidly toward making the parade Fourth of July eve one of the biggest horrible parades held in the village. There will be prizes given for the floats and also for horribles. It is also planned to hold a band concert and block dancing the night of the Fourth. The final meeting of the association will be held this (Monday) night and all committees are to report at the meeting.

SUFFERS FATAL HEART ATTACK AT PICNIC

While picnicking at the beach at Giants Neck, East Lyme, George E. Shaffer, of New York city, formerly of this city, died suddenly from heart trouble at 1.30 o'clock Sunday afternoon, ending what was planned to be a happy vacation. With his wife, Mr. Shaffer had come to Norwich, Saturday evening, to spend two weeks' vacation at the home of his daughter, Mrs. William E. Card, of No. 81 Cedar street. They had gone to the beach Sunday and while there Mr. Shaffer was seized with a heart attack, from which he failed to rally. Dr. F. H. Dart, medical examiner, of Niantic, investigated the death and gave permission for the body to be taken in charge by Undertakers Church and Allen of this city, who removed it here.

Mr. Shaffer, about 60, a native of Kingston, N. Y., and a son of Norman J. and Sarah Yates Shaffer, was a resident in Norwich for about seven years, going from here twelve years ago to live in New York city. While here he was employed at the Joseph Hall and Sons mill at Trading Cove as a machinist, but of late years he worked as a stereotyper for D. S. Walton of New York. He was twice married. His first wife, Anna Belle Hulton, whom he married in Kingston, N. Y., died here on Feb. 18, 1916. He was united in marriage with Miss Amelia Bradley of New York in this city on Jan. 20, 1919.

Besides his widow, Mr. Shaffer is survived by eight children by his first wife. These are six sons, Ralph, who lives in the south, Norman of Bridgeport, Lester of Montville and Charles, George and Gerald of Norwich and two daughters, Mrs. William E. Card and Mrs. Rudolph Caron of Norwich. There are also seven grandchildren.

Although he lived in Norwich only a short time Mr. Shaffer made many warm and steadfast friends through his pleasing personality. They will be deeply grieved to learn of his death.

Willis Estate Estimated Over $50,000

The will of Irving J. Willis, disposing of an estate estimated at over $50,000 was admitted to probate Saturday morning by Judge Nelson J. Ayling after a brief hearing in the Norwich probate court, John B. Oat qualified as executor.

On European Tour

Miss Gladys S. Boardman of 31 Slater avenue sailed at 12:05 Saturday morning on the Rotterdam Holland-American Line from Hoboken for Boulogne.

She is to spend four days in Paris, visit Lucerne, Switzerland, and see the passion play at Oberamergau. She will also sail down the Rhine, visit Cologne, Brussells, Amsterdam, Rotterdam and The Hague.

CONNECTICUT SIXTEENTH IN ELECTRIC POWER

According to the most recent figures of the United States geological survey, Connecticut, despite its small area, stands 16th among the several states with respect to the generating capacity of its electrical plants. The geological service rates the combined capacity of Connecticut's public utility steam and water power operated generating stations at 873,170 kilowatts or approximately 755,000 horsepower. The generating capacity is divided among 40 plants, 12 of which furnish the largest bulk of the state's power.

Connecticut's electrical generating capacity rests chiefly in its steam operated stations, the power rating of which is 86 per cent. of the total, or 493,040 kilowatts. Slightly less than 14 per cent. of the state's capacity is furnished by the water power or hydro electric plants, these stations being rated at 79,650 kilowatts. A very small fraction of the power rating, 480 kilowatts, is in internal combustion engines.

The final revised geological survey statistics for 1929 show that the 40 electrical generating stations in Connecticut provided a total of 1,435,976,000 kilowatt hours, the largest electrical output in the history of the state. Of this total 1,232,395,000 kilowatt hours were produced by the steam stations. Due to the exceptionally dry conditions which prevailed during the summer and fall, hydro generation fell extremely low last year with a total of 202,591,000 kilowatt hours.

BIG TELEPHONE CABLE TO RUN THROUGH DANIELSON

By the end of July the first step in the enlargement of the toll telephone subway between New York and Boston, which traverses Connecticut through Stamford, New Haven, Hartford and Danielson, will be finished with the completion of the section from Stamford to New Haven, an underground conduit construction project, which, due to the necessity of river crossings, is requiring a considerable amount of engineering skill and involving manifold difficulties.

The original underground system connecting New York, Boston and intermediate points in this state by telephone was constructed more than 20 years ago. It is now congested and must be enlarged over the entire distance. An idea of the volume of toll traffic which traverses this system in Connecticut may be gleaned from the fact that the Stamford-New Haven cable now nearing completion is the sixth to be laid between the two cities and that the New Haven-Hartford cable which will also be laid this year will be the fifth between those two points.

Only two sections of the Stamford-New Haven project remain to be completed and those are the ones which carry the conduits underneath the beds of the Norwalk and Saugatuck rivers. The conduits, providing space for 28 separate cables, are being encased in heavy iron pipe, three feet in diameter, which is being rested in place in 48 foot lengths with the aid of submarine divers. The Norwalk river is 600 feet across and the Saugatuck 400 feet.

SHERIFF BROWN'S PICTURE IN SUPERIOR COURT

A handsome and enlarged portrait of the late Sidney A. Brown, who was for a quarter of a century, high sheriff of New London county, has been hung in the superior court room in this city. The portrait was donated by the widow, who sent it to Joseph J. Fields, superintendent of the court house. Mr. Fields placed the picture on the wall in the superior court room hanging it over the door leading to the judge's chambers. The picture is next to that of Mr. Brown's predecessor, Frank Hawkins, who incidentally was Mr. Brown's father-in-law.

USING BIG GUNS IN FORT WRIGHT TRAINING

The big guns at Fort Wright, Fishers Island, boomed Saturday as citizen soldiers of the 245th Coast Artillery, Harbor Defense, New York National Guard continued strenuous work of their encampment period.

Gun crews of the regiment fired the rifles, using sub-calibre charges. Starting Monday, weather permitting, service charges will be fired.

Saturday morning a federal inspection of the personnel and equipment of the regiment was held, and in the afternoon the regiment was reviewed by the 13th post, American Legion, Brooklyn.

The big push in the training period will materialize this week, and the regiment which is quartered in tents, will break camp next Sunday to return to Brooklyn.

EX-SAILOR IS SUICIDE ON R. R. TRACK NOT FAR FROM GROTON SUB BASE

Having been discharged from the navy at Portsmouth, N. H., on June 23 with a bad conduct record, Stewart August Middlestate, 25, of Watertown, N. Y., committed suicide on the railroad tracks about a mile north of the submarine base at Groton. His beheaded body was found alongside the tracks of the Worcester branch of the New Haven railroad by Joseph Rogulski of New London as he was walking along the tracks shortly after noon Sunday. The clothing on the body was wet and it is believed the man had tried drowning before he placed himself on the tracks where he would be run over.

Sergeant Webber, with Officers McKenzie and Smith from the state police barracks at Groton and Dr. Charles Kaufman of New London, medical examiner, and Coroner E. G. McKay of this city, conducted an examination and the body was identified by Lieut. Arker of the submarine base. Middlestate had formerly been attached to the S-18.

It was learned that Middlestate had been seen at the submarine base about 9.30 Saturday night, acting strangely, and that a bus driver had also seen the man along the Military highway somewhere in the vicinity of where his body was found.

TWO COMMON PLEAS JUDGMENTS GRANTED

At the court of common pleas at New London Saturday Judge Charles B. Waller granted two judgments.

On a foreclosure of a judgment lien, judgment in favor of the Beneficial Loan society of New London for $394.28 was given against Mr. and Mrs. John Sousa of Waterford.

The Noble Coal Co. of New London was granted a judgment for $223.92 against Nelson B. Avery of Waterford.
